6—In Memoriams

MOORE— In loving memory of Ethelbert Moore who passed away four years ago today, Sept. 14th, 1946.
Memory lane is a lonely path,
Where hearts are ever true.
A path I travel again and again.
Because it leads to you.
You left me beautiful memories,
Often secret tears.
But you will always be with me
As I journey through the years.
You are always in my mind dear
No matter what I do.
All the time within my heart
There is a thought of you.
—Ever remembered by his wife, Gertrude.

MOORE—In loving memory of Ethelbert Moore, who passed away four years ago today, September 14, 1946.
While you, dear father, rest and sleep,
Your loving memory we'll always keep.
—Sadly msised by his daughter Alice.

7—Cards of Thanks

Mr. C. O'Reilly and family wish to take the opportunity of thanking the attending doctors, sisters and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital also the attending clergy, the kind neighbours and the many kind people who sent flowers, cards or helped in any way during our recent sad bereavement.

Cobourg Constable Named Inspector

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP) — Provincial Constable D. A. Nicol of the Cobourg detachment of the provincial police has been promoted to the rank of inspector in the criminal investigation branch, Commissioner W. H. Stringer announced today.

It is the first time in the force's history that a constable has jumped from the ranks to an inspectorship.

"Constable Nicol is an officer of exceptional ability particularly in investigation work," said Commissioner Stringer.

Constable Nicol joined the force May 1, 1944, after having served with the Brockville police force.

Mrs. Margaret Wilson

Pall-bearers at the funeral on Wednesday afternoon of Mrs. Margaret Jane Wilson, 92, of Westcott Street, were Frank Kitney, Herbert Doig, H. Turner, R. Roode, J. Sanderson, and A. E. Prest. Mrs. Wilson, for many years prominent in church work, died on Saturday.

The funeral service was in St. James' United Church, the Rev. F. W. Craikoffici ating. Burial was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Wm. J. Baker

Funeral for the late Mrs. William J. Baker, 82, of Lakefield, was held on Wednesday at the Anderson Funeral Home. The Rev. William S. Watson of Lakefield Baptist Church officiated and pallbearers were Ollie Liscombe, John Maiel, Gordon Baker Joseph Fallis, Ivan Davis and Kenneth Reid. Flower bearers were Shirley Liscombe, Jean Pearn, Doris Maiel and Ruth Fallis. Burial was at Ray's cemetery.

Buried In Barrie

Funeral service for the late Miss Mina Ross of 191A Murray St., was held today at 11 a.m. The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, officiated and pallbearers were Ernest Howson, Frank Leach, Fred Hills, David Charlton, Leslie Rannie and James Wainwright. Burial was at Union cemetery, Barrie.

Senator Urges CN Railway Given Workers

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—(CP).—A western farmer-senator suggested Wednesday that as one means of solving Canada's railway problem the Government should consider handing over the publicly-owned Canadian National Railways to its workers and tell them to run it themselves.

Senator R. B. Horner, Progressive Conservative from Blaine Lake, Sask., who went west from his native Quebec as a young man, said Canada's railway strike might be over but that would not solve the roblem.

The railways had suffered permanent loss of business through the strike and the men would suffer in the end.

He was anxious to see the railways pay and the Senate at its next session should get down to a serious study of the problem which at the moment was working against the economy of the nation.

He had known instances where businesses had been turned over to the workers who shared the profits after paying the owner's interest in investment and a depreciation charge. He offered as a suggestion that Canadian National might be turned over to the men on the same basis. The workers would work harder if they were working for themselves.

Other Points

Senator Horner made these other points in his speech:

1. Canada was going to be short of workers in the future and should open her gates wide to immigration.

2. The Government was going to spend staggering sums on war preparations and he believed some of the money should be spent for peace propaganda, a point in which the west had fallen down.

3. There seemed to be a lack of world leadership at present and Canada seemed to lack trained diplomats.

Senator Horner said he had opposed controls since the 1940's. To those who would complain about the high price of beef he would point out that farmers were getting top prices for only a few animals, and the fact beef was being retailed at prices out of all proportion was proof that someone in between was raking in the profits.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

SWIMMING SEASON OPENS

Members of the YMCA Swimming Club will dive into the pool Monday night to open the 1950-51 indoor swimming season. Gord Minty, honorary swimming director, said today that the club will meet Mondays from 6:15 until 7:30 and Thursdays from 4:15 until 5:15.

1,479 VISITS

The Public Health Nurses connected with the Peterborough Department of Health made a total of 1,479 visits to homes in the city, during the three summer months, according to Miss Gene Clark, nursing supervisor. Visits to individuals totalled 2,040. There were 424 new homes visited and 764 individuals visited for the first time.

AT BIGWIN CONVENTION

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers was elected to the executive of the Canadian Institute on Sewage and Sanitation at their convention this week at Bigwin Inn. Sessions opened on Monday and were concluded Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Chalmers was accompanied by Ald. H. Dodds, chairman of the Board of Works. They left on Sunday afternoon. One of the interesting program talks was an account of the Red River flood effects in Winnipeg by W. L. Wardrop, engineer of waterworks and sewage in that city.

Obituary

CHARLES ALBERT MASTERS

Charles Albert Masters, 62, of 721 Elcombe Crescent, died in hospital Wednesday after a two years' illness. He was born in Colborne, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Masters and resided in Peterborough for 32 years.

Mr. Masters was educated in Methuen township and lived in Havelock before coming to Peterborough. He was an engineer with the Outboard Marine Co. Mr. Masters was a member of George St. United Church and a member of L O L 457, Nassau.

He leaves his widow, the former Lottie Doxsee; one daughter, Mrs. R. Willshaw (Gladys), and one son, Roy, both of Peterborough, and two brothers, Frederick of Havelock and John of Peterborough. Also two grandchildren, Paul and Judy.

The funeral service will take place at the Kaye Funeral Home, Saturday, at 2 p.m. The Rev. Arnold A. Mathews of George St. United Church, will conduct the service. Burial wil be in Little Lake cemetery.

Omemee Council Refuses Request For Villlage Curfew

OMEMEE, Sept. 14.—(ENS).—A request for a village curfew to get children off the street in the evenings was turned down by the Omemee Village Council, members of the Home and School Association learned at their meeting Wednesday.

A letter from the Council told the association that it had considered the question, but had decided not to act.

The association was resuming its activities after a summer adjournment.

Swim Program

Mrs. R. Rawling reported that 79 children had taken part in a safer swimming project conducted during the summer by Mrs. Pansy Forbes of the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club and the Canadian Red Cross. Two young people, June Collins and Bill McKenzie, received bronze medals for qualifying as life-saving instructors. They will help teach youngsters next summer.

Mrs. H. Lennox, health convener, reminded members September is national immunization month. A health talk was given by Mrs. Wm. Earle on child care as it relates to school life.

Supper Planned

A pot-luck supper was announced for the first Monday in October, and a suggestion made that this could be used as a means of increasing membership if prospective members were invited to attend.

L. M. Curtis, Public school principal, stated that the enrolment this year was equal to the highest since the school was built.

New Teacher

High School Principal J. B. Hough introduced Mrs. Butler, who has recently been appointed to the High school staff as teacher of English and history.

He encouraged parents to keep in touch with the work of their boys and girls in school. Inquiry about their progress would always be welcomed, he said. He also thought parents and students should get together on the matter of vocation, so that the student's course could be designed to aim the student at his future vocation.

H. V. Smith, president of the Omemee Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly on the origin and purpose of the chamber, and he outlined its development up to the present day.

Canadian Destroyers Suffer No Losses

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP).—Defence Minister Claxton indicated today Canada's destroyers off Korea have suffered no losses.

He was asked in the Commons by Harry Cavers (L-Lincoln) whether there is anything to reports that the Canadians have suffered losses in a naval action.

Mr. Claxton said he understands there has been an action but it didn't involve Canadian ships.

At the same time, he read a message from Gen. MacArthur congratulating the Canadian naval force and its commander, Capt. J. V. Brock on their skill and co-operation and inviting senior Canadian naval officials to come out and see how good they are.

Lindsay Fair Plan Big Show

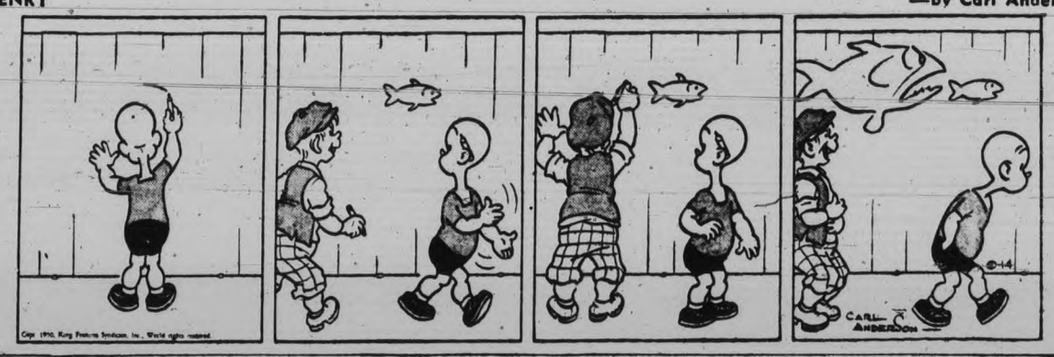
Lindsay's five-day Central Exhibition, which officially opens on Wednesday, Sept. 20th, promises to be the best in its 74 consecutive years, according to manager B. L. McLean. For the past several days, a small army of people have been busy setting up commercial displays and exhibits. Space in the main building was sold out a week ago. "There is not a foot of it available, now" Mr. McLean said.

Distributing more than $15,000 in prize money this year, exhibits in every class are bursting display room at the seams. Holstein breeders asked for, and got, an extra show barn; there are 200 entries in this section alone. Shorthorn, Angus, Guernsey and Jersey exhibitors are extra.

Lindsay, in the heart of a heavy hog-raising district, will have a larger swine show than ever. Grain growers are showing a marked increase in exhibits also.



A new racing barn, just completed at a cost of $4,000 contains 15 box stalls; all this space too, is taken.

Popular singing choirs and name bands have been engaged for grandstand entertainment.

Community Centre Favored For Millbrook and Cavan

MILLBROOK, Sept. 14 (ENS) —At the regular monthly meeting of the Millbrook Council on Tuesday evening, following a motion by councillors Coulter and Raper, the clerk was instructed to prepare a bylaw to establish a community centre and also to ascertain if the ownership of this centre can be held jointly by the two municipalities, the township of Cavan and the village of Millbrook. The bylaw is to be submitted to the council at the next meeting.

Communication was received from A. R. Willmott, K.C., stating that the Ontario Municipal Board had issued its order of August 10, permitting the issuing of debentures for school purposes as requested in bylaw 766. This bylaw authorizing the municipality to borrow $5,500 by issuing debentures for public school purposes was given a third reading and on motion of councillors Coulter and Larmer, was passed.

Herb. Bremner asked council to improve the roadway from King St., to his garage and gas station. A motion by councillors Raper and Coulter was passed that the clerk be instructed to procure a lease to be submitted to the council granting Mr. Bremner the use of the triangular piece of ground, situated on the north-east corner of the playgrounds.

Ralph Innis, on behalf of the managing board of the Anglican Church, petitioned the council to have a culvert placed in the ditch on the roadway leading into church property on the north side of Centre St. The council assured Mr. Innis that this matter would receive consideration.

The following bills were presented and on motion of councillors Coulter and Raper were ordered paid: Millbrook Garage, account fire engine, $47.21; Millbrook Garage, truck and sander, 173.80; Edward Skitch, labor, 8.00; Clifford Scott, salary, 150.00; John Trick, labor, 94.12; Coulter Bros., hardware, 5.18; Millbrook Hydro, streets, 90.16; Millbrook Hydro, town hall, 3.69; Millbrook Hydro, rest room, .83; Docon Telephones, 5.85; Provincial Treasurer, insulin 1.74; Municipality of Cavan, gravel 568.40; Smith's Garage, gas, 15.47; Treasurer, postage and excise, 2.00; unemployment insurance, 4.27.

Fire Chief Douglas reported that a one hour fire practice had been held. Ten members responded to the call and all equipment was in good order.

Bible Society Speaker Asks For More Money

NORWOOD, Sept. 14 (ENS)— —The annual meeting of the Norwood branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held Monday evening in the Presbyterian Church with a good attendance.

The Rev. Egerton Young, district secretary from Toronto, was present and presented two sound films, entitled (1) For Times Like These and (2) Thy Word Giveth Light.

In his address he mentioned that twenty million copies of the scriptures had been put into circulation this past year, but still this was not enough to meet the demand. He said Japan's door was wide open for religion, and that we must get in there before Communism.

"The Bible is the foundation of freedom," Mr. Young asserted, "and we must have more funds to carry on the great work."

He asked all people to increase their givings twenty-five per cent. for the next five years.

Collection at the meeting amounted to $17.25.

Warkworth Band Ends Outdoor Concerts

WARKWORTH, Sept. 14 — (ENS). — The Warkworth Community Band presented its final in a series of outdoor concerts at the Community Ball Park Friday evening.

Rev. J. M. Ritchie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was master of ceremonies and Joseph Minicola of Peterborough was the band leader

T. Mound of Codrington was guest soloist, and he was accompanied by Miss C. O'Keefe on the piano.

Miss Evelyn Atkinson, member of the band and trained by Mr. Minicola, presented trombone solos, with Mrs. D. Knight at the piano.

During an intermission period community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. Blair Huycke at the piano.

The collection amounted to $32.85.

Announcer In Hospital

HAMILTON, Sept. 14 —(CP)—Tommy Shields, Ottawa Citizen sports editor and well known radio announcer, has been confined to St. Joseph's Hospital here since last Saturday when he suffered a heart attack in his hotel room following the Ottawa Rough Riders-Hamilton Tiger Cats football game. He has improved rapidly and will learn today if he can leave hospital.

Relatives Sue Gov't.

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 14 (AP)—Relatives of Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress, sued the government Tuesday for the return of the Duce's love letters to her written before the two were shot by Italian partisans here in 1945. The family also demanded damages because the government had allowed publication of some of the letters.

Three Canadian Destroyers Taking Part In Big Allied Landings

Advance Into Inchon After Taking Island In Terrific Bombardment; Storm Beaches 150 Miles Behind Red Front

TOKYO, Sept. 15—(CP)—United Nations forces, striking by sea and air in bold assaults more than 150 miles behind the main front line, made landings on both the east and west coasts of Korea today as the U.N. offensive against the North Korean Communists gathered momentum. In an amphibious landing covered by American, British and Canadian warships, U.S. Marines and infantry landed behind Red battle lines on the west coast and knifed swiftly under fire into the big port of Inchon, harbor for Seoul, Red-held South Korean capital.

Covered by bombardments from warships offshore, the Marines landed first—at 5.30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

Dispatches from the Inchon beachhead said the three Canadian destroyers attached to United Nations naval forces—Athabaskan, Cayuga and Sioux—were among 262 Allied ships taking part in the operation.

South Korean marines landed at the same time on Korea's east coast.

The west-coast landings were made at a point 22 miles from Seoul. A U.S. army corps landed 11 hours after the marines went ashore.

The marines landed on Wolmi Island after warships slammed heavy shells into concealed Red shore positions.

Burn Out Island

A naval summary said the naval bombardment and jellied gasoline bombs spread by fighters literally burned out the wooded island. So close was the timing, the bombardment stopped a slim 15 seconds before the marines hit the beach. They drove two miles inland on their first lunge.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, U.N commander, said the deep amphibious penetration might break the backbone of the North Korean army.

In the thrust ashore at Inchon U. S. Marines were said to have suffered only "negligible" losses.

The South Koreans who landed on the east coast were reported to have ocupied Angang, eight miles west of the port of Pohang on the coast of the sea of Japan.

The co-ordinated thrusts deep into Red territory were the kick-off of the long-awaited United Nations offensive.

Tide Turns

It was the day of the turning tide, coming after a series of bitterly-fought allied withdrawals that began with the tank-led North Korean assault across the 38th parallel June 25.

Since that time, the allies had been shoved southward on the mountainous peninsula into a box beachhead on the southeast.

Attlee Calls Cabinet On German Issue

LONDON, Sept. 15—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Attlee today called a cabinet meeting to decide on Britain's attitude toward German re-armament.

This hurried call for a meeting was prompted by an urgent cable Thursday night from Foreign Secretary Bevin at the Big Three foreign ministers conference in New York.

Bevin asked for further instructions on the German army issue after the Big Three failed to reach agreement on the issue Thursday and went into recess until Monday.

Bevin's cable for guidance is believed due to the fact that State Secretary Acheson of the United States is backing a move to create a German military contingent under the North Atlantic Pact while the British stand favors an armed German police force for internal security but not a West German army.

In view of the U.S. policy, diplomatic quarters here believed Bevin is seeking authority to agree in principle to creation of West German armed forces—provided that the western Allied powers receive priority in equipment.

Foreign Minister Schuman of France is also understood to be seeking instructions from his government this weekend in time for the resumed session of the Big Three conference next Monday.

BARE COMMUNIST PLOT AGAINST U.K. INDUSTRY

House Told Red Leaders To Strike This Weekend

LONDON, Sept. 15—(Reuters)—Labor Minister George Isaacs today exposed a huge Communist plot to disrupt British industry. He warned Parliament meetings were being held this weekend with the aim of disorganizing the country's essential services.

Among the leaders were men who had just returned from a Cominform meeting in Warsaw, the Labor Minister told startled MP's.

There was evidence that an organization was being created, chiefly by these and by men prominent in wildcat strikes.

Isaacs said the government was keeping a close watch on those activities and would not hesitate to take action—legislative action if necessary.

Anthony Eden, deputy Conservative leader, described the Labor Minister's statement as "one of the gravest made to parliament in recent years."

Though Isaacs mentioned, only the British aspect, some trade union leaders here believe it part of a plan devised by the Communist-led World Federation of Trade Unions to disrupt all Western Europe's ports and industrial areas.

Gives Facts

Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the British Transport and General Workers' Union, told reporters three members of the unofficial London Port workers' committee had just returned from a meeting in Warsaw.

It was sponsored nominally by the Polish Dockers' Union and "purported to represent dockers, road transport workers and workers concerned with our meat supplies."

He also linked Communists with the wildcat London bus strike, which today was partly paralyzing the city's transport.

More than 15,500 men have stopped work in this unofficial strike as a protest against engagement of their demand for higher pay.

Appealing to workers not to let the Communists make catspaws of them, Isaacs said: "I am speaking at a time when our men are facing serious risks in Korea and when it is essential there should be no danger of interference with their supplies and their support."

Arrest 17 Spies At Manoeuvres

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Sept. 15— (Reuters) — United States Army Intelligence agents rounded up 17 alleged Russian and Czech spies shortly before that start of the United States army's big Autumn manoeuvres, American sources said today.

The manoeuvres started Monday in the United States zone of Germany.

All but three of the spies were picked up in the Nuernberg area, where American troop strength was concentrated.

A high American intelligence officer said the Russians and Soviet-satellite countries are "saturating" Western Germany with spies, many of them posing as refugees.

Eight of those seized have been tried and given prison terms of five to eight years.

Can't Explain His Dismissal

WINDSOR, Sept. 15 (CP)—E. C. Awrey, who has retired from his Crown Attorney's post Thursday by the Attorney-General's Department in a reorganization of Windsor police administration, said today he is unable to find out why he has been dismissed.

"I've been unable to find out what I've done to deserve this," he said. The Attorney-General's Department "hasn't informed me of anything."

He said he was first told of his dismissal Wednesday. He returned to Windsor Thursday night after a one-day visit to Toronto and today began removing his private papers from the Crown Attorney's office in Windsor.

"Of course it is a different kind of justice to what is administered in the courts," he said, "but I suppose there is no use worrying after you have missed the train."

He will return to private practice.

Say Labor Government Will Scrape Through

LONDON, Sept. 15 (Reuters)—Political quarters predicted today the Labor government would scrape through next Tuesday's confidence vote on its steel nationalization plans, possibly by the narrowest of margins.

The government's resignation, and an election in October or November, would automatically follow if it were defeated by Winston Churchill's Conservatives on the proposal to take over the steel industry Jan. 1, 1951.

Announcement of this proposal Thursday plunged parliament into crisis.

LaFleche Asks To Be Recalled

CANBERRA, Sept. 15 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. the Hon. L. R. LaFleche, Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, has asked the Canadian government to recall him, it was learned today.

Gen. LaFleche said ill health resulting from injuries suffered in the First World War has prevented him from carrying out his duties. In a statement to the press he said he plans to sail aboard the Aorangi Oct. 5.

He has been high commissioner since last October.

In a farewell message to Australia he said that the future will see Canada and Australia much closer 'than we now imagine."

"I notice with great pleasure that you have found uranium, which will add to your capacity to defend yourselves.

"I've seen and admired the steps you have taken to stop the incursion of Communism in this country. I am not so much against Communism as the way they practice it and what they have imparted into it.

"I think you Australians are eyes to the danger of Communism, and as a result it will be a lot less dangerous towards your country."

Reach Agreement

HAMILTON, Sept. 15 (CP).—Agreement was reached today in the wages hours strike of 1,000 Hamilton civic workers that started Aug. 3. Settlement terms were kept secret, pending their submission to a union meeting Sunday afternoon.

Red Champions Beat Up TLC Delegate

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP)—Charges that Communist sympathizers beat up an anti-Red delegate attending the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada convention were made today on the convention floor.

The congress and individual delegates promptly put up rewards totalling $1,100 for the conviction of the men who attacked delegate William Russell of Toronto outside his room in the convention hotel Monday night.

William Russell, a Typographical Union member who is vice-chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, was badly mauled by about three men who slugged him from behind, kicked him and then threw him unconscious into his room.

Delegates Angry

He had recovered by today and was on the convention platform as President Percy Bengough told angry delegates of the attack.

The beating apparently resulted from a case of mistaken identity. Russell Harvey of Toronto, American Federation of Labor organizer, made a speech Monday in which he suggested that all delegates making leftist-line speeches be thrown out of the convention.

In giving Harvey the floor, President Bengough referred to him as "Delegate Russell."

The president today declared the congress was putting up a $500 reward, and Harvey quickly said he would match that amount personally. Ken Green of the Halifax District Trades and Labor Council added another $100 personally.

Chevrier Suggests Canada Develop Own Seaway Plan

CORNWALL, Sept. 15—(CP)—Canada's Transport Minister has called for "plain speaking" and possible independent Canadian action in the long-postponed plan for the St. Lawrence seaway development. Transport Minister Chevrier did some "plain speaking" himself in an address Thursday night in his home town and home constituency, and suggested ways this seaway-conscious border city might fit into a Canadian seaway if the United States Congress does not want to approve the $1,000,000,000 project.

Mr. Chevrier endorsed the idea of a combined international project, but said that "if there are interests in the United States that are going to stand in the way of the development forever, Canadians ought to be told."

"After we are convinced that no progress can be made on the combined scheme—and unfortunately that seems to be the case—then I believe that Canada should consent to the reference of the (power) applications of Ontario and New York State to the international joint commission for consideration.

Use Canadian Side

"In that event, I personally believe that Canada should also explore the possibility of constructing a deep waterway on the Canadian side of the boundary."

Ontario and New York have asked to develop the hydro project alone. Canada has indicated its agreement but the U.S. has said both the hydro and seaway projects must come at the same time The U.S. Senate has never approved the move

Mr. Chevrier, addressing a meeting celebrating the 100th anniversaries of the union of the counties of Stormount, Dundas and Glengarry, said Canada is impatient with American inaction and that he spoke at time when "for military, economic and strategic reasons we should press for action."

Elaborating on the idea of an independent Canadian move, he noted that the 14-foot draft of the canals already on the Canadian side of the border could be deepened to 27 feet, and said there was "every reason" to proceed with the project "now."

He recalled that the 2,200,000-horsepower development which could be harnessed from the long Sault rapids had been talked about even when he was a boy in Cornwall.

Refuse To Marry Queen's Niece

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Church of England today refused to allow an Anglican wedding service for a divorced niece of the Queen.

As a result the niece—Viscountess Anson—and Prince Georg of Denmark will be married Saturday by the priest of the Danish Seamen's Church of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Canon H. C. Rorison, chaplain to the Earl of Strathmore, told reporters the Bishop of St. Andrews, his superior, had told him not to perform the ceremony.

Viscountess Anson was divorced in 1946 on grounds of desertion.

The wedding will take place at Glamis Castle, ancestral home of Queen Elizabeth. A Buckingham Palace spokesman said the King and Queen will not attend the ceremony.

51 People Killed By Philippine Volcano

MANILA, Sept. 15 (AP)—The government announced tonight 51 persons were killed by an eruption of Hibok Hibok volcano on Camiguin Island near the northern coast of Mindiano in the southern Philippines.

Twenty-seven others were badly injured, the announcement said.

The report of the casualties was received from Red Cross representatives on the island.

Three Philippine naval patrol vessels were ordered to go to the island and stand by in the event there was need for a mass evacuation of the inhabitants.

Three villages were reported by the Red Cross as being threatened by falling ashes.

Name Canadian To Pact Post

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—(CP)—Theodore F. M. Newton, former Canadian newspaperman and veteran of the Diplomatic Service, has been appointed Director of Information of the North Atlantic Defence Organization, it was announced Thursday night.

Newton, present Canadian consul in Boston, will have the task of co-ordinating the activities of a proposed Atlantic pact information service.

Newton will be on loan from the Canadian government to the deputies for an indefinite period. He will leave his consular post this month for London where the new information service headquarters will be established.

The Canadian will be assisted by a small staff from other pact countries.

The announcement said that the establishment of this information service is "designed to help member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty to keep their citizens informed about the objectives of the treaty and the activities of the North Atlantic Treaty organization."

Report Shaw Takes A Turn For Worse

LUTON, England, Sept. 15 — (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, suffering from a fracture of the thigh, took a turn for the worse today.

The Luton and Dunstable Hospital anounced that a specialist in diseases of the kidney and bladder has been called to examine the 94-year-old playwright.

"Mr. Shaw is comfortable," said a noon medical bulletin, "but his general condition is rather less satisfactory."

An earlier bulletin had said the famous Irish wit "had a good night and is quite comfortable."

Nab P.O. Employee Selling Sweep Tickets

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP).—A post office employee accused of selling hundreds of Irish sweepstakes tickets through his stamp window was arrested yesterday. The defendant, Jerome Bloom, was charged with selling lottery tickets and was held in $1,000 bail. He has been a postal employee 32 years.

Takes Only 60 Seconds After Radar Warning To Get Canada's East Coast Jets Into Air

CHATHAM, N.B. Sept. 15 —It takes just 60 seconds after radar warns of an approaching enemy to get Canada's east coast jet fighters into the air.

The squadron, one of Canada's two operational Vampire squadrons, went through a dummy run here Thursday for newspapermen. The other squadron is based at Montreal.

The front-line jets are manned by men like veteran Sqdn.-Ldr. A. T. P. Davidson of Vancouver and youngsters like 22-year-old F.O. M. G. Sauder of Waskatenau, Alta.

Davidson—who, at 30 years of age, is almost the grandfather of the squadron—says jet flying is "a piece of cake."

"Everything happens faster and therefore you actually have less to observe and do," he says. "I think it's actually a lot easier than with old, conventional-type fighters."

Behind the squadron is a training establishment turning out replacements at the rate of 20 pilots every three months and Wing-Cmdr. E. B. Hale of Hamilton, station commander says the rate is being stepped up.

Busy Little Beavers Working Overtime To Outwit Miner Trying To Build Road

PICKEREL, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP)—The busy little beavers are working overtime here to outwit a hard-rock miners who is trying to build a road.

Ken Wood, a former Kirkland Lake miner, is foreman of a drilling gang which is trying to build a road from Britt to Sudbury as part of the Trans-Canada highway.

Six of Wood's furry little friends have made a small lake right where the road is supposed to go.

Last week, after chasing the beavers away, Wood blew up their dam. The lake went down only two feet. By next day the beavers had rebuilt the dam.

"I refuse to be outwitted by beavers," said Wood and blew up the dam again.

This morning the beavers had reconstructed it. What's more, the beavers had built two more dams, about 40 yards downstream to reinforce the first.

As he laid another round of dynamite charges, Woods said: "I will keep blowing up the dams."

Order Shipment Kept Safely

HONG KONG, Sept. 15 (AP)—A spokesman for the Chinese Communist foreign ministry today said his government has instructed the Bank of Canton in Hong Kong to safeguard a shipment of munitions from Canada now in a colony warehouse.

The munitions, the spokesman explained, originally were ordered by T. V. Soong, brother-in-law of Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese Nationalist leader. The order was placed when Soong was governor of Kwangtung province in South China.

The spokesman said the bank was instructed to protect the armaments pending ultimate delivery to the Chinese Communist government.

10-Cent Increase Granted GE Workers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (CP)—The International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO) and General Electric Company, today agreed on contract terms to end a strike of 40,000 workers threatening to spread throughout the company's 116 plants.

The agreement calls for a 10-cent hourly wage increase, about half of which already has been in effect since July 1, and a cost-of-living wage increase arrangement following the pattern set by the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and General Motors.

The wage arrangement is for only six months.

House Gets Pile Of Work Done In 18 Days

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (CP).—Parliament, working at unaccustomed speed, crammed a baby budget and a half-dozen major pieces of legislation into its 18-day special session.

Operating at a pace attuned to the urgency of the domestic and international situations, the Commons and the Senate moved swiftly to end the rail strike and then gave equally-quick endorsement to measures to step up and finance this country's expanding defence program.

Thursday, as the Commons completed its work, George Drew Progressive Conservative leader, introduced a motion to require that parliament be called back by Nov. 15, at least. His motion went down by a voice vote, and a motion by Mr. St. Laurent to meet Feb. 14 next was carried.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader said he would be inclined to favor Nov. 15 as a meeting date, but Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), speaking for the CCF group, said he thought all that was needed was an assurance by Mr. St. Laurent that parliament would be summoned if necessary.

Up To Parliament

The Prime Minister also gave an undertaking that the government if it decides to increase the forces available for Korea or elsewhere beyond the 15,000 men authorized now, it will place that decision before parliament.

Mr. Drew, pressing for an earlier meeting of Parliament, suggested there would be new decisions which would have to be made by the end of October. He pointed to major conferences soon to be held, such as the United Nations General Assembly, Atlantic Pact talks and the current meeting of the Big Three.

As the final debates tapered off, Revenue Minister McCann warned bluntly that the increased defence expenditure will mean "a degree of austerity we have not had for a long, long time."

John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) joined Progressive Conservative members in protesting against the newly-imposed tax on candy while Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia) felt, as did most C.C.F. members, that an excess profits tax might have been enacted. He also plumped for compulsory savings.

Prices Sag Slightly On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP) — Prices sagged from early gains as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today Buying appeared at the opening but a sudden burst of selling started leaders sliding downwards and the drop picked up speed at the half-way mark.

Base metal stocks paced the decline, dropping into minus ground for a second straight session following four days of uninterrupted advance. Almost all issues trading sagged. Several stocks sold at new highs in the opening burst of buying. Hudson Bay, Waite Amulet, Quemont and Noranda, leaders in the recent advances into new high ground were hard hit.

Industrials also eased. Gains and losses were about balanced but market leaders were among the losers. Steels, utilities, agri- slipped fractions. Papers continued in slight demand.

Golds dipped in mid-session from strong early gains. Several lower-priced issues were in heavy demand. Porcupine Reef held most of the limelight, jumping about 40 cents and selling at a new peak of $1.02.

Losses tripled gains in western oils. Calgary and Edmonton and Royalite led the decline.

Drunk Complains Police Rough

Protesting that he had been manhandled by city police but refusing to tell his story from the witness box because it would be no use, Thomas A. Simpson, Lakefield, was found guilty in police court today of being drunk Sept. 11.

Lakefield's Chief Garnet Samis, who said he knew Simpson well, testified he had seen Simpson staggering his arms spread-eagled, in the middle of Water St. near Edinburgh St. Because he had pasengers in his car, Chief Samis did not stop and pick up Simpson. He reported him to city police.

Acting on Chief Samis' report Constable Donald Mackay drove to north Water St. with Constable Douglas Farthing and at Parkhill Road saw Simpson staggering and waving his arms. Simpson's speech was nearly incoherent and he smelled of alcohol. The man was drunk, Constable Mackay said.

Alleges Hose Used

"I admit I was inebriated as far as that's concerned," Simpson said from the prisoner's dock, but he said he had been manhandled after reaching the police station and displayed a long scrape that was healing on his left shin. He said police had also turned a hose on him, but he couldn't see who did it.

Constable Mackay said as Simpson was being searched in the police guard room, he became very belligerent and cursed the officers in an abusive manner. As he was being led to the cell, he started to struggle and "used his feet as weapons." The constable said he was not aware that Simpson had been hurt in the scuffle.

Constable Mackay added that he had been in and out of the station all the rest of the night and had neither seen anyone using a hose nor heard of anyone using a hose to squirt water at Simpson.

After 11 p.m. Chief Samis said, he had returned to the police station and Simpson was shouting and swearing in a very loud voice in the cell.

Jet Pilot's Body Located In Woods

LOWVILLE, N.Y., Sept. 15 — (AP)—The body of Lieut. George H. Helbing, 25, was found Thursday in the wreckage of an F-86 jet fighter plane in dense woods near here.

Helbing's plane crashed Wednesday in the southern part of Lewis county, about 30 miles southwest of here. Lowville is about 60 miles southeast of Kingston, Ont.

Capt. Richard Leech, public information officer at the base, said the cause of the crash was unknown.

The beachhead had shrunk to an area roughly 50 miles wide, by 70 deep.

It was some 165 miles northwest of this beachhead that MacArthur was throwing his main counter-punch.

MacArthur On Hand

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander who planned the bold amphibious operation to get behind Red battle lines was on hand to direct the west coast landings on the Yellow Sea.

Brown pillars of smoke from the bombardment billowed up into the overcast skies.

Associated Press correspondent Relman Morin reported shortly after the landing the Americans had driven two miles into Inchon. Morin landed with the forces.

The west coast operation put allied troops 150 miles behind the southeast Korean beachhead front.

Morin reported an attack on Wolmi Island—connected to Inchon by a half-mile causeway — preceded the main landings at the port city. The island fell to the Marines after an hour of battle.

Strongly Defended

Wolmi was strongly defended. It commands the entrance to Inchon harbor and is part of the harbor installations. They were shelled by six destroyers and four cruisers—some of them British—for two days before the landings

Gen. MacArthur promptly broadcast his congratulations to those aboard ships and ashore:

"The Navy and Marines have never shone more brightly than this morning."

Associated Press Correspondents Don Whitehead and Bill Ross were with the big force hitting the beaches at Inchon.

Their dispatches confirmed an earlier South Korean announcement on the landings—an announcement which official United Nations sources would neither confirm nor deny at first.

The first source to give the information was Maj.-Gen. Chung Il kwon, commander-in-chief of South Korea's armed forces.

yang then said United Nations forces landed at Inchon and had advanced half of the 22 miles to Seoul.

South Korea's Taegu newspapers on the southeastern beachhead front reported American parachute troopers landed at Kimpo airfield, 12 miles northwest of Seoul. No source was given. Residents of Taegu cheered the news.

Two Landings

Gen. Chung told Associated Press Correspondent Bill Shinn that simultaneous landings were made on two points of the east coast—two miles northeast of fallen Pohang and at Yongdok, 25 miles farther north. The general said South Korean marines went ashore there.

The Inchon landings were preceded by British and American cruiser and destroyer bombardments and strikes by carrier planes.

Chung said American troops, covered by the booming guns of warships and an aerial umbrella, hit the beaches of Volmi Island, which links to Inchon by a half-mile causeway.

South Korean Marines also stormed ashore at Inchon proper, Chung said.

Inchon, a city of some 300,000, is the port for Seoul. Between and slightly to the north of the two cities is Kimpo airfield—probably the best in Korea before it was worked over by American fighters and bombers.

Apply Heavy Pressure

Gen. Chung said heavy pressure was applied quickly to the Kimpo airfield. This evidently was the action described in the Communist broadcast reporting United Nations forces had advanced half way to Seoul.

Another west coast landing on the Yellow Sea—at Kunsan 100 miles south of Seoul — was reported by a South Korean assemblyman, Chin Soo. He said a warship's guns covered it.

coast, 1,000 South Korean Marines struck quickly at the coastal road north of Pohang—the retreat route for Red forces arrayed from Pohang westward to Angang. In front of these Communists, the US 24th Division and South Koreans were narrowing a gap in their lines.

The US battleship Missouri shelled the east coast port of Samchok, 70 miles north of Pohang.

On the Taegu front, critical north-west corner of the defence box, the US 1st Cavalry Division still controlled the highest hill on the northern approaches to the vital communications hub.

Could Be Wrong

Maj.-Gen. Hobart R. Gray, commanding the 1st division, said he believed his troopers had "broken the back of the main enemy thrust." Mindful of the 24,000 Red troops on his north and northwest sectors, however, he added that he might be wrong.

Artillery and mortar fire roared again elsewhere on the front after several days of comparative quiet.

On the first cavalry's southern left flank, the U.S. 2nd division battled to retake a hill yielded to the Reds Thursday between Yongsan and the Naktong river. Yongsan is 28 miles south of Taegu.

On the U.S. 25th division front in the extreme south, an American regiment threw back a predawn assault.

The mid-day communique of the U.S. eighth army, reviewing the situation for the 24 hours up to midnight Thursday, noted general improvement all along the 50-mile stretch of the northern front.

Can Close Trap

With the Korean Marines behind Red lines on the east end of this front, allied forces are in a position to apply a nut-cracker sweep to the Reds between Pohang and Angang, nine miles to the southwest. Angang, still in Red hands, was the springboard of the Communist offensive which reached southward to Yongchon and near Kyongju last week.

Stubborn fighting by allied ground forces and a methodical, widespread application of air and naval power for weeks preceded the Inchon landings.

A U.S. Far East air forces summary said that most military and industrial targets had been removed from the strike list by their destruction. It did not mention aerial support for the landings at Inchon.

Superfortresses attacked tactical objectives. Fighter-bomber sweeps were continued against airfields north of the 38th parallel "to insure that the enemy has no opportunity to mount even a limited air offensive."

Order Story Killed

Considerable disturbance resulted from first reports of the landings. The Associated Press was "ordered" by MacArthur's headquarters to "kill" the story based on Gen. Chung's announcement.

Later, however, news of the west coast landings was broadcast by 24th division headquarters to American and South Korean troops on the northern front.

This was after hours of official U.N. headquarters silence on the announcement from Gen. Chung. American headquarters officers said Chung was not a spokesman for the United Nations command.

A spokesman at U.S. eighth army headquarters declined to confirm Chung's announcement. A bit later, a headquarters spokesman told AP correspondent Bem Price what the Red radio was saying—that landings were made at Inchon and allied troops were half way to Seoul.

Should Be On Guard

Workers, he warned, should be on their guard against attempts to drag them into a struggle which will be detrimental to the nation, themselves and their fellow-workers."

Isaacs said the government was considering a broadcast to the nation on the issue

"Past experience proves that the instigators are the same people and the technique is always the same," he said. Trouble is fomented over any convenient reason and the issues are confused by introducing additional claims as the stoppage of work occurs.

Results Nil

"Net result for the workers in return for the hardship they caused themselves, their families and the community is precisely nil.

"But to the instigators this does not matter. They have caused the trouble they wanted."

Eden said if it was necessary to pass legislation against the Communist conspiracy, the general desire of parliament would be to extend its current emergency session to pass it.

Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister, said he would bear that in mind but he did not think it would be necessary.

Isaacs said there is evidence that the organization to plan labor unrest is being created chiefly by men prominent in previous unofficial strikes.

They included some expelled from their trade unions for anti-union activities.

Landlord Fined $40 On 4 Charges

Abraham Cherney, 558 Downie St., pleaded guilty in writing in police court to four charges of violations under the Wartime Leasehold Act and was fined $40 and costs.

Cherney pleaded guilty to two charges of collecting a higher rent than that fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He pleaded guilty to another charge of demanding a rent higher than the fixed rent and admitted a fourth charge of demanding that a tenant leave an apartment contrary to the regulations.

All the charges involved a three-room apartment at 147 London St., rented to Garfield Everson. For seven months from September, 1949 to March, 1950 he charged $19.19 a month, about $2.70 higher than the fixed rent. For the next four months to July, he collected $22.50 a month when the fixed rent had been raised to $18.61.

In a letter to Everson he ordered him to vacate the rooms in 30 days and demanded a rent for August of $27.50. Under the Wartime Leasehold Act, he was obliged to give six months notice and then only on condition that he needed the rooms for his own use.

Fist-Swinging: $10 Each

A loud argument, in which some fists were swung, across the street from the home of Havelock Constable Bay M. Bell Thursday night cost two Havelock men $10 fines and $5.20 costs each.

The men were Lyle Morgan and Joseph Patterson. They pleaded guilty to charges of disturbing the peace.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

3,000 DEGREES IS REALLY HOT!

A woman considers her oven as "very hot" at 450 degrees. And so that such temperatures may be reached and held with a minimum of fuel, all modern ovens are fully insulated.

Imagine then, the insulation required for industrial "oven" temperatures as high as 3,000 degrees!

The problem of developing insulation to withstand such terrific heat was solved by the Johns-Manville Research Laboratory, the largest and best equipped insulation laboratory in the world. For over 90 years, Johns-Manville has been foremost in the development of insulations to meet industrial temperatures ranging from 3,000 degrees above to 400 degrees below zero.

Whenever you need expert insulation service, contact Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your J-M distributor.

Tractor Pins Man To Wall

COBOURG, Sept. 15 (ENS).—Norman Dolley, aged 45, of RR 4, Cobourg, was badly injured on Thursday when a tractor he cranked in gear pinned him to the inside wall of the barn. He was taken to Cobourg Hospital, suffering from internal injuries.

Mr. Dolley went to the barn to get the tractor in order to pull a motorist out of the ditch. He did not realize it was in gear, and when the engine caught the tractor moved forward and pinned him against the wall. An upright caught the tractor and held it, but not before Mr. Dolley was rammed against the wall.

The hired man heard his cries and released him.

Street Fight Broken Up Man Fined $10

Robert Cholette, Bethune St., was found guilty of causing a disturbance on his own plea, but a charge of escaping the custody of Constable Harold Andrew was dismissed in police court Thursday. He was fined $10 and costs.

His brother-in-law, Arthur Finn, with whom he was alleged to have been fighting on Charlotte St. August 25, was fined $10 and costs and $40 and costs on charges of causing a disturbance and resisting Constable Andrew.

Testifying in court, the constable said he had been attracted by a crowd on the north side of Charlotte St. while patrolling the street about 11.25 p.m.

As he walked over to the crowd he saw Cholette strike Finn in the face with his fist. He said he broke up the fight and after some little discussion took them by one arm each and started toward the police station.

When they had taken about five paces Cholette suddenly twisted free and got away. Finn struggled with him as well and grabbed him by the neck trying to break away. At that point Constable E. E. McDonald arrived in the police truck and helped him get Finn into the truck. Cholette had disappeared.

A little more than an hour later Cholette came into the police station and surrendered.

Called as a witness for Cholette, Finn testified they had not been fighting, only arguing and Cholette had not struck him. Queried by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Finn said he didn't remember too much of what went on because he had been drinking.

Cholette said Finn "was mad and he was drunk" because he had come along when his wife was talking to Cholette and a friend Jack Shannon sitting in their car. Cholette said he hadn't had a drink all day.

He said he was trying to get Finn home and "get some sense into him."

He told the court Constable Andrew hadn't placed him under [illegible] to come along to help him manage Finn. He said he started out with the constable and Finn, but Finn had made a lunge at him and the constable released him to deal with Finn. He added Finn wouldn't calm down as long as he was there, so he just walked away.

"I'll give you the benefit of the doubt," Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, told Cholette, "although the officer undoubtedly asked you to come in."

Cobourg Unit Holds Reunion

COBOURG, Sept. 15 (ENS).—Members of the 3rd-47th will gather here on Saturday for their annual re-union and some 200 veterans are expected to be on hand. Registration will start at 1.00 p.m. on Saturday and in the evening a banquet will be held in St. Andrew's Church rooms. Sunday afternoon Padre J. A. Monroe, M.C., will conduct a memorial service at the cenotaph and the re-union wreath will be laid on the cenotaph by Jack and Jill Schleihauf, twin children of the late Gnr. Homer Schleihauf.

The unit saw action on several war fronts. It was mobilized in July of 1940 and went overseas in September of 1941. After two years in England it went to Italy in 1943 where it saw heavy fighting along the Hitler Line and at Ortona before going on to Holland for the final stage of the war.

The 3rd-47th was recruited from Cobourg, Belleville and Napanee districts, and most of the 22nd medium battery, a reserve unit during the war, joined the 3rd-47th. Later two other batteries merged with the 3rd-47th to make up the 5th Light A.A. Regiment, a designation which it retained throughout the war.

Proof Of Age Asked

COBOURG, Sept. 15 (ENS). — The public school board has drafted a new regulation which provides that proof of age must be presented by parents in regard to any child starting in kindergarten. The child must have been five years of age as of December 31 of the preceding year. This measure is to ensure that no children under five are allowed to start school as overcrowding already exists.

Little Lake Pollution To End?

The sewer connecting East City with the main system is almost ready for use. Therefore no longer will East City sewage, inadequately cleansed, be dumped into Little Lake. Will this mean an end to the pollution of the lake? Will canoeing, aquatic meets, and even swimming be possible in this potential gem in the very centre of the city? The prospect is not as shining pure as it would seem. There are other sources of contamination.

* * *

As anyone knows who looks at Jackson Park creek as it flows through the city, people will insist on dumping rubbish and waste into it. Oil drums, old tires, junk, laundry residue, old motor car oil; all sorts of things go into the creek. Most of Little Lake is not so conveniently secluded for nefarious dumpers, but nevertheless it is available. Then there is pollution by industries. Because of the lack of sufficient pumps at the disposal plant, all of Canada Packers' waste cannot be carried by the George Street sewer. It goes into the Lake. It is true that the city authorities require the firm to screen its refuse before dumping it; nevertheless, what goes into the Lake water is still refuse. The firm is eager to co-operate with the city in cleaning up the mess Little Lake has got into, and when the new pumping apparatus is installed and working at the disposal plant, the existing sewers may be able to take away all of Canada Packers' refuse. This is not certain; eventually a bigger sewer may have to be laid.

* * *

Other industrial contamination—for instance, from railway sidings, mills, and the Quaker Oats company—is negligible in comparison. A special pumping plant at the foot of Simcoe street is used almost entirely to run off the Quaker Oats company waste.

* * *

We must wait and see, probably for two or three years after the new sewers and pumps are in use, whether or not the waters of Little Lake and the Otonabee below it become clean. The present amount of pollution cannot be reduced to nothing over night. The water is slow-moving and there are decades of waste matter at the banks and on the bottom. Further, there is no definite assurance that industrial and general civic contamination will be so little that the water will become pure enough for the ordinary uses of pleasure. A body of water in the very heart of a sizable city is never the easiest thing to keep clean.

Sharing The Defence Of Europe

On Tuesday the Foreign Ministers of the United Kingdom, France and the U.S.A. began in Washington a series of meetings in which they have since been joined by the foreign ministers of other democracies. They are discussing the defence of Europe. Last weekend, obviously with the purpose of giving the meeting something to work on, President Truman made the important announcement that his country would substantially increases its forces stationed in Europe, and said that this increase would depend in some measure upon matching action by other countries concerned. Canada, of course, is one of those countries. What we shall be asked to do is still unknown; we may be asked to supply arms, or men, or assistance of some other twpe. We shall know soon.

The U.S. insistence upon matching action by other democracies is fair enough. The U.S.A. is the leader of the democracies now, and will undoubtedly be so for a long time, but the U.S.A. cannot carry the whole burden alone. But what President Truman said was unmistakeable evidence that there is no isolationism to be found in Washington. Let us not deceive ourselves that isolationism is utterly dead in the U.S.A.; it is quiescent, but not dead. But official U.S. opinion, and the opinion of the country generally, is in favour of a strong stand anywhere in the world where democracy may suffer attack from Russia. Europe is a likely spot.

The Allied Zone of Germany would be an easy place for an attack upon Europe, and it must be defended. The Germans do not want to raise troops to defend their country, and the Allies are not agreed that Germany should be permitted to do so. But it is suggested that Germans be permitted to enlist in Allied forces, and if this suggestion is adopted we may see the curious spectacle of thousands of young Germans joining American and British forces.

The defence of France is at least equally important, for it is no secret now that France has no effective troops. But France has a large and organized Communist party, and in the event of a Russian thrust, France would be easily overcome. France must do something for herself to meet this situation, but the encouragement (and it must also be said, the shame) of foreign troops on her soil for her defence, might prove an effective spur.

The dispatch of large American and other democratic forces to France and Germany is nothing to rejoice about. The best that we can hope is that the presence of troops there will quiet any ambition Russia may have to spread over Western Europe. It is suspected that the Korean thrust may be the first of many to seize new lands for Russia and create new spheres of influence. This may be a mistaken idea, but the possibility cannot be ignored. A show of preparedness—no, more than a show—is necessary. It is to plan that action and allot duties that the Foreign Ministers have been meeting in Washington.

Billy-O For Windsor

Ho! Ho! Ho! and a bottle of rum (illicit). Windsor has been uncorked.

The Crown Attorney is fired. The Police Commission, with the exception of the conspicuous Mayor Reaume, has resigned. (The Mayor stays on the Commission by virtue of his elected office, and as long as he unimpeachably holds the office of mayor.) The morality squad, it has been revealed, has considered vice in all her ways, and done little about it. The forthcoming report of Pacifique La Plante of Montreal, on that metropolitan centre's reputed lurid and low ways cannot glow any more redly than the report of the two Provincial Police inspectors who opened the pages on Windsor yesterday.

The investigators' report gives in detail some of the causes of the low estate into which Windsor has fallen. On these, we forbear to comment. But we believe that there are two general flaws in Windsor's make-up, from which all else that is of ill-report stems. Windsor is too near Detroit. Windsor is too flat.

We have already remarked—three months ago in fact—that Windsor is contaminated by American ways and means, infiltrating through the tunnel or across the river from Detroit. Instead of aping, say, Whitby, from which the replacement Crown Attorney is being borrowed in this crisis of seamy-sides, or Brampton, from which Judge Cochrane comes to replace the Windsor judge on the Police Commission, the border city has aped Detroit. There is much to be said for the simple, honest, God-fearing ways of Whitby, Brampton and such inland places as Peterborough.

Basically, all that has happened to and in Windsor is due to its flatness. The countryside around is flat. The city is flat. There is no elevation to lift the morals, exalt the tone, and give the citizens the rarefied atmosphere of hills. People in plains tend naturally to low practices. They are not merely down-to-earth; they live perpetually at the eye level of a low horizon. Banditry, swashbuckling, wife-stealing, and other such sports of antiquity may flourish in hill country, but primordial wickedness breeds on plains and marshes. Rome did not lose her glory and moral fibre because of the seven hills; it lost them on the plains between and the flat country outside the city walls. By these tokens be warned, Windsor.

Peterborough's Great Sons

Around the turn of the century this district achieved some notoriety as a breeding-ground of financiers: Flavelle, the Morrows, Wood and others. There were later leaders of commerce like Matthews and O'Connor. But since the Great War this area seems to have had no giants of commerce or industry, generals of armies, or men of science and the arts who have won national or international renown. Instead, we have been producing, it seems, a high level of talents and worthy people. When a Peterborough person is accosted elsewhere or even abroad, he is told: "So you come from Peterborough. Well, Peterborough has fine people". And he is received as one of the fine people. There is a general high regard, without a scintillation.

But the story is more than that. Peterborough people are now making great names far afield. One of her sons is the big voice in Canada's pulp and paper industry. Another, a young man, is gaining international repute for scholarly research into modern literature. A Peterborough scientist now in Britain is one of the senior men in the atomic energy developments. A Peterborough singer is on Broadway. A photographer bred in Peterborough schools is among Canada's best in industrial subjects. A Peterborough Collegiate product is a Dominion Cabinet Minister.

Nor do all the brightest and best live away. Engineers, industrialists, men of business, and even some concerned with the arts, are now beating a path to Peterborough. The city is no longer off the highways of the world's affairs, even though its railways are branch lines.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: I wish you would put in a good word for planting maple and other trees along our highways. The Department seems to use mostly pine, spruce etc. But here in southern Ontario our big glory is the colourful hardwoods. (The letter goes on in praise of hardwoods.)

ANSWER: I let your good words stand. Probably the reasons for so much planting of Norwegian pine and the other coniferous trees along our new highways are: (1) These fir trees keep their foliage and act all year round as a headlight-break. For instance, the boulevard on 2A after Oshawa can be blinding without the tree-blind; in winter deciduous trees give no protection from advancing car headlights on the opposite lane. (2) Coniferous trees, softwoods, usually grow more quickly, and are not as hard to root as hard woods.

I have long been a proponent of our hardwoods, but received a jolt from a youthful acquaintance who has spent the last four summer months doing an assessment survey of forest growth a couple of hundred miles north of Ottawa, on the Quebec side. He was one of a party of eight, mostly university students on a summer job. They lived in the wilderness, saw neither village or other men for the four months, packed their food and tents on their backs, and occasionally had food brought to them by company plane.

He says that hardwoods in the north are valueless, and ignored. One reason is that they are not really plentiful. The chief reason is that they are hard to get out. They will not float down the rivers, unless the water is very cold and the spring season is right. So it seems that hardwood in our remote forest areas are financial flops. Thus it behoves us here in the accessible south to grow these valuable trees. If I had a ten-acre waste lot in, say, Burleigh, I'd plant it all in hardwood, for whatever grand-children I might beget.

SIR: Will you please give a translation of the motto under the heading on the front page of your paper?

ANSWER: The phrase comes from the Latin writer Terence and means "nothing human is foreign to me". The complete line is "Homo sum: humani nihil a me alienum puto" —"I am a man; nothing' ... etc. The quotation is also put into the mouth of the Professor in Robertson Davies' play 'Fortune, My Foe', and englished thus: 'Nothing that concerns humanity is foreign to me'. Freely, it means that the whole world is my oyster.

DEAR ALPHA: Is it true that a woman named Deborah Ponton (or Penton) was burned as a witch near where the Brewery Warehouse now is, about 1845-50?

ANSWER: The surname Ponton or Penton strikes me as being unusual in this district's early times. But I shall check up as much as I can. There is a very remote chance that it could be true, and that the woman was burned before she had time to produce any children to carry on the name. I am doubtful that local people believed in witches in 1850.

ALPHA: Is the market square going to be metered for parking?

ANSWER: Yes, it seems so, once the market is relegated to another site. I shall miss the flowers.

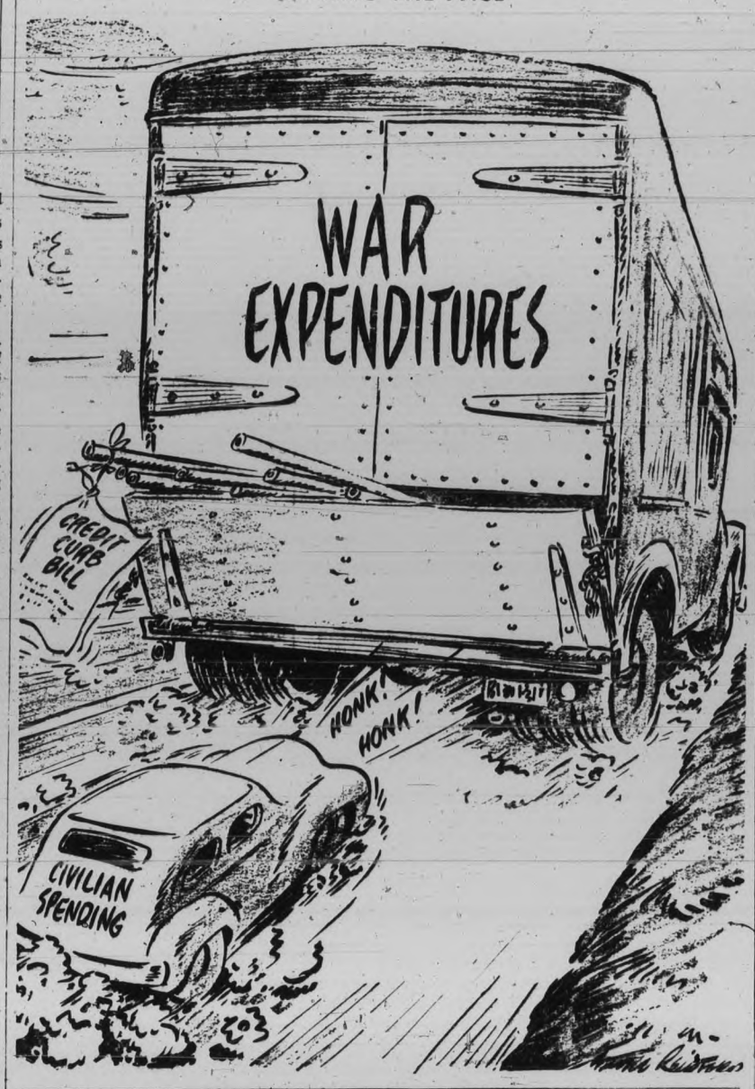
DISTINCTIVE CAR: There have not been enough questions to eke out the column today, so here is a random note. But I warn my dear readers, that unless the questions come in, this column is going to be short next Friday. No more padding after today .... The distinctive car is my own. It's a two-tone, four-cylinder pre-war job; not another like it in town. I thought it was toney until I experienced the results. Every living soul in town knows what I am doing and where I am because they spot the infernal machine.



When I sneak into my office at 10:10 a witty worker across the street is bound to phone and say: "Oh-ho! Late again." When I am quietly parked outside a hotel (to which I have resorted to check the register to see if Mr. St. Laurent has checked in lately), the President of the Better Babies Clinic will meet me on the street the next day and say: "You know, Dear Alpha, you will not have a Better Baby if you continue to patronize those Beverage Rooms." Why, last Sunday, somebody spotted my car parked outside a church and accused me of being an attendant. The moral of this tale is: drive an inconspicuous Buick so nobody will spot you.

When I was touring the James Bay area this summer, I met nobody I knew, so I thought. But as soon as I get back to town, a local Master of Theology phones me and says: "Do you know, our paths crossed on the highway south of Fort Churchill. I recognized your car immediately.... Who was the female sitting beside you?"

❖ ❖ ❖

FOR THE RECORD: St. John's Church put up a new Union Jack for the visit last Sunday of Archbishop Kingston, a centenary morning service which some of the Council (invited in a body) and other civic officials attended. The main centenary services in the city are being held next Sunday. ... I began this note about the flag. It should be said that the largest flag flying in town, and it flies proudly, is the Red Ensign over the Quaker Oats. It is a storey wide, and twice as long. It, or its brothers, have been flying all summer; and the company is to be praised for the display. In this country we are much too reticent about flying our flag, and, indeed, exhibit a certain irreverence towards it which would shock Americans, if they only knew. The Union Jack or the Red Ensign is used to drape pianos, hucksters' booths, bare patches on church hall walls, and the serving table at club lunches. The first batman I had in the army (it was at a military camp perched on the prairies) used an old Union Jack as an apron when he was polishing boots. He also chewed tobacco, so the thing was stained with more than boot-black.

SETTING THE PACE

Hearts and Rivets

(MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

THE new Chinese leaders have announced that they want revolution all along the line, in culture no less than in politics. So their magazines are now full of articles about the revolutionary new drama in Peking and Shanghai. The special favourite is a play called "The Song of the Red Flag", which has run for several months in Shanghai. Another has the inspiring title "The Ideological Problem".

Both these plays turn their back on the amiable tradition of the Chinese theatre. The conventional Chinese play has always been about romantic characters of the past—gardeners lovesick for princesses, extravagantly pious sons, virtuous bandits, incognito emperors, and so on. These have been dressed in peacock magnificence and have expressed themselves by a code of gestures for whose conventions the theatre-goers have demanded careful respect.

All this belongs to the now frivolous past. The new plays are about strictly contemporary themes: they are prose plays and are acted with a minimum of realism. Actually the realist drama has not been invented by the Communists. One of the interesting events culturally during the war with Japan was a birth of modernist drama in Kuomintang China. The Communists have carried the trend much farther. Their plays deal with workers.

THE Communist ideal seems to be that plays should be written collectively. "The Song of the Red Flag" is advertised as by six authors and by all the factory workers in a mill which the authors visited. Most of the actors come from the Chinese cinema. How much is the breach with the past due to Communist theory and how much to the influence of the cinema?

Whether "The Song of the Red Flag" will shed lustre on Communist China is doubtful. Its setting is a government factory in a town six months after "liberation" by the Communists. To stimulate production the girl workers have been divided into teams. There is a competition between them, and the prize is to be a Red Flag. The chances of one group are endangered by the bad team spirit of one of the girls, Ma Fen-chieh, who does not understand Communism and actually says of the trophy: "What's a red flag but a piece of cloth on a pole?"

In the action there is a similarity to that of English books of a generation ago about girls' schools. It might be supposed that the authors were soaked in the works of Miss Angela Brazil and had transformed the background from St. Monica's to the cotton mill. Ma Fen chieh—who is really the turbulent problem child of the Lower Fifth — plants waste cotton in another girl's machine and brings grave reprimand upon her. The other girls send Ma Fen-chieh to Coventry.

BUT Ma Fen-chieh is not really bad. It is simply that she does not understand the new ideas. She is devoted to her old invalid mother and works in the factory in order to support her. So when she is threatened with dismissal there is a real crisis. Fortunately, under Communism nobody can be dismissed by the bureaucratic order of a manager. Dismissals have to be investigated by the trade unions.

When that gets to grips with the matter everything becomes clear. There is an orgy of self-criticism, everybody confessing manfully—or womanfully—that all is his or her own fault; the ex-capitalist manager takes a special share of the blame. Ma Fen-chieh works like a demon for her team, which wins the Red Flag. On the day the trophy is presented she hides herself coyly but is dragged to the factory by the other girls.

The climax comes with Ma Fen-chieh's final speech proclaiming that the workers are now masters. She has come a long way from the time when she thought lightly of the Red Flag. In its sentiments the play seems to be not unlike that famous piece "Young England" which ran so long and so uproariously before the war. Is the revolutionary Chinese culture to be judged by it?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not. (Mark 16: 9-11.)

And, behold, two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about three-score furlongs ... And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. But their eyes were holden that they should not know him....

Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself. (Luke 24: 13, 15, 16, 25-27.)

Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen....

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. (Mark 16: 14, 19.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy. (Lev. 19: 1, 2.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. (Matt. 5: 48.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The doctor told the film actress that she was run down and needed a change.

"A change," said she. "Do you know that during the last eighteen months I've had three husbands, four cars, three jewel robberies, eleven cooks, two divorces, and seven landlords? What other change can you suggest?"

❖ ❖ ❖

Irvin Cobb found it easy to convince his readers that he was funny. Convincing his 6-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, was another thing. At school one day, Elizabeth was questioned by her teacher.

"And what does your father do for a living?" asked the teacher.

Elizabeth had to confess that she didn't know. When she came home, she immediately put the question to her mother.

"Well, a humourist is one who says and writes funny things," explained the patient mother.

"Huh," snorted Elizabeth. "He doesn't seem very funny around here."

I'm A Nice Customer

(Ruby Greene in the Kiwanis Magazine)

I'm a nice customer. All business men know me. I'm the one who never complains no matter what kind of service I get.

I'll go in a restaurant, and I'll sit while the waitress gossips with her boy friend and never bothers to look and see if my hamburger is ready to go. Sometimes a party who came in after I did gets my hamburger, but I don't say a word in complaint when the girl tells me:

"Oh, I'm sorry. I'll order another for you."

I just wait.

If the soup is cold, or the cream for the coffee is sour, whatever happens, I try to be nice about it.

It's the same when I go to a store to buy something. I don't throw my weight around. I try to be thoughtful of the other person. If I get a snooty salesgirl who gets nettled because I want to look at several things before I make up my mind, I'm polite as can be. I don't believe that rudeness in return is the answer.

I never kick. I never nag. I wouldn't dream of making a scene, as I've seen people doing in public places.

No, I'm a nice customer.

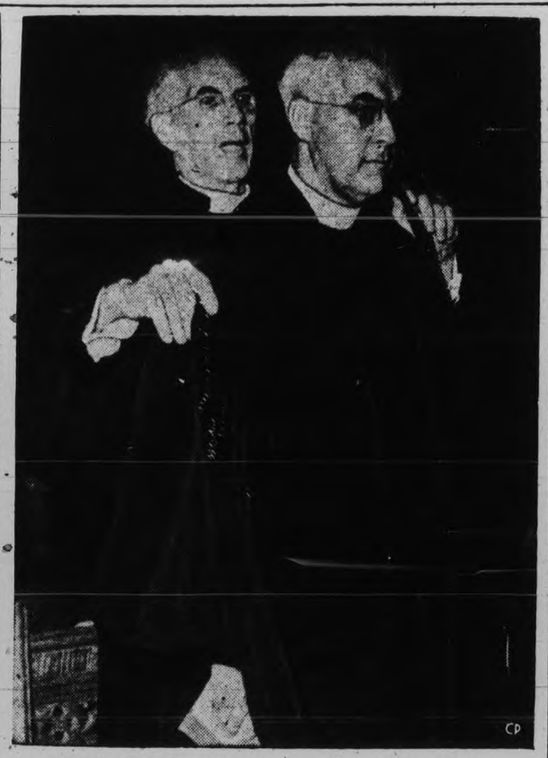
And I'll tell you what else I am. I'm the customer who never comes back. That's my little revenge for getting pushed around too much.

A nice customer like myself, multiplied by others of my kind can just about ruin a business. And there's a lot of people in the world like me. When we get pushed far enough we go on down the street to another store and eat hamburgers in places where they're smart enough to hire help who appreciate nice customers.

School Board Grants Increase In Teacher's Salary

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15 (ENS) Chairman Roy Bullock presided for the September meeting of the Public School Board held this week.

Charles Renaud, music instructor of the school, asked the board for a raise of $100 per annum in salary. After some discussion this was granted because Mr. Renaud's salary was below the minimum set by the Teachers' Federation.



Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gill asked the board permission to enroll their daughter in a Lakefield school. Mrs. Gill said since a portion of their farm is in Lakefield they had assumed their children would attend Lakefield school, but found they would not be allowed to. Chairman Roy Bullock explained that the inspector was the one who made the decision, and pointed out that the Gills' farm was not in Lakefield school district.

Because of over-crowded conditions in the public school no exceptions could be made.

Principal Everett Sloan reported an enrolment of 296 pupils.

Lunch was served to the school board by the Home and School Association.

People On Tour Not Charged Duty—Customs

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—A United States customs office denied Thursday night that it had charged members of the Glidden Tour duty because they broke up a trip to Canada with a St. Lawrence River boat ride.

A woman member of the tour, a trip from Lake Placid to Rochester, N.Y., via Montreal in about 100 ancient automobiles, had said that "many" of the tourists had paid duty on Canadian purchases because of the boat trip into U.S. waters.

Thomas J. McArdle, deputy collector in charge of the customs station at the Thousand Islands bridge, denied the statement. He said only one of the approximately 200 tourists had been charged duty and that he admitted he had not been in Canada 48 hours.

Current customs' regulations allow travellers to bring back $200 worth of duty-free merchandise after a 48-hour visit to Canada.

The Glidden tourists entered Canada Monday noon and returned to the U.S. Wednesday afternoon.

McArdle said that after the two-hour boat ride had been deducted from the total time they had spent in Canada all but the one man had spent between 48½ and 50 hours across the border and therefore were allowed to bring $200 worth of duty free goods.

The Glidden tour, held most every year since first started in 1903 by Charles J. Glidden, is sponsored by the Veteran Motor Car Club of America, the Antique Automobile Club of America and the Horseless Carriage Club.

Most of the tourists arrived in Rochester Thursday.

Centennial Service
At Civic Arena

The Ministerial Association has arranged an open-air service of worship at Civic Arena for this Sunday evening, September 17th, as its contribution to Peterborough's program of centenary celebrations.

The program includes music and songs by a massed choir of 200 trained voices and the Salvation Army Band.

Dr. George B. Gilmour, Chancellor of McMaster University, will give the address.

The service proper will commence at 7.45 o'clock but the band and its songsters have a special program starting at 7 o'clock.

Plans are completed to accommodate thousands at this service.

You are invited to attend.

May Call On School Children To Help In Okanagan Orchards

KELOWNA, BC, Sept. 15 (CP) They may close Okanagan Valley schools next week to let the kids swarm through the groaning apple orchards.

With a 7,500,000-box harvest ready to be reaped, some 10,000 pickers are needed. There is a ren may fill it as they did in war years.

Between 400 and 500 growers were wiped out by the killing winter and many others lost to a greater or lesser degree. About 25 per cent of all trees were destroyed.

Though the apple crop is an estimated 400,000 boxes less than to be better, especially in the US. The Okanagan finds its chief markets in Canada, the US and Britain, though the United Kingdom source dried up completely last year.

Kelowna, a city of 10,000 whose stores and homes seem as if they had just been freshly painted yesterday, is the golden core of the valley's $25,000,000 fruit and vegetable industry. Here are the headquarters of BC Tree Fruit Ltd., the giant co-operative that handles the marketing of fruit and vegetables for 3,700 growers in the valley.

If the kids get into the orchards, there's going to be a terrific run on soda fountains when the harvest is home in October. Pickers get seven cents a box—nine cents if they stay until the whole orchard is picked. A good picker can fill 200 boxes a day, 150 apples to the box. That comes to $14 a day for a fast worker.

Getting Ready

Barges now are moving freight cars to packing plants along the lakeshore. Later, filled, they will be shoved back to railheads at Penticton, Kelowna and Vernon. Hundreds of trucks are starting to cart the fruit from orchards. The valley's fruit industry is worth about $7,000,000 to the railways each year, worth another $5,000,000 to supply firms.

There are some 1,400,00 fruit trees in the valley, scattered among 35,000 acres of orchard. The average holding is 10 acres and in a good year—and when prices are also good—a rancher can gross between $4,000 and $5,000.

Apples make up about 75 per cent of the crop and bring in about $13,000,000 annually.

Some of last year's figures: Cherries, 520,431 boxes; apricots, 603,339 boxes; plums, 168,581 boxes; prunes, 1,023,780 boxes; pears, 609,503; grapes, 149,210 boxes; vegetables 555,776 boxes; A box weighs 40 pounds.

Last winter's severe cold all but ruined the soft-fruit production. For instance, there was a crop of 2,000,000 boxes of peaches last year. This season there were only 100,000 boxes. There may be 700,000 next year.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Oshawa Red Raiders play the local Orfuns at 8.15 tonight in Morrow Park to open the ORFU senior "B" grid season. Big parade and all the trimmings. Weather being right, it should draw a huge crowd. One of the imports returned to Ottawa, but Coach Harv Bamforth still has a powerful squad with six Ottawa huskies and one from Hamilton along with the pick of Peterborough talent. Bill Huntley is the Hamilton ace, while Merv Bonney, John Baker, Chuck Paul, Gord Peachey, Bill Dalton and John Lynch are on loan this season from Ottawa Rough Riders. Paul won't be here tonight, as he's still playing baseball with the Nationals.

* * * * * *

In A Strong Grouping

That's it, folks, these are the grid Orfuns for this autumn. As you football followers know, the team is grouped with Oshawa Raiders, Orillia Bombers and Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts. All teams have bolstered plenty, Oshawa having a hookup with Argos and being coached by Bob Cosgrove of that club. It's a short, hard schedule with no group playoffs, so every game is highly important. The Orfuns are in good condition after a heavy training grind and they'll have no alibis if they lose. But we believe they'll prove a pleasant surprise to fans here this season.

An item in the Toronto Star says austerity has hit hockey in the Old Country. There's a ceiling of $60 a week for hockey players, most of whom are Canadian imports. The game draws quite well in England and they see some fair hockey, perhaps on a par with the senior "B" play seen here. Certainly not any better. The English clubs don't go out and get Canadian players on their own—nope, they have a better system. Sort of a pool. Just one purchasing agent comes over here and shops around for some time, eventually signing up 50 to 60 players. They are divided up among the six clubs operating in England and no one gets more than $60 a week. Scotland also operates a puck circuit.

The Rains Came Again

No softball at the Bowl last damp evening. Mutuals and East City were slated to go in the fourth of their best-of-seven city finals, Mutuals leading two games to one. But wet weather forced another postponement. This wretched weather all summer—with few exceptions—has been tough on most sports, and seems to have hit the girl and men softballers especially hard. Their finances have taken [illegible] cut toward the lights this year. After all, one just can't control the weather, can one? Word now is the men will have a twin bill Monday eve, starting at 7.15.

Comes an appreciative letter by way of his wife from Joe Walton, who is quite sick in Civic Hospital. He was pleased to be mentioned in press and radio recently and he thanks Eddie Murphy and the Petes for sending flowers and good wishes. Feels the team did very well this season, only losing out to a slightly better club. Joe used to play ball around Toronto for years, later being a manager and umpire before coming to these parts where he took an active interest in the game. Couple of his boys played baseball and softball, his brother Tom was a player and manager, and his son-in-law, Howie Dalton, is a prominent member of the Petes and of the Mutuals. Best of luck, Joe.

Rickey Sells Good Ones, Keeps the Bums, Fans Wail

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK —(NEA)— When the Dodgers lost the World Series last fall, Branch Rickey announced that it would be a different story in 1950.

It is, but not the one the Manhatma anticipated. Instead of marshaling his forces for the World Series, Burt Shotton is trying desperately to keep out of the second division.

And you should hear the mournful wait-till-next-year outcry of the incredible Flatbush faithful.

"Rickey sells the good ones and keeps the bums," they weep.

"The Brother sold himself out of a bench.

"He might have had to peddle players to remain solvent in St. Louis, but Brooklyn doesn't have to sell players. It can afford to keep them.

"With 520 players under contract, and 24 chain stores, why does Rickey have to fool with bonus players?"

Sold Some Good Ones

Rickey peddled some pippins picking up more than $500,000 during the off-season.

Chico Carrasquel going to the White Sox was a frightful mistake, especially now when it is evident that the Brooks require a replacement at shortstop.

Rickey retained Bobby Morgan ahead of Carrasquel. They're calling the young Venezuelan "another Honus Wagner."

Morgan has yet to demonstrate that he can hit major league pitching.

Sam Jethroe and Bob Addis went to the Braves, Iry Noren to the Senators, Danny O'Connell to

Alouettes Find You Still Need Kicker To Win

Montreal Alouettes, reigning champions of Canadian football, are beating the bushes for someone who knows how to kick.

Paradoxically, Lew Hayman's Grey Cup holders were rated as pre-season football favorites because of their abundance of hirelings who could pass, plunge, tackle or run. Apparently nobody thought to line up an expert at the occupation for which the sport was named.

The oversight showed up plainly as the Montrealers dropped two of their first three games. They struggled manfully up the field, only to have someone hoist a booming punt that left them back where they started.

In an effort to plug the gap, Alouettes reached into the hinterland of Northern Ontario to sign up a tourist-camp proprietor who hasn't played the game for years, but who owns a reputation as one of the most fearsome kickers in the game's history.

If Ab Box can boot the way he did in the '30s Hayman's problem is solved. Just in case he can't, the Alouettes are investigating the possibility of signing Ernie Becker and Pete McKeown, two cast-offs from Toronto Argonauts with kicking ability.

Started With Beaches

Box made his mark with Toronto Balmy Beach, with whom he first lined up in 1930, and with Toronto Argonauts, whom he joined the following year. He played, off and on, for those two clubs until his retirement in 1938.

In those days Ab was a triple-threat man, equally known as a quarterback and passer. But if he gets into action against the Rough Riders at Ottawa Saturday, he'll be a kicker only.

While the Riders and Alouettes fight it out for last place in the Interprovincial Union, with identical records of two losses in three starts, Hamilton Tiger-Cats will tackle the Argonauts in Toronto to break their tie for the league lead.

The surprising Cats, who dropped their first decision to Ottawa last week, downed the Argos in their first encounter on Labor Day. It was Toronto's only loss in three starts.

Retains Title

SWANSEA, Wales, Sept. 15 —(AP).—Eddie Thomas, 150, retained his British welterweight title Thursday night by decisioning fellow Welshman Cliff Curvis, 147, in a dull 15-rounder. The crowd of 18,000 yawned and booed. The referee threatened to throw both boys out of the ring if they didn't speed up the action.

COMPLETE MYSTERY.—Sal Maglie shows Shortstop Alvin Dark the grip and delivery with which he hoped to break the National League records of four straight shutouts and 46 1/3 consecutive scoreless innings. That would equal the American League mark of five shutouts in a row, established by Doc White of the White Sox in 1904. The AL record for consecutive scoreless innings is 56, hung up by Walter Johnson of the Senators in '13. Maglie's streak was broken after 45 scoreless innings.

Yankees Tumble Tigers In Important 7-5 Victory

By RALPH RODEN,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

A couple of old pros, Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize, are nobly carrying on the New York Yankee tradition of winning the clutch games.

These two veterans, both in their 12th seasons, are supplying the power that has propelled the Yankees to the front in the ding-dong American League pennant fight.

DiMaggio and Mize powered timely home runs Thursday to lead the bombers to a 7-5 victory over the Tigers in the opening game of their vital three-game series at Detroit.

The "jump" triumph moved the world champions to the head of the class with a half-game edge.

Tigers Fall Back

The Tigers fell back to second while the surge of the Boston Red Sox was derailed temporarily in St. Louis by the upstart Browns, who now have won eight in a row. The Browns polished off Tom Yawkey's gold-plated boys 6-3. The Sox now trail by two games.

Detroit turned to its young righthander, Art Houtteman, to get them back into the driver's seat today. The 23 - year - old ace has won 18 games, including four over the Yanks. The New Yorkers trotted out Tommy Byrne a Tiger tamer from way back, to improve their position. Byrne has scored 14 victories, including four over Detroit.

Dick Starr, a former Yankee, stunned the Red Sox with a neat seven-hitter under the lights at St. Louis. The Browns broke a 2-2 tie with three runs in the sixth inning and were never headed.

Down Athletics

Chicago White Sox turned back Philadelphia Athletics 5-2 in the only other American League game. The Sox scored all of their runs in the first inning. Washington and Cleveland were rained out.

Philadelphia Phillies continued their march to the National League pennant by edging St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in a night game in Philadelphia.

Willie Jones singled home Ed Waitkus from third base with two out in the ninth inning to win the game. Jim Konstanty, making his 65th appearance, gained credit for his 15th victory.

The Phils' lead, however, was reduced to six games as the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers took a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds, 6-3 and 5-2.

Gets 18th Victory

Preacher Roe gained his 18th victory in the finale but Ralph Branca saved the game in the ninth by striking out two pinch-hitters with the bases loaded.

New York Giants split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the second game 6-1 behind the six-hit pitching of Jim Hearn after losing the opener 7-1 to little Murry Dickson, who also granted only six blows.

Johnny Sain became Boston's third 19-game winner as he pitched the Braves to a 7-4 victory over Chicago Cubs. Vern Bickford and Warren Spahn also have won 19 games for Boston.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Dave Kerr, New York Ranger goaltender, announced his decision to retire from hockey nine years ago today. The Toronto-born Kerr, who broke into the NHL in the 1930-31 season with Montreal Maroons, won the Vezina trophy once and was twice runner-up.

Collum Evens Series For Red Wings

By The Associated Press.

Johnny Keane took a page out of Connie Mack's book, and as a result the Rochester Red Wings have evened their semi-final International League playoff series with Jersey City Giants.

Keane surprised everybody on Thursday night by starting Jackie Collum, a little lefthander, against the Giants in the second game of the series. Collum, used mainly in relief throughout the regular season, came through with a 10-4 victory to square the series at 1-1.

Mack pulled an even-greater stunt in 1929 in the opening game of the world series against Chico Cubs. Mack had lefty Grove warming up on the sidelines for the first game, but at the last minute sent in Howard Ehmke, who was supposed to have a sore arm. Ehmke came through with a 3-1 victory.

Montreal Royals also evened their semi-final series with Baltimore at a game apiece by edging the Orioles 3-2 in Baltimore.

George Shuba broke up the game with a home run in the eighth inning. Don Thompson singled home two Montreal runs in the third. The Orioles tied the score in the sixth when Butch Woyt, a former Royal, socked a two-run homer. Jim Hughes was the winner and Tom Fine the loser.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press.

Batting—Willie Jones, Phils, singled home run in ninth to give league-leading Philadelphia 3-2 victory over St. Louis.

Pitching—Vic Raschi, Yanks, survived shaky first inning and allowed only four hits rest of the way in pitching his 20th victory and New York into first place in American League with 7-5 triumph over Detroit.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It would appear that all we have been saying in this column lately is, the games were postponed on account of rain; and yet that is what we have to say about last night's games—postponed on account of rain.

Tonight we expect to have the men's doubles tournament at 7.15 p.m. Choose your partner.

Tomorrow's men's treble tournament is set down for 1.30 o'clock.

On Monday night we play the club singles competition—at least we hope we are.

And also on Monday night the ladies are holding a draw from the board—individual scores to count.

Dr. Cliff McKee, chairman of bonspiel committee of the Curling Club, has asked us to put a plug in for curling. The curlers intend holding a three-day open bonspiel on Dec. 4, 5, 6—the first 'spiel of the season. Each rink is assessed assured of four games. And he also said to mention about getting the entry in early. As we have always said, there is nothing like being on time.

Board Approves Bell Application To Issue Stock

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (CP).—The Board of Transport Commissioners Thursday fully approved of a Bell elephone Company application to issue new stock which would give it additional $42,700,000.

The board granted the Bell's request to issue 1,294,000 shares of $25 par value stock after hearing opposing argument from the city of Montreal.

Counsel for Montreal sought unsuccessfully to have the application suspended pending final decision into the company's application for a 20.6 per cent rate hoist.

The new shares, to help the company in its construction program, will be offered to its shareholders in the ratio of one share for every five shares held by them at a price of $33 per share.

RAF Cracked Nazi Air Might Ten Years Ago In Britain

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 —(SP)— The RCAF has picked Sunday, Sept. 17, to commemorate the Battle of Britain.

The date roughly corresponds to the crucial time when Winston Churchill's "few" got over the hump in their fight against terrific odds. The Battle of Britain now is history, and ranks with the Spanish Armada and any feats in the military textbooks.

Britain became an island fortress in the early summer of 1940 following the fall of France. Its fate depended upon the outcome of the impending battle of the skies.

Opposing Germany's air might were the Royal Air Force's 50 squadrons of Hurricanes and Spitfires. The measure of their heroic victory was epitomized by Churchill in his statement to the House of Commons: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Running Fight

Major Luftwaffe activity over Britain covered the period between July 10 and Oct. 31, 1940, but Spet. 15 was the crux of the Battle of Britain. On that day 500 German aircraft fought a running fight with the RAF from London to the coast of France.

It was announced that 183 planes had been shot down, but Churchill has since said that post-war information showed enemy losses on Sept. 15 were only 56.

Roughly the Battle of Britain can be divided into three phases. From July 10 to Aug. 18 the Luftwaffe made attacks on coastal shipping, harbors, airfields, radio location stations and aircraft factories. London was the chief objective for great formations of bombers from Aug. 19 to Sept. 27. From then until the end of October Germany resorted to fighter sweeps in an attempt to wear down fighter defences. The attempt failed and the invasion menace passed.

Canadians in Battle

Canada was represented in the Battle of Britain by several hundred officers and airmen who served as aircrew and ground crew in fighter, bomber and coastal commands. Complete figures for Canadian participation are not available, but it is estimated that three out of every 100 aircrew were from the dominion.

Forty-seven Canadians are included among the 1,495 pilots and aircrew, killed or mortally wounded, whose names are inscribed on the parchment roll of honor in the Memorial Chapel in Westminster Abbey.

Most of the Canadians who fought in the Battle of Britain enrolled in the RAF in pre-war days.

But there were two fighter squadrons definitely linked with dominion. One was No. 242 (Canadian squadron), made up of Canadian fighter pilots in the RCAF. The other was No. 1 (fighter) squadron of the RCAF (later designated No. 401) which arrived in Britain on the eve of the battle.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh C. T. Dowding, air officer commander-in-chief of fighter command during the Battle of Britain in an official dispatch paid tribute to the two squadrons. No. 242, he wrote, "became one of the foremost fighting squadrons in the command. No. 1 (Canadian) squadron also came into the line and acquitted itself with great distinction."

Group Capt. E. A. McNab, a veteran of the Battle of Britain was the first RCAF officer to shoot down an enemy plane and the first to be decorated in the war. He was awarded the DFC.

The Saskatchewan-born airman now is director of personnel administration at air force headquarters, Ottawa.

15,000 Assembled For Prince's Visit In 1860

(Ed. Note: On September 6, 1860, exactly 90 years ago this month, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, visited Peterborough. Last week we printed on this page the first part of a newspaper acount of the visit, written at the time. Today we conclude the account with the story of his actual appearance.)

The day for which all this activity of preparation had been shown was as fine a one as could be desired. During the preceding night the streets had been watered, and along the route of the procession there was comparatively little dust. About nine o'clock the children were arranged in their seats, and about ten the Rifle Company marched over to the railway station. An immense crowd had gathered, and about half-past ten the temperance bodies arrived on the ground, dressed in their regalia and having their flags unfurled.

The train arrived about half-past eleven. As it approached, the crowd sent up a cheer such as has seldom rent the air in this neighborhood, and a general rush was made for the platform. With the greatest dificulty the space for the carriage was kept clear. As soon as His Royal Highness, who was dressed in plain clothes, entered his carriage, the Rifle Company presented arms. Some little delay occurred in getting the procession started, owing to the crush of people; but it was soon got over, and left in the following order:

Marshal, on horseback,
Two Deputy Marshals, on horseback,
Warden and Counties Council, in carriages,
Mayor and Town Council, in carriages,
Sheriff and County Judge, in carriage,
Carriage with
Prince and Governor General,
And the Rifle Company as a Guard of Honour marching on each side of the carriage,
The Duke of Newcastle, Earl St. Germains, General Bruce and others of the Prince's suite in carriages.
Members of the Legislature, in carriages,
Executive Committee, in carriages,
Band,
Two Marshals, on horseback,
Temperance Organizations, Inhabitants.

The procession moved forward in this order through Ashburnham, the road on each side being crowded with people, who cheered heartily, and crossed the bridge. As it passed through the arch on Hunter Street, the people who were crowded on the high sloping ground on either side, sent forth cheer after cheer, the ladies in the windows waved their handkerchiefs, and threw bouquets to the Prince, and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed until he reached the Court House grounds.

Prince Alights

Here he alighted from his carriage, and, with his suite, ascended the dais; the County Council taking up a position at his right, the Town Council and Committee at his left, and the Rifle Company on each side of the platform in a space reserved for them. As soon as he appeared on the platform, the thousand children who occupied the seats immediately in front, and who were most neatly dressed, sang, under the direction of Mr. Glover and Mrs. Heathfield, as follows:

Verse 1:

God save our gracious Queen,
Long may Victoria reign,
God save the Queen. Etc.

Verse 2:

Thy choicest gifts in store, etc. and this third verse:

Grant, Lord, our fervent prayer,
Still for old England's heir,
Thy love evince.
Watch o'er his early days,
Guide him in wisdom's ways,
So shall he sing Thy praise,
God save the Prince!

The singing was very good indeed, and the appearance of the children most commendable. The Prince and those with him seemed much delighted with the view from the dais. The fine sloping ground in front, gave to the 15,000 assembled an ample opportunity to see the Royal party, and to be seen to the best advantage by them and we doubt whether, since his arrival in this country, he has stood before a happier, a more industrious, or a more loyal people.

After the singing, addresses were read by William Lang, Esq., Warden, on behalf of the county, and by Augustus Sawers, Esq., Mayer, from the town, to which the Prince replied:

"Gentlemen:- I thank you sincerely for the address which you have presented to me.

"In the Queen's name I acknowledge the expressions of your loyalty to her crown and person; and for myself I am grateful to you for this welcome to your neighborhood."

A deputation from Cavan also presented an address, signed by John Swain, Esq., Reeve of that township, for which His Royal Highness expressed his cordial thanks.

Move Rapidly

After the presentation of the addresses, the Governor General, having intimated that the limited time at the disposal of His Royal Highness, would compel him to move rapidly through the town, the Rifle Company marched directly to the Port Hope station, to receive the Prince when he came up.

The procession passed through the principal streets, the crowds cheering lustily as before, and as the Prince's carriage passed under the lumberer's arch, the men on it raised such a cheer as proved that the capacity of their voices was quite equal to the magnificent proportions of their persons. In a little less than an hour from the time the Prince arrived, he entered his car from the platform on Hunter street, and left, leaving after him thousands of hearts beating not only with a warm loyalty to his Royal Mother, but a whole souled personal atachment to himself.

In the evening, Caisse's otel was brilliantly illuminated, and fireworks were set off from the building. A large crowd of persons were in the streets to witness the display, which lasted until about ten o'clock, after which all went quietly home; the events of the day having passed over without any disturbance of the public peace, and without a single accident or mishap to detract from its enjoyment. It was indeed a day of pleasure without one particle of alloy. Long will the visit of the Prince of Wales to Peterborough be cherished as the brightest, happiest day she has known.

Watch for the BIGGEST PARADE OF THE YEAR

... eight days and over 4,000 miles long

ARMY WEEK

Sept. 17 to 24

This "parade" will take place in cities and towns of all ten Provinces. On display will be Canada's Army. These are some of the men who stand ready to defend the freedom of Canada and democratic nations everywhere against aggression.

Take this opportunity to meet and salute Canada's men in the Active and Reserve Forces. Visit the public exhibits and demonstrations in your district. You will be proud of the men and machines that make up Canada's Army.

At the same time you will probably realize the need for more men, more equipment. You will understand why Canada is now doing everything possible to strengthen our Active and Reserve Forces — why we are asking young Canadians from coast-to-coast to visit their nearest Recruiting Depot or Armoury at once.

Manitoba Thanks Marmora People

MARMORA, Sept. 15—(ENS)—A letter of thanks for $1,059.55 sent to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund by the people of Marmora, Deloro and the Marmora district was recently received.

Even before a citizens committee had been established to organize collection of money for the Manitoba disaster last May, the Roman Catholic church and the Marmora branch of the Canadian Legion started collections.

The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union local and the local Chapter of the IODE contributed $10 each toward the expenses of organizing the appeal in the district. H. W. Sabine also helped with the initial work by contributing hand bills advertising the appeal.

3 Officials Jailed

PRAGUE, Sept. 15—(Reuters)—Three officials of a state farm have been jailed for 10 to 15 years on charges of having deliberately mixed grain-destroying insects in grain stored in co-operative warehouses. They were fined and their property confiscated.

Grower Fined $10

WINDSOR, Sept. 15 (CP) — Nick Welacky, Mersea township potato grower, was fined $10 Thursday after he was convicted of selling potatoes through a dealer not registered with the local Potato Marketing Board. Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan advised Welacky that provisions of the act under which he was charged are being appealed at the present time. He suggested that Welacky apply for a remand of his case until the appeal is settled. Welacky told the court he wanted to "get the thing over with," and pleaded guilty.

Many Believe Wrong To Steal But Smart To Break Game Laws, Kiwanis Club Told

"The true meaning of conservation in the matter of fish and game is the wise use of natural resources," said biologist J. C. Weir of the Department of Lands and Forests, Lindsay, first speaker at the Peterborough Kiwanis Club autumn weekly meetings on Thursday, he appealed to business men to join conservation clubs in their cities, that they might eventually give clubs the experience of their leadership ability. Failing this, he urged everyone present to develop individual sporting code which might be passed on to others as an example.

To point up the theory that Nature is amazing in the ways of reproduction, if given a chance, it was shown that in the interests of conservation, drastic steps must be taken.

Closer Co-operation

Unless there is closer co-operation between the landowner and sportsmen in keeping trout streams intact and available for sport, Mr. Weir said that there might come to a time when lands bordering fishing streams might have to be taken over by the government. He quoted instances of this nature now in force in the United States. To prevent this, the speaker thought that the cutting of timber and pasturing along streams might be curtailed to preserve natural existing habitats.

Other drastic measures that have been and are resorted to, is the cleaning out of excess wildfowl and game in districts that have become overpopulated. Pheasant shooting seasons on Pelee Island have been extended and bag limits raised in order to reduce the present population of birds.

Excessive deer herds in agricultural districts should also be thinned out by heavy shooting when necessary, Mr. Weir said. Excess herds, if left to try and survive during winters when they are unable to obtain food, starve, and should be killed as a conservation measure.

It has been found advisable to allow the fall and winter trapping of muskrats in overpopulated marshes for the same reason, No amount of shooting or disease in the partridge population will interfere with the high and low cycles of their numbers. Mr. Weir thought if hunters would get off roadways and trails into deep bush to shoot birds that the present cycles would not reach such extremes.

In closing his talk, he said that most people would think it was wrong to steal, but that it was "smart" to break game laws; what was this but stealing from a public heritage? He was thanked by Kiwanian Ben Meyer.

Two Scholarships

The second highlight of the luncheon was the presentation of two $100 Kiwanis Scholarships to each of the top boys of the City's two Key Clubs. The recipients were Jim Fowler of PCVS and Jack Kennsley of St. Peter's High School; Key Club section chairman Charles Huffman did the honors.

The only general business discussed during the meeting was preparation for Kiwanis National Kids Day on Sept. 23, a tag day being held to raise money for child welfare work. The organizing was discussed by Robert Bastable, Blake Bell and Arthur Bacon. Vice-president Walter Howell acted as luncheon chairman for president Al Plaskett.

Arthur Stringer Novelist Dies

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N.J., Sept. 15 (AP)—Arthur Stringer, 76, who wrote many early movie serial scripts, including Perils of Pauline, died Thursday.

Stringer, Canadian-born novelist, poet and playwright, had been ill a long time at his home here.

He produced more than 50 novels, a dozen books of poetry and many dramas and comedies.

His serial, Perils of Pauline, made early movie history with Pearl White as its star.

A native of Chatham, Ont., Stringer was educated at the University of Toronto and at Oxford. He held an honorary degree as doctor of literature from the University of Western Ontario.

Stringer had been a resident of this New Jersey community since 1923. He founded the dramatic guild here and was a member of the Morris County Library Board.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

Stringer leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret Arbuthnott Stringer, and three sons.

Accept Substitute

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP) — The morality squad raided a west-end rooming house Thursday in search of liquor. They didn't find a drop, but two persons went to jail. The fruitless liquor-search turned up 10 counterfeit United States $10 bills. Harold Patterson, 30, and Mrs. Marion Smith, 28, were arrested on charges of possessing counterfeit money.

Former Mayor Dies

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP) — John T. Conway, 69, former mayor of Perth, died Thursday in hospital. He was a native of Ireland and for some years operated a men's furnishing and grocery store in Perth. Later he entered the fur business and was well-known throughout Eastern and Northern Ontario as a commercial traveller. Funeral will be in Perth.

They'll Do It Every Time

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Harold Wilson, owner and driver of Miss Canada IV, plans to try to smash the world speedboat record at Picton, sometime around the end of September.

He said at Ingersoll Thursday he will make formal application in a day or two to the American Powerboat Association, asking for official timers.

The record of 160 miles an hour is held by the American boat Slo-Mo-Shun, owned by Stanley Sayres who easily won the recent Harmsworth races at Detroit. Miss Canada was forced out after one heat because of breaks in the plywood sections of her hull.

Miss Canada last year set a North American mark of 138 miles an hour and was reported to have touched an estimated 165 in a trial run on Lake Muskoka this summer.

Coach Art Massucci, of the Windsor Rockets, shuffling his United States imports in preparation for the team's second game of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football schedule, has cut loose five imports from the roster.

Two of them, quarterback Bill Snyder and inside Charlie Britz of Detroit, played in last Saturday's game when Sarnia Imperials walloped the Rockets 39-0. The others are Sy Mike, California halfback, Bill Saunders of Detroit and middle Tom Hubbard.

Six U.S. imports now with the club are expected to see action in Windsor Saturday against Sarnia.

Four more players, bringing the total to seven, signed contracts Thursday with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The latest to sign are wingmen Floyd Curry and Ken Mosdell and defencemen Glen Harmon and Hal Laycoe. Others already signed are Elmer Lach, Billy Reay and Butch Bouchard.

Clint Albright, who quit hockey a year after one successful season as a rookie left winger with New York Rangers, has advised manager Frank Boucher he will report Monday at Rangers Lake Placid, N.Y., training camp.

The bespectacled 23-year-old Winnipeg winger tied with teammate Pentti Lund for most goals scored by a NHL rookie in 1948-49. Each had 14.

Albright remained in Winnipeg last year to complete his education at the University of Manitoba. He earned an engineerig degree.

Stan Leonard, of Vancouver, shot a sub-par 67 Thursday to lead in the first round of the British Columbia golf tournament at Vancouver.

In second place was Ray Honsberger, from Klamath Falls, Ore. Honsberger was home with a 34-35—69.

Major League baseball has completed all the preliminary arrangements and set the dates for the 1950 World Series—if—there are no ties in either pennant race.

That "if" looks as a big word in view of the neck and neck race among Detroit, New York and Boston for the American League flag.

If the season ends according to schedule Sunday, Oct. 1, the series will open Wednesday, Oct. 4, in the home park of the National League winner.

If two teams tie in the American League, a one-game playoff will be necessary and baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler, who presided at Thursday's session in Cincinnati, said that would mean a one-day delay in the start of the series.

If three teams tie in the American or if there is a tie in the National League, the start of the series will be delayed even more.

Water Bombing Tested On Fires

SAULT STE. MARIE, Sept. 15 — Full-scale experiments in water-bombing of forest fires will be launched by the Department of Lands and Forests, District Forester Quinn Hess said today.

Tests will be carried out to increase efficiency of fighting forest fires. During the weekend two fires in the Soo district were water bombed, the first time in history that suppression action on actual forest fires had consisted of water bombing.

Planes drop bags containing 50 pounds of water each on burning forest fires. So far it has reduced the time necessary to reach burning areas.

The idea started back in 1932 when a U.S. Forest Service chief kicked a beer keg full of water out of a plane near Spokane, Wash.

Tip Top Tailors Win First Perfect Game

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 15 (CP).—Toronto Tip Top Tailors covered themselves with glory Thursday in their uphill struggle to get back in the driver's seat of the Amateur Softball Association's world tournament when they defeated Phillips 66 of Oklahoma 1-0. It was the first perfect no-hit, no-run game in the 18-year history of the world tournament.

Percy McConners, pitching the perfect game for Toronto, struck out six men and his teammates rallied behind his performance to retire the remaining 15 batters in order without a single Oklahoman reaching first base.

Rickey Sells

the Pirates, among others.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers took Cal Abrams, Tommy Brown and a pair of bonus babies, pitcher Billy Loes and first baseman Wayne Belardi along for the ride.

It was not until just the other day that the Superbas got a single pinch-hit out of Abrams and Belardi—from the outfielder.

And when Roy Campanella shattered his thumb, manager Shotton said Belardi was too inexperienced to play first base in the event that Gil Hodges had to catch.

Made Big Difference

A pair of just fairly reliables in place of the dead weight that has been Loes and Belardi would have made a tremendous difference.

This was further stressed when Jackie Robinson followed Campanella to the sideline with a jammed thumb. The supposedly vaunted Ebbets Field depth turned out to be strictly Triple A, if that.

Brooklyn's basic trouble was, of course, the collapse of the pitching—both that of the parent club and the young men on the farms deemed nearest to being ready.

The toughest thing for baseball managment is splitting out superior talent when there is an over-abundance.

But Branch Rickey just doesn't have to be in the wholesale ivory business, as he was in St. Louis, with a club drawing considerably more than a million at home and as many more on the road.

As the inimitable Flatbush filberts loudly lament, Mahatma Rickey in Brooklyn definitely is in position to take a second and third good long look.

Mrs. A. Nill Given WMS Pin

ROSENEATH, Sept. 15 (ENS) —Presentation of a life membership pin to Mrs. A. Nill, in recognition of many years of service in W.M.S. work, was the highlight of the September meeting of the W.M.S. of Roseneath United Church.

The presentation was made by Mrs. R. C. White.

Mrs. Nill is a life member and a charter member of Roseneath W.M.S., receiving her life membership cirtificate about twenty years ago.

As well as being an active member and officer of the local W.M.S. Mrs. Nill was corresponding secretary of the W.M.S. of Cobourg Presbyterian for five years; press secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch for five years.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Waldie.

The new Study Book, The United Church Re-enters Japan, was introduced.

Members discussed church work in Japan and the country's recent history.

In the program, contributions were made by Mrs. George Mouncey, Mrs. F. G. Lewis, Mrs. A. J. Campbell.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. Isabel Brown.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

The nation's top golfers had gathered at Saint John, N.B. It was July 23, 1949 . . . and eight four-man teams were set to tee off. At stake was the annual inter-provincial golf team championship—classic struggle for the ownership of the Willingdon Cup.

Upsetting pre-tourney predictions, Quebec took the lead in the 36-hole contest. Ontario's last man on the 17th hole needed a 73 to even tie. In a brilliant last-ditch display he took a one-over-par 71. Ontario had won Canada's hardest-fought cup match.

Skill and keen sportsmanship put golf in the first rank of our summer sports. And together, skill with sportsmanship help you in work and play . . . keeping your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Frank C. Paterson Recommends That Farmers Consider Serious Effect Of Frost Increasing Volume Of Feed Wheat — Junior Clubs' Achievement Day Sept. 30 — Peterborough Black And White Day At Keene —Regional Hereford Show At Norwood Oct. 9.

"The average Peterborough farmer should endeavor to carry bigger herds of better livestock right up to the capacity of his plant and of his ability to manage, finance and handle them."

That suggestion by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, was based yesterday on the prospect of a large quantity of western seed wheat being available for the feeding of eastern stock.

"I think that was clearly implied by the Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, in his talk at the CNE luncheon last week," Mr. Paterson said. "The wheat crop in Saskatchewan and Alberta was hit by severe frost just before the harvest, as reported in the press, with the result that there has been an overnight change in the probabilities and estimates of the final grading of this season's wheat.

The Minister said there was likely to be large quantities of grain converted into feed, "and this is the best hog feed in the world." What I feel like recommending to our farmers is that they take this prospect into their planning.

A Harvest Tragedy

The Canadian National Railways crop report last Saturday said Alberta had suffered from widespread frost damage, with "some points indicating as much as 50 per cent loss in revenue through yield and grade reductions". And of Saskatchewan it was said: "frost damage is reported from many sections."

Mr. Paterson remarked that in late August the western wheat harvest promised to be one of the heaviest in the last 15 to 20 years, close to record volume.

Fourteen degrees of frost recently occurred in many parts of Saskatchewan. Since then, the estimates of top grading have greatly deteriorated, with corresponding [illegible] down to four and five.

"The number of animals in our livestock herds and flocks are lower than they have been in recent years, and there is a strong demand for meat products. Cheese and butter production in July was substantially less than a year ago. It was recently reported in the Peterborough area that the supply of fluid milk appears to be only slightly more than the demand, because many herds have been reduced by the strong demand for good cattle, and also by sales for the meat trade."

"We are short of meat and animal products. Exports of beef cattle to the United States have been more than 300,000 head this year. Our local herds are down.

Exporting Dried Milk

Probability of a shortage of milk in Canada in the next six weeks has been intimated. There has been a sharp quickening and improvement in exports of dried milk by way of Hong Kong to Singapore. Last spring we did not know how to get soft currency to stimulate that trade. I'm not going to try to explain what has happened. It is really out of my line. But, the fact is there has been this improvement, and nobody expect that we'll fill our cheese contract."

"What I'd like to suggest is that our farmers sit down now and consider what they should do in all these circumstances. We may not be sowing as much fall wheat as last year, and I suppose it is too late now for anyone who is not ready. But, in the background is this surge of western feed which must be in prospect when the head of the federal department mentions it.

There has also been news that the Argentine wheat crop has been hit by drought, and pretty seriously, I understand. Add to all these circumstances the cloud of war, and I think our farmers would be warranted in expanding their livestock programs."

ACHIEVEMENT DAY SEPT. 30

Rural boys and girls of club membership are getting ready for Achievement Day, Saturday, Sept. 30 beginning at 9 a.m. They have been working in two dairy calf clubs, one east and the other west; a beef cattle club; tractor and forestry clubs. Enrolment was 117 boys and girls in projects which reach finality and review at the end of the month in their day's program at Morrow Park.

The first hour from 9 to 10 o'clock has ben allotted to the placing of exhibits. Examination of all club members by means of a series of questions begins at 10 o'clock. This will be followed by judging, with reasons, until noon. This contest is a test of the knowledge the youngsters have gained in their livestock studies.

Placing of the club calves opens the afternoon program at 1:30 o'clock continuing until 4.30 with the final detail of showing the exhibits as a demonstration in showmanship.

The forestry club has its own special program including displays of collections of leaves and twigs which were gathered in the course of learning to identify trees. Peterborough Junior Farmers have been sponsoring the club work, and are putting up one-third of the prize money. Some of them have been active in giving leadership to the club members, and their personal activities will continue to the end of Achievement Day.

Parents are requested to accompany the children to the Exhibition Park and to spend all or part of the day with them in their affairs.

HOLSTEINS AT KEENE

George McLaughlin of Elmcroft Farm, Oshawa, will be judge at the Peterborough county Black and White Day in the Otonabee Memorial Arena at Keene, Sat. Sept. 30.

"It was the only Saturday Roy Ormiston, fieldman, could come," Stanley Wood, Holstein Association secretary explained yesterday. "We are expecting more cattle in the ring than ever. Four or five new exhibitors say they are going to be represented with entries, and I think all our regulars will be out again. Judging starts at noon."

✦ ✦ ✦

HEREFORDS AT NORWOOD

Directors of Norwood Fair are featuring for Thanksgiving Day the regional Hereford show which is expected to attract 100 head.

The regional area comprises the counties from Ontario to Frontenac inclusive. Local office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been co-operating by sending to 100 Hereford breeders announcement details.

Entries with fees must be received by Robert Bell, assistant agricultural representative, not later than Sept. 30. Entries must be on the grounds by 11 a.m. of Fair Day, Oct. 9; judging begins at 1 p.m.

The $575 prize money is being provided by Ontario Hereford Association, Ontario Live Stock Branch, and Norwood Fair Board. Similar regional Hereford shows are being held at Renfrew, Exeter, Mount Forest, Barrie and Caledonia.

Junior farmers are taking charge of the tractor rodeo. They helped Mr. Bell with the details of this competition last year, and are assuming full responsibility on Thanksgiving Day. They have also to their credit a lot of the work of Junior Farmer's Day at the Peterborough Exhibition. Burritt Mann is president.

COUNTY PLOWING MATCH

Classes for horsedrawn plows are reduced to two, and tractors are increased to seven, for the Peterborough county plowing match Thursday, Oct. 5 on the farm of Stewart Lang, No. 7 Highway, Otonabee. Incidentally, horses were entirely missing at the recent Brant county match.

Directors of Peterborough Plowmen's Association went along with the trend at their meeting Monday night, but retained two classes for horsedrawn plows, one an open class for jointer plows in sod, and the other is a utility class. The local match will begin at 9 a.m.

Coaching Class Sept. 27

Arrangements for coaching prospective contestants were left under the direction of Henry Batten for Sept. 27 at 1 p.m. on the farm of Archie Atkison, on the Jackson Park Road, the Smith-Monaghan boundary. The coach will be appointed by the Ontario Plowmen's Association. Young people who wish to learn how to set plows and also how to proceed at a plowing match will all be welcome.

This class last year at the Morris Telford farm in Smith brought out an enthusiastic group, and it is hoped that even more of the young people will take advantage of this afternoon of practical instruction.

Plan Bus Trip

Mr. Batten also heads a small committee to plan a bus trip to the International Match, near Allis-ton, Oct. 11-13. No date has been set for this day's outing, but it may be Oct. 12. Similar trips last year and also to Kingston filled the buses that were engaged. Vern Campbell presided Monday night.

REFORESTATION FIELD DAY

The annual meeting and field day for Zone 4 of the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association is announced by Reeve M. H. Johnston, president, for Tuesday, Sept. 19. Delegates assemble at Bewdley at 1:30 p.m. and will proceed by way of Garden Hill to the Ganaraska forest. From 2 to 4 o'clock there will be a demonstration of tree-planting machines, Wajax fire pump and gully control measures.

From 4.30 to 5.30 the scene shifts to the farm of Russell White, Campbellcroft, for a practical soil and water conservation program in action.

Supper at 6:30 at the St. Lawrence Hotel, Port Hope, and annual business winds up the day. W. H. Porter, editor of Farmers' Advocate, London, Ont., will be the speaker.

BLACK AND WHITE DAYS

Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, won 12 firsts and both grand championships at the Ontario county Black an White Day at Port Perry Fair. Seventeen exhibitors showed 107 head. The busy crop season kept others at home. M. C. McPhail, principal of Kemptville Agricultural School, was judge. Elmcroft entries also carried off the junior championship awards . . . Most butchers judged 138 head from 40 herds at the Oxford county show at Woodstock. J. D. Innes won the female grand championship on De-Kol Rag Apple, the winning aged cow in milk. Grand champion bull was Velbar Pietje Bob owned by James Down & Son of Woodstock. Competition was keen. Twelve breeders shared first prizes in the 20 classes.

WHITE MAN LOCO

When lengthier sermons on soil conservation are forgotten, this succinct "Injun" yarn may be in circulation. A farm journal, the Farmer-Stockman, printed a picture of a deserted farm house and gullied field, offering a $25 prize for the best 100-word description. This was the winner:

"Picture show white man crazy. Cut down trees. Make big tepee. Plow hill. Water wash. Wind blow soil. Grass gone. Door gone. Window gone. Whole place gone. Buck gone, Squaw, too. Papoose gone. No pigs. No corn. No plow. No hay. No pony.

Indian no plow land. Keep grass. Buffalo eat grass. Indian eat buffalo. Hide make tepee. Make moccasin. Indian no make terrace. No build dam. All time eat—no hunt job. No hitch hike. No ask relief. No shoot pig. Great Spirit make grass. Indian no waste anything. Indian no work. White man he loco."

HESSIAN FLY IN ONTARIO

Infestations of Hessian fly running as high as 50 per cent have been reported in winter wheat in southwestern Ontario, according to a survey made by the Canada Department of Agriculture's Division of Entomology at Chatham, Ont. It is thought that the earlier seeding of winter wheat and the practice of seeding clover with winter wheat as a nurse crop with the consequent carry over of the stubble, may be factors responsible for the sudden increase of the pest in that area.

✦ ✦ ✦

Oshawa Fair dates are Sept. 14-16; Lindsay, Sept. 19-23; Campbellford, Sept. 26-27; Norwood, Oct. 7-9; Port Hope, Sept. 29-30

TRIP TO HAMILTON

The boys of the tractor club are leaving Tuesday, Sept. 19th, at 7 a.m. from the Colonial Coach terminal, King St., on a trip to the International Harvester Co. plant in Hamilton. This outing is sponsored by Cliff Curtis who made the arrangements. John Waterman is president of this club, Elwood Hall is secretary, and Irvine McIntosh is club leader.

LIKES LOUADA HERD SIRE

Lorne Pimmett of Indian River was in charge of the Shorthorns of Louada Manor Farm, Lakehurst, owned by L. Cadesky at the C.N.E. He picked out five head for the show, among them the grand champion steer which won that award in exceptionally strong company of thirty representatives of all beef breeds.

Louada junior bull calves placed fourth and fifth in that numerous class of 156. They were handicapped by their December birth[illegible] mals. They are the first two calves sired by the junior herd bull at the Cadesky farm, and Mr Pammett said he was strongly impressed by their showing. Substantial prices for both were refused at the show. One of the calves is entered in the Chicago Shorthorn show Dec. 1 and the grand champion steer will wind up his ring appearances at the Royal.

29 BREEDERS COMPETE

Black and White Day at Dresden Fair was the biggest Holstein show ever held in Kent county with 147 head entered by 29 exhibitors. First prizes went to seven breeders. Three year old bulls were a strong class. First [illegible] reign Wayne from the C. J. Craven herd. The junior champion bull, Credhome Man-O-War owned by Gordon Ainslie, Blenheim, was regarded as a strong contender in any show. Judge was Hardy Shore of Glanworth.

LANARK HOLSTEIN SHOW

Sons of All-Canadian Glenafton Rag Apple Alert, now owned in Chile, were grand and reserve grand champions at the Lanark county Black and White Day at Perth. A daughter was grand champion female and reserve junior champion female. Nine breeders brought 80 head.

WESTERN HARVEST — Harvesting is underway in many parts of Manitoba. Mechanized equipment is being brought into use by many farmers. Here a combine makes short work of a fine field of oats near Stonewall, Man.

Nights Grow Longer

Next week the year begins its descent into the season of the long nights. The sun reaches the equator on September 21, the calendar milestone of the autumn equinox. Shadows lengthen, and will gradually deepen into winter. Orion is approaching from the east and is overhead at daybreak, the constellation that revels in its brilliance through the months of snow.

The harvest moon will fill its crescent next week, probably bringing the first hints of frost. Farmers with ear corn that has been slow in coming to maturity, are hoping for delay in that chill change of weather.

The equinoctial period sent out its advance riders of gray days, east winds and rain this week. Loons were flying high at Stony Lake, reported by Joe Dunkerley, but in the bays beyond the wide path of rough water small flocks of wood ducks and meganzers found shelter and feed, and room for the season's brood to try their wings. When the loon flies high, look out for gales. They blew this week whipping up waves to which paddlers gave a wide berth along the lea of shore lines.

Foliage is changing color in the Kawarthas, portent of the departure of summer that seemed in this week of lusterless light to have drifted far off. Some of the leaves of the [illegible] to the yellow of parchment. Soft maples have put on their flamboyant reds. A cluster of them on an island near the old Hudspeth place at Stony is a beacon by day signalling the year's mixing of the colors of Bagdad soon to deck the hardwoods.

There should be weeks of autumn sunshine yet, days of gossamer on plowed land, blue haze misting the hills, and the last glow of bloom in the fields of goldenrod and asters. Meanwhile the lights of home and its sanctuary are appearing earlier in the evening, and there are intimations in the air of autumn and the chill that brings to the hearth the birch logs summer dried. Life is beginning to retreat from the playgrounds of summer to the comfort of hut and home.

F. Fife Wins Wheat Honors L. R. McMillan In 2nd Place

Fred Fife of Otonabee is the top scoring member of Peterborough County "50 Bushel Winter Wheat Club," with a total of 215.8 points over L. R. McMillan of Hill-Crest Farm, Norwood, who placed second with 214.2 points.

Russell Bonner of Millbrook, growing the only Dawson's Golden Chaff in the field of 17 members, attained third position with a score of 201.8. All the others sowed Cornell 595, including Ross Harrison, whose 193.2 points earined fourth place for him.

Robert Armstrong of Cavan was fifth with 189.4 points. This 1949-1950 Winter Wheat Club went into action at seeding time a year ago.

Total points are based on field and yield scores. The field points were determined by a department judge prior to the harvest; and the crop score is arrived at clipping specified quantities of the wheat heads which are sent to OAC to decide the yield per acre. For example, Mr. Fife's yield of 62.4 bushels an acre is multiplied by two and field score added, giving the total of 215.8.

The top field score was made by Russell Bonner with his solitary Dawson's Golden Chaff mark of 93, but his wield score was down to 53.4, 10 points behind the high yield of 63.6 by Lyle McMilan.

In the top brackets of field results were: Russell Bonner of Cavan 95; Ferd Rowland, Smith, 93; Ross Harison, Smith, 92; Fred Fife, 91; Harold Tate, Cavan, 90.

Stewart Whittington was down in total score, but he placed sixth in the field category with 89 points. Next io htm was Jack Matchett with 88 and Mr. McMillan with 87.

In the yield points, Mr. McMillan led with 63.6; Mr. Fife was second with 62.4; Mr. Bonner was third with 53.4; Robert Armstrong of Cavan fourth with 52.2; Chas. Whittington, North Monaghan, was next with 51, followed by Ross Harrison with 50.6.

Mr. Fife's good field score combined with his second high in yield put him in front with the top total. That entitles him to the county honor of Peterborough Wheat King, but even the mention of that kingship may grate a little on the modesty of the grandnephew of David Fife, one of the great names in the cereal history of Canada.

It is recalled that Mr. Fife led the big Winter Wheat Club of 1946-1947 in its field score, but he was down in the yield per acre that year in which W. W. Dawson was County Wheat King, with Morris Telford second, and George McIlmoyle third.

The results were announced this week by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, when the yield scores were returned from OAC.

The standing of the members on their total scores was: Fred Fife, L. R. McMillan, Russell Bonner, Ross Harrison, Robert Armstrong.

Ferd Rowland 178.6, Alan Eason 177. 1, Harold Tate 175.4, and just under the 175 level were Graham Eastwood, Stewart Whittington, Stewart Nelson, and Roy Swan.

The other club members were under the 170-point level. Summary of the results for the main group follows:

| | Field Score | Yield Bus. | Tl. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fred Fife, Otonabee | 91 | 62.4 | 215.8 |
| L. R. McMillan, Norwood | 87 | 63.6 | 214.2 |
| Russell Bonner, Cavan | 95 | 53.4 | 201.8 |
| Ross Harrison, Smith | 92 | 50.6 | 183.2 |
| Robert Armstrong Cavan | 85 | 52.2 | 189.4 |
| Chas. Whittington, N. Monaghan | 86½ | 51.0 | 188.5 |
| Jack Matchett, Otonabee | 88 | 49.4 | 186.8 |
| John Webster, Otonabee | 86 | 48.2 | 182.4 |
| W. W. Dawson, Otonabee | 84 | 48.3 | 180.6 |
| Ferd Rowland, Smith | 93 | 42.8 | 178.6 |
| Alan Eason, Otonabee | 83 | 47.0 | 177.2 |
| Alex. Huston, [illegible] | 84½ | 46.3 | 177.1 |
| Harold Tate, Cavan | 90 | 42.7 | 175.4 |
| Graham Eastwood, Smith | 85½ | 43.1 | 171.7 |

Sir Ben Smith Now Retires

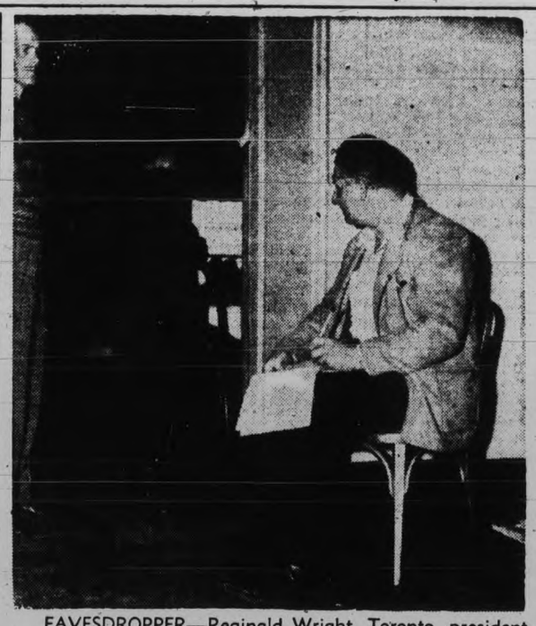
LONDON, Sept. 15 (CP).—Sir Ben Smith, Britain's food minister for 10 stormy months, has retired from public life.

Once a London taxi driver, and boxing champion of the lower decks in the Royal Navy, Sir Ben was appointed food minister after the 1945 general election.



He resigned after 10 months in which the fats ration was reduced darker bread brought back and bread supplies in restaurants restricted.

Later he became £4,000 ($12,400)-a-year chairman of a division of the coal board which runs the nationalized mines.

His resignation from this post was announced in June. He will be succeeded by I. W. Cumber batch.

Sir Ben, 71, now is in hospital with an internal complaint.

Viscount Hyndley, coal board chief, said in a statement Sir Ben had rendered "outstanding services" to the coal industry.

EAVESDROPPER—Reginald Wright, Toronto, president of the Consumers' Gas local, International Chemical Workers' Union, was undaunted when he was expelled from the Trades and Labor Congress convention at the Mount Royal Hotel, in Montreal. One of five delegates whose credentials were rejected when he appeared to register, Wright just parked himself near the door to the convention hall, cocked an ear, and took notes of the proceedings.

Cattle Prices Up 50 Cents During Week

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP). — Cattle prices were 25 to 50 cents higher on a moderate run at the Ontario Stockyards this week, the Dominion Marketing Service reported today.

Calves were strong to $1 higher. Hogs dropped 75 cents and lambs were steady to 50 cents higher with sheep unchanged.

The cattle run of 6,718 head was added to some 300 carried from last week. Included in the fresh supply were 1,300 Westerns, mostly stockers. Anything of decent quality in killers or stockers sold at the higher price level, but trade turned draggy on a plain quality holdover.

Top for choice loads of steers was $30.50 with a few individuals up to $31.75. Common to medium light steers and heifers were plentiful at $20-$28. Good heifers sold at $28.50 and good light steers at $29. Choice fed yearlings were $31-$33 with medium downwards to $25. Good cows sold at $21.50-$23. Canners and cutters were mostly $16-$18. Good export bulls sold at $23-$24.50. Plain light bulls sold at $18-$22. Medium to good stockers brought $25-$86, with common stockers downward to $20.

Calves totalled 1,941 head. Good to choice vealers sold at $30-$32, with occasional tops at $33. Common to medium vealers were mostly $21-$30. Stock calves brought $21-$28. Heavy calves were a shade lower.

Hogs amounted to $2,139 head. The market settled 75 cents a hundredweight lower at $31.25 for Grade A. Sows were steady at $23.50 dressed.

Sheep and lambs were 2,986 head with four cars of Westerns included. Good lambs were strong to 50 cents higher at $27.50 to $28 for best ewes and wethers. Bucks sold at the usual $1 discount. A few feeder lambs brought $25-$26. Sheep sold steady at $13-$15 for good light ewes, with culls downward to $7.

Mrs. Richard Moncrief Buried At Fraserville

FRASERVILLE, Sept. 15 (ENS) —The funeral of the late Annie Elizabeth Trotter, Fraserville, wife of the late Richard Moncrief of Fraserville was held from the Nisbett Funeral Home, Peterborough, on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. Rev. E. Morgan Rowland of Cambray United Church, conducted the service.

Mrs. Moncrief was in her 79th year and had resided in this district all her life. She was held in high esteem by a great number of friends. Mrs. Moncrief was a member of Fraserville W.A. group of the United Church and also a faithful member of Fraserville United Church.

The interment was in Fraserville cemetery the graveside service being conducted by Rev. Rowland and Rev. B. Heywood of Fraserville United Church. Pallbearers were four nephews, Austin Trotter of Port Hope, Talbert Trotter and Ernest Johnston of Peterborough and Norman Moncrief of North Monaghan. Two sons-in-law, Mr. Will McElroy of Keene and Mr. Kenneth Syer of Fraserville. Flower-bearers for the large number of wreaths and sprays were four grandsons, Orville and Lloyd Moncrief, Ed Hogg of Fraserville, and Harold White of Ida, also Mr. Archie Brown and Mr. John Flett of Peterborough.

Surviving the late Mrs. Moncrief are four daughters, namely: Mrs. Hogg (Lila) RR 5, Peterborough; Mrs. W. McElroy (Roxie), Keene; Mrs. John White (Margaret), Ida; and Mrs. Kenneth Syer (Mildred), Fraserville; also four sons, Walter, Percy and Kenneth, all of Fraserville, and Leonard of Vancouver, B. C.; also a number of grandchildren and some great-grandchildren. Mr. James Trotter of Peterborough, a brother also survives. Mrs. Moncrief's husband predeceased her four months ago.

George Formby Stages Great Show

The George Formby show staged at the Brock Gardens Thursday night was a wonderful, at some moments marvellous show, even without George Formby. Mr. Formby came on stage at the end and sang his songs and told his stories generously, in Formby Lancashire style, to the huge delight of the huge crowd.

The authentic music hall touch was given by Harry Bailey, master of ceremonies of the evening, an Irish singer, comedian and teller of stories not quite purple. Even some of George Formby's salt was not quite savoury to the audience, unused to English music hall smog. The subdued giggles of embarrassment brought on by Bailey side-stories made one wonder if the corn-smut of a London hall can successfully be imported to a southern Ontario stage.

The rest of the program had a smack of the music hall, of variety shows, of night club entertainment of a superior kind, and of sheer artistry.

Bewitching Dancing

Douglas Mills and Betty Gill (Belita) danced in a ball-room elegance, in smart tap-dance routines and in lyrical combinations. Their poise and rhythm were breath - taking, dream - making. The variation in rhythms and tempi was beautiful.

Marion Sanders, whose soprano is as unusual as her small presence, sang lyrics with captivating and cultivated ingenuousness. A lovely, unencumbered voice . . . Herschel "Jizz" Henlere, who despite his weird accent and costume, told the audience he was a native of Galt (his unassumed speech proved his Canadian background), made a delightful fool of himself at the piano, and showed himself to be a master of the keyboard and an accomplished musical parodist. For instance, he played a popular tune in the style of Brahms, Liszt, Tschaikovsky and others with brilliant improvisation.

Henri Vadden juggled a great heavy cartwheel, gorgeous cloths, four plates, four bells, four dumbells, and all sorts of things with fantastic precision. This reviewer has never seen a better juggler. The understatement of the British show was Roger Carne, comic ventriloquist who had a talking cat to solace his inebriated moments. The low, slow pitch of his act, together with his wonderfully contrived, expressive cat, must make him a television sell-out in these days.

Marvellous Acrobats

Best in the show from this reviewer's seat were the Carsong Brothers, acrobats. They were lissome and startling. At first there seemed to be two: the elder, Italianate in profile, and a youngster, Phillipino in appearance. But the younger developed a twin half way through the act. There was no hint of the circus about these performers. They acted as artists. For instance, they did not jump to a pinnacle and leave it quickly. They held excuciatingly difficult stances for breath-taking seconds, real artists giving their artistic best wherever they appear. Their performance vibrates in the memory.

To his other triumphs (including his wife, who came charmingly on stage at the mention of the 25th wedding anniversary celebrated in Belleville a few days ago), George Formby must add his talent as an impresario. His troupe is excellent. Any one number was worth the price of admission.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

REAL CHEESE SHOW

Forty-one cheese were exhibited at Tweed Fair Wednesday. Highest scoring cheese were shown by John Doyle, Marmora, Murray Heath, Doug Mumby, Roslin; L. Courneya ,Stoco. Rain cut attendance to a slim crowd.

RAIN DELAYS WORK

Outdoor work was stalled this morning by rain that has lifted a whole week out of September when the sun should be shining. Neither the builders nor the rest of the folks can afford to lose these fall weeks for there are only a few of them left.

CENTRAL FLOWER BEDS

Two downtown floral displays that were worth mentioning are on the south side of Simcoe St. opposite the Lock Works and westerly to the Salvation Army Temple. They are bed arrangements attractive in their detail and harmony.

NEW ARENA PIPING

Lindsay is borrowing $6,000 to pay for replacing the steel tubing with iron pipe in their community arena. The building was gift of the Kiwanis Club. Ratepayers voted to put in an artificial ice plant in 1948. Iron pipe was not available. Steel tubes were guaranteed for only a year. This summer serious leaks developed.

RUGBY AT MORROW PARK

Look at what the weather is doing to the Orphuns. Puts them right back in the dampness that hung over their season and some of the games a year ago. They have the yard lines all marked out and numbered, and the field at Morrow Park is fine sandy shape. The stand is covered, and fans tonight have a chance to scramble for those twenty dollar bills.

EDUCATIONISTS TO VICTORIA

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, and G. Wilson Craw will be the two delegates from the Peterborough Board of Education attending the annual convention of the Canadian Educational Association, Oct. 1-4. This year the convention is being held in Victoria, BC. Mr. Wightman said that is was of particular interest because it involved an exchange of educational ideas among delegates from 10 different educational systems.

Notice board at the city hall lists for next week: council meeting in the evening; mobile wagons committee, morning, Monday; Recreation Commission Tuesday evening, City Hall building committee, afternoon, with M. F. Allan of Marani and Morris, architects; Wednesday special traffic control committee.

"EE, LA-AD, W'AT KIND OF FISH BE THAT?" asked Comedian George Formby of His Worship Mayor Max J. Swanston on being presented with an honorary membership to the Order of the Kawartha Muskie on Friday. After being informed that they grow to 45 pounds in our district and that they could be taken from the Otonabee River, a short block from his hotel suite, George exclaimed: "W'at W'oppers!"

Driver Fined $30 For Obstructing Police Officer

Charles Hyderman, 380 Grady Ave., was found guilty in police court of obstructing a police constable, Carmen English, following an accident on the Chemong Highway August 21 and was fined $30 and $8 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C.

The magistrate said there was no evidence presented to contradict that Mr. English was a constable of Smith township and Peterborough county with special duties in Chemong Park during summer, as he stated in the witness box.

He also found that Hyderman had acted wilfully because Constable English had shown his badge to Hyderman to back up his order that Hyderman wait at the scene of the accident to give any information required.

Evidence at the trial was that Hyderman's light truck had collided with a car driven by Albert Collins, 169 Fradette St., while Hyderman was passing Collins just south of Chemong Park.

Hyderman stopped some distance down the highway and came back at the insistence of Collins, whose car had gone partly into the ditch after the collision.

Back at the scene of the accident, Hyderman said the accident hadn't amounted to anything and there was no need for him to stay. At this point Constable English told him to stay, but Hyderman brushed aside the order.

Constable English followed Hyderman to his truck and there was a scuffle before Hyderman finally agreed to wait for provincial police to come.

Making Inspectors

COBOURG, Sept. 15 (ENS) —Appointment of Constable Don Nicol, Cobourg detachment of Provincial Police to the rank of Inspector constitutes something of a record, in that three constables stationed at Cobourg during the past ten years have been elevated to inspectorship without having to go through intermediate ranks. They are Inspector Alex MacLeod, Inspector Tom Trimble and Inspector Don Nicol. This gives Cobourg detachment somewhat the air of a finishing school for constables who are slated for inspectorships. The latest appointee, Inspector Nicol has been here three years, during which time he added to his reputation as a very efficient police officer.

CGE Workers Aid Clark Fund

Employees of the night shift of small motors winding section of Canadian General Electric Company have sent a cheque for $25 to the Examiner for the Bobby Clark Fund.

This is another evidence of the desire of Big Brothers of the city and district, and sisters, to help this fund. It is still moving along on contributions, but it may close one of these days and the opportunity of doing a kindly act for a small boy in need will be gone.

Bobby Clark is back home again in Warsaw, with school to be considered, and generally to face life with one arm gone at the shoulder.

Other contributions yesterday were: Mrs. T. E. Sargent $3; No Name $2, and Mrs. Cooper $1

Women's Institute of Warsaw, custodians of the Fund, report the following contributions:

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sharp, 2; Mrs. Celestia Moore, $1; Mrs. Celestia Moore, $1; W. F. Bell, Peterborough, 25c; Milford Payne, Peterborough, $1.

Ross Williamson, Peterborough $1; Ivan Watts, Peterborough, $1; "Anonymous", Oakville, $10; Mrs. Silesta, Toronto, $1; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hamilton, Hall's Glen, $2.

Mary Ramsey and Everett Lowry, Lake St., Peterborough, 25c each.

Mr. and Mrs. David Rose, Warsaw, have sent their gift of $10 directly to Mrs. Clark.

Lad, 5, Playing In Front Of Car Severely Hurt

Five-year-old David Ferguson, of Cambray, near Lindsay, is in St. Joseph's Hospital today with a fractured right thigh and multiple scrapes and bruises, injuries [illegible] he was hit by a car, near his home Thursday.

Dr. Robert E. Pow, who operated on the child, said his condition was satisfactory.

The youngster was struck by a car driven by Howard Terril, RR 1, Cambray, who was just starting up his car from in front of a store in the village.

Something Wrong

Terril had been in the store and returned to his car. As soon as he started up he realized something was wrong although, he said, he heard no cry.

He travelled only a foot or two before stopping. He ran to the front of the car and there found the Ferguson youngster caught up in the front suspension of the car. The car wheels had apparently not run over the boy.

Dr. L. E. Haryett was called and he rushed the boy to Peterborough.

The youngster was believed to have been playing in a mud puddle in front of the car.

The youngster's mother, Mrs. Allan Ferguson, had just recently returned from hospital where she had underwent an operation.

BRANTFORD NEEDS COLLEGIATE

Brantford, like Peterborough, has a secondary school problem. The new term opened with 603 pupils registering in Grade IX, the first grade in the Collegiate Institute. They were distributed into fourteen classes, averaging 46 pupils, 11 more than the maximum for which the class rooms were designed. If a new Collegiate Institute is not built soon, "we'll be forced to hold classes in church basements," according to the headmaster, W. S. Turner.

Requests Voice In Control Of City Traffic

The Board of Education wants a place on the city's special Traffic and Transportation Committee.

At the first meeting of the fall term Thursday night the board decided that their interest in the city's traffic problem warranted representation on the newly-formed committee.

Last May the board suggested a number of signs and traffic safeguards at certain corners where schoolchildren might be injured. City council has also been informed of the problem of parking school buses at PCVS.

A meeting of the traffic committee is scheduled for 10.30 a.m. Tuesday and the board's recommendations will then be considered.

Special Committee

At present the Traffic and Transportation Committee, set up August 8, consists of E. A. Outram, city clerk; A. E. Chalmers, city engineer; Chief Constable John Thompson and Laurie Mitchell, manager of the Peterborough Bus Lines.

An official of the Board of Education—not an elected member—is the addition requested by the board.

About 80 children who previously attended Confederation School are now transferred to King Edward. This means crossing the flow of heavy motor traffic on Lansdowne St. Some south end parents and also the board have asked for a traffic light at Lansdowne and Lock Sts. but no action has been taken yet by city council.

Mrs. Paige Rowell pointed out that the Monaghan Rd.-Weller St. crossing was "very dangerous."

"If the city council takes no action we'll have to do something," said Mrs. Rowell. "We must find out how great a responsibility we have in this traffic problem."

Dog Bites PCVS Boy On Way To School

A dog bite and a cut arm required the attention of school doctor, Dr. Harold Wright, at PCVS this morning.

While on his way to school Al Storey, a Grade IX student from Omemee, was bitten on the ankle by a dog. Arriving at the collegiate the boy was treated by Dr Wright so that he could continue with his classes.

Prior to the beginning of classes an Academic Grade 10B student, Donald Hutchinson, received a gash along his arm when a window was broken. No stitches were required to close the cut.

License Suspended Driver Fined $50

A young Camp Borden soldier, Donald Thompson, pleading guilty in police court to a charge of driving while his licence was suspended or cancelled, was fined $50 and costs.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said the usual fine for this offence was $100 but because Thompson was in uniform and had only $50 with him, he would consent to the fine being reduced.

Timber Plant Busy

Employment at Canadian Timber Structures Limited has increased to 25 at their plant on High Street and office in the Bank of Commerce Building. The company began operations in the spring, and expects to begin construction this fall of another building of the same floor space as the original in which production is now carried on. A smaller unit is already partly built, and will be entirely enclosed for winter work.

Two Trucks Badly Damaged In Two Accidents Near Same Spot On Highway

Two trucks were badly smashed but the drivers escaped unhurt in separate accidents early today, a mile south of Fraserville on Highway 28. Provincial Police from the Cobourg detachment are still looking for a man identified as "Red" Morris, Toronto, driver of an empty furniture van that narrowly missed plunging into Baxter Creek and finally crashed into three elm trees in the west ditch. The accident is believed to have occurred sometime between midnight and 3 a.m. Just what happened is still conjecture but somehow the large southbound van, owned by J. T. Middup and Son, went out of control as it descended a hill, north of the bridge.

A section of the van's right side was torn away as it struck the north-west corner of the steel and concrete bridge spanning the creek. As it brushed along the rail other plywood sections were torn off.

Finally the van crashed with terrific force into three elms. The front wheels were ripped off and shoved back half way under the chassis, and the remaining part of the right side was shorn away when it hit the most westerly of the three trees.

The furniture van is almost a total wreck.

Second Accident

At 8 a.m. today two Coca-Cola trucks, both driven by Peterborough men, were in an accident about 50 yards south of the wrecked van.

Both trucks were loaded with soft drink cases and were heading south on Highway 28. When the lead driver, Francis G. Maloney, 26, 148 Park St., came to the scene of the crash he was forced to slow down because of the large number of cars and trucks that had been parked by spectators.

Following him with a load of 200 cases of soft drinks was Donald Schweir, 22, 16 Wallace St.

"I put on my brakes when I saw the truck ahead slow down," explained Schweir. "But the rear end slewed around and struck Maloney's tailboard. Then I rolled over in the ditch."

Schweir's truck came to rest upside down in the west ditch facing north. Round about were scattered cases of "cokes" some of the bottles smashed and others intact.

The Schweir vehicle was heavily damaged but Maloney's received only a dented tailboard.

Provincial Constables B. Baluk and C. E. Meadows of Cobourg investigated.

Board Approves Of Band In Public Schools

In a few years Peterborough may have a large reserve of well-trained bandsmen to draw on. That is the prospect now that the Board of Education has approved the introduction of band music into the public schools.

"If we are to have a good collegiate band the pupils need instruction in public schools," said K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools. At present Albert Croasdale, PCVS bandmaster, finds that graduations from the collegiate seriously deplete his band each school year.

Musically-trained public school pupils would fill this need and would require less instruction than tyro bandsmen.

Rent Instruments

Thursday night the board heard a proposal for renting band instruments from F. A. Boddington. The proposal had the backing of Mr. Croasdale.

Cost per pupil would be 75 cents per week and at least 70 public school children would be required. The board would provide the accommodation. Present value of the instruments is $4,500, Mr. Boddington estimates. And if the board wished to buy them after five years the price would be halved.

There would likely be two lessons a week, one on a school day and the other on Saturday. They would probably be held in Queen Mary auditorium.

Mr. Wightman assured Dr. Russell Morgan that the cost of maintenance and the insurance on the instruments was the responsibility of Mr. Boddigton.

CAPTAIN JOINS STAFF

Capt. Roy Leamen, who recently conducted a recruiting drive in this area, joined the A. and T. staff at the armouries today. This brings the active force strength here to four. The others are Sgt.-Major S. R. Holton, Staff-Sergeants Gerald Dunn and B. L. Smith. Staff-Sgt. Dunn leaves Monday on his annual leave while Staff-Sgt. Smith is returning from his leave.

Gets 30 Months 10 Strokes

Ten strokes of the whip and 30 months in the Guelph reformatory were imposed on Fred Hamilton, 37, River Road, when he was found guilty in police court Thursday of two charges of gross indecency involving two young boys.

A third charge of a similar nature was dismissed when the Crown could offer no evidence because a key witness was not present. He was sentenced to 30 months on each charge, the reformatory terms to run concurrently.

Evidence of the two other boys aged 12 and 14, was that the offences took place on three occasions in August in Jackson Park.

Joseph Heffernan, charged with a similar offence was remanded to Monday on $2,500 bail.

Students Not Anxious Take Special Studies

Results of the PCVS summer school were partly encouraging and partly disappointing. So K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, told the Board of Education Thursday night.

The disappointing feature was that less than 50 per cent of those eligible for the special summer classes in mathematics and science actually attended. Only 11 of 27 students in mathematics turned up, and six of 18 science students.

The encouraging feature was the record of the attenders. When the supplementary examinations were written 10 of the 11 students in mathematics passed; and all six science students.

These summer classes were held for a two-week during August for the first time this year. They were for students in Grades X and X1 who failed in not more than two academic subjects and intended to write supplemental examinations.

R. H. David taught mathematics, while J. D. McNabb tutored the six science students.

Board Rejoices At PCVS Results

"Every member of the Board of Education is elated over the showing of Grade XIII this year," said Dr. Ralph Honey at the board meeting Thursday.

He was referring to the unusually high percentage of successful students last June. An analysis of examination papers shows that 95.5 per cent were successful and 4.5 per cent were failures.

"It's certainly something to be proud of," agreed K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools. "I doubt you could find any better results in the province."

More than a third of the papers received first class honors.

Dr. Honey then put forward the resolution that C. S. Browne, PCVS principal, convey to the staff and students at PCVS the Board's "congratulations and appreciation for their outstanding efforts during the past term."

Despite overcrowding both the teachers and students are doing a first-class job, commented Mr. Wightman.

There were no failures in geometry and trigonometry (generally considered difficult subjects); 30 papers showed first class honors in geometry, nine got second class, four third class and seven credits. In trigonometry there were 31 firsts, nine seconds, six thirds and one credit.

New Taxi Bylaw In Printed Form

Printed copies in booklet form of the controversial new taxi bylaw were distributed to members of the Police Commission Thursday.

The bylaw was passed by city council July 13 and will go into effect Sept. 30.

Commission secretary E. A. Outram showed members of the commission the type of metal badge which all taxi drivers must carry. The badges will cost the Commission, he said, 24 cents each. New ones will be purchased each year. The badges taxi drivers will be required to buy shortly will be in force until March.

Two city police officers were promoted to third class constables Thursday by the Police Commission on the recommendation of Chief Constable John Thompson.

The two men were Constable Donald Jones and Constable William A. Scott, who both joined the force a year ago.

Archie Clysdale Judges Victoria County Contests

Archie Clysdale was in charge of the judging of finished steers by the members of the Victoria County junior beef calf club this week. Parents and juniors to the number of 65 met at the farm of Col. C. D. H. MacAlpine near Red Rock. Mr. Clysdale made the placing of the class of Herefords and discussed the judging done by the juniors.

Alex Willis of Quaker Oats Company presented the high scoring member of the junior and senior clubs with an eversharp pencil. Their achievement day is at Bobcaygeon Fair, Sept. 30.

Daylight Time Ends In City Early Sunday, Sept. 24

Adjourn Talks For Wage Boosts

WINDSOR, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Wage talks were adjourned Thursday between Ford Motor Company of Canada and United Automobile Workers (CIO) and will resume when the company drafts its reply to the UAW demands for "substantial" wage boosts.

After a brief meeting, George Burt, Canadian director of the big auto industry union, said the Ford reply was not expected for several days.

"The company is considering some of our proposals, Mr. Burt said, "and is going to give us a call when they have an answer."

The union proposals are for higher wages, above those granted in a contract last May, to offset rising living costs. Mr. Burt said the union wants no less than similar increases granted recently in the United States auto industry. These ranged from 10 to 15 cents an hour.

The union plans to extend its present demands to approximately 150 Canadian plants where it has contracts. The Chrysler Corporation of Canada and two small automotive parts plants in Windsor recently agreed to grant the supplemental increases.

Bengough Re-Elected Head Labor Congress

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Percy Bengough Thursday was re-elected president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada for his eighth consecutive term.

The veteran Vancouver machinist went in without opposition.

Gordon Cushing of Calgary and Ottawa, general secretary-treasurer, was re-elected.

Vice-presidents: James Whitebone, Saint John, NB, Maritimes; Claude Jodoin, Quebec, William Jenovese, Ontario, and Carl Berg, prairies.

14,000 Jews Wait In Poverty And Misery In Iran For Passage To Israel

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 15 (AP)— Some 14,000 descendants of the wandering tribes of Israel are waiting in poverty and misery here for a chance to go to the new Jewish homeland.

They are among the little-known Jews who have lived for centuries among the Moslems, adopting the dress and many of the customs of their Rab and Persian neighbors. But they have preserved the ancient forms of their Jewish religion and speak the archaic Hebrew of the Old Testament.

This has been the only Moslem country, aside from Turkey, where Jews have found a refuge since the 1948 Palestine war. Thousands of Jews hoping eventually to go to Israel have slipped across the border from Iraq. Others have fled to Tehran to escape sporadic violence at the hands of fanatical Kurdish tribesmen.

Iran has a tradition of tolerance toward Jews. This dates back to the time of Cyrus the Great, who conquered Babylonia in 538 B.C and freed the Jews enslaved by King Nebuchadnezzar.

Co-operating Fully

The Iranian government is co-operating fully with Israeli officials organizing the migration to the promised land, but it seems a painfully slow migration for Jews who have to wait for months for places on the chartered planes which fly them to Israel.

About 1,400 monthly are flown from Tehran to Israel, but the quota will be cut down this fall because priority is being given to Jews in Poland and Romania, where governments have lifted barriers to emigration for the next three months.

About 28,000 Iranian and Iraqi Jews have gone to Israel from here in the last two years. But the number of those waiting to go increases daily.

About half the refugees are crowded into two camps in Hebrew cemeteries on the outskirts of Tehran. Others are living in the city's big synagogue or are staying with Jewish families.

Although the Iranian government officially opposes persecution of Jews, its police power in remote mountain areas often is slim. To escape outbursts of anti-Jewish violence thousands of Jews have abandoned their homes and property and come to Tehran on foot, mule-back or by camel.

Provision has been made for migration of Iraqi and Kurdish Jews because of past persecution. No provision has yet been made for Iranian Jews because it is felt they can go to Israel after Jews have been taken from trouble spots.

Wreaths Honor Masaryk

PRAGUE, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Wreaths were laid on the grave of President Thomas C. Masaryk Thursday, the 13th anniversary of his death. The ceremony took place at Lany, traditional home of presidents of Czechoslovakia, some 25 miles west of Prague.

Man Forges Way Across Dominion

EDMONTON, Sept. 15 (CP).— Roy Hubbard is a man who literally forged his way west.

Wednesday he told the court how he did it.

Beginning in Toronto and working west through Hamilton, London, Windsor, Brandon, Man.; St. Boniface, Man.; Yorkton, Sask.; and Saskatoon, he would open post office savings branch accounts in each place for $1. A A stroke or two of the pen raised the $1 to $90. Hubbard would then make a withdrawal of $40— the amount varying with the state of his finances.

Hubbard, who also is known as James Slater or James Stimson, was sentenced to three years. His undoing occurred at Wetaskiwin, 30 miles south of Edmonton. Police estimated he had received only $325 for his penmanship.

Pass Emergency Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP) —The Senate Thursday night passed a $17,192,000,000 emergency defence bill to expand America's military power and arm her allies against Communist aggression. Approval by voice vote came after the Senate voted to shut off American financial and economic aid to any nation that sells arms or goods useful for military purposes to countries behind the iron curtain.

Alert Policeman

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP) — Arrested in Niagara Falls, Ont., by an alert policeman who noticed that there were different licence plates on the front and back of a car, two Montreal youths arrived here Thursday night under police escort. Edward Kilgallen and Donald Coull will be arraigned tomorrow and charged with stealing a car owned by Michael McBride.

Parents Inspect Village Schools

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15 (ENS) The Lakefield Home and School Association held open house Monday with a special invitation to parents of all primary school students and parents of new students in the public and district high school.

Guest speaker, the Rev. W. H. Tonge, said goth teachers and ministers were concerned with molding the lives of the country's young people. But he deplored a drift in schools away from spiritual values toward material goals.

Local Red Cross representative, Mrs. Leonard, outlined a plan to provide public school children with cod liver oil capsules during the winter. Members of the Home and School Association voted to give the Red Cross $50 to help pay for the capsules. The association will hold a card party in October to raise the capsule money and buy new curtains for the public school office.

E. Sloan, principal of the public school and R. Sutton, principal of the high school introduced the members of their staffs.

After the meeting many parents inspected school rooms and chatted with the teachers of their youngsters. Tea was served by Mrs. E. Sanderson and her committee.

6-Hour Conference

HAMILTON, Sept. 15 (CP) — City council and union officials were closeted for 12 hours with conciliation officer A. C. Dennis Thursday in an effort to settle the six-week strike of Hamilton civic employees. Neither side made any comment on the progress of negotiations in the wage-and-hour dispute as the meeting adjourned till today.

To Name Candidate

WELLAND, Sept. 15 (CP) — Labor-Progressive party officials are holding a convention today to name a candidate for the federal by-election in Welland Oct. 16. Liberal, Progressive Conservative and CCF candidates already have been named to contest the election for the Commons seat held by the late Labor Minister Mitchell.

Apple Day Approved For Scouts October 14

Permission to hold their annual Apple Day Oct. 14 was granted to the Peterborough Boy Scouts by the Police Commission at a meeting Thursday.

The boys were also given the okay to canvass from house to house with their apples the evening of Oct. 13.

"I guess they don't need a licence," commented Mayor Max J. Swanston with a grin. "They haven't got a chip wagon."

Investigate Sabotage

LONDON, Sept. 15 (Reuters)—The Admiralty is investigating possible attempted sabotage in the 14,000-ton light fleet aircraft carrier Vengeance. A small quantity of sand was found in the ship's lubricating machinery, an Admiralty spokesman said.

VON Nurse Instructs WA

FAIRVIEW, Sept. 15 (ENS)—Miss Wilma Armstrong, RN, of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Peterborough, was the special speaker at the annual grandmothers day meeting of the Fairview Women's Association held at the home of the president, Mrs. D. Wilson.

Miss Armstrong, a former Fairview district resident, lectured the women members on first aid in the home. She also gave a demonstration of types of bandaging.

She was introduced by Mrs. Henry Sharpe and thanked by Mrs. Carmen Bell.

The president announced a bake sale to be held on the market Saturday and the WMS section rally to be held in Lakefield United Church, Tuesday afternoon, October 3. A bazaar and sale of home cooking will be held in the YMCA on Nov. 29.

A number of grandmothers present received prizes: the oldest grandmother, Mrs. Fred Bell; youngest grandmother, Mrs. Robt. Fowler; grandmother with the youngest grandchild, Mrs. Frank Trude; grandmother with the most grandchildren, Mrs. Ernest Mahood.

Another feature was the presentation of life membership pins to Mrs. Wilbert A. Rosborough and Mrs. Fred Bell both of whom were residents of the community when the association was first organized. Rev. D. P. Morris made the presentation.

Lunch was served.

Held By Police

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP)—Arrested by police after he allegedly threatened to blow up the home of his estranged wife, Vladimir Varlue of Sudbury was charged with carrying concealed weapons. Police said the 38-year-old miner was carrying five sticks of dynamite, two detonator caps and a hunting knife.

Struck By Car

TLC Hands Out More Lacings To Red Members

By JOHN LEBLANC.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP) — President Percy Bengough Thursday led his executive back into office in the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and the 600-odd delegates at the body's annual convention here administered two more lacings to a fringe suspected of Communist leanings.

The convention Thursday saw the anti-Communist majority overthrow opponents on the issue of Canada's foreign trade policy and also saw final revocation of the credentials of six delegates suspected of Red sympathies.

In addition, the convention heard speeches from two foreign fraternal delegates. Sir Luke Fawcett, representing the British Trades Union Congress, emphasized the community of interest shared by British and Canadian labor.

Anthony Valente, international president of the United Textile Workers of America—a union affiliated with the TLC—called for labor unity and expressed his hope for "peace between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations."

Mr. Valente's UTW now is engaged in a bitter jurisdictional fight with the CIO Textile Workers Union of America.

Top Canadian officials of the UTW are among those barred from the TLC convention here, and Mr. Valente warned that "it is very easy to brand those with whom we disagree, or whom we dislike, as Communists."

Elsewhere on the convention floor, the delegates elected officers—returning last year's slate—and backed up the executive in refusing credentials to the six alleged left-wingers. The six are among the 20 delegates barred, and the cases of the others have not yet reached the convention as a whole.

The second anti-leftist action consisted of throwing out half-a-dozen left-line resolutions critical of Canadian foreign policy.

Bost issues touched off turbulent debates with the anti-Communist majority eventually winning the day on voice votes of about 30 to 1.

Today, it was expected there might be further repercussions on the Communist issue with perhaps some of the barred 14 delegates trying to gain admission.

Find Housing Conditions Much Improved

"Housing conditions in the city are gradually improving," Sanitary Inspector, R. M. MacPherson, reported to the Board of Health at their meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

The reason for this improvement is the great number of houses that are being built with the result that overcrowding is becoming less of a problem.

"The most significant improvement," stated Mr. MacPherson, "is the providing of sanitary conveniences in place of the unsanitary privy. In most cases the houses are being connected without any urging from us. However, at times we do find it necessary to issue orders to effect connections and fifteen such notices have been given in the past few months."

Some of the problems encountered in the housing inspection according to Mr. MacPherson were instances of all round unsanitary conditions, disrepair, inadequate sanitary conveniences, cellar occupancy, and permanent dampness caused by leaky roofs.

As a result of the inspection three houses were closed as unfit for human occupation.

Because trailers, cabins and tents are not permitted to be used as living quarters, the occupants of two trailers, one cabin and two tents were required to move.

Four new licences for tourist homes were approved following the inspection.

Foreigners To Leave

Movie Tarzan Finds Africa Disappointing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15 (AP)—Tarzan of the movies has been to Africa for the first time and he says "it's not for me."

Tarzan is Lex Barker, the 10th to portray the bare-chested jungle king in films and the first to enact the role on actual locations in Africa.

"All I can say is that Tarzan wouldn't last three days in Africa," said Barker. "If he went around with just a loin-cloth on, he'd be quickly eaten by tse-tse flies, poisonous snakes and various other pests. When I appeared in it, the natives just laughed."

Africa presented a number of other disappointments. "We expected the country to be hot," Barker said. "The weather was about 50 or 60 degrees. I was shivering in that outfit I wear.

"And the scenery didn't look like Africa is supposed to look. It seemed just like parts of Arizona or California. We found ourselves actually building sets to make the place look like Africa."

As for the jungle, it stank. "You couldn't see the monkeys, but you could smell them," he remarked.

Nor were the animals as cooperative in real life as they are with Tarzan in the movies.

"I was making some movies of an elephant when he decided to take after us," he related. "He came right at the back of our jeep and the wheels were spinning. We were stuck. Finally we got under way.

Clerk Jailed For Stealing Atomic Secrets

LONDON, Sept. 15 (Reuters)—A clerk described as just an ordinary thief, Thursday was jailed for four years for stealing a suitcase full of atomic secrets.

A police witness testified he was satisfied the clerk, William Wakeham, 35, was not connected with a spy ring.

American intelligence officers co-operated with British police when Frank Millar Greenlees, assistant director of the British supply ministry's atomic research branch, had his case stolen from a train.

Greenlees had recently visited United States atomic research plants.

Police testified Thursday the suitcase had been recovered with all its atomic documents intact.

They said Wakeham had nine previous convictions and had twice attempted suicide.

A defence lawyer said Wakeham was mentally weak.

Art of Making Good Pastry Key to Popularity in Home

Sincere thanks should go to the nameless cook who first made pies with fruit instead of meat which, for generations, had been used in the "pyes" enjoyed in England. The fruit pies originated through necessity when, after the American Revolution, meats and poultry were scarce. Without doubt, this unknown person gave the North American continent its favorite dessert.

The homemaker who is able to make good pastry holds the key to popularity in her home and community. Home economists say that there is no good or bad luck in pastry making. It is accuracy in measuring and care in handling that counts. There are many excellent methods and recipes for pastry. The following modern method of mixing pastry makes it almost failure-proof.

Plain Pastry

3 Cups sifted all-purpose flour
Or 3½ cups pastry flour
1½ teaspoons salt
6 tablespoons cold water
¾ cup lard or mild-flavored fat.

Mix flour and salt. Remove ½ cup of the flour and blend the water into it, making a smooth paste. Cut the fat into the remaining flour until the pieces are the size of small peas. Mix in the flour paste, combine until the dough clings together. Chill before rolling. Makes enough pastry for three 9-inch pie shells, or one double crust and one 9-inch shell, or 3 dozen 2-inch tart shells.

There are, however, several points which are worth keeping in mind:

Too much flour makes tough pastry.

Too much shortening makes the pastry dry and crumbly.

Too much liquid makes a heavy pastry.

Too much handling spoils the tender mixture.

It is this last point on which the novice often stumbles. In her efforts to make the perfect pie, she works with the pastry too long.

The pastry is most important in pie-making, but it is the filling that gives its character. Apple pie with cheese is an old favorite. Here the cheese is added to the pie crust with excellent results.

Apple Pie With Cheese Crust

Line pie plate with pastry. Cover with layer of thinly sliced apples. Allowing about 2 tablespoons of sugar to each apple, sprinkle sugar over layer of apples. Dot with butter. Repeat until the pie is well filled. Roll ½ cup of grated cheese into the pastry for the upper crust. Cover apples with the cheese crust. Bake in a hot oven 425 degrees Fahr., for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees Fahr., and bake for 20 to 30 minutes longer, or until apples are tender.

Plum Pie

Pie paste
2-3 cup sugar
Dash of cloves (optional)
3 tablespoons flour
Few grains salt
3 cups sliced plums (about 1½ pounds).

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Mox sugar, cloves, flour and salt. Sprinkle a small portion of mixture over unbaked pie shell. Combine sliced plums with remainder of mixture and fill shell. Arrange a lattice work of pie paste over top of pie. Bake in a hot oven, 40 degrees Fahr., for 30 minutes. Yield: Six servings.

Note: As an alternate to cloves, sprinkle ¼ teaspoon almond flavoring over plums.

Chocolate Topped Pie

1 baked 9-inch pie shell
1½ cups milk
1 tablespoon gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 egg yolks
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg (optional)
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons grated chocolate.

Scald milk in top of double-boiler. Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Beat egg yolks with sugar, salt and nutmeg. Add hot milk gradually, then cook in top of double-boiler until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove and stir in soaked gelatine and vanilla. Chill until partially set. Then beat with rotary beater and lastly fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into the baked pie shell and sprinkle with grated chocolate. Chill until set. Yield: One nine-inch pie.

Health Department Has Tips For Canadians Going Abroad

By KAY REX

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Goodness knows how many Canadians go off to see the world with a copy of the health department's "Bon Voyage" tucked in their travelling bags.

But more could if they wanted to. And if it's an ocean trip and they tend to seasickness they might find a few comforting hints tucked inside this trickily-illustrated booklet.

Most comforting of all is the word that while seasickness is a common ailment, it isn't inevitable. And "Bon Voyage" contains a five-point program for keeping it at bay:

1. Suppress fear of being seasick.
2. Relax to the motion of the ship.
3. Keep on deck as much as possible and stay around the "waist" of the ship where rolling isn't as pronounced.
4. As much as possible stay clear of stuffy staterooms, saloons, and washrooms.
5. Avoid excesses in eating, smoking and drinking.

Then there's the pre-travel period. All going aboard should consult diplomatic, consular or trade representatives in advance to ensue compliance with immigration medical requirements of all countries on their itinerary, says the booklet.

Prospective travellers to the United Kingdom might as well get their vaccination for smallpox along with their passport. Otherwise it will have to be done overseas as no one can return to Canada unless he has been vaccinated within the last three years.

(An international certificate of vaccination, issued by the health department and stamped by the attending physician, is necessary as proof of vaccination.)

"Bon Voyage" also recommends a medical checkup before the trip and lists a few suggestions about what to guard against, particularly when travelling in tropical countries.

Avoid cold drinks. In hot climates copy the natives and stick to hot drinks which are more cooling anyway.

Watch Your Alcohol

Leave alcohol alone during the heat of the day in the tropics. If you must drink wait until after sundown and buy alcoholic drinks only from reputable sources.

Beware of raw milk. Unless it is pasteurized, canned, evaporated, condensed or in powder form (when it should be used with boiled water only) it may transmit disease.

Don't keep those blinds down if you want to get rid of disease germs. Health department experts say that sunlight is one of nature's finest sterilizers. When a room is flooded with sunlight many disease germs in the air, on the floor and furniture are safely killed off.

Home and School

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

With a record attendance of 125 the season's opening meeting of [illegible] Association was held Monday evening. Members and teachers enjoyed a social evening during which Misses Doreen and Phyllis Hutchison provided singing entertainment and Miss Fay Blackwell played guitar numbers. Mrs. E. Rae contributed two readings. Miss Sheehy's kindergarten class won the attendance prize with 19 mothers present.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

First fall meeting of Confederation Home and School Association was held Tuesday evening, president Mrs. J. Stuart presiding, and Mrs. L. Monk at the piano.

Principal Mr. J. Nicholls addressed the members and explained staff changes and the necessity for division of the south end school section. He also described the Dana Porter plan of education and explained the acceleration system.

Mrs. C. Renaud, the school piano teacher, had pupils there to demonstrate the way of teaching rhythm and piano, and also leadership. The children then entertained musically, Janet Estlick, Shirley Pritchard, Lorraine Middleton, Gail and Karen Wood, Norma Branson, Anna May Godfrey, Allan Moffatt, Pepeita Arnott, Maurice Hill, Brent Warren, Betty Lou Marsden, Shirley Shouldice, Beverley Hall, Sharon Porter, Margaret and Marlyn Monk, Penny Sparks, iVctor Robinson and Merla McIntosh.

Following the concert, refreshments were served with Mrs. G Kiff in charge.

GROVE SCHOOL

Mr. K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools in Peterborough, was guest speaker at a well-attended meeting Wednesday evening of Grove Home and School Association. He spoke about the changes in the curriculum at the present time, stating that a most promising experiment is in progress with one important thought in mind—welfare of the children and wholesome growth so that they may grow up to be desirable citizens.

Principal Mr. J. Barnard introduced the speaker and he was thanked by Mrs. Mitchell on behalf of the members.

New members were welcomed by president Mrs. F. Sanders. Mrs. W. Sheppard was pianist for the opening exercises, and Mrs. W. Higgins read the school creed. A sing song was conducted by Mrs. R. Clements, assisted by Mrs Ian Foster at the piano.

Mrs. Higgins conducted a quiz on good citizenship which was the theme of the meeting. New parent education convener Mrs. Mitchell read a poem, "Make a Job of It."

A new teacher Miss Donald was introduced and her room won the attendance prize.

Refreshments were served under convenership of Mrs. N. Bowler.

P-A Assoc. News

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL

St. John's Parent-Teacher Association met Tuesday evening at the school with Mrs. H. J. McLarnon, newly appointed president in the chair. After extending a welcome she outlined the aims and objectives of the Association.

Sister M. Garnier, addressed the gathering and introduced the teaching staff. She urged parents to be faithful in attending meetings.

Plans were made to hold a social evening for all parents and those interested in PA work, the event to be on Friday, October 27.

Mrs. F. O'Connor was appointed to fill the vacancy of vice president. A presentation was made to Mr. E. Curtin, who assisted the executive during the past term, by Mr. C. Buckley.

The attendance award was won by Grade One pupils.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. W. Philcox and her committee.

Encourage Church Attendance

Excelsior Bible Class of St. James' United Church met this week at the home of Mrs. O. Fife, 235 Princess St., with a splendid attendance. A most appropriate autumn theme was carried out in the devotional period, led by Mrs. F. James. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. Ferguson and a poem by Mrs. E. Miller. Two hymns were sung and prayer offered by Miss Grace Woodcock, missionary on furlough from Bolivia. Mrs. R. Bell, president, took charge of business. Further plans were made for the bazaar on November 15 and for class attendance at the evening church service on September 24. Class teacher, Miss J. Martin, encouraged church attendance. Under leadership of Mrs. Bell, an etiquette contest was played, the winners being Mrs. E. Gardner and Mrs. J. Simmons. Refreshments were served by Mrs. S. James and Beverly Fife was a charming little assistant. October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Davis, George St.

Sparkes, centre sewing group convener, announced a fall tea to be held October 18. After a short business period the meeting was turned over to Mrs. H. Darling for the devotional. The theme was "The Good Shepherd." Mrs. H. Clegg read scripture and offered prayer. Mrs. Darling read an interesting article "The Basque Sheepherder," and the Shepherd Psalm.

Changing Methods In WMS Work Increase Demands

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—From all parts of Canada and from the Orient came delegates to Toronto to attend the sessions this week of the WMS, meeting with the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

A "get-acquainted" luncheon at St. Columba United Church opened the program of events for the ladies. Delegates from Newfoundland to British Columbia mingled with those just home from China and Japan as the Woman's Missionary Society prepared to map out the next forward steps to be taken. The society begins a new quarter century of effort in 9,000 organizations of women, youth and children.

It was asked that the secretary of temperance and Christian citizenship broaden her report to include not only temperance but world peace, social welfare and racial brotherhood. "Peace is the most important of the three, and women need to work as hard for peace now as they do in time of war."

Changing methods in WMS work to meet new demands being made upon the society were outlined by Mrs. C. Maxwell Loveys, home mission executive secretary.

"Twenty-five years ago, in the earlier days of home missions, the work meant long tedious drives over mud roads to isolated places, boarding schools in unorganized territories and settlements in city slums," she said.

"Today, distances have disappeared through the use of cars; a few places are isolated because of highways and radios. School sections have been organized and young people who once were cared for in our school homes require us now only to teach them Christian education, while education and health services, in which the church pioneered are being accepted as state responsibilities."

The emphasis is on religious education, community work in new housing areas, meeting the varied problems of immigration, and helping newcomers to adjust themselves, she said.

In Christian history the second quarter of the 20th century is noted for growth in ecumenical understanding, said the speaker. "Churches in smaller communities cannot be striving against one another—they must, and are, working co-operatively."

Mrs. Loveys reviewed the various departments of the home field. This was an encouraging year in obtaining workers, she said. Included were four nurses for northern hospitals and Indian work and four community workers. The staff of 160, including 78 missionaries and 82 associates, still needs to be increased to take care of six openings for which the society has requests but no workers she said. There is an increased amount of co-operation with other boards of the church, in money granted, and in workers supplied.

Total membership for last year showed an increase of 13,024, reported the Dominion executive secretary, Dr. Winnifred Thomas. Release of the residence at 506 Jarvis St. for use as a home for retired missionaries was also announced by Dr. Thomas.

MISS EDITH GLOVER, RN, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Glover of Percy township whose marriage to Mr. Harold W. G. Redden, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Redden, Warkworth, takes place Saturday at 2.30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Warkworth.

Keating-Seeney

HAVELOCK, Sept. 15 (ENS)—A quiet wedding was solemnized recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harnden, Belmont Township when the former's sister Mrs. Margaret Seeney of Rush Point was united in marriage to Mr. George Keating of Belmont. The Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh officiated.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Keating left on a short honeymoon trip. They will live on the groom's farm in Belmont Township.

Norwood News

Ruth Baskin, Joyce Giffen and Shirley Starke are attending business college in Peterborough this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. David Nixon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rose of Warsaw.

Mrs. Eliza Blakely and Mr. Joe Golloher called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. Theobald of Toronto spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. John Chevers.

Bright Rainwear In Style, Price For Every Woman

LONDON —(CP)— There's a style and a price for every woman, in this year's British rainwear.

From liquid-shaded, rubber-backed rayons, costing around five guineas ($16.27), prices range upward through gay plaid checks and tartans, tailored gabardines and proofed whipcords, to £18 to £20 ($62) convertibles.

Donkey brown garardine reversing to fine west of England check, or black-and-white dogstooth, alternating with black gabardine, are two of the more popular numbers.

Overseas visitors, however, seem to favor the lively plaid checks and tartans reversed to equally bright gabardines.

For those who dislike the bulky convertibles, there are smooth, silk-lined gabardines with matching hat or hood. A lime-green gabardine with deep, wide raglan sleeve, swing back and optional dog-lead belt, has front cuff-panel of black to match the deep, pointed black collar and cuffs and matching deerstalker bonnet. Price, 18 guineas.

Gay for Dull Winter

The gayest of brighteners for dull British winters, are the shimmer-surface nylon satins with light rubber backs. In shades of orchid-pink, seal black, cherry red and gooseberry, they are in popular demand.

The highlight of this year's rainwear, however, is a soft leather or suede top coat. Combined travel coat, raincoat and winter warmer, it is expensive and ultra-smart.

Lined with tweed or fur, built to defy the hardest winter, part of the charm lies in the exact matching of accessories.

If the top coat is worn over a suit, a smart accessory is the matching waistcoat.

Popular with Canadian, American and Scandinavian buyers are the short boxy suede jackets worn with pencil-slim, tweed or gabardine skirts. With shoes, gloves, hat and bag to match, they make a startlingly vivid ensemble.

Colors range from soft tans, browns and mustards to vivid coronation red, purple and emerald green.

Couple Married 71 Years

Advice: Be Busy

BRANTFORD —(CP)—Married 71 years, Mr. and Mrs. D. Frank Roy of Brant county have a suggestion for making a success of marriage: Maintain a cheerful outlook and always keep busy.

At 93, Mr. Roy still keeps busy on the farm that has been in the family for more than a century. He raises chicken and does odd chores around the farm.

Mrs. Roy, who admits only that she is a few years younger than her husband, does her own housework, her shopping and says she likes the movies. She made her annual trip to the Canadian National Exhibition again this year, but couldn't persuade her husband to go along.

"When you get up in your 90s, you won't want to go to the fair," he told her.

Mrs. Roy vividly recalls Sept. 10, 1879—her wedding day. It was a beautiful day, she says. She also remembers the horse-drawn trolley cars of New York City, where they spent their honeymoon.

To celebrate the anniversary, they held a big dinner for the immediate family and held open house for their numerous friends the rest of the day. Mrs. Roy was resplendant in a new wine-colored dress, specially bought for the occasion.

The Roys, who still live in the white brick farm house Frank built for his bride, had a family of three—two girls and a boy. One daughter survives. They have seven grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild—Susan Waddell of Hamilton, born last July.

IODE News

57th REGIMENT CHAPTER

Mrs. M. E. Clarke was elected regent of 57th Regiment Chapter, IODE, Wednesday evening when the monthly meeting was held in the officers' mess of the Armouries. Mrs. Clarke, who had held the office of first vice regent, was duly installed by the Municipal regent, Mrs. W. G. Hall. She succeeds Mrs. C. M. Scott whose resignation was accepted.

Plans were made for the annual Remembrance Day tea to be held in the YWCA Green Room on November 11. The semi-annual convention to be held in London, Ontario, October 17-18, was announced. A donation was made to the memorial to the late Provincial secretary Mrs. McCullough.

Tea was served by Mrs. R. Gilders and her committee.

WCTU Urges Appropriation To Alcohol, Drug Education

TORONTO, Sept. 15 — (CP) — The Women's Christian Temperance Union Thursday urged an Ontario government budget appropriation for alcohol and narcotic education and opposed increases in liquor-sale outlets.

The 73rd annual convention asked that the Education Act be amended to provide funds for a government agency whose job would be education of the public on liquor and drug matters.

The meeting also:

1. Asked the government to stop granting liquor permits for banquets.

2. Urged strict enforcement of laws respecting sale of liquor to minors.

3. Asked a tightening of drunk-driving laws, with results of blood or breath tests to be made available in court.

4. Commended publications which deal editorially with the alcohol problem and those which refuse liquor advertising.

5. Sought a ban on motion pictures emphasizing sex, drinking and crimes of violence.

Social drinking by church members was criticized by Mrs. Grace Knight, national corresponding secretary of the Union.

She told the convention: "This generation tolerates, even in church homes, things that their parents would not have tolerated. It must be burned into the soul of every church member that alcohol is morally wrong, even though smart advertising persuades otherwise."

She urged the 175 delegates to serve fruit juice instead of cocktails before meals.

Mrs. T. H. Greenaway of Hamilton was elected president. Other officers: Vice-president, Mrs. F. W. Ambrose, Hamilton; secretaries, Mrs. W. S. Lemke, Pembroke; Mrs. A. T. Fleming, Wellington; Mrs. J. Nelson, Merritton, Mrs. F. Stevens, Ottawa; treasurer, Mrs. R. M. Seymour.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Let Love Grow Stale Marry While Still Young

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to be married to the dearest boy in the world. We expect to be married soon, with the understanding that I will continue working for a year or two until he is earning enough to support us both. Recently a man has warned me against my marriage. He says that a man who will get married without being able to support a wife has no backbone and will never amount to anything. Do you think that my working will injure the morale of my fiance?

G.R.B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: My advice is to take your courage and your two pay envelopes in both hands and go along and get married while you are still young and your love is fresh and ardent. As I have said many times in this column, wedding cake should be eaten while it is hot from the oven. It gets stale and tasteless if kept too long on the shelf.

Not Ideal Situation

Of course, the ideal order of things is for every man to be able to support his family in comfort and for the woman to be able to stay at home and devote all of her time and energy to rearing children and running the domestic end of the partnership. But, unfortunately, often it takes both the man and the woman, especially when they are young and before the man has had time to establish himself, to make enough money to keep a marriage a going concern.

It is, then, no reflection on either party for the wife to help bring in the bacon. I have always felt that one of the chief things that the modern girl had to be thankful for was that she was financially independent; that she could keep on with her job after marriage and so could marry while she was young and in love, instead of having to spend dreary years waiting for her fiance to make enough money to support her.

Doubtless there are some men who are lazy and shiftless and who turn quitters when they find their wives can support the family, but for most men the sight of their wives bravely working in order to help them is a spur in the sides of their ambition that makes them put forth every effort to succeed, so that the "little woman" can stay in the home they know she pines for.

DEAR MISS DIX: What are a father's duties toward his children? THE MOTHER OF THE CHILDREN.

ANSWER: A father's first duty to his children is, of course, to provide them with the necessities of life — food and shelter and clothes. It is his duty not only to give his children a home, but, insofar as it is possible for him to do so, to make it a happy home in which there is peace and cheer and affection.

It is a father's duty to co-operate with his wife in rearing the children. If God hadn't intended children to have the benefit of a mother's love and softness and a father's judgment and discipline, He wouldn't have given them two parents.

A father owes it to his children to give himself to them. Just giving them the things that money buys isn't enough. They need father himself.

Fathers owe it to their children to get acquainted with them. Half the fathers and children in the world haven't even a speaking acquaintance with each other. They can't carry on a conversation when they are left alone together. The children have no idea what father thinks and father hasn't an idea what the children think or are doing.

It is every father's duty to help his children make a success of their lives, and he defaults on his obligation when he passes the buck to their mother and lets her form their characters and decide their way of life.

DEAR MISS DIX: Are women more narrow-minded than men? Why do women turn up their noses at some of the most honorable people just because they haven't money or education or because they live in the country or in certain districts of the town? You very seldom see men do that. A MAN.

[illegible] rule, are more narrow-minded than men, and for the very good reason that they have fewer broadening experiences. Most women live restricted lives. Their interests are mainly shut in their homes and their communities. They only know a small circle of people and they come to judge all the world by their own little standards.

But men have wider contacts than women. They see a bigger world and they find so much bad in the worst of us that they are in the first of us that they are more inclined to be friends to all of us than women are.

SKEWERED OYSTERS or scallops with bacon will bring ohs and ahs of delight over the buffet table.

Pep Up Your Fish Dishes With Variety from Cookbook

There are so many unusual ways to prepare fish that every homemaker should experiment from time to time just to keep from letting monotony creep into her menus. If you want to take the guesswork out of your experiments, the way is to purchase the Culinary Arts Institute series of twenty-four Cookbooks currently being released a book a week to readers of The Examiner. So far eight exciting cookbooks have appeared—Snacks, Leftovers, Cakes, Poultry, Pies, Soups, Salads and Meat. Now the ninth book, "250 Different Fish and Seafood Recipes," is available.

Each of these books is full of how-to-do-it illustrations and recipes. They abound in unusual ideas, but are just as reliable for the good old standbys. Here, for instance, is a recipe taken from the Fish Book which is unusual, tasty, and most important—easy to prepare:

Scallops En Brochette

1 pound Scallops
3 tablespoons Butter
6 to 8 slices Bacon
Salt, Pepper

Cook scallops in butter for 5 minutes. Cut bacon into 2-inch pieces. Arrange bacon and scallops alternately on skewers and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Stand skewers upright by inserting through mesh of cake cooler placed over a pan, or insert skewers into large uncooked potato. Bake in hot oven (475 degrees F.) is crisp and scallops are browned. Pineapple wedges may be alternated with the scallops for a Hawaiian touch. Serves 4 or 5.

To get your copy of the Fish Book all you need do is clip a coupon from page 2 of any issue of this newspaper and present the coupon with 25c at The Examiner Office, or to your Examiner carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets. Or send 30c (5c additional for postage and handling) and the coupon to Cookbook Department. As the coupons appear in every issue of this newspaper, it is easy to catch up on the earlier releases.

Cancer Cases Fewer In Single Women

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14 (AP) Cancer among single women is comparatively infrequent and the rate of the disease increases among married women and climbs even higher among those having children.

Doctors from all parts of the world were told that Wednesday by Dr. Catharine MacFarlane, Philadelphia's internationally - known authority on cancer, at a session of the Medical Women's International Association.

While life expectancy in this generation has been increased in Philadelphia to 67 years, Dr. MacFarlane said, "the death rate from cancer is higher."

She pleaded for early detection of the disease and urged every doctor to make his office a detection centre.

Vitamin A Vegetables Yellow and Green Specially

By MARY MOORE

Being a firm believer in preventive medicine, today I extol the virtues and sources of that infection-resister, Vitamin A.

Regardless of your vigilance, your child is going to be exposed to colds with the beginning of the school year.

You can fortify him against attack of this infection by a sound nutrition program.

Of course, he may catch a cold, but his ability to take it lightly can be influenced by your diet routine.

Vitamin A is found plentifully in the yellow and green vegetables. I will outline these vegetables in order of their Vitamin A value.

But I have first to "butt you a but."

Vitamin A can be reduced or lost by careless cooking—as can many other vitamins,—also valuable minerals.

You will notice that nutritionists stress the use of vegetables baked in their skins. Notice how often they admonish you to bake potatoes, sweet and white; to bake squashes in the shell; to pan roast or steam carrots and turnips.

Take note also of the number of times you are advised to serve raw carrot and turnip strips. This is not for their flavor and novelty so much as for the fact that served raw you receive their optimum nutritional factors.

The Vitamin A Vegetables in Order of Importance

Parsley, dandelion greens, carrots, endive, turnip greens, spinach, sweet potatoes, kale, chives, turnips, squash, pumpkin, asparagus, corn, lentils, peas, butter and green beans.

Squash and Tomatoes Au Gratin

Use young squashes that are long for this: zucchini, gooseneck or small acorn. They should be so young the skin may be left on. Slice about one pound in ½-inch slices, leaving skin on and seeds in if they are not more that ½-inch long. Melt 4 tablespoons butter, add 1 small grated onion and if desired, add small chopped green pepper; then add the sliced squash and saute for about 5 minutes, turning often. Have ready an equal quantity of underripe tomatoes. Layer these in a buttered casserole and top with grated old cheese. Bake 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. In winter this may be done with sliced Hubbard squash sauteed until nearly tender, and canned tomatoes. Good too.

Carrots, Crumbed and Baked

Select uniform small carrots, wash but do not scrape—even if slightly discolored—for this purpose. Steam over small amount of water until just crisply tender when tested with sharp fork. Drain, brush with corn syrup or honey. Roll in corn flakes which have been crushed with rolling pin. Place on buttered flat baking dish, and dot with a little butter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until crust is golden. These can be given a professional chef's touch, by inserting a small sprig of parsley in the top, and arranging the carrots attractively around a roast or ring mould of vegetables or meat loaf. First make a small opening in top of carrot with metal skewer, then insert stem of sprig of parsley.

French Fried Onion Rings

This treatment, and baking onions in roast pan, retains their vitamin value. Combine in bowl 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 egg and 1 cup milk. Beat until smooth. Dip ½-inch wide rings separated from slices of mild onion in this batter, and fray a few at a time in deep hot fat. Keep hot and crisp on cake rack in oven of 275 deg. Fahr. until all are done. Serve at once with steak. What am I talking about? I mean hamburg cakes.

6—In Memoriams

McGILL—In memory of a loving wife and mother, who passed away September 15, 1942.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days,
When we were all together.
—Sadly missed by husband, Herman McGill and family.

MOORE—In loving memory of Ethelbert Moore, who passed away four years ago, September 15, 1946.
I have only your memory, dear father,
To remember my whole life through,
But the sweetness will linger forever,
As I treasure the image of you.
—Sadly missed by his daughter Irene and son-in-law, Russ.

SANDERSON—In loving memory of my dear father, Willie Sanderson, who passed away two years ago, Sept. 15, 1948.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Ever remembered by daughter Florence, son-in-law Rollie and family.

SANDERSON—In loving memory of W. Sanderson, who passed away Sept. 15, 1948.
Your loving memory we'll always keep,
—Son Ronald and Rebecca.

WARD—In loving memory of our loving daughter, Effie, who died September 15th, 1947.
Deep in the heart is a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Sister and Brother.

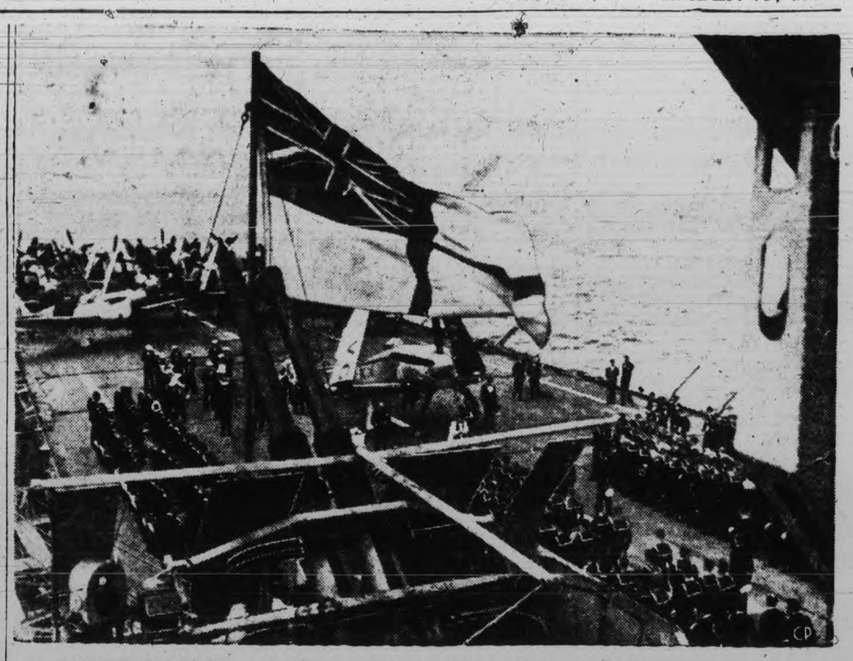
Theologian Says More Interest NeededInChurch

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP)—A United States theologian warned Thursday night that people of the western world will become "abstract, ghostly, bloodless phantoms" unless laymen show greater interest in the affairs of their church.

Dr. John A. Mackay, principal of Princeton Theological Seminary and president of the International Missionary Council, said it is not enough to belong to the church of Jesus Christ in general.

He told delegates to the 14th biennial meeting of the general council of the United Church of Canada that laymen must have a special interest in a specific church, just as they have an interest in their own province and community.



Earlier, the council decided to hold its 1952 meeting in central Canada rather than in the Maritimes as previously planned. The treasurer's report had indicated that a Maritime meeting would cost an additional $20,000.

Defer Action

The council deferred action on a proposal for a regular review of minister-congregational relations when some delegates protested that such a review would make a minister's position more difficult. The Rev. E. M. Atkin said the proposal would make the minister "merely a hired man and prevent him from giving leadership."

Dr. E. M. Howse of Toronto said the review would promote "congregational rows." There was not a minister but some one member of his congregation would be glad to see him out.

The proposal, which called for a review of a minister's stewardship seven years after his appointment and every third year thereafter was referred to the council's legal committee to determine whether the council has the power to set up such a system.

CHURCH PARADE — A 40 mm. anti-aircraft gun platform gives the Royal Canadian Navy camera a bird's eye-view of church parade aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent — being conducted by Chaplain Gower A. Stone of Toronto, Protestant padre. Roman Catholic services were conducted on another section of the flight deck by Chaplain of the Fleet Michael P. MacIsaac of Saint John, NB, and Ottawa. The Magnificent is on anti-submarine exercises off Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

McCann Warns Greater Curb On Luxuries

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP) — Revenue Minister McCann said Thursday in the Commons that increased defence expenditures will mean that "we are going to have to accept a degree of austerity we haven't had for a long, long time."

He made the statement as the Commons, driving toward adjournment either today or tomorrow, adopted resolutions to bills giving legal effect to the tax changes announced in the special, emergency session budget. The bills were introduced and given first reading.

Mr. McCann said that in drafting the budget the government had to look over the field to see where it could get the extra revenue to help finance increased defence expenditures.

The government had decided to increase the tax on corporations and to increase the excise tax on certain goods.

There was not one item in the list of articles to which the excise tax applied that was absolutely essential to anyone. People could get along with substitutes on which there was no tax.

He said the tax had been increased on such things as electric blankets. People could get along with woollen blankets.

Have No Choice

"What about electric toasters?" asked Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton).

Dr. McCann said he had lived long enough to know how toast was made before electric toasters were invented.

"Do you want Canadians to go back to those days, to those things?" asked Mr. Fleming.

Dr. McCann said he did not but Canadians would have to go back to a lot of things "before this thing is over."

Members gave first reading to a bill limiting their special $25-a-day allowance to the time spent in Ottawa. Under existing legislation the allowance would continue throughout any adjournment.

In debate on the budget provisions, several members protested the increase in taxes on soft drinks, chocolate bars, candy and chewing gum.

Give Plante Police Guard

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(CP).—Former Assistant Police Director Pacifique Plante has been provided with a police bodyguard for the duration of Montreal's current vice probe, it was announced today.

The guard, of three shifts of two armed detectives, was ordered late Thursday by Police Director Albert Langlois—one of the men named in Plante's charges of alleged co-operation between police, city councillors and members of the Montreal underworld.

Police would not say whether Plante has been threatened since he launched the inquiry in court here this week. One spokesman said protection was granted at Plante's request.

In the inquiry, Plante is acting for 50 petitioners and Jean Drapeau of Montreal. The case, which began Monday, is expected to last for several months.

Three U.S. Prisoners Tossed Into Fire

WITH U.S. 2ND DIVISION, Korea, Sept. 15 (AP)—At least three American soldiers were thrown into a roaring fire by their North Korean captors on the western front recently.

The gruesome tale of this latest in a series of Red atrocities against American prisoners came to light during a U.S. 2nd Division investigation today.

The Americans were captured when the Reds overran an advance command post the night of Aug. 31. The American position fell during the first communist drive that rocked United Nations defenders back on their heels.

A number of witnesses told the army inquiry board they saw their fellow soldiers, some of them wounded, thrown into a roaring fire which apparently had been built for that purpose.

Sabotage Charges

BERLIN, Sept. 15 (Reuters)—Charges of sabotage and spying face Illy Kreikemeyer, former head of East Germany's railways, it was reported Thursday. Kreikemeyer was expelled from the East German Communist party Sept. 1 and removed from his post as chief of the Soviet zone railways administration.

Young People Attend Presbytery Field Day

SPRINGVILLE, Sept. 15 (ENS)—Several members of the Young People's Union of Springville are going to attend the Presbytery Field Day Saturday in the Peterborough Exhibition grounds, it was decided at a meeting of the union this week.

Raymond Kelk is attending the Presbytery Executive meeting this week.

The first meeting of the autumn was held at the home of president Hazel McIntosh.

Dianne Cullen, citizenship convener, was in charge of the program. Several members told of Christian work being done in each of Canada's 10 provinces.

Reject Report

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 15 (CP)—Members of Local 636 UAW-CIO at the James Stewart Manufacturing Co. here, have rejected a conciliation report and authorized their committee to call a strike vote if original demands are not met by the company. Workers want a union shop, three weeks holiday with pay for employees with 20 years service, a 45-hour-week with no change in take-home pay.

Solve Mysteries Of Pole Area

—Eight men, working 9,000 feet above the Arctic desert of Greenland for the last three years have unravelled some of the "mysteries" of the North Pole, it was learned here today.

Gerard Taylor and Dr. L. M. Charles, Montrealers attached to the French-sponsored mission as physcist and physician respectively, arrived here this week and promised that "sensational developments" will be revealed soon.

They said a detailed report will be made public in Paris this winter by Paul Emile Victor, famous scientist and explorer, who headed the mission, as soon as final data is tabulated.

Included in the report will be details on Atlantic sea and air travel, radio transmision and ice formation in polar regions.

Woman Goes To Jail For Helping Tourists

OAKVILLE, Sept. 15 (CP). — Mrs. Marie Hamilton explained in court Thursday why she rented three bedrooms one night recently to a family of tourists:

"They couldn't get in anywhere else with their four children."

She was fined $6 for breaking a bylaw which says houses in the area in which she lives must not be used for overnight tourist accommodation.

Mrs. Hamilton refused to pay and took three days in jail instead.

She had a pillow and a battery radio as she was led to the cells.

U.S. Brigadier Denies Six Weeks Warning

PORT MACARTHUR, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP)—To a United Nations commission's report that there was six weeks advance warning of attack in Korea, Brig.-Gen. W. L. Roberts retorts: "Hindsight observation."

Gen. Roberts, who was chief of the United States Korean military advisory group, Thursday night denied he was informed of large North Korean troop concentrations as early as May 12, as implied in a 111-page report of the U.N.'s Korean commission.

Gen. Roberts said if he received such information at that time... It is doubtful that much more could have been done to counter it," he added.

Not On Program

LEE-ON-SOLENT, England, Sept. 15 (AP)—A British single-seater naval fighter crashed Thursday while going through its paces before cadets from the Argentine training cruiser, La Argentine. The pilot was killed. The plane crashed with such force that parts of it hit two houses. None of the inhabitants was hurt.

Typhoon Dead

TOKYO, Sept. 15—(AP)—National police reported today that number of dead in Tuesday's typhoon in Southern Japan, had reached 16, with 22 injured. Considerable property damage was reported. The typhoon passed through the Straits of Korea and was headed toward Northern Honshu and South Hokkaido islands.

Watch Overselling

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP)—Overselling of products was criticized Thursday by J. Lance Rumble, general manager of General Motors truck division, in a luncheon address at the Western Fair. Speaking to 100 Western Ontario manufacturers, he said salesmen should be directed to "make the customer feel comfortable about the product. Then no selling is needed."

1,852,000 Families Getting Baby Bonus

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 — CP)—Nearly 615,000 more Canadian families receive family allowances now than when they were initiated in 1945, the annual report of the family allowance division of the Health Department reported Thursday.

In all, said the report tabled in the Commons, 1,852,000 families now receive the allowances on behalf of 4,202,000 children. Total anual payments were nearly $300,000,000.

And, said the report, "It is significant to note the extremely small number of cases in which it is necessary to enter prosecution for fraud." These ran to 46 in the last fiscal year.

The report said the increase in recipients stems from the absorption of Newfoundland, the high postwar birthrate, immigration and reduction in the waiting period for new Canadians from three years to one before their children became eligible for the allowances.

Ex-Chaplain Killed

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo., Sept. 15 (AP)—Dr. William Barrow Pugh of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, was killed Thursday in a truck-automobile collision. Pugh, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor for his work as United States army chaplain in the Second World War, was a passenger in a car which collided with a truck.

1,000 Priests Jailed

TIRSCHENREUTH, Germany, Sept. 15 (Reuters)—About 1,000 Roman Catholic priests are held in "concentration monasteries in Czechoslovakia," two Czech priests said Thursday. They declared several hundred priests and nuns, arrested in Czechoslovakia during the last few months, have been sent eastwards to an unknown destination.

"Runaway" Elevator

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP) —A woman operator was trapped in a "runaway" elevator which dropped five floors to the basement of a downtown office building Thursday. Gladys Cole, 42, suffered severe shock but apparently no serious injury. Cause of the 70-foot plunge was not immediately known.

COMMAND PERFORMANCE — Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, was so impressed by the Ottawa performance of British comedian George Formby that he dropped backstage for a chat. Both seemed to enjoy it.

U.K. Positive She Can Pay Her Own Way

Defence Spending Not Expected To Upset Economy

LONDON, Sept. 16—(Reuters)—Paying her own way at last, Britain doesn't expect her new defence commitments to spoil her recovery. Financial experts said today that her three-year £3,070,000,000 ($9,520,000,000) rearmament program should be possible within her expanding economy—with some help from the United States.

There was high expectation that increasing British industrial production would more than compensate for the greater part of the national income to be devoted to armaments.

The new spending on defence will take 10 per cent of the national income, instead of seven per cent.

But while three per cent extra is being taken out of production for arms, British industry should still maintain its annual five-per-cent increase in annual production, these sources said.

Not Much Worried

Government economists, therefore, show little concern about the plan's effect on the British economy.

No special financial arrangements have been announced, nor has an autumn budget. The immediate effects of the defence program on exports and civilian supplies are thought likely to be minor and delayed.

Prime Minister Attlee opened this week's defence debate in parliament by saying: "We have been working at full stretch and with good effect." Britain was paying her way for the first time since some years before the second world war. Along with her sterling-area partners she was in approximate dollar balance, and was making some increase in dollar reserves.

Allowing for a possible U.S. contribution of about $1,680,000,000 during the three-year span the extra British spending was not expected to make any substantial difference to internal budgeting.

This year the extra expenditure on forces pay was being absorbed within the existing budget.

July exports were a record 21 per cent above the monthly average for peak fourth quarter of 1948. The overall external payments gap was closed in July.

COMMANDOS IN ACTION — Within 24 hours after the British government announced that Royal Marine Commandos would be sent to Korea, the unit was ready to go. Fit and trained they make a formidable force. British troops are taking part in a 70-mile offensive along the Taegu front which is part of the invasion pincers.

Union Leaders Ask Red Ban

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Reuters). —One of Britain's most powerful trade union leaders today asked the government to ban the Communist party.

The call came from Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the 1,300,000-strong Transport and General Workers' Union.

Deacon's body encompasses the drivers of London's buses, half of which were off the streets today in an unofficial strike.

Labor Minister George Isaacs described it Friday as Communist led and part of a huge plot to disrupt the nation's industries.

About 16,500 drivers and conductors were on strike, with 3,000 vehicles idle But at 24 of the city's 52 bus depots the men voted to stay on the job.

Three More Rustlers Arrested In Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 16—(CP)—Police said they are holding three more Montreal district "cattle rustlers" today after a series of arrests Friday.

The unidentified trio was arrested near Farnham, Que., 50 miles southeast of here, while they were bringing allegedly stolen cattle to market in Montreal.

Police said the men used a light van to rustle the cattle from farms in several eastern townships counties.

Earlier this month police arrested two other men for cattle theft in the Laurentian district north of here.

Labor Congress Strikes Further Blows At Reds

MONTREAL, Sept. 16—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today entered the final day of its annual convention after a week devoted largely to thrashing the Red fringe of its 500,000 members.

When it winds up its session later today, the convention will have gone down in Canadian labor history as one of the roughest on Communists since they first began getting a toehold on Canadian unions.

The approximately 700 delegates administered the final blow Friday by issuing directions to all its affiliates to rid themselves of Communistic officers under penalty of having themselves dropped from the Congress itself.

A second decision of the T.L.C. put an outright ban on Communists or sympathizers as delegates to future conventions.

Must Prove Innocence

And the Communists were warned that, where there was any suspicion of their following the party line, it would be up to themselves to prove their innocence. They will be considered guilty until they demonstrate otherwise.

"We're going to give them the same treatment as we'd get in Russia," the convention was told by Marcel Franck, chairman of the constitution committee that proposed the new policy.

"We're liquidating them," he told cheering delegates who voted in the toughened program by a majority of around 600 to 10.

The small minority of T.L.C. Left-Wingers, which had made spasmodic fights against other anti-Red policies earlier in the week, gave up completely on these moves and let them go through without a protest.

Philippine Volcano Claims 84 Lives

MANILA, Sept. 16 (CP). — Mighty Hibok Hibok volcano today sent villagers scurrying for cover from red-hot ashes after killing an estimated 84 persons in its latest eruption.

The southern Philippines volcano injured 35 others.

Residents of three nearby villages were evacuated to other parts of Camigiun Island as the big volcano continued to erupt.

The estimate of 84 dead came from the Manila Bulletin's correspondent on the scene. The Red Cross estimated 60 to 70 dead.

Three small naval craft were standing by to take off villagers if necessary.

Propose US-German Troops In Unified Defence Force

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—An historic American proposal to include United States and German troops in a unified battle force for the defence of western Europe today confronted the North Atlantic Council. The plan demanded one of the gravest decisions from the Atlantic Alliance since it came into being.

The plan was outlined to the Council late Friday by Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, who presented it as a one-package deal.

He told the representatives of the other 11 Atlantic powers that the United States is ready to take the revolutionary step in its own foreign policy and assign troops to a European force, provided the other nations take other steps necessary to assure an adequate defence.

Among these other steps, Acheson explained, the United States considers it essential to include provision for the formation and arming German units with, however, the limitation that they should not constitute a German national army and should be entirely subject to the control of the proposed allied command.

Hope For Quick Acceptance

Today is the second and, according to schedule, the last day of the 12-nation council's session here. American diplomats were hopeful that the proposals which Acheson laid down would win acceptance by tonight.

Friday 15 closed-door meetings were authoritatively described as having produced no evidence of basic disagreement, although since Acheson was the last of the ministers to speak, their reaction to his presentation could not be judged fully.

Here are the salient points of the American plan, reported by fully-informed diplomatic sources:

1. Creation of a central, integrated western European defence force under the command staff headed by a supreme commander.

2. Assignment to this force of national contingents of all the different Atlantic treaty nations, specifically including a substantially reinforced American army in Europe.

3. Employment of all the available manpower which can be mustered, including troops from western Germany.

Suggests Priorities

4. Reorganization of the Atlantic treaty machinery to provide for supervision of production of arms and equipment, according to a system of priorities.

5. Establishment of financial co-operation machinery, with the United States prepared to help step up the arms output of any country which already is making

Police Raid House, Seize $100,000 Sweep Tickets

OTTAWA, Sept. 16. (CP)—Police Friday night raided a home in the nearby Dow's Lake district and seized more than $100,000 in sweepstake tickets.

The tickets were supposedly issued by army, navy, air force veterans sweepstakes on a race to be run Nov. 18.

Arrested in connection with charges of conducting a lottery were, Christopher D. Miller, 57, and Christine Donaldson, 36. Both will appear in magistrate's court today.

Police said the tickets seized during the raid were probably counterfeits, and indicated that other arrests would likely follow further investigation.

Also seized by police during the raid was a mailing list of several thousand names, containing information regarding residents from almost every city in Canada.

Included in the truck load of tickets and stationery carted away by police were 10,000 mailing pieces containing a reproduction from an Ottawa newspaper story, with the heading "Canadians Get $272,500 From Irish Sweepstakes."

Royal Wedding At Glamis Castle

GLAMIS, Scotland, Sept. 16 — (Reuters)—Royal Glamis Castle 1,000-year-old ancestral home of [illegible] pressive background for a wedding which linked Britain's royal family with that of Denmark.

Denmark's Prince Georg and Scottish Viscountess Anson, 32-year-old niece of the Queen, were married in the castle today after days of last-minute confusion.

Friday night the wedding plans were in a "complete muddle" and Viscountess Anson had "no idea" what form the ceremony would take.

Today the Queen arrived with Princess Margaret at the castle 10 minutes before the end of the service but did not see the ceremony.

The marriage was conducted in Danish and English, the actual ceremony being performed by Rev. Mogens Buch, pastor from a Danish seamen's mission in England.

He was assisted by Canon H. C. Rorison, Scottish Episcopal clergyman. Mr. Rorison was not allowed by his bishop to be the principle officating clergyman because the Viscountess had divorced her former husband.

Cutting Aid To Greece Doesn't Help Herself

ATHENS, Sept. 16 (AP).—The United States notified the Greek government today it will cut Marshall-plan aid because of dissatisfaction with Greek efforts to help themselves.

The American decision was made known at a conference between Paul Porter, chief of the economic co-operative administration, and leading agency officials with Premier Sophocles Venizelos and his coalition government leaders.

A spokesman for Porter said the Americans felt that Greece had not "done as much as it could to help itself, and therefore there was going to be a reduction in the amount of aid."

Greece originally was allocated $220,000,000 in Marshall-plan funds for the current fiscal year. Amount of the cut was not disclosed.

Finally Rescued

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16. (AP) — Herman Knopfel, 21, pinned beneath his overturned car for two hours after he lost control of it on a lonely road today, attracted rescuers by building a signal fire. Knopfel used matches from his pocket and upholstery from a seat in the wrecked car to build the fire. A passing motorist notified firemen who freed Knopfel.

May Restore College

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —Plans are under way to restore Wilberforce Institute here as an all-Negro college at a cost of $50,000. Final decision on the project will be made by the general conference of the British Methodist Church. Considerable repair work would be needed on the building, put up in 1857.

Slugs Boy 10 Convict Makes Escape

Put Up Road Blocks Around Kingston In Hunt For Prisoner

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 16 —(CP)—Provincial Police and penitentiary guards manned road blocks along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River today in a hunt for 45-year-old Boynton St. John who broke out of Portsmouth Penitentiary Friday night.

He slugged Jimmy Biggs, 10-year-old grandson of Chief Keeper A. J. Atkins, while working as a trusty in the basement of the prison warden's house. Then he walked into Mr. Atkins house, phoned for a cab and escaped with a stolen coat, hat, and possibly a loaded revolver.

St. John left behind an unconscious lad, Jimmy Biggs, whom he slugged over the head with a sharp instrument, causing a compound fracture of the skull. The escaped convict is considered dangerous. He was serving two years and three years consecutively for theft and uttering.

The Biggs lad returned from school this afternoon and went down to the basement of the stone house, one block east of the prison. St. John had been working in the grounds. He was hiding in the basement when the boy entered. He called the lad's name and when the boy answered, St. John struck him over the head. Then he stole the weapon and a coat and felt hat belonging to the chief keeper, A. J. Atkins, and escaped by taxi to Gananoque.

When the lad recovered consciousness, his head was in a pool of blood. He managed to reach the street, leaving behind a trail of blood, and was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he was operated on by Dr. D. W. Boucher. The brain was not injured.

Using the phone in the chief keeper's house, St. John called the Modern Taxi in Kingston, asked the fare to Gananoque, and was told it would cost $6. Driver Ray Babcock picked him up and drove him to the junction of No. 2 Highway and the scenic highway connecting with the International Bridge.

Babcock told investigators he had no suspicion there was anything wrong. St. John was wearing a top coat and a felt hat, and the driver noticed nothing amiss. It is not known whether St. John had managed to obtain any money although it is reasonable to assume he paid Babcock, as the latter did not report the matter to his office.

Must Organize Own Civil Defence

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP). — Ontario municipalities must set up their own civil defence organizations to combat the effects of atomic or other attacks, Arthur Welsh, provincial secretary and civil defence chief, announced on Friday.

Civil defence organizations will be built around a nucleus of civic officials and volunteer organizations and, where needed, provincial and federal agencies, said Mr. Welsh.

Some municipalities would be ordered to create such organizations, while other communities not required to do so might wish to take such action. Each municipal authority will be responsible for evaluating the consequences of attack or disaster and for establishing a public warning system, care and evacuation of injured.

Mr. Welsh said a civil defence school would be established at either Camp Borden, or Meaford to train leaders and future instructors of civil defence workers. Such training was needed.

Special courses for specialists in defence measures against atomic and chemical warfare will begin at the army's Camp Borden site in September.

Abbott Has Surplus

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP)—A budgetary surplus of $292,700,000 was reported Friday by Finance Minister Abbott from governmental operations in the five months ended Aug. 31. This compared with a surplus of $294,600,000 at the same point in the preceding fiscal year and with Mr. Abbott's estimate in his budget last March that the surplus for the whole of 1951-52 would total $20,000,000.

Injuries Force Reardon To Quit Hockey

MONTRTAL, Sept. 15 (CP).—Kenny Reardon, rugged defenceman and spark-plug these last few years of Montreal Canadiens, has retired from professional hockey.

Frank Selke, managing director of the National Hockey League Canadiens, made this known today in a story written for a Montreal paper today.

"Reardon's decision is final and irrevocable," Selke wrote.

"In the Stanley Cup series of 1946-47 Kenny aggravated a back injury which had plagued him from boyhood and three specialists advised him at that time he should have an operation and retire from hockey."

Selke told how Reardon was loath to quit, and to get himself into condition the Winnipeg-born ace went into the Labrador bush during the next summer and came back to continue his starry role with Canadiens.

Shoulder Still Bad

In the playoffs with Rangers last spring Kenny dislocated his shoulder, and, said Selke, this injury has not responded to treatment.

"Reardon is convinced that he should withdraw from active play while he is still in one piece," wrote Selke.

The Canadiens' chief said he would ask the next Canadiens' directors meeting that Reardon be retained as a goodwill ambassador.

Reardon was born in April 1921 and turned professional with Canadiens in the 1940-41 season. Canadiens have been his only pro team.

Tiny Car, Truck Meet Head-On

HAMILTON, Sept. 16 (CP)—In a pre-dawn accident on a condemned highway curve one person was killed and two others critically injured today in a head-on collision between a tiny British automobile and a 10-ton tractor-trailer.

Dead is Carmen J. Peace, 28, of Hamilton.

In poor condition in hospital where they underwent an emergency operation are Hilary Tozer, 19, and Glenn Coombes, 22, both of Hamilton.

The accident occurred on the mausoleum curve on the Toronto-Hamilton highway. A new section of highway replacing this dangerous curve is under construction and is expected to be completed soon.

The force of the impact left the small car twisted, torn, flattened and lying on one side. Provincial police and bystanders worked feverishly with crowbars to rip the top off and release the injured passengers.

Biggest Liner Built In US Changed Over to Troop Ship

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. (AP) —The US Government announced Friday the 48,000-ton super passenger liner it is helping to build will be finished as a troop transport.

Three 13,000-ton combination passenger-cargo ships also under construction will be converted into troop ships along with the big liner, the Federal Maritime Board and Maritime Administration announced.

The changeover is being made at the request of the defence department on recommendation of the joint chiefs of staff, the maritime agencies said.

Vice Admiral Edward L. Cochrane, chairman of the board and chief of the maritime administration, said these four vessels were selected for conversion into troopships because the work could be done on them with the greatest economy by initiating it early.

The 48,000-toner now scheduled for conversion will carry upwards of 12,000 troops while the three smaller ships will carry 2,500 to 3,000 troops each.

The superliner, under construction at Newport News, Va., was to have been the largest and most luxurious vessel ever built in the US.

Capture Kimpo Airfield As Taegu Offensive Helps To Close UN Pincers

Report 40,000 Men Backing Up Marines; Six Destroyers Trick Red Defenders In Invasion Landing

TOKYO, Sept. 16—(AP)—Tank-led United States Marines today captured Kimpo airfield, 12 miles northeast of the new Inchon beachhead and 15 miles northwest of Seoul—the Communist-held former Korean Republic capital. This swift drive inland from the beachhead established Friday was made as a big Allied offensive kicked off all along the 120-mile perimeter on the old beachhead in southeast Korea. It was Gen. Douglas MacArthur's grand-scale gamble to end the war soon.

(Reuters News Agency reported that U.N. troops pushed a spearhead into the outskirts of Seoul. The Agency attributed the report to the South Korean general staff.)

A U.S. air force spokesman said the Marines seized the Kimpo airfield against relatively light resistance. He said the field was secure and soon may be in operation.

Secure Beachhead

The leathernecks swiftly secured their beachhead after 262 Allied ships arrived off the Yellow Sea port with some 40,000 troops. At daybreak Saturday they began fanning out toward the Red-held capital of Seoul, 22 miles eastward.

Troops and equipment poured ashore. Inchon's port installations were put into operation quickly, despite the thunderous naval and air bombardment preceding the landings.

Meanwhile, on the old Allied beachhead, the Eighth Army's big push had gained from one to three miles on a 70-mile front — from the Taegu sector to the South Korea coast.

(The Reuters report said front-line dispatches placed UN troops little more than a mile from the centre of Seoul.

(The report said front-line dispatches placed U.N. troops just over a mile from the city centre.

(The report also said Kimpo, an airfield and town 10 miles from Seoul, had been taken, and that U.N. fighter planes were operating from there.

Behind the advance Marine units were some 40,000 men. Offshore was the liberation fleet of 262 ships—including vessels of many nations.

Second Sabotage Case In Navy In Two Days

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Reuters) —Another case of suspected sabotage in the British Aircraft Carrier Vengeance—the second within two days—was reported Friday night. A main valve had been left open in such a way that the engine-room would have been damaged if it had not been found before the propelling machinery was brought up to full power.

Offer Better Price

DUBLIN, Sept. 16. (Reuters)—Irish butter which was to have gone to Britain has been sold to Western Germany, which offered a better price, it was announced Friday. The republic of Ireland has sold 2,900 tons of butter to Western Germany which is negotiating for another 500 tons.

35 Men Missing After Blast Sinks Naval Ship

ST. MALO, France, Sept. 16—(AP)—Thirty-five officers and men of the French navy were reported missing after an explosion sank a frigate off the Atlantic coast today.

The ship, a meteorological craft, went down in the Bay of Frennale, about 80 miles south of Cherbourg.

Naval rescue vessels and tugs from all along the French coast rushed to the scene.

A Merchant Marine Ministry informant said about 40 of 75 crew members were believed rescued.

Plan Investigation

The frigate was identified as La Place, the former 1,400-ton U.S. frigate Roanoke.

La Place, adapted for weather observation, was en route from Brest to take part in ceremonies at the opening of a new lock in St. Malo, when the mysterious blast occurred.

Andre Monteil, marine secretary of state, hurried to the scene to take charge of an investigation into the explosion.

Two Die; 5 Hurt In Car Crash

PEMBROKE, Sept. 16 (CP).—Two persons were killed and five others injured, two of them critically, in a highway accident east of here Friday.

Dead are: Mrs. R. A. Elliott, 58, of Copper Cliff, and Lawrence Lacroix, 2, of Pembroke, who died in hospital shortly after the accident.

R. A. Elliott, 61, husband of the dead woman, is in hospital with multiple injuries and his condition is described as "very serious." In similar condition is Elmer Kidd, 15, of Pembroke, with two broken legs, concussion and severe shock.

Also in hospital are Mervin Condie, 22, of Pembroke, suffering shock, concussion, lacerations, fractured ribs and a possible fractured leg. Miss Doreen Sheer and Mrs. Renaud Lacroix, also of Pembroke, are in hospital, but their condition is not described as serious.

It was reported the car driven by Condie crashed into a car driven by Mr. Elliott.

Adventure Quay Located In Heart Of Paris

By ERNEST SANDFORD

PARIS —(Reuters)— Thousands of people daily may glance down at the half-dozen ships tied up in a stretch of the River Seine without suspecting the stories behind them and their skippers.

The ships, flying the flags of many nations in the heart of Paris range from scow-like houseboats to knife-prowed yachts. The captains of these vessels are equally varied.

One of the latest adventurers to cast off from this "quay of adventure" was 28-year-old Marcel Bardiaux, who set out in his tiny sloop, Four Winds, to sail single-handed around the world.

Well Known

An incoming craft was the bulbous Dutch barge, De Brave Hendrix, belonging to Jack Bilbo. This black-beared giant is already well-known in many lands for his "adventures" in art and literature.

He is the sculptor of the largest nude statue in the world, painter of a thousand incomprehensible canvases and author of "I Carried a Gun for Al Capone."

Son of a German circus-owner, he had been drifting around the Mediterranean with no other object than to "sail on and on while the boat stands it."

Sails Alone

A French adventurer who moors frequently at the quay is Jean Saint-Maur, a former naval man who sails alone in an old submarine chaser rechristened Tao.

When ashore, he paints murals, organizes art exhibitions and prepares the decor and costumes for ballets. He says that his curious, combined profession of painter and sailor once saved his life.

Captured by the Japanese during the war, he was already facing a firing squad when the officer in command asked his profession. When he replied "artist," he was reprieved and allowed to study Japanese lacquer painting.

But of all the craft that come and go at the quay of adventure, none is stranger than that of Miss Isabel Perrin, an American girl who has made Paris her home.

Her craft is simply a small wooden hut floating on empty oil cans, and edged with window boxes filled with flowers. A ladder links it to the shore and there is a dog kennel on the roof. Miss Perrin's favorite pastime is to sit at the wide windows of her floating home and watch other adventurers sail by.

A STURDY OAK TREE did this to the car of James E. Skelhorn, 29, Toronto. The accident took place in Harvey township Friday night when Mr. Skelhorn's car hit a soft spot on the township road and careened straight into the oak tree causing $300 damage. He is now in Lindsay hospital with a broken right thigh and left wrist.

Rock In Quebec Divides Haves From Have-Nots

By JACK SCOTT

QUEBEC CITY—In most towns the dividing line between the haves and have-nots is a street or a row of factories or, traditionally, the railway tracks.

In Quebec it is a cliff of rock. The top of the cliff, dominated by the heavy tourtourelles of the Chateau Frontenac, is Upper Town. Here live the haves. The bottom of the cliff, on a shelf between the rock and the St. Lawrence, is Lower Town. Here live the have-nots. No other town has such a neat geographic cleavage between suburb and slum.

In Lower Town is the industrial parish of St. Sauveur which, at one point, may be reached from above by a curving roadway. Today I went down that hill in a shiny new Pontiac with Roger Lemelin, a somewhat sensational case of a man who bridged the two.

As we rumbled down the cobblestones, looking out over the crowded rooftops and chimney pots of the lower city, Lemelin said, mournfully, "The hill is gentle, but the people cannot climb it."

Lemelin is 30, looks like a matinee idol, talks like Charles Boyer has a city apartment and a country home, a wife and four children (whom he refers to as Pierre "le magnifique," Jacques "le fantastique" and the three-months'-old twins, Dianna and Andre, "the unexpected.")

He also has a good chance of being Canada's best novelist with one of his books already acclaimed (by R. K. Sandwell, among others) as near greatness.

Roger was born in St. Sauveur, lived in its genteel poverty most of his life. Unlike his neighbors, among them Albert Guay, who tried too hard, Lemelin climbed the steep hill and all that it represents. Today, when he went back, it was for a visit alone.

As A Prison

Lemelin and I met for lunch and I heard something of his story.

His first novel, "Au Pied de la Pente Douce" (which means "at the foot of the gentle slope") was a highly controversial success in French-Canada, promptly set him up as the enfant terrible of Quebec literature. Published in English as "The Town Below" it excited interest here and in the United States. His second novel, "Les Plouffes," will be out soon in English.

Both are stories of Lower Town and so I suggested we pay a visit to the scene. As we drove in his car through the city, Lemelin, who speaks English with something of an effort, rambled on about his ambitions.

"I think I know where I am going," he said. "I want to write good books. This is my reason of living. Without that you cannot be happy. I don't want to teach or preach. Just to say what I see. For a time I thought we were French living away from France, but when I went to Paris I realized that we are Canadian. I came home to write of my own people because I understand them."

When we had reached the driveway down the hill Roger slowed the car and looked soberly at the cluttered district below us.

"I feel like a prisoner who goes back to visit the prison," he said. "Sometimes I go back to St. Sauveur to play poker with my old friends, but when I return up the hill it is like being free again.

"I ask myself why I have escaped when others do not. It is, I think, pride and ambition. I wanted to break away from here. But the others—they accept their life, they earn $35 a week in the shoe factory or the glue factory. It becomes a state of mind. They have no wish to be free of their parochialism."

He pointed to a clearing on the side of the steep hill. "I remember fights we had there. Our gangs against the guys from above. They called us 'the bums.' We called them 'the English.' Yes, we fought that way, but so few of those friends dreamed of fighting for a place atop the hill. In St. Sauveur they look up at the towers above and see only another world."

With Laughter

As we drove through the narrow streets of the district I com- [illegible] the impossible contrast [illegible] ance of even the oldest houses and the evidence of high spirits and gaiety, rarely, if ever, seen in the poorer districts outside Quebec. It reminded me of Mexico where the gayest songs are heard in the worst squalor.

"It is not really a city district at all," Lemelin said. "The outlook is that of the village. It is a village happiness of people who don't know about the outside world. At night they sit on the sidewalks and play cards. They are the proof that ignorance is bliss. Myself I prefer to be less blissful.

"Ah," he said hastily, "but do not think of these Quebecois as simpletons. They are the extreme in individualists, each dramatizing his life.

"The atom bomb may drop up there on the hill, but here in St. Sauveur the people will be too busy making love or being angry or gossiping or occupying themselves with themselves to notice the bang. They always bewilder the outsider who tries to understand them. Which, of course, makes them interesting to write about."

We made a complete circle of teh district, pausing to lok at the small shop of M. Guay, who is now under the death sentence for blowing up that airplane, and then swung back up the hill again.

"Now," said Roger Lemelin, "we go back to where life is less happy, but full fo challenge. It is surprising how easy the grade appears from a nice new car."

a maximum effort with its own resources.

By far the most controversial of the points is that dealing with limited German rearmament. Acheson said the principle should be accepted now, but that it would be many months before German units could be raised, trained, and brought to the point of readiness to receive combat equipment. Therefore, he argued, the Atlantic Treaty allies whose armament programs already are well advanced have an automatic priority over whatever units may be formed in western Germany.

Judge Rules Farmer Unfit For Trial

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16 (CP).—Alex Gokey, Edmonton district farmer, central figure in the case of the bartered bride, Friday was declared mentally unfit to stand trial and was led weeping from a county court room here.

The 71-year-old man, charged with conspiracy in a bogus marriage of a 15-year-old Edmonton girl, was ordered committed to a mental hospital for an indefinite period.

Allan Ajas, 18-year-old brother of the bride, and Mrs. Jessie Ajas 24, his sister-in-law, pleaded innocent to a charge of conspiring to evade the Marriage Act.

The girl is alleged to have gone through a marriage ceremony with her brother acting as groom under Gokey's name. Gokey, police said, posed as her father, and Mrs. Ajas was a witness at the wedding. The girl has been charged in juvenile court with misconduct.

The story told police was that Gokey had promised to pay the brother $500 for arranging the marriage.

Congress Approves Law To Allow Marshall To Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. (AP)—Congress overrode Republican protests Friday to approve a special law permitting General George Marshall to take over the civilian post of Secretary of Defense.

The Senate agreed to lift the present legal barrier against appointment of a military man to the post—with the explicit understanding that the rule is waved for Marshall alone.

While the measure now goes to the White House, the Senate must still confirm Marshall to succeed Louis A. Johnson, who resigned under pressure on Tuesday.

Most of the scattered criticism in both chambers was impersonal, but the debate produced some sharply critical references to Marshall's past roles as a diplomat, notably his policies toward the Chinese Communists.

Opponents also contended that putting a soldier in the traditionally civilian defense job might set the stage for future military dictatorship. Rep. Herbert Meyer (Rep., Kansas) said it was "the first goose step" in that direction.

Senator William Jenner (D., Ind.) launched a bitter attack on Marshall, calling him "a living lie" and a "stooge" for State Secretary Dean Acheson.

Captured Kimpo

Some 165 miles to the southeast, allied troops mounted an offensive on the central and southern sectors of the 125-mile United Nations beachhead perimeter — seeking a major breakthrough. A booming artillery barrage kicked off the push.

Bold Strategy

Thus, the lengthening arms of a giant nutcracker were being applied to the North Koreans — a bold strategy planned by Gen. Douglas MacArthur July 12. This was less than three weeks after the tank-led Reds charged southward across Parallel 38—and at a time when the North Koreans were pulverizing US troops along the Kum River.

MacArthur said the big pincer movement would cause the Korean Red Army to "disintegrate" sooner or later. MacArthur obviously gambled that Red China or Russia would not fight.

Lt.-Gen. Walton Walker, US Eighth Army Commander, told AP correspondent Jack MacBeth that "it should be over quickly" —if the forces in front of him are all that is left of the Red Korean army.

The success of the Inchon landings was credited in large measure to the daring of six destroyers—and a blunder by the Reds.

AP correspondent Relman Morin reported that the destroyers —units of Task Force 77 — were ordered to cruise slowly by Wolmi Island which guards the entrance to Ichon Harbor, to draw

Open Fire

The Red guns were silent for anxious minutes. Then they made the mistake of opening up on the "sitting ducks." This revealed their positions to the heavy guns of cruisers and carrier planes.

The push on the southern front Saturday was general, from the south coast to Taegu, 70 miles to the north.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the Masan sector—the extreme southern flank of the offensive—that U.S. 25th division units had advanced up to two miles against heavy resistance.

Also in action—on the 25th's right (north) flank—were the U.S. Second Division, the British 27th brigade, the U.S. First Cavalry Division and South Korean units.

They knifed forward on roads leading to Seoul, 165 miles away.

The offensive opened at 6 p.m., EDT, Friday with the second division pushing off from positions east of the Naktong river, southwest of Taegu.

They occupied a commanding hill northwest of Changnyong against fierce resistance.

Kept Pinned Down

Troopers of the first cavalry struck north and northwest of Taegu, by-passing North Koreans dug in on nearby hills. Artillery and planes kept the Reds pinned down while the troopers advanced.

British troops attacked on the first cavalry's left flank while South Korean troops moved forward on the fight. Arrayed in front of the three outfits were an estimated 24,000 Reds—believed the biggest enemy troop concentration along the 125-mile beachhead perimeter.

In all—between the beachhead and the big amphibious landing force in the north—the Communists were believed to have an army of 140,000. The immediate objective of the Inchon landing forces was the recapture of Seoul and the rail and highway supply lines radiating from the former South Korean capital.

"Everything the enemy shoots and all additional replacements he needs have to come through Seoul," MacArthur told AP correspondent Russel Brines.

"We are going to try to seize that distribution area, so that it will be impossible for the North Koreans to get additional men—or more than a trickle of supplies."

Watches Landings

The 70-year-old United Nations commander, wearing his familiar gold-braided campaign cap and faded suntans, watched the landings at Inchon from the flagship of Rear-Adm. James H Doyle, commander of the assault force.

Later, he and his staff boarded a launch and cruised within rifle range of the Reds on the beach.

After the rapid-fire developments at Inchon and the opening of the allied offensive in the southeast, Rear-Adm. Arleigh A Burke told a press conference:

"The Reds are in a helluva bad way and it is about time they realized it. Their best bet is to surrender."

Three army corps were set up for the co-ordinated blows. The 10th army corps, including the U.S. Marines, was the landing force.

On the southeast are the first and ninth corps, including the first cavalry, British and other allies, and the 25th and second divisions.

Overcast skies and rains hampered the offensive during the morning, limiting close support by allied fighters and light bombers But it cleared in the afternoon.

The Far East Air Force said round-the-clock operations of larger bombers continued. B-29s hammered railroad yards in "various battle sectors."

The U.S. eighth army communique earlier reported the occupation of Angang by South Korean troops who had advanced steadily northward from Kyongju, 10 miles to the south.

Other South Koreans had been reported making progress against stiff resistance north of Yongchon, 17 miles northwest of Kyongju and some 15 miles northeast of Taegu.

Raleigh, NC, Sept. 16. (AP)—A New York surgeon has granted 4,000 acres of his land in North Carolina for an assembly and recreation area for negroes. Dr. William Sharpe, a specialist in neurosurgery, presented to the board of directors of the Hammocks Beach corporation the deed for the land.

Says White Men Don't Know Indian Territory

REGINA —(CP) More than 70 years ago, a young Assiniboine Indian boy watched as white men slew great herds of buffalo and left the carcasses rotting on the great plains of North America.

Ochankugahe, the boy, later went to an Indian school at Lebret, Sask., and then to St. Boniface College in Winnipeg. He now carries the name they gave him at Lebret—Dan Kennedy. But he still believes "the white man does not understand my country."

Kennedy is one of the best-known Indians in Saskatchewan and rated a top authority of Indian lore.

He says the white man in the west "has been 40 years learning a lesson in conservation that a little animal, the beaver, has always known by instinct."

"Over-Capitalizing"

"Now in times of prosperity he is over-capitalizing and mining the land with no thought of the future. He has not learned of the inevitable cycle of nature. And yet in his favor it must be said he has turned wasteland into productive farms that are like oases where once was merely buffalo pasture."

Kennedy would like the federal government to change its policy toward the Indians. He says he favors abolition of treaty money and would like to see the Indian's education on the same basis as that of white children.

"Government handouts and boarding schools produce misfits who will not take their place in the society of this country; who will not try to care for themselves or for their children."

Cowboy Ballads Pay Big Bounty To Rodeo Rider

By The Canadian Press

Canada's top singing cowboy is a Nova Scotian who made good on the prairie rodeo circut before taking to his guitar. Today, Wilf Carter is an internationally-known celebrity whose recordings of western ballads are in great demand.

Carter was born in Guyborough county, NS, but now spends his spare time in summer on his ranch at Carstairs, Alta., and his winters at his home in Clinton, NJ. His working time also divided —between making public appearance tours and records. Latest total of recordings is 248, many of which he wrote himself.

Maybe it's because he's a Maritimer himself, maybe it's because they're so far from cowboy territory, but his most fervent fans are found down east. A series of Wilf Carter fan clubs have sprung up through the Maritimes. One of the most fervid is found in supposedly conservative Ottawa.

Apparently there's quite a feud in progress between Carter and his chief rival, the Maritimes singer, Hank Snow. Recently Carterites felt that their favorite wasn't being given enough time on a popular radio program and let the world know about it.

Contact Everyone

They wrote letters to the station and to their members of parliament. Even A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC's board of governors, was on the receiving end of a letter of protest before the matter was settled amicably.

Wilf headed for Alberta in his youth, and got his share of bumps in the rodeo business. But he found early that he had a way with a guitar and a plaintive western tune, and was soon entertaining customers at the Calgary Stampede in the 1920s'

He later hit the United States and created a wide following as "Montana Slim." Now firmly established, Wilf pays off his income tax in large instalments through his public appearances. He made one dominion-wide tour this spring and is set for another before the winter sets in. The The rangy singer even looks like a cowboy, even behind the wheel of his 1950 Cadillac convertible. [illegible] his ranch if you're passing through Carstairs. He has his name painted in big white letters on the barn.

Stock Markets Climb Strongly To New Ground

By FRANK KAPLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets pushed strongly ahead into new high ground this week.

Heavy buying carried market leaders well into plus territory despite considerable profit-taking.

Activity increased on the advance and buyers at times flooded markets with orders.

Improving news from Korea and apparent expectations of record earnings by many leading companies spurred investors into the market.

Indications point to full-steam operations of industry. Investors are buying better-class common stocks in increasing quantities. Many observers expect generous dividends by many firms and are buying for immediate returns.

Much of the feeling on Wall Street is that the current market rise is based to a considerable extent on inflation ideas.

One New York broker commented recently: "The market is saying as eloquently as it can, that the dollar is going to buy less and less and that it is prudent to expend dollars for securities that at least have the chance of appreciating."

Boom First

The New York market started the five days on a downward trend but boomed strongly upwards, rails setting the pace, to touch a four-year high. Steels jumped into the limelight Thursday and buyers overcame heavy profit-taking Friday to climb further into the new high average price territory.

The Associated Press 60-stock average chalked up a gain of .3 at 81.7, highest since 1946 and a gain of 1.2 from the previous Friday.

Canadian markets also climbed. Base Metal stocks attracted heavy buying following news of price increases. The market for Non-Ferrous Metals is reported extremely tight and Producers are having difficulty filling demand. In any case, observers believe record year.

In Toronto, the exchange's Base Metal index of representative stocks climbed 3.41 and was at the highest point since 1937.

Industrial stocks reflected the New York trends with papers leading the advance, adding 5.90 at the highest peak since 1934, when the index was first compiled.

Many buyers turned to leading Junior and Senior Gold Producers. The index of Producers rose 3.41. A handful of the more speculative lower-priced stocks were brisk and higher on development and financing news.

Farmer Cleared In Investigation

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP)—An An unidentified Navan, Ont., farmer was cleared by police Friday of suspicion as the supplier of horse-meat said to have been sold in hamburgers at the Canada Central Exhibition here last month.

Complaints during the exhibition led to the closing of some suspected hamburger stands at the fair and examination of the meat showed some contained a quantity of horse-flesh.

Detective James Kettles of the Ottawa police, apointed by Dr. J. J. Day, city medical health officer, visited the Navan farmer Friday in a followup of the case. He came back to report the farmer slaughtered horses for feed for fox farm breeders but there was nothing to indicate he had supplied horsemeat to exhibition concessions.

The detective said the complaints were not so much against the sale of horsemeat as about non-inspection of the meat and its misrepresentation as beef. He added that if a butcher opened a shop, advertised horse meat for sale and was properly inspected by health authorities, he would be operating within the law.

City officials believe that the horse-meat sold in hamburgers at the exhibition found its way to Ottawa from Quebec and investigations are still going on.

Pastor Will Show Film Home, School Group

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS).—The executive of the Hastings Home and School Association held its first meeting of the year this week.

Mrs. S. Whitred, program convener, reported that Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood would show a film, Who Will Teach Your Child, at a future meeting.

Mrs. Clifford Scriver was appointed pianist for the coming year.

To Stand Trial

WINDSOR, Sept. 16—(CP)—Two former city constables, Lawrence White and James McCall, were committed Friday for trial in a higher court on a joint theft charge. They are accused of stealing two tires from a service station. The two men were dismissed from their posts as constables by the police commission.

Hastings WA Group Appoints Committees

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS) — Group 3 of the Women's Association held their first meeting of the fall season this week at the home of Mrs. Ethel German. President Mrs. W. A. Thomas was chairman. Mrs. J. G. Thompson gave a solo and Mrs. A. Orr a reading.

A telephone committee for the next three months was named, consisting of Mrs. R. Burnham and Mrs. George Brooks. On the visiting committee named were: Mrs. Ethel German and Mrs. A. B. Smith, Albert Street; Mrs. W. Dodd and Mrs. L. Nelson, Front Street; and Mrs. M. Brownell and Mrs. J. H. Hess, Albert Street E. and Norwood Road.

New Army Red Patch To Be Worn Shortly

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — The new red formation patch of the Canadian army's special United Nations brigade will be making its public appearance in and around the training areas across the country in the near future.

Wearing instructions have been issued to the troops.

The patch is made up of a scarlet shield centred with a gold maple leaf and encircled by a wreath of silver olive branches of the same design as that appears on the United Nations flag. The word "Canada" appears in gold lettering across the top.

It will be worn on both sleeves of uniforms and greatcoats directly below corps and unit flashes.

Train In Germany

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15 (Reuters) —Many Dutch troops to be called up for compulsory service will go to Germany for training, Defence Minister W. F. Schokking told parliament Thursday. The minister said the Netherlands has neither the camps nor the training grounds needed for the new army.

Need Engineers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 16—(CP)—Canada requires all the engineers that can be graduated from her universities, J. L. Vance, dominion president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, said Friday night. Mr. Vance was speaking as special guest at a dinner held by the Newfoundland branch of the E.I.C. on its first anniversary.

Army Needing Specialists Still

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — Specialists in certain trades and professions are still in demand for Canada's permanent and special army forces.

Army headquarters said Friday night that with the special United Nations brigade slated to leave Canada about mid-November for training—probably at some Pacific island such as Okinawa—an urgent appeal has been sent out for medical assistants for the active force.

Men with past training and experience in this line are needed and preparations have been made to train the inexperienced. The men are required to fill vacancies in the active force created by sending men to the United Nations force.

Experienced men also are needed for the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps sections in the active and special forces. And from the special force has come a call for officers with previous experience in movement control.

Says Daylight Saving Doesn't Help Power

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — Continuance of province-wide daylight saving would be of no help to the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, Chairman Arthur Saunders said Friday. Such action, the chairman said, would only shift the peak consumption period without alleviating it.

"If Toronto and Hamilton, our two biggest customers, continued daylight saving and the rest of the province reverted to standard time that would be a help as it would spread the period of peak consumption. But if all municipalities decided to continue daylight saving time it would not help."

Hastings Group Pack Food Parcel For UK

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS).—The Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Anglican Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Jones.

The Deanery meeting will be held September 21 in St. John's Church, Peterborough.

A food parcel is being packed for Britain. A sewing meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. C. Baker. Mrs. E. Birdsalls has extended an invitation for an October 4 meeting to be held at her Birdsall home. The hostess served lunch.

Orderly Evacuation

TORONTO, Sept. 16—(CP)—Civil servants evacuated the main legislature building at Queen's Park in 2½ minutes when the fire alarm sounded Friday. But there was no fire. Welders at work in the basement had accidently short-circuited the alarm system.

Queen Elizabeth Charms Irene Dunne

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 16 (AP)—Irene Dunne, home from Britain, is brimming with praise for the Queen.

The actress is back after a six-months absence, during which she played the part of Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark." While she was in Britain, she had a lengthy chat with the King and Queen.

"They were very interested in the picture," she replied, "and were anxious to know if we were getting the right help on preserving the authenticity. They were both very charming."

Miss Dunne had chances to observe the Queen on public occasions, too, and she enthused about her.

"She is the picture of serenity. At all times she seems greatly interested in whom she is meeting and what she is being shown. You can tell that she feels deeply the responsibility to her subjects."

Gruelling Role

Miss Dunne found her own reign as Victoria somewhat gruelling. The reason was the now-famous jowls, which had to be applied every day. The rubbery neckpiece was glued on in a process that required almost two hours each morning.

The chore of putting the jowls on and taking them off was fairly painful, and Miss Dunne isn't sure she would be willing to endure the grind again.

"There were times when part of my skin came off," she said, "and I expected my neck to be never the same again. Amazingly enough, my skin is better than ever. Maybe I've discovered something."

Porter Says Awrey Understands Firing

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — Attorney-general Porter said Friday that E. C. Awrey was retired as crown attorney at Windsor, because "there was a lack of confidence in the administration of that office and we made a change."

As a result of a shake-up in the Windsor police administration, A. C. Hall, Whitby crown attorney, will take over the duties of crown attorney in Windsor. Mr. Awrey is returning to private practice.

"I've been unable to find out what I've done to deserve this," Mr. Awrey said in Windsor.

Asked for comment, Mr. Porter said:

"I told him. He knows."

Gets Confidence Vote

ATHENS, Sept. 16—(Reuters)—The new three-party coalition government of Sophocles Venizelos Friday gained a vote of confidence by 153 to 43 after a debate of more than 24 hours. The government was making its first appearance before Parliament. It followed another coalition headed by Venizelos which resigned Sept. 9, five days after being completed.

Warkworth Band 1 Year Old Has Money, 103 Members

WARKWORTH, Sept. 16 (ENS) —The Warkworth Community Band is just one year old. Getting its start at a small meeting of interested people in the Community Hall, the band rapidly grew into an experienced organization, playing concerts throughout the district and taking part in community functioins, such as the Memorial Day service.

The band started from scratch, but soon it inherited some horns from a former Warkworth band.

In October, a short time after the organization was set up, a variety concert was held in the Town Hall, with the Campbellford Band helping in a drive which earned $130 to buy more instruments.

One of the band's first problems was to find a bandmaster who was capable of instructing the members. They hired Joseph Minicola of Peterborough, who was paid his transportation to Warkworth and his board while there and $1 for a half-hour lesson, with a reduction if more than one in a family took lessons.

More instruments were bought from the Orange Lodge in Little Lake and from a music company in Toronto.

Band members practised every Friday night before they had begun to get in shape to present a concert. Finally, April 13 and 14 were set for the band's first concert, and Sunday night practices were added to the schedule. The concert came off in grand style.

But that was not the band's first public appearance. At Christmas time it supplied the music for the Santa Claus parade, and if the playing left something to be desired, there was no doubt it would be a big event the next year.

A glee club was also formed, and Mr. Minicola also took over the training of the group free of charge. For a long time, he practised the band without being paid, but after June he was paid $4 for each practice and a fee for each concert.

By July the band members were able to march as well as they played, and the first Sunday in July they took part in a memorial service held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and at the Cenotaph by the Canadian Legion.

Later in July the band began to branch out and travelled to Roseneath to present a concert there under the auspices of the Anglican Church. August 20 the band members went out of town again, this time to Hastings, under the auspices of Hastings Community Centre.

Helped by government grant which amounted to about $66.00, the band is flourishing, with 42 playing members and 61 associate members. With money raised by concerts, fees paid by the band members, and money given by citizens anxious to see the band succeed, it has almost a full complement of instruments and $145 in the bank, after only one year's operation.

With money in its pockets and considerable experience behind it, the band starts its second year full of hope and promise.

Canada's Population Nearing 14 Million

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — Canada's population has topped the 13,850,000 mark.

The Bureau of Statistics estimated the population at 13,850,000 at July 1—the latest date for which figures are available—for a gain of 143,000 over the Jan. 1 total of 13,728,000 at July 1 last year, it was 13,579,000.

The increase in the previous half year was 149,000, making an estimate gain of 292,000 in the 12 months ended June 30.

In 1941, when the last official census was taken, the population was 11,507,000.

Entry of Newfoundland into confederation last year accounts for 348,000 of the 10-year-gain.

Stanley Ross Dies

REGINA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Stanley Lyster Ross, Regina business man who formerly had wide publishing interests in Western Canada, died Friday on his 70th birthday. Mr. Ross was a partner of the late George M. Bell of Regina as publisher of the Calgary Albertan, Regina Leader-Post, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix and the Northern Mail of the Pas, Man.

Chaplain Calls On Church To Fight Reds

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — The Christian church must "declare a state of emergency" to meet the danger of Communism which threatens to stifle Christian life, Group Capt. R. M. Frayne of Ottawa said Friday.

Group Capt. Frayne, ... pal Protestant chaplain of the RCAF told the 14th general council of the United Church of Canada that "tomorrow may be too late."

"If the Christian church ever needed to declare a state of emergency, the time is today," he said. "All around Christian life is an encircling movement which will press tighter and tighter until the last vestige of Christian liberty would cease to pulse."

He called for an attack against indifference and apathy within the church itself. More than 60 per cent of Canadian boys between 14 and 18, serving with cadet units, are receiving no religious training, he said.

Don't Like Flag

During Friday's session a new flag, proposed for use by the church, was unfurled but members declined to approve it. It has a red cross on a blue background in the upper left corner, with the church crest on a white field. One member suggested the Canadian Red Cross Society should be consulted before a red cross is approved as part of the flag. Another objected to use of the church seal on the flag. The council voted to defer action.

The council also asked for another two years' study of a plan to set up a church committee on community relations. The committee would co-ordinate publicity, discover what principles the church should follow in its relation to the community and fields in which church activities needed more efective interpretation.

The Ministerial Association has arranged an open-air service of worship at Civic Arena for this Sunday evening, September 17th, as its contribution to Peterborough's program of centenary celebrations.

Dr. George B. Gilmour, Chancellor of McMaster University, will give the address.

The service proper will commence at 7.45 o'clock but the band and its songsters have a special program starting at 7 o'clock.

Plans are completed to accommodate thousands at this service.

You are invited to attend.

It's War

The American magazine Time which has a tremendous circulation in Canada, and is sent all over the world, has had a special section on war (specifically the Korean war) for months. This week's issue shows the usual pictures of generals at the front, and the wounded and killed. These latter arouse our sympathies. They make us feel the war. In addition, this week there is a remarkable article advocating that the United States (and thus the western world) make war on Russia in 1953. As it is an American magazine designed primarily for the American people, we cannot condemn this article, in so far as it touches the American people. If the magazine wants to tell the U.S.A. to make war in 1953, it is free to do so. The trouble is that the magazine comes into Canada, with a Maple Leaf on the cover, and is widely read. Such articles are propaganda (perhaps good propaganda) from a section of American opinion, and out of a United States fevered by Korean war.

• • •

The thesis of war in 1953 may be provable. Our point is that the arguments presented are American, by Americans. Canada is a country independent—in theory at least—of the United States. Canadians must be wary of taking their opinions ready-made from an American magazine.

• • •

The pervasive influence of a magazine like Time is enormous—even in Canada. And let it be said that for a long while the magazine has been insidiously warminded. In saying this we do not intend to condemn the point of view. It may be the realistic and right approach to today's international problems. We do most strongly warn against Canadians accepting the doctrines of that magazine as Canadian. Let us form our own opinions, from our own views and the necessities of the situation. The pity is that Canada has not sufficient organs of publicity, or the financial means, to put its own voice before its own people with the same force and cogency. But if Canada goes to war it should not be as a result of American propaganda.

• • •

Let us take a suppositional parallel to Time's influence. Suppose that Canada had a great weekly magazine as important as Time, with as large a circulation, proportionately, in American homes, as it has in Canadian in the years 1939-40-41. Canada was then at war. It had its heroic stories. It had its pictures of Canadian airmen killed, of British infantrymen wounded. If this Canadian indirect propaganda had had the same entrance to American homes that Time magazine now has in Canadian, would the United States have stayed out of the war until December 6th, 1941, when it was attacked and forced thereby into war? Is the present ubiquity of American propaganda going to lead Canada into war by sheer weight and insistence?

Our Weather Forecasts

A regular item of news which we always summarize in a front page line and give in detail on page two, is the weatherman's guess about tomorrow's skies. It is the very best guess we can secure, coming straight from the Dominion Meteorological Bureau in Toronto, which spends its time and science computing weather statistics from data collected at its observer stations at Trenton and Killaloe (for this district).

What is the weather going to be like the week-end? Your guess is not likely [illegible] as good as our experts', but if at [illegible] rapid coverage across vast stretches of country, it is now possible to forecast weather a day in advance fairly accurately. It is a specialized work, and sufficiently reliable and valuable that Corps headquarters of the Canadian Army overseas maintained a weather-man on its staff.

A lumber company at Edmunston had a daily review made of forecasts, to check their accuracy. It found that predictions of weather on the day of the forecast were eighty per cent. correct—it rained or did not rain, according to the forecast, within the specified period. In anticipating the weather one day, the predictions were 73 per cent. right. In temperature predictions 86 per cent. were correct within eight degrees. Two-thirds of the relative humidity forecasts were right within ten per cent.

Sometimes readers of our daily forecasts have their timing wrong. When our front page line reads "Evening showers" it means that the showers are expected tomorrow evening, not the evening of the issue of the paper. We deal with the weather a full day before it happens—anticipating the news. Our page two summary tells what has befallen during the day, as well as forecasts in greater detail what is likely to happen here and there across the country tomorrow.

The twittering occasionally to be heard about our weather news is nothing compared with the roasting the B.B.C. has been getting from English sea-side resort operators. Before the Whitsun holiday the B.BC. forecast a dull, cold and showery day. Weston-Super-Mare apparently had twelve hours of sunshine and no rain. The resort owners claim that people stayed away in droves because of the B.B.C.'s melancholy prediction. They want forecasts of bad weather banned, because they are bad for their business.

We can forsee the results of such a policy of suppression. When the official weather prophet foresaw rain, hail or frost, there would be an ominous silence. The silence would shriek of bad weather and the people would stay away from the resorts. On the other hand to prophesy good weather when the forecaster's official snout told him that foul was pending would be malevolent. When the rains came the whole country, prepared for sun, would storm in wrath and flail the forecasters as the stool-pigeons of Big Business.

We once had the experience of a snowless ski week-end in the Laurentians. Hundreds of hotel and lodge owners, with million dollar investments to cater to winter sports, peered at the sky, waiting for snow but getting rain. Ten thousand would-be skiers in Montreal hugged their radios for news of the weather in the mountains. If the rain in Montreal were snow in the Laurentians, off they would go for their week-end. We huddled in front of a fireplace in our hotel, glared dismally out the window at the drizzle and the snowless landscape, and heard a Montreal station blandly announce that at this moment inches of good fresh snow were falling at our hotel centre. Had some resort owner given the announcer slush money? We have never trusted that radio station since.

Pickerel, Ont.

This is not a fishing story. Pickerel, Ontario, does exist. It is a place in the Sudbury district. It was in yesterday's news because of the inroads— or rather obstacles—some beavers are making to road-builders' efforts in that area. The point of special interest is that the road being built is part of the Trans-Canada Highway. Peterborough, also on the Trans-Canada highway, looks forward to any signs of activity at all in that direction. There are none now.

We must not let Pembroke put it over us. Pembroke, be it remembered, squawked when it was left off the road map. So Ontario Government officials told it that it would have a supplementary branch of the Trans-Canada. There seems to be a bit of palavering farther down the Ottawa; to be precise, along the roads from Ottawa to Montreal. There are two: via Hull and the Quebec side; and along the south shore on the Ontario side. At the entrance of the latter, just outside the city, some enterprising foresighted officials have put up a sign: "Trans-Canada Highway." They have got the name before the Hull road could make claims. Should Peterborough stake its claim by name before Pemmy gets large ideas?

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is one thing you must say for the egotist; you don't catch him gossiping about other people.

In Los Angeles a young criminal of 20, [illegible] behind him is [illegible] unblemished [illegible] your pants?

When Mr. Abbott was about to bring down his baby budget several tobacconists in Windsor Ont., raised the price of a package of cigarettes to 41 cents, anticipating an increase in the tobacco tax. They did this several hours before the budget appeared, and then found that the tobacco tax remained what it had been. We have no doubt that the customers joined in the hearty laughter at this miscalculation which had been made at their expense, and congratulated the tobacconists warmly on their shrewdness.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Sir:

It comes to our ears from a professional source that you are bringing suit against your neighbour, Richard Dandiprat, whom you accuse of imprisoning a skunk (Mephitis Canadensis) in your motor car, with resultant damage to same.

We learn also that the success of your suit is jeopardized by your inability to bring forward a single witness who saw Dandiprat commit this misdemeanour.

May we offer our services? For a modest fee we can provide witnesses who will give your case all the corroboration which it needs, ensuring your success. We feel that three capable witnesses (two men and a woman) would amply meet your requirements, and we will provide these for five hundred dollars and expenses. You will agree that this is a ridiculously low sum, and it is only because we work on a very large scale that we are able to make this very special price. All correspondence strictly confidential.

Yours, etc.,
FALSE WITNESS, INC.
Telegraphical Address
"ANANIAS".

◇ ◇ ◇

To Mordecai Mouseman, Esq.
Dear Mouseman:

I enclose a letter which I have just received from a firm which seems to have just what we want. The trial draws near—at least I hope it does, for it is now a year since Dandiprat ruined my car—and I will not tolerate any fumbling. I want Dandiprat to get at least two years hard labour. We want witnesses; these people have them. Will you attend to the matter?

Yours,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

◇ ◇ ◇

To the Rev. Simon Goaste, B.D.
Dear Rector:

Last Sunday when I was out motoring I saw some handsome apples on a tree in a field. It was the work of a moment to skip over the fence and hook a couple. But alas! they tasted like wet cotton wool.

Tell me, godly man, was it the bitter flavour of sin which turned these apples into things of loathing?

Yours in conditional repentance,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

Oh, Mr. Marchbanks, sir! Oh, unhappiest of our clients!! Oh, luckless litigant!!! How often have I not counseled you against taking any step without consulting your lawyers; how often has not our senior partner, Mr. Jabez Mouseman (now, alack, prone upon a bed of pain—shingles, I grieve to say) given you the same tried and true advice? Tell me—though I dread the answer, knowing your fiery and impetuous nature—have you given any money to False Witness, Inc.? For if you have, all is lost indeed!

Understand, my dear sir, that not only do you sully the whole fabric of British justice by suggesting that we employ these people; you gravely endanger your case, as well. The fabric of British justice has been sullied, and cleaned, many times; like an Oriental rug, it shows only the very largest stains; but there is not a judge on the bench in this country who does not know every employee of False Witness, Inc., intimately. For years they have paraded in and out of the witness boxes of Canada dropping the wigs, false whiskers, wooden legs and other unconvincing paraphernalia with which they seek to disguise themselves, and their appearance is now a signal for derisive laughter in every court in the land.

False Witness, Inc. employs all the Canadian actors who are so bad that they cannot even get jobs with the C.B.C. Far better no witness than a False Witness.

I am shocked, sir, that you should think that a firm such as ours would lend itself to such underhand practice. We rely entirely upon the probity of the court, and the forensic brilliance of our barrister, Mr. Cicero Forcemeat. You will understand the unique distinction attaching to Mr. Forcemeat when I tell you that he is one of the half-dozen lawyers in the province who is not a K.C.

And if we feel that the support of expert testimony is required, we know where to get it without resort to the broken-down dialect comedians who work for False Witness, Inc.

Yours chidingly,
MORDECAI MOUSEMAN,
(for Mouseman, Mouseman & Forcemeat).

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

I would fain reply that it was truly the bitterness of sin which destroyed the taste of your stolen fruit. But a complete candour which has been a handicap to me all during my long ministry compels me to say that it was probably the natural flavour of the apples.

When I was but a lad, apples were smaller than they are today, and were often of irregular shapes. Sometimes bough-marks defaced their perfect beauty. But they were of a delicious flavour. This condition persisted even into the years of my curacy. But when apples became Big Business they grew large, [illegible] unblemished [illegible] better, Mr. Marchbanks.

Do not worry about stealing apples. In our day the sin carries its own punishment.

Yours in love and understanding,
SIMON GOASTE.

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
How, Marchbanks!

In awful trouble, Marchbanks. Winter come soon. I got to get in jail. No jail, no winter home. Two day ago I get drunk. Sick on cop. He mad. Ha, I think; jail for sure. But no. He take pants to cleaner and make me work cutting wood to pay for clean pants. Yesterday I throw brick at cop. Hit him hard. He jump. Ha, I think; jail now. But he say thanks pal; sergeant coming and you just wake me up in time. This one hell country, Marchbanks. Cops all too mean to put poor Indian in jail.

How, again,

THE END OF A BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP

Cat's Superior Wisdom

(STRATFORD BEACON-HERALD)

THESE days there is little in the news outside the grim Korean struggle, the railroad problems, unemployment worries and the high cost of living. The world looks as dark as the front page of a newspaper. People are tired. The future is clouded with doubt. Many times it seems as if the struggle to go ahead is hardly worth the effort.

Rusty, the cat, thinks differently. Rusty, a four-year-old mouser, made her home in a distillery plant at Amherstburg. Not long ago her home exploded around her, and fire swept everything away. The cat was listed among the $750,000 worth of stores and equipment destroyed.

A week later Rusty came back. Singed and battered, she crawled from hiding. She gathered up what was left of her nine lives, and faced the world which had used her cruelly. There was no despair about Rusty. She started right in catching mice again. Now she is preparing to train a family of kittens to carry on the mousing job after her.

It looks as if Rusty is still confident that the world is not skidding to ruin. She is ready to go ahead with her job in spite of fire and pain and injury. Evidently the cat is wiser than many human beings who cannot look beyond the present troubles. Rusty has the right idea.

Still An Anti-Submarine Navy

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

CANADA'S naval training policy, in stressing the future role of the Royal Canadian Navy as a predominantly anti-submarine force, is facing squarely the realities of modern sea warfare. Among the navies of the free nations, the RCN is best fitted as a composite force for the defensive role at sea. Unlike those of Britain and the United States, the bulk of Canadian naval vessels are designed and fitted primarily for the escorting of convoys and the hunting of submarines. Only one ship, the cruiser, Ontario, is designed chiefly for offensive fleet duty. Our twelve destroyers and five frigates are equipped with the latest in anti-submarine weapons. Half a dozen specially designed "anti-submarine escorts" will be available shortly. At present the destroyers Huron and Micmac and the aircraft carrier Magnificent are carrying out extensive anti-submarine exercises off the coast of Ireland in co-operation with the Royal Navy and the RAF. Out of four operational naval air squadrons, two are specially adapted to anti-submarine warfare.

Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, chief of the naval staff, has made it clear that Canadian seamen and naval airmen will be expected to carry on the splendid reputation gained seven years ago on the convoy lanes of the Atlantic. During the last two years of the war, the RCN was almost solely responsible for protecting the Atlantic lines of communication. Adding to the technical knowledge of anti-submarine warfare gained in those years has been a major project of Canadian naval planners.

In the event of war, Canada will be responsible for the operation of the Ontario, and possibly another cruiser borrowed from the Royal Navy. These big ships, whose manning will represent a heavy drain on Canadian manpower, will be employed as units of the British and American battle fleets. Two squadrons of naval fighters and bombers may also take part in fleet operations. But the main job of Canadian naval units not assigned to anti-submarine duties will be protection of Canada's coasts against attack from the sea. In designing its sea forces for maximum usefulness in line with the naval policies of other Western powers, Canada is honouring its commitments.

Calculating Cackles

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

"So far this year Canadian hens have cackled 7,501,000 dozen times more than they did in 1949," is how a recent news item put it to indicate how many more eggs were laid.

The person who wrote it could be out quite a few dozen cackles since hens frequently cackle when they hear others cackle. Even brooding Biddy will at times join in the chorus.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord, Keep ye judgement, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed. (Isa. 56: 1.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. (Isa. 65: 17.)

The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. (II Pet. 3: 9-13.)

Subnormal Parents

A child of mentally defective parents has two strikes against him the moment he comes into the world. In the first place, he is likely to be endowed with an intelligence quota no higher than that of his father or mother. Secondly, because his parents are not sufficiently equipped mentally to rear him properly, even the limited capabilities which he possesses may be directed into anti-social channels or permitted to fall into disuse.

Because, in many cases, mentally retarded couples have children as rapidly as nature permits and without regard for their budget, the children of such parents present a serious social problem. With the parents unable to compete financially or socially with normal people, many of these children are reared in poverty. Fortunately, some of them eventually become wards of the state. The question inevitably arises: Should legislation be passed preventing people of low intelligence from having children?

By passing such a law, Canada would undoubtedly restrict the freedom of individuals who did not measure up to a certain mental standard. On the other hand, by prohibiting mental defectives from perpetuating their own kind, the Government would do much, over a period of years, to reduce the ranks of these unfortunates, and thus improve the nation's mental, economic and social health.

STAND EASY

To two recruits on their first night guard appeared a dark figure.

"Halt! Who goes there?"

"Orderly Officer."

This nonplussed the recruits. They whispered together.

"Come on! Come on!" said the Orderly Officer, testily. "You've had me standing at attention here for five minutes."

More whispering, and then a flash of inspiration.

"Orderly Officer! Stand at ease!"

"Who'd Be A Soldier—And Have All Your Pockets Cluttered Up With This Stuff?"

Fish stories related to me have a certain sameness after a period of time. But that all ended the other day. Alan Wilson of Armour Rd., who came to the city three years ago from his native Bradford, gave me the lurid details of helping Raymond Titterington of King George St., land a fighting 18-pound muskie at Jack's Lake recently. In his broadest Yorkshah, he started his tale with, "Ee, ba goom, la-ad, it were a w'opper." The mighty battle was detailed from the moment Ray's pikey minnow was grabbed by the brute, through to the crowning moment when Alan gaffed it into the boat.

"What a THING!" he cried. "Aren't they AWFUL?"

This dialectal description which comes at the time Lancashire's George Formby was in the city in person, brings to mind one of Stanley Holloway's gems on the landing of a whopper.

"Tooged and tooged and better tooged,
His line it rose and sank,
Till fish gave one last dying gasp
And flopped stone dead on bank."

Ball of Fire In Air From Bewdley

False teeth fashioner, Alf Pink, Jr., and CGE-ster Will Jones have sworn to water down their six-cent cokes after seeing the light that blinds down Bensfort Bridge way the other night. They were tooling along the Otonabee west of the bridge in Alf's boat after dark watching a TCA plane blinking its running lights overhead when a ball of light bounced over the horizon from Bewdley direction about 500 feet over the water, they thought. After circling a marsh three times, it took off and disappeared in the direction it came from. What was it? They didn't know, but, rather than be accused of thinking they saw a flying saucer without other witnesses at hand, they thought it might have been illuminated swamp gas.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association lads held a full-dress (tartan shirts, that is) corn roast at Deb Watman's place on Pigeon Lake. With a five-piece orchestry on the tail end of a truck, one of Norm Bradley's, no doubt, they consumed several dozen roasted ears slathered in three pounds of BUTTER. There were also suds to wash it down. The 120 members rated it a great evening.

Algae Dulls The Shining Waters

That green stuff, algae, which is dulling the shining waters of the Kawarthas this year, and seems to be getting worse, has caused much comment and not a little agitation among cottagers and campers. DLF biologists say it could have been much worse and that the extreme condition prevalent on Sturgeon during past seasons has lessened. Cool summer weather and present reduction in temperatures are making it disappear quite rapidly now. The study of algae under microscopes is baffling business for biologists. Specimens distintegrate so rapidly on the glass slides that there is rarely anything to see. We could really holler here if we had the condition which was prevalent in Lindsay this summer. Clover-like duck weed was so thick on the Scugog at one time, some wag floated out an upright sign which read KEEP OFF THE GRASS.

Fishing Pressure, Poaching, Fowling

Fishing pressure, poaching on spawning beds and fluctuating water levels has greatly reduced Lake Trout populations in many Haliburton County lakes. It is so alarming, in fact, that the Department have closed off the season on Oct. 5th; it will not re-open till May 1st, '51. Townships of Hastings County also affected by this ruling are as follows: Bangor, Carlow, Cashel, Dungannon, Faraday, Herschel, Limerick, Mayo, McClure, Monteagle, Wicklow and Wollaston.

I was talking to Frank Seymour owner of Pine Cliff Lodge on the Madawaska River, about it. He was delighted. Frank's 50-guest lodge has been filled until a week ago since June 15 and he is booked solid for next July, too, he says. An ardent practising conservationist, Frank banks on being in business for some years to come. "Abide by the fish and game laws," he said, "it pays off." And to prove what constant good fishing he has in his area, Frank dug out some of the best fishing pictures from his wallet I have seen for some time. Samples: Bruce Jarvis of Ashtabula, O., with a 12-pound, 8. pickerel; Neilo Johnston, same city, with 18-pound Laker and Bill Mosser of Allentown, Pa., hanging onto a 7¼-pound Large Mouth.

Repeating again the dope on the coming grouse season in this district,—it appeared earlier in the week as a general news item. For Ruffled Grouse (partridge), Spruce Grouse, Sharp-tailed Grouse and Ptarmigan, two seasons north of Highway 7; Oct. 7th till Oct. 28th and Nov. 6th till Nov. 18th. South of Seven, only, the first listed season will apply in that portion of Hastings as well as in non-regulated areas of Huron, Wellington, Simcoe, Ontario and Durham Counties. Bag limit, five birds per day in the aggregate, possession limit of 15 birds.

If your taste runs to squirrel pies, you may shoot black, grey and fox chatterers on Nov. 10th and 11th, only, five per day in the aggregate, of all kinds.

Heard of a nice mess of speckled trout taken by Cyril Lech, Bud Clarke and Bert Carter, fly fishing, the largest scaling 3¼ pounds. Since the season ended for them on Friday, thought I would pump Cyril for the fishing spot. No dice, though; he gave me the up-Wilberforce-way treatment. Cagey lads, these trout fishermen.

The Department of Lands and Forests is the auctioneer.

Village Business Thrives 1,906 Inhabitants By 1848

Samuel Dickson in 1840 leased Hall's grist and sawmills (built by the government 1827-28); a few years late, he built a larger sawmill on the east bank forming the Dickson Lumber Company which grew into the Peterborough Lumber Company Like other mills along the east bank Dickson's obtained power from a dam built across the river at the west end of Douro Street by Z. Burnham, whence a sluiceway ran south Robert Rogers of Otonabee married Birdsall's daughter in 1840, and two years later opened a grocery store in the Scotch Village; in association with Z. Burnham, he built a large sawmill in 1846 and a gristmill the next year, close to Hunter Street East on the riverbank. The third gristmill was operated by J R. Benson (probably on the site of Scott's first mill). The "Dispatch" of Aug. 31 1848, noted "Three first class flouring establishments capable of manufacturing from 50,000 to 60,000 barrels of flour per annum." One mile from town, A. Sperry had a rake factory turning out 20,000 a year. Smith's "Canadian Gazetteer" 1846 listed in Peterborough: "4 doctors, 5 lawyers, 2 gristmills, 2 sawmills, 1 brewery, 1 ashery, 2 distilleries, 3 foundries, 30 stores, 2 druggists, 5 taverns, 18 shoemakers, 12 tailors, 1 bank" and his 1851 book noted: 3 gristmills, an oat and barley mill, 4 sawmills, a woollen factory, a carding and fulling mill, a brewery, a distillery, 4 foundries, 2 axe factories, 3 tanneries etc." In all, Peterborough had about 40 small industries by 1850, well scattered.

First Hotels

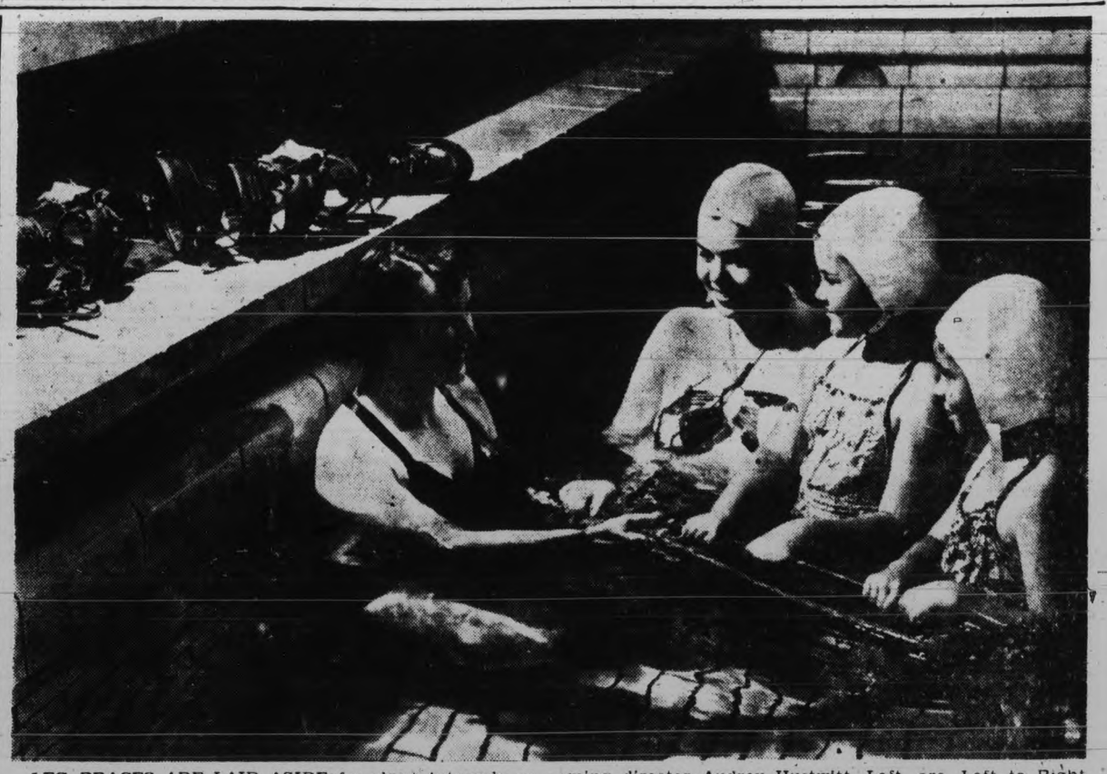
About 1845 the Globe Hotel on Charlotte Street was built of brick, and two years later Thomas Chambers built the Commercial Hotel of brick on the corner of Hunter and Water Streets; this later was burned down in 1858, but rebuilt. In 1849 E. Phelan built a tavern at 181 Simcoe Street, later operated by Mr. Cavanagh as the Cavanagh House Stages to Lindsay ran Tuesdays and Thursdays from the Log House inn which gave "excellent stabling and good hostler attendance."

Businesses were begun, leased, transferred and ended with bewildering rapidity in those days. Ormond & Gilmour opened a drug store in 1848 on George St., which in 1879 was bought by H. S. MacDonald. Some other merchants advertising in the papers were Benjamin Torrance, general store, George St., adjoining the Albert House; P. M. Grover dry goods, groceries, hardware etc., George St.; Robert Ridley dry goods, groceries, hardware, etc., George St.; R. C. Armstrong dry goods, groceries, etc., opposite Wm. Eastland; Wm Eastland, "The Cheap Cash Store," dry goods, groceries ,etc., opposite J T. Henthorn on George St.; A. MacPhail, chemist and apothecary, Medical Hall; R. Barrett, tin, sheetiron, copperware, stoves, etc., George St. P. M Grover on Nov. 7, 1845 advertised: "a gigantic sale with great reductions. . . . We are stopping all credit sales as of Jan. 1, 1846 and giving all unpaid bills to a solicitor for collection." Torrance advertised in March 1846: "having relinquished business in Peterborough, requests all persons endebted to him to call on Ivan O'Beirne and pay." Wm. Matthie & Co "will remove their wholesale establishment to their new enlarged warerooms and storehouses at the steamboat wharf, lately purchased, adjoining Messrs H & S. Jones Wharf, occupied recently by Geo. Sanderson." F Murphy, auctioneer, no doubt had plenty of business. Among the professional people advertising were G. B Hall, barrister, Hunter St over Logan's store; James Scott, attorney, Hunter St opposite Albert House; Dr. Wm Bell, Hunter St.; Dr. Wm. James Best, surgeon, in house formerly occupied by James Armour; Dr T Hay in new residence on Brock St next door to Mr. Poole's furniture warehouse.

The "Backwoodsman & Sentinel" ceased publication in 1843 before John Darcus absconded In 1842 the "Chronicle" was begun as a Reform paper by Thomas Messenger, with James McCarroll as editor, in a frame building on Water St.; after moving twice, the shop burned down in 1846 and from the ashes arose a new paper, the "Dispatch" published by George Hazlehurst. Carrying the Tory flag was the "Gazette," owned and edited by Rev J H. Dunsford, beginning August 1845 and expiring October 1848, in the old Red Store at Charlotte and Water Streets. Dunsford, in[illegible] per in town was the "Di[illegible] The "Gazette" favoured railroads: "Peterborough is, as it were, locked up in the wilderness by bad roads in every direction and its commercial intercourse with the Front exceedin'y troublesome, circuitous and expensive." A railroad meeting in Port Hope Dec. 1845 was attended by G B Hall, MPP, James Hall, Rev R. Taylor, F. Ferguson, T. Benson, Jas. Wallis, A. S. Fraser, W. H. Wrighton and T. Harper from Peterborough Sept. 1845, F Ferguson sold a half-acre lot opposite the market for $1,200 In November, Charles Hudson advertised for sale a 50-acre farm in Otonabee, con III, three miles from Keene; Mr. Hudson became a storekeeper on Hunter Street and in 1851 mayor of the town. On March 2, 1848, the "Dispatch" noted: "The town presented a pleasing appearance today The farmers are taking advantage of the slight fall of snow and are hurrying their produce into the market. The prices today are: fall wheat 3s. 9d., spring do 3s. 3d., oats 9-10d., hay 27s. 6 d.- 30s. per ton."



The year 1847 was auspicious in the village. After considering a petition, the executive council granted three acres east of Water between Brock and Murray Streets to be held in trust by the municipal council after incorporation "as a public square—upon condition of the same being enclosed and planted and being retained solely for the purpose referred to." A "handsome and substantial" iron bridge was completed across the river by Whyte & Davis, for which the public subscribed to supplement a government grant. The first wooden sidewalk in town was built, raised upon a ridge of gravel, for one block along George Street, from the Albert House to Cluxton's store. Pauper immigrants brought an epidemic and to keep the fever from spreading an isolation hospital was set up on Point St. Charles facing Little Lake.

According to the 1848 census, Peterborough had 1906 people occupying 340 houses, with 28 houses vacant; there were 145 proprietors and 195 tenants assessed. In the professions were 43, in trade and commerce 51, 156 were craftsmen, 80 labourers and 53 factory workers. By place of birth, the villagers were: Canadian-born 812, Ireland 682, England and Wales 196, Scotland 162, United States 42, other countries 18. There was one negro man, out of 26 in the Colborne District (3 males, 23 females)

By 1850 the population, including the Scotch Village, was over 2,000 people, having just about doubled during the decade An era of even greater expansion and prosperity was at hand.

YW Pool Swim Gives 3 Girls, Polio Victims, Great Hope

By COLETTE FERGUSON.

A wonderful hope of complete recovery has been given to three polio victims of this district through special post-polio swimming instruction at the YWCA swimming pool. Three girls, who would normally be faced with the necessity of using braces and crutches for the rest of their lives are already looking forward to a day when these supports can be discarded.

Joan Fitzerald 20, of RR 8, Peterborough, had finished school and business college and had worked for a year with a city real estate office when she contracted a severe case of infantile paralysis in September, 1948. The major part of the next year of her life was spent in hospitals. From September to January she was a patient in Riverdale Hospital, Toronto. She spent the next five months in the Toronto General Hospital.

"The whole situation looked rather bleak when Joan returned home in June," commented Joan's mother, Mrs. John Fitzgerald. "However, Joan never gave up hope and when her doctor suggested that she try swimming, it made her even more optimistic for the future."

When Joan started swimming, she had been completely paralyzed from the hips down. Now she can walk in the water from one side of the pool to the other. From a non-swimmer, she has become one of the most enthusiastic swimmers in the Y pool, going four lngths of the pool without too much effort.

Work in the pool under the guidance of Miss Audrey Hustwitt, swimming director at the Y has helped to restore the muscles which were paralyzed. The swimming has strengthened Joan's whole body and special foot exercises such as kicking while hanging on to a flutter board has partially restored the strength in her legs.

"It is wonderful," gasped Joan after she had successfully dived for a brick in the bottom of the pool and swum with it to the side. "This swimming was my only hope, and I can hardly believe the good results."

"Joan is full of hope for the future, and is planning to take a refresher course at the Business College in the fall and then start to work," added her mother.

Two Others Progress

Two other girls who are polio victims are also making amazing progress through this remedial swimming treatment at the Y pool. Valerie Twa 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Twa, 260 King Street, and seven-year-old Dorothy Lowes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lowes of Lakefield, attend these swimming classes at the pool three times a week.

Valerie took sick in July last year. She spent 33 days in the Riverdale Isolation Hospital, Toronto, and was in a cast until Christmas.

"Valerie doesn't go to school, but has her school lessons at home," said Mrs. Twa. "With the help of these swimming lessons and an operation in October, we are hoping that her braces may be discarded and that she can start to school."

All the left side of Dorothy Lowes' body was paralyzed as the [illegible] She spent eleven months and five days in Toronto hospitals during the last two years before she could return home. Since that time, Dorothy has come to the Y three times a week for swimming instruction. Her left arm is now normal. Her parents have high hopes for her complete recovery with the help of the swimming and an operation at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, this fall.

Part of the costs of the girls' transportation to the Y and their swimming instruction is being paid by the Red Cross and the YWCA swimming clubs.

"We are not performing any miracles," stated swimming director Miss Hustwitt. "It has been a lot of hard work for the girls, and it is only their perseverance that has been the cause of such wonderful results. I think that we, at the Y will be as happy as the girls themselves when the day comes that they can throw away their braces and crutches."

Convicts Publish Own Paper In US Pen

By DAVE WHITE

It's an attractive eight-page [illegible] published in California twice a month. There are no comics and the tenor of the articles is serious, even scholarly.

How would you size up a publication running articles like these?: the technique of psychodrama; use of sodium pentothal in the treatment of alcoholics; a thought provoking review of John Hersey's latest book "The Wall"; a discussion on journalism, and a two-column article on the pros and cons of audio-visual aid in education.

Sounds like a college journal, you say, staffed by eager-beaver undergrads.

Not at all. It's the bi-monthly newspaper "The San Quentin News," published by the convicts themselves in the United States' biggest penitentiary.

The newspaper is a product of the enlightened policy of Warden Clinton T. Duffy—a man who believes that a prison sentence is not necessarily "the end of the road" but possibly "the highway which leads to future happiness and success."

Treat a man like a fellow human; don't degrade him; start him on the path to rehabilitation as soon as he enters the gray prison walls of San Quentin: that is Warden Duffy's point of view in a nutshell.

Prisoners' Own

Allowing the prisoners to print their own newspaper is just one of the activities that was introduced to rescue some of them, at least, from the pervading sense of hopelessness and rejection. Give the man (considered just a soulless number in many institutions) something constructive to think about and don't just let him brood on his crime and subsequent punishment during his imprisonment.

Given this opportunity the inmate may regain— and possibly attain for the first time—a sense of self-respect, and make a go of it when he becomes a free man. In any case, the Warden reasons, it's worth a try.

Here is the way he puts it, in a by-lined column on page one: "It's doubtful there is a single man among you who is enjoying his incarceration . . ."

Warden Duffy's column is, presumably, in every issue. He is the editor-in-chief and so has the last say.

Apparently the Warden—whose doings as Mr. Big naturally loom large in any chronicle of prison life—is a staunch supporter of Alcoholics Anonymous. He was one of the chief speakers at the international convention of AA held at the tail end of July in Cleveland.

San Quentin claims it is the only prison in the world with two AA chapters. These did not spring to life because of any amount of high living in the institution but because the Warden had a first-rate knowledge of the results of excessive drinking.

In the words of the "San Quentin News": "Warden Duffy explained that AA in prison not only offers its members freedom from the distress of alcoholism . . but also the insurance, as well as assurance, that future years need not necessarily be spent behind walls."

There's not much doubt about it but they're free from that particular distress in San Quentin.

JUDGE'S PROVINCE

It is the province of the judge to expound the law only—the written from the statute, the unwritten or common law from the decisions of our predecessors and of our existing courts—from the text-writers of acknowledged authority, and upon the principles to be clearly deduced from them by sound reason and just inference—not to speculate upon what is the best, in his opinion, for the advantage of the community.'

Lord Justice Coleridge:
Judgment in Brownlow vs Egerton, 1854.

Sodium Pentothal is discussed on page three. Here is the "News" lead:

"Use of the well-known 'truth [illegible] sodium pentothal [illegible]

Practically every play is described, A "black cap" head tells the reader that "Kelley Steals." Probably this is no novelty to friend Kelley but the reader is relieved to find, on glancing into the paragraph, that it is the good American practice of stealing third base.

Kelley later brought in a run to help his fellow "Angels" down the "Solons" 8-5.

The reader finds himself quite at home here with the usual sports jargon popping up all over the page.

There are several cuts (photos). One shows some of the convicts public-spirited enough to be fighting forest fires in an unidentified spot in southern California. Another shows the pen's much-prized furniture factory where 290 men while away their hours manufacturing desks, chairs, tables, etc., for use in state-operated schools, hospitals and the like.

Still another "shot" shows the pure-bred dairy herd of 200 cattle on the San Quentin ranch. They are tended constantly by 15 prisoners.

In the back section of the newspaper is listed the weekly radio schedule of what is ironically dubbed "the grey network." No "gangbuster" programs or the like are permitted. Movies are reviewed in one corner and the weekend movie program listed. Here too, the snarling Bogarts and other assorted bad guys are carefully screened out.

The nearest thing to the iconoclastic touch is a readable but not too meaty little sermon by Walter P. Pitkin, more than somewhat critical of American manners and morals.

Pensive convicts may read this two-column guest editorial taken from "Life Begins At Forty":

" . . . as hang-over Puritans, (Americans) dictate other people's morals and affairs, enacting endless laws, few of which are ever obeyed; arousing like-minded fanatics to violence against those whose conduct they dislike; thus producing the complete anarchy which is America of the 20th century."

And to think that U.S. Senator Joe McCarthy and the House of Un-American Activities Commit[illegible]

Sports Section

But the real labor of love in the eight-page newspaper is the sports section. Baseball is the game and apparently the boys go for it in a big way.

There is a four-team league; and to date the Angels (that's what the paper says) are leading the circuit, having won seven, lost one and tied one. Back of them come the Oaks, Solons. Isn't that short and snappy enough for any fussy city editor. And that underworld argot "stool pigeon" as well as the dramatic "fingering the villain" ought to be right down the alley so far as the incarcerated dime-novel readers are concerned.

[illegible] inmates in California who know that language only.

Subscriptions to the "San Quentin News" are apparently widely solicited.

For any of its old alumni who are over-nostalgic there is a cut-out coupon bearing this advertisement: "Here's how to keep up with what is going on in San Quentin . . . subscribe to the San Quentin News . . . 26 issues for only one dollar."

And what's this on the back page of the paper? . . . a course in journalism offered as an alternative to volunteering for the jute mills?

Pack my bag, Ma, I'm San Quentin bound . . . but on second thought what's an old jute mill got that we haven't got? Thirty.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Public School soccer schedules commence next week on various fronts. The lists are in tonight and should be clipped by those interested. Play will be on the different school grounds or nearby fields for junior and intermediate games, while the seniors have three neutral pitches—two at Morrow Park and one at King Edward Park. Queen Alex and Queen Elizabeth schools combine in the three schedules. Teachers do the coaching and the refereeing, and the boys get a first-class groundwork not only in soccer but in sportsmanship and all that it means. A fine circuit operating each autumn.

Civic Arena will have ice installed in a week and a half. That's to catch the international ice revue of figure and fancy skaters which will do a three-night show here. It headlines Eileen Seigh of New York, USA Olympic star, who gave Barbara Ann Scott many a stirring competition. Later they teamed up in Hollywood for "Ice Capades" and in New York for "Howdy Mr. Ice." A big and outstanding cast, we're told. It's amazing how fancy and figure skating really caught on—though Sonja Henie did a lot for the sport, too—since Barbara Ann won the Olympic title. Quite a figure skating school here the past two winters.

Couple Contests On Tap

A couple of games (baseball and softball) in Riverside this aft and eve, if the weather behaves. Oshawa and Ed Woodcock's local bantams settle their OBA series at three this p.m. in the deciding game and it should prove keen. Our juves are in Oshawa today while the peewees still await action. Tonight at 7.15 under the arcs in Riverside, the Firemen and Policemen stage a softball exhibition under auspices of the Optimists Club. Draw prizes, etc., with funds for service work. Fire fighters will leave their hose at home if the cops do ditto with billy-sticks.

The Orfuns got off to a tough start last night at Morrow Park, dropping that 1-0 decision to Oshawa Red Raiders. Yes, sir, a 1-0 game, and how often does that happen in football? A rouge in the second quarter meant the difference, though Coach Bamforth's bunch came mighty close several times to getting it back, and almost counted a spectacular field goal in the final frame. But "almost" doesn't count, and it goes down simply as one win for Oshawa and one loss for Peterborough. Orfuns go to Cobourg next week-end, and then have Orillia Bombers here the following week. They just can't afford to lose any more in a short, sharp schedule.

* * * * * *

Low Down And Close, Eh?

We thought the team looked good, every bit as good as the strong Oshawa squad. Just a tossup on the night's play, with Orfuns driving better in the last half but having no luck. And Doug Plunkett was hurt and lost to 'em in the third. Mostly straight football with some "hot potato" plays tried by the locals, not too many passes attempted, and a fair number of fumbles on a greasy gridiron. A good low-scoring game to see for those who like them played close to the vest, though we can stand a few touchdowns a tussle. A big crowd on deck for the weather, official opening, draws, cheer leaders and the usual color going with the autumn sport.

Men's city softball finals resume Monday evening at the Ashburnham Bowl with a double-header. It'll be Mutuals vs. East City at 7.15, and vice-versa right afterward. How did vice and versa get in there, anyway? Mutuals now lead the four-of-seven serial for the Wm. Taylor—emblematic of the city crown—by two games to one, but every tilt in the playoffs has been close, and the East Citizens might take one or even two of them Monday. If they drop 'em both, they're through for the season. Mutuals are the only local softballers still in provincial playdowns, and will probably hit into semi-finals next week.

Down Sports' Rialto

School soccer schedule for the juniors opens with two games Monday, intermediates going next day and seniors on Wednesday.... City golf finals are at Kawartha Club tomorrow aft.... Pro mat show booked for here a week from Tuesday.... George Campbell of Oshawa, president of the OASA, has been named a vice-president of the International Federation of Softball in a convention at Austin, Texas.... Sorry to learn that Vern Dawson is quite sick in hospital.... A nice new press box has been built atop the grandstand at Morrow Park, though it could be enlarged some.... Johnny Green is still with the Varsity gridders but he's pretty light for those huskies.... Latest word we had on Doug Plunkett was that he suffered a fractured collar-bone last night in the several injuries received when smeared hard by Oshawa tacklers here.... If so, he'll be lost to Orfuns for the rest of this season.... But one more week of daylight saving, and the days are shortening up.

DENNIS FITZGERALD of St. Peter's High School Athletic Advisory Committee officially makes the presentation of 20 complete outfits for St. Peter's senior rugby team to Fred Allore, left, team coach, and Father John Coughlin, director. In addition, 24 sweaters were made available to the junior team. Money for the outfits was raised last spring in a city-wide canvass of Catholic parishes. St. Peter's seniors will play against St. Michael's and DeLasalle in the Catholic Conference League.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

A colorful chapter out of Canada's football past was officially reopened Thursday.

Ab Box, 41-year-old former football great with Toronto Balmy Beach and Toronto Argonauts, signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

The Alouettes, who have lost two of their first three league games, will use Box strictly for kicking—a department in which they are exceptionally weak this season.

A Smuts golf competition, along the lines of the United States-Britain Ryder Cup competition, may be started for professionals of South Africa and Australia.

Broadcasting from Sydney Friday night, Bobby Locke, holder of the British open championship said that on his return to South Africa he would try to promote such an event.

Locke, who was on the air with Norman Von Nida, Australia's open champion, said the tournament would be a gesture from golfers in memory of Field Marshal Jan Smuts, former South African Prime Minister.

Orville White, 42, Winston-Salem, N. C., pro, blasted his way into the lead in the $15,000 St. Louis open golf tournament on Friday with a three-under-par 67 to give him 135 for 36 holes.

Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill., also fired a 67 for a 136 score.

Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach Fla., and Art Doering of Richmond, Va., were third with 137s.

Trailing closely were Joe Kirkwood, Sr., of Hollywood, known as Joe Palooka in the movies, Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Jim Ferrier of San Francisco and Jim Turnesa of New York—all tied with 138.

Dutch Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., had 139.

The early favorite in the race golf's top money maker this year and last, Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., shot a 69 to bring his total to 140, five full strokes behind the leader.

Australia's Frank Sedgman on Friday scored a repeat triumph over his American Davis Cup adversary, Tom Brown, and U.S. singles champion Arthur Larsen moved into position to tackle his arch rival, Ted Schroeder, in the semi-finals today of the Pacific southwest tennis tournament at Los Angeles.

Sedgman defeated the San Francisco star, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, and he faces young Herbert Flam, national intercollegiate champion in the other semifinal match today.

Flam advanced to the round by whipping Earl Cochell of Los Angeles, 8-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Larsen followed Flam on to the centre court of the Los Angeles Tennis Club and defeated Tiny Felicisimo Ampon of Manilla, P. I., 6-4, 8-6, 6-3.

Public School Soccer Schedules Set

The schedule committee of Central and Queen Elizabeth School submits the following schedule for public school soccer, divided into three sections viz. Senior, Intermediate, and Junior. Those interested should clip this for reference. All intermediate and junior games are to be played on the school grounds or grounds conveniently near the school. All senior games are scheduled for three neutral fields. Permission has been granted by the Recreation Commission for the use of King Edward Park and by the Exhibition Board for the use of the exhibition grounds. Two fields will be available in the latter and will be designated as East or West. In all sections Queen Alexandra and Queen Elizabeth schools are combining and appear in the schedule below as Q. A. & E. The teacher-referee appears in brackets after each game.

Sept. 20—Queen Mary vs. Queen Alex & Eliz. at King Ed. park (Patterson). Central vs. King Edward at Ex. park, east (Druery). Pr. of Wales vs. King George at Ex. park west (Olmstead).

Oshawa Raiders Gain Win By 1-0 Against The Orfuns

In the lowest-scoring ORFU senior "B" game ever seen here, Oshawa Red Raiders opened the grid season at Morrow Park last night with a 1-0 victory over Peterborough Orfuns. Despite damp weather after an all-day rain, a big crowd viewed the tight struggle, the visitors winning on a rouge in the second quarter. Orfuns go to Cobourg next weekend and have Orillia here on Sept. 27. Following a parade behind the pipe band, with another band at the park, the season was officially opened before some 2,500 fans by Mayor Max Swanston and Don McGillis, Sr., an honorary president of the football club. Draws for prizes were made at halftime by Stan McBride. While the gridiron was greasy there was not an unusual number of fumbles for an opening football match.

DOUG HURT—Injured in the third quarter of the Oshawa-Orfuns' grid opener here last night, Doug Plunkett (of no-hit fame with the baseball Petes) had to be helped from the field, having his side and a knee hurt in a hard tackle. The husky backfielder had been playing a fine game up till then. Oshawa won out 1-0.

Doug Injured

Backfielder and kicker Doug Plunkett was injured in the third quarter, being hit hard on a tackle to hurt his side and a knee. He had just taken a kick back of the goal and ran it 15 yards out to his own 10-yard line when downed. Plunkett, after some delay, was helped off the field. He had played a fine game up to then for Coach Harry Bamforth's homesters against Bob Cosgrove's strong Oshawa Raiders.

Both sides played crefully at first, and sound football tactics prevailed generally most of the melee. Two strong lines with heavy reserve power—fought it out on the ground attack, and the tackling was hard and accurate. Orfuns came up with some razzle-dazzle "hot potato" plays off the snap, but were facing a good defensive foe, and it was pretty even most of the distance. The locals missed several good scoring chances on single points and once on a field goal as they were within range a number of times.

Looked Good

The Peterborough imports looked good, Gord Peachy in the backfield catching the eye especially. Huntley, Lynch, Bonney and Dalton all showed plenty of grid experience. The home talent, too, turned in a hard-fighting chore, the line mucking in all night, with Gord Beatty, Frank Fitzgerald, Don McGillis and others showing plenty. Russ Scriver, Spike Matthews, Plunkett and the rest in the backfield showed a lot of stuff, despite the close loss.

George Ellis, Tom Krowik, Johnny Brodie and George Hulico were outstanding on the attack for the Raiders, with Jack Luke, Cliff James, Tom Murphy and Stan Hodgson good defensively. They proved a pretty fair match for the Orfuns, though they could just as well have been beaten by a close score as coming through victorious. They got their one point in the second on a 35-yard kick by Ellis with Don Barton downing Peachy back of the line.

Careful Play

With play careful on both sides [illegible] first quarter an end sweep moved the sticks and they were on the march till Don McGillis pounced on a fumble. A few forward tries failed and it was up and down between the 30-yard lines till the half.

A kicking exchange started the third and later Krowik bucked for 10 but Plunkett intercepted a forward and they drove up on a Scriver-Peachy-Plunkett extension for yards to Oshawa's 45. A fumble lost it and Ellis and Krowik moved the sticks. Penalties hurt both sides throughout. Brodie plunked 15 and then Plunkett was hurt running a kick out. Peachy took Scriver's later to skirt end for 20 a bit after and a Scriver to Don McGillis forward clicked for 25. Later Matthews had to hoof a long one.

Orfuns drove up several times in the fourth, with Peachy being a ground-gainer and Huntley helping out, Matthews also getting distance on his kicks. Huntley recovered a fumble and then tried a field goal from 34 yards out. It came awfully close but Ellis returned the boot promptly and tore up to recover his kick on Oshawa's 48-yard chalk. Hulico tore around end for 20 but later Huntley slanted off tackle for a neat gain, but Hodgson intercepted a pass to take off the pressure. The Orfuns were driving up again at the last but the whistle beat them.

Oshawa: Flying wing, Murphy; halves, Brodie, Hulico, Krowik; quarter, Hodgson; snap, Kiniknisky; insides, Lawson and March, middles, Filopowisz and Almond; outsides, James and Wilson; alternates, Luke, Lyzon, Ellis, Zakarow, Beaton, Sanbansky, Armstrong, Bilsky, Harper, Bouckley, Burkhart, Grice.

Giants Upset Wings 2nd Time

By The Associated Press.

Jersey City Giants, dark horses in the International League playoffs, will try to make it three victories over the heavily-favored Rochester Red Wings tonight.

Joe Becker's Little Giants, who defeated the Red Wings 2-1 Friday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series, will pitch Roger Bowman. Johnny Keane, Rochester's manager, is expected to counter with his ace righthander and most valuable player in the loop, 20-year-old Tom Poholsky.

Baltimore took a 2-1 edge over Montreal in their elimination round Friday night by downing the Royals 3-1. Bill Kennedy, although relieved in the seventh by [illegible] tory. The loss was charged to Joe Landrum.

Ted Williams' Big Bat Helps Boston Whip St. Louis 12-9

By WILL GRIMSLEY,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Baseball's lean-hitting perfectionist, Ted Williams, is back on the firing line for the Boston Red Sox, forcing a new appraisal of the neck-and-neck American League pennant race.

The willowy slugger, out of regular action since July 11, may provide just the impetus needed for Steve O'Neill's old pros to overhaul Detroit and New York in the mad dash down the stretch.

Williams' big bat boomed like old times Friday. He smashed a three-run homer and three singles to crack an eight-game winning streak of the upstart St. Louis Browns, 12-9, and to move Boston within 1½ games of first-place Detroit.

Boston's half-step up the ladder was aided by developments at Detroit, where the Tigers behind the excellent relief pitching of the veteran Hank Borowy, turned back New York Yankees 9-7 to level this top-drawer series at a game apiece.

Vital Game

The vital "rubber" game was scheduled today with the Yankees sending out their phenomenal young rookie star, Eddie Ford, to recapture the lead they lost to Detroit. The Tigers countered with Dizzy Trout. Ford has won six games and lost none. The veteran Trout, with a 13-4 record has been a surprising stalwart of the Detroit staff.

The Red Sox, Williams and all, move into Detroit Sunday for two games.

Williams' impressive comeback after more than two months on the shelf with an elbow fracture was just one of the highlights of a news-making baseball Friday. Other unusual happenings included:

1. Philadelphia Phillies had to go 19 innings, longest game of the season, to wrest the second half of their doubleheader victory from Cincinnati and thereby put the National League flag under virtual lock and key. The regulation first game was won 2-1 and the second 8-7, pushing the Phils 7½ games in front of Brooklyn

Breaks Record

2. Big John Mize of the Yankees poled three homers in New York's losing effort at Detroit and broke his own major-league record for the number of times the feat has been turned in a single game. He now has hit three home runs on six occasions.

3. Plate umpire Dusty Boggess twice reversed himself on a play at home at Ebbetts Field, causing Brooklyn Dodgers to protest their 6-2 loss to St. Louis. There was no immediate ruling on the protest.

Emory (Bubba) Church, the Phillies' rookie righthanded pitcher, was hit by a batted ball in Friday night's first game and was taken to a hospital where plastic surgery was required.

The rhubarb at Brooklyn came when umpire Boggess called the Cardinals' Tommy Glaviano safe, then out, then safe again on a play at home in the first inning Bruce Edwards, Dodger catcher, argued Glaviano didn't touch the plate

In other National League games Boston Braves whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 on pitcher Mike Surkont's three-run homer, and Chicago Cubs beat New York Giants in 10 innings, 4-3, with pitcher Johnny Klippstein scoring the winning run after hitting a double.

In the American, Cleveland split a doubleheader with Washington. The Indians won the first game 4-2, but lost the second 4-1 The eighth-place Philadelphia Athletics snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating Chicago White Sox 4-1.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, St. Louis Cardinals' first baseman, batted in 12 runs in one game to set a Major League record 26 years ago today. Playing against the Brooklyn Dodgers, Bottomley had a perfect six-for-six at bat. The Cards won, 17-3.

John Edmison Well Known, Highly Respected Pioneer

John Edmison, Smith pioneer farmer whose memory is being honored at the centenary year service Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Church, was 97 years old at his death, April 19, 1887.

The following sketch of his life and work was published in the Examiner at that time:

"Thousands of the people of the district will hear with regret of the death of one of the oldest, if not the oldest, resident of the county, and one of the most widely known and highly respected, Mr. John Edmison, Sr., who passed away at his homestead residence, Smith, on Tuesday April 19th, at the age of 97. He was born in Northumberland, England in 1790.

"Mr. Edmison first came to Canada in 1818 (and in May of that year was one of a group of young men from Port Hope who made an exploring trip to the present site of the city of Peterborough).

"His first place of residence was Port Hope, where he remained four years. During that time he located a farm in Smith township, now known as the Isaac Milburn farm, and had some improvements made on it. After four years in Port Hope, he returned to England, and staying six years. While there he married Margaret Ann Hall. He returned to Canada, accompanied by his wife and one daughter, in 1828. He again domiciled in Port Hope, working on shares a farm owned by the late Thomas Ward, until 1832, when he settled on the farm, where he lived continuously till his death, lot 11, in the 3rd concession of Smith."

Farmer All His Life

"Mr. Edmison followed farming with marked success, adding one farm after another, but for the last 20 years he had lived retired on the old homestead. He was a gentleman of exemplary character, enjoying the respect of all who knew him. He was an earnest Christian, and fully exemplified in his daily walk, the virtues of the faith professed, and the full beauty of the Christian character. He never took an active part in municipal or political matters. He never sought or accepted any secular office, but for 50 years he was an active elder of old St. Andrew's Church. He took an [illegible] in the erection of old St. Andrew's, at the head of Brock St., and wrought at its erection not a little, with his own willing hands. He was elder at the time of his death.

Mr. Edmison was not a working politician. Always staunchly Liberal in his politics, he was never a biased partizan; still in profession and practice he upheld the principles of the Reform party even to the time of his death, for his last political act was voting for Mr. Stratton in the December elections, and for Mr. Cox in the February elections.

"In November, 1885, Mr. Edmison lost the partner of his joys and sorrows for 60 years, and since that time the attraction of a better world loosened his hold on earth, and his decline in health dated from the time of the death of his wife at the age of 83. His death was a triuphant vindication of the reality of the Christian religion. He died in sure and steadfast hope of a blissful immortality.

"Mr. Edmison was blessed with five sons and five daughters, all of whom survive; all married and the heads of families; all in prosperous worldly circumstances; all enjoying the respect of the community. His descendants, including children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, may be numbered by the score. He never had to mourn the death of a son or daughter, son-in-law or daughter-in-law, something remarkable in the life of a man who reached the ripe age of 93 years.

"'The memory of the just is blessed,' and long will Mr. Edmison's memory be cherished, a loving father, a loyal friend, a kindly neighbor, in fine, a man of solid Christian character, concerning whom, using the familiar phrase, "too much that is good can hardly be said."

Hamilton Park To Be Unique As Beauty Spot In 1952

Hamilton Park—a 1952 picture of playgrounds for children and adults alike. A wading pool for the tiny tots, a swimming pool for the older youngsters and picnic tables and beautiful surroundings for the oldsters. The Parks Department with Superintendent Armar Butcher at the helm and with the aid of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club this four-year project will go far in achieving for Peterborough, a most unique park.

Winding Creek

A three acre plot of ground, containing a winding creek, a densely wooded area and an old stone quarry, on the north side of Bonaccord St., was donated to the city by ex-mayor James Hamilton, four years ago with the stipulation that it be made into a park.

The Parks Department named the site Hamilton Park and went to work. After two years of study and planning, the project was started. The Kiwanis Club agreed to help in financing this park and it is expected that when work is completed this service club will have contributed approximately $9,000.

That's a lot of money to spend on one park, but the Kiwanis and Parks Department hope to have something special when they get through.

Jackson Park creek that winds through this site gave Superintendent Butcher some ideas. Why worry about artificial swimming pools when with a little work by man, nature has already provided them. The bottom of this stream from Bonaccord St. to Parkhill Road is hard limestone. Two dams, a stone wall along the banks and you have not only a swimming pool, but a wading pool as well.

Island Divides Creek

Last year a wall of limestone laid in cement was completed around the wading pool. This year it is expected that 500 feet of wall will be constructed. Half way through the park, an island divides the creek. The wading pool was built at the west side of the island and the swimming pool will be situated above it, at the north end of the park. When the project is completed the creek will be walled, around the island and from bridge to bridge—Bonaccord St. to Parkhill Road.

Not content to make this park merely a playground with swings, tetter-totters and slides, the Parks Department has made plans to make Hamilton Park a beauty site as well. When the creek walls are finished, the flat area on the banks will be sodded and seeded. The island will also be included in this landscaping scheme. In two years time, two weeping willows will grace either end of the island and it will be connected with the mainland by a rustic stone bridge.

The stone for the walls is obtained in the limestone quarry, owned by the city, on the Lakefield road. The maintenance costs for the swimming and wading pools are expected, according to Superintendent Butcher, to be small.

Innumerable loads of topsoil have been trucked in, and many more will be needed, before the project is completed. A great [illegible] of rubbish cleared away and some of the brush cleaned out are two more items of work to be done.

If all of Mr. Butcher's plans are completed, children will have a playground in the winter as well as the summer. He hopes to be able to construct a toboggan slide from Parkhill Road down into the park.

Two years seems a very short time to complete all these plans, but the Parks Department is confident that they can do it. "We want the Kiwanis Club to get the credit for this park," stated Mr. Butcher. "It is true that we are doing a great deal of the work, but Hamilton Park as it will be in 1952, just wouldn't be possible, if this service club were not providing the finances."

St. Laurent Plans To Attend R.M.C. Dinner

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent has accepted an invitation to be guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Royal Military College Ex-Cadet Club of Canada at Kingston Sept. 30.

The dinner and annual meeting of the ex-cadet club will be held in conjunction with opening exercises at RMC, which reopened as a tri-service college for future officers in 1948. Cadets enrolled then will be starting their third term at the end of this month and first graduates will not leave the college until 1952.

The ex-cadet club embraces all living graduates of RMC. Oldest living grad and only survivor of the original class of 1876—known as "The Old Eighteen'—is Maj.-Gen. A. Bowen Perry, of Ottawa former commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The opening program for the cadets will include a ceremonial parade in the morning and the annual yachting regatta in the afternoon. On Sunday there will be a ceremonial service at the college's memorial arch.

Uniformity In Lighting Helps Reduce Accidents

Good lighting in the home helps to prevent accidents, reduces nervousness and fatigue, owing to eye strain, and serves to enhance the decoration scheme.

Uniformity in lighting is essential where the task is severe or close as it is in many housekeeping jobs. Repeated adjustments to contrasting degrees of lighting irritate and tire eyes. Well diffused or indirect light should be used for general illumination wherever possible.

Glare, either direct or indirect, is a major source of eye strain. This can usually be eliminated by placing the source of light above the ordinary line of vision, or by diffusing the light with a correctly designed shade or fixture. Glossy objects, such as mirrors, table tops or glass, may reflect light into the eyes. Changing the position of the lamp or the object itself may solve this type of problem.

Shadow free lighting is a requisite for safety in dark halls and stairways. Switches at the top and bottom of stairs and garage lights which can be controlled by switches at both the garage and house are convenient.

Light fixtures should be selected first for the quality of lighting they give and secondly for their decorative appearance. Above all, study carefully the requirements of your family and plan the number of outlets in your home accordingly.

Make Nursery For Child Practical, Easy To Clean

Maybe baby won't be able to have a separate nursery, but if only a corner for his crib, make it pretty, private, practical and most important of all easy to keep clean.

Decorating and furnishing the nursery can and should be fun . . . fun to be enjoyed while you can because all too soon junior develops his own tastes and will have none of the dainty touches which mothers adore. While you are reveling in nursery rhyme decorations, don't overlook the fact that most important of all is a well-organized background to reduce work and make baby more fun to look after. As with everything else in the house, think twice before you buy his furniture from the standpoint of both practicability and comfort.

Mother's dream of ruffles and pink and blue ribbons will likely give way to more practical decorating when she settles down to the everyday job of caring for baby in his less happy moods. There is little of the fairy prince or princess about a new arrival and it will soon be found that keeping his room scrupulously clean is a much greater ambition than that it be beautiful. Children quickly pass far beyond the age of ruffles before they even notice them . . . and by that time you're sure to have decided that the routine of keeping the room clean and neat makes such luxuries impossible.

Most Practical

For the baby's first five years a sturdy bed with a drop side will prove most practical. A tall chest will accommodate his wardrobe until he's ready for school. And don't overlook a toy box to induce him to take care of his own things . . . an important start in building confidence and initiative in a child. Window seats are excellent for storing. Maple furniture, dark and durable, is often considered a more practical choice than white furniture.

Curtains can be as gay as you like, but be sure to select a fabric that will keep fresh-looking with a minimum of care. Ruffling curtains will only create another laundry problem. Linoleum is admirable for the floor of baby's nursery as it is so easy to keep spotlessly clean. Don't go in for a lot of rugs with a deep pile . . . they're only dust collectors. Braided rugs are much more suitable and can be washed with a minimum of effort.

Finally a word to crowded households where it is impossible to furnish a separate room for baby. This will call for a super-efficient job of organizing his own exclusive corner in your bedroom. Keep in mind that the primary need is to arrange baby's equipment in an efficient a way as limited space will alllow and provide him with necessary privacy by blocking out light and other distractions when he's sleeping.

Provide Play Yard

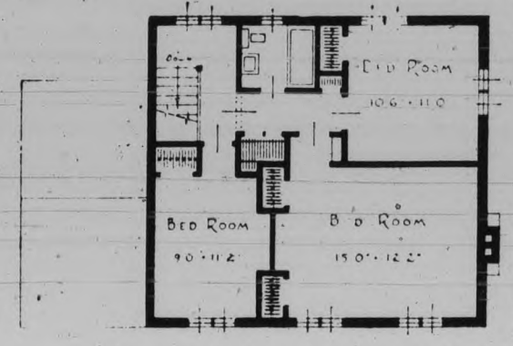
One of the biggest problems facing parents in city or suburbs is finding a safe place for the children to play. This is particularly true of pre-school groups. No community park, however good, is quite satisfactory for children of this age. Mothers need to be close by, and when there's housework to be done there's frequently no place for the youngsters except the front lawn. But here lurk dangers — a fall on the sidewalk, passing cars, backing trucks and a host of other hazards.

The real answer to this problem is a children's play yard. Here the kids can romp to their hearts' content within easy reach of Mother, yet without the dangers of the street.



A little discipline (which, after all, is good for any child) will teach him to stay out of the precious flower beds and confine himself to his private play area. If discipline fails to do the job, a fence may be the answer. The latter treatment provides a run for the youngster's dog as well.

Simple Games

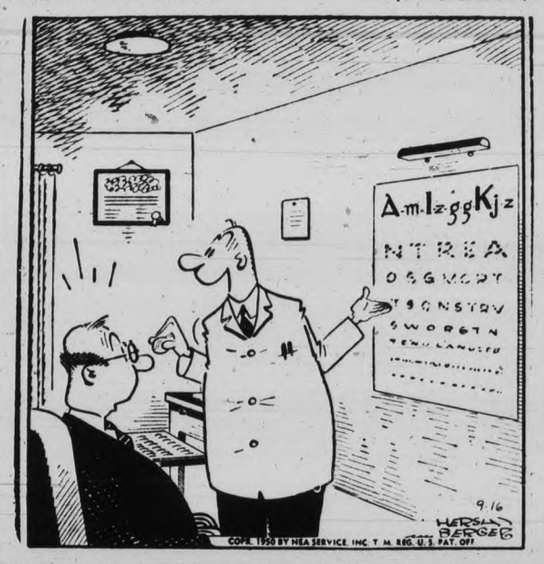
As we all know, children are frequently most amused by the simplest games and toys. Don't overload a play yard with costly paraphernalia, because a simple swing, sand box and hurdle will do the trick. Dad can likely make them all himself in a few evenings, if he's at all handy with saw and hammer. Of course, the children should have a hand in making decisions on the gadgets the play yard is to include, and maybe "helping Daddy" when he makes them.

Naturally where the yard is located is most important. It should get plenty of sunlight, yet have some shade too. Keep it away from the driveway by all means, and pick a spot with good drainage. It may strike you as artistic to have a pretty flower bed in the yard, but our advice is to keep it clear, with good grass turf to tumble on.



HOUSE No. 477 — It is easy to understand the preference of many for brick when you see a home like this. Color, warmth and permanence are only a few of the qualities that attract the home builder. This home is typical of the fine work done by Canadian architects in the small house field. Almost square in its basic plan, which assures construction economy, it contains six rooms designed for economy. This house was erected on an attractive suburban street and contains about 21,200 cubic feet without garage. For further information, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

New Windsor Police Board To Sit Monday

WINDSOR, Sept. 16 (CP)—The Windsor Police Commission will meet here next Monday to consider further steps in the reorganization of police administration announced Thursday by Attorney-General Porter.

Two new members will sit on the commission with Mayor Arthur J. Reaume. They are Lt.-Col. Roland Harris, newly-appointed magistrate, of Windsor, and Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton.

Chief of Police Claude Renaud, who normally attends the commission meetings, will also be present.

Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan, one of two police commission members whose resignation was announced Thursday, said difficulties had arisen from combination of his duties in the courts and on the commission.

"As a member of the commission I sometimes learned things that hindered my work in court," he said.

Must Wait Till Monday

No changes in the police force itself can be taken before Monday's meeting of the commission when six recommendations made by Provincial Police inspectors in a report on Windsor law enforcement will be studied.

Meanwhile, resignation of Constable Gilbert Ouellette as president of the Windsor Police Association is scheduled to come before a special meeting of the association today.

Constable Ouellette confirmed Thursday night that he had tendered his resignation Sept. 11 but emphasized that it was not directly connected with the reorganization. He gave dissension in the ranks of police and disagreement with the association's board of directors as the reasons for his resignation.

Millbrook WMS Study Japan

MILLBROOK, September 16—(ENS)—Mrs. M. E. Hobbs gave a talk on her impressions of the School for Leaders, recently held at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, at the September meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United church Millbrook.

She outlined the devotional, recreational and social periods of the school and stressed the importance of community friendship secretary's work and the call for continued sending of supplies of food and clothing as well as more missionaries to Japan. In order to obtain a better knowledge of this country, Mrs. Hobbs told the members that they should read books and magazine articles about Japan and make use of all available films. Some of these books were provided members by the book shelf award which they won for achieving the highest score in the Peterborough Presbytery, in 1949. The aim for 1950 is five books a member.

The worship service held at the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Percy Stinson, assisted by Miss Finnemore and Mrs. John George and Mrs. J. McKnight. Mrs. Lawrence Winslow sang a Japanese hymn and Mrs. John Ridge and Miss Estella L. Hetherington led the prayers. Mrs. Richard Matchett, president, took charge of the quiz on Japan.

Mrs. W. E. Ball reported that she had prepared a history of the local WMS from its initiation, which will be deposited in the Presbytery archives.

An invitation from Centreville WMS to attend their Thankoffering Service, September 28, was accepted.

READY FOR WORLD TOUR—After 18 months of hard work, Italian architect-hobbyist Attilio Savoia, right, and his son Lucio, finish up their scale model of St. Peter's basilica. First complete and accurate reproduction of the famous church since 1500 A.D., the model is complete in every detail, even to working fountains and electric lighting. Blessed by the Pope, it will go on world-wide tour.

James, Brother of Jesus Man Of Authority

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD

When Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household" (Matthew 10:36), he was speaking out of what must have been His own sorrowful experience.

In John 7:5 we read that "neither did His brethren believe in Him." Apparently, without having any of the cruel and vengeful spirit that Joseph's brothers displayed, there was in a milder way much the same attitude. They thought of Him as a dreamer, and they taunted Him with His claims of such a great mission. A great feast, the feast of tabernacles, was about to be held at Jerusalem. So, without faith in Him, his brothers urged Him to go. "If thou do these things, show thyself to the world"

Jesus had evidently been saying in the home in Nazareth, as He had said to His parents at the age of twelve, in the temple, that He must be about His Father's business. But Jesus kept His own counsel, and awaited His own time. Constantly there was the consciousness that "His hour had not yet come." So, when His brothers had gone, He went up to Jerusalem, to the feast, in His own way.

What happened there is recorded in John 7, but what we are concerned with here is this background, and in noting the welcome fact that at least two of the brothers of Jesus became earnest Christian disciples. These two, James and Jude, are authors of two New Testament books.

Jude Obscure

Of Jude we do not know much. His book consists of a single chapter, but it is a vivid appeal and warning to early Christians, and it closes with a notable and beautiful benediction, often repeated.

Of James, on the other hand, we know a great deal, partly because of his own longer Epistle, and partly because of references to him in other parts of the New Testament. This James, who is to be distinguished from the Apostle of that name, was the one of the two, James and John, whom Jesus called "Boanerges," the "Sons of Thunder," was the leader in the Christian Church at Jerusalem.

This was a position of considerable authority and influence. Various New Testament references indicate how Christians and leaders in other Christian communities looked to Jeruslam for guidance, and for counsel in matters of controversy that sometimes. arose.

Spiritual Authority

But the notable thing is that the authority of James seems to have been spiritual, rather than official. His influence seems to have been commanding because of his deep integrity, and the purity of his heart and mind.

In our day I think James would have been called a good, democratic Christian, a man of good practical judgment and common sense. The "man with the gold ring," and the goodly apparel (See James 2:1-9), meant no more to him than the poorest saint.

James is the apostle of good works, but of good works springing from Christian faith and character. Luther, in his emphasis upon faith, called the Epistle of James an "epistle of straw," and would have left it out of his Bible.

But even great men are not infallible. I have just read how an eminent scientist scoffed at Edison's incandescent light, saying it would never be of value. The general verdict is that Luther was as wrong about the Epistle of James. It is the Epistle of a genuine Christian, a man of great faith, saying that great faith must be manifest in good works.

Missionary Experiences

WARKWORTH, Sept. 16 (ENS) —The first fall meeting of St. Paul's United Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. H. C. Kelly.

The program was in charge of Mrs. O. B. Hopkins and Mrs. J. A. Greenly.

Mrs. J. A. Greenly introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. E. Tooms, of Campbellford. Mrs. Tooms talked of her personal experiences during the 18 years she spent as a missionary in India. Mrs. Hopkins

A gift of $10 from the Norham Women's Association (branch of St. Paul's) was received. thanked the speaker.

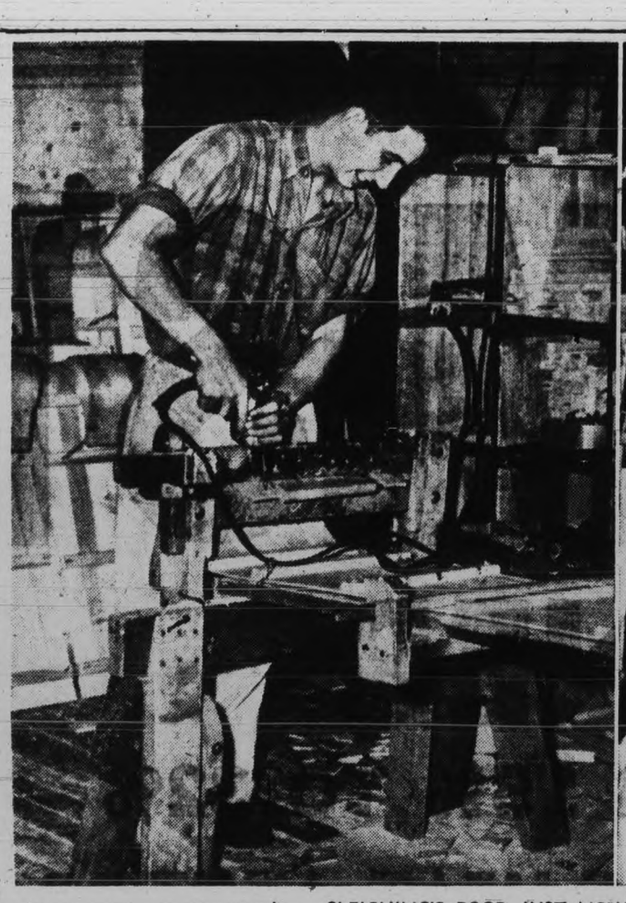
Mark Centennial With Service In Civic Arena

Peterborough's Centennial combined church service arranged by the Ministerial Association will be held in the Civic Arena Sunday night with a special speaker, a well-known guest soloist, songs by a massed choir of 200 singers from the churches and music by the Salvation Army band.



In the morning all churches in the city will hold special Centennial services, many of them with guest speakers, as their contribution to the city's celebration of its 100-year birthday.

Mayor Max J. Swanston, the city council and members of the city boards will attend the morning service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church where the Moderator of the General Assembly is the special speaker.

Guest speaker at the combined evening service which thousands are expected to attend, will be Dr. George B. Gilmour, chancellor of McMaster University and great grandson of the founder of Murray Street church.

The guest soloist will be Albert Marson, soloist with the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir. He is a well-known tenor who has appeared in many recitals and concerts in Toronto with the Royal Conservatory of Music where he is a senior student. He has also sung in many cities in the province and has been heard in Peterborough on a number of occasions.

A good deal of music will be featured at the service by the choir and the Salvation Army band. The service proper will begin at 7:45 p.m. but the band and the choir will have a special program starting at 7 p.m.

SLEIGHING'S POOR JUST NOW, but judging by the toboggans being built, about 250 per day, and shipped, 25,000 within the next couple of months, it looks as though winter is not far off. In the plant of the Peterborough Canoe Company, Bob Killingbeck, LEFT, assembles a short model on a jig. Waiting to be packed into a railway car, a small part of a 2,000-lot shipment for Winnipeg is shown in the RIGHT photo, as shipper Bill Miller, extreme right, talks with his helpers Lorne Beavis and Bill Hudson.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Peterborough Ranks Fourth Among Secondary Group Of Eight Cities In Ontario

Peterborough ranks fourth in population among a secondary group of eight cities that are reviewed statistically for 1949 by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs. Peterborough is also third in total assessment, is third in tax levy per person, and is seventh in its tax rate. In total revenue last year this city was in fourth place for $2,039,903; also fourth for total expenditure at $2,030,041; showing third highest surplus of $9,862.

Kitchener had a deficit of $4,004 and Sarnia $16,382. The cities finishing the year with surpluses were: St. Catharines $66,153; Kingston $21,630; Peterborough $9,862; Brantford $7,969; Oshawa $6,880; Guelph, $4,051.

Toronto stands far out in front with a population of 673,104 (not including its separate suburbs); total assessment of $1,311,479,907; total tax levy of $41,477,560 or $61.62 per capita; and tax rate of 30½ mills for Public School supporters and 33.15 mills for Separate School supporters.

Hamilton, Ottawa, Windsor and London are grouped together, and following them are: Kitchener, St. Catharines, Brantford, Peterborough, Kingston, Oshawa, Guelph and Sarnia.

Kitchener population 42,212; total assessment $39,001,414; total tax revenue $2,145,825; total tax levy per capita $50.83; tax rate in mills: PS and SS supporters each 49½.

St. Catharines: pop. 37,249; total assessment $36,559,724; total tax revenue $1,920,020; tax levy per capita $51.55; tax rate, PS and SS supporters each 50 mills.

Brantford: pop. 37,113; assessment $33,855,160; taxation revenue all sources, $1,780,474; tax levy per capita 46.24; tax rates—Pub. mills, SS 55 mills.

Peterborough: pop. 35,682; assessment $35,030,175; taxation revenue—$1,650,041; tax levy per capita 46.24; tax rates—Pub. School supporters 45½ mills; Sep. School supporters 46½.

Kingston: pop. 32,742; assessment $24,665,510; taxation revenue $1,379,903; tax levy per person $42.14; tax rate PS and SS 52½ mills.

Oshawa: pop. 28,552; assessment $33,251,265; taxation revenue $1,224,379; tax levy per capital $42.88; tax rate, PS and SS 36 mills.

Guelph: pop. 26,588; assessment $17,331,760; tax revenue $1,057,740; tax levy per capita $39.78; tax rate PS and SS 59 mills.

Sarnia: pop. 23,481; assessment $20,879,480; revenue from taxes $1,071,599; tax levy per person $45.64; tax rate: PS 48 and Sep. School supporters 54.40 mills.

Peterborough is fourth in population; third in total assessment; fourth in total taxation revenue; fourth in tax levy per capita; and in its tax rate it is seventh for Public School supporters and also seventh for Separate School supporters.

Guelph with the lowest assessment has the highest tax rate at 59 mills; Kingston also with an apparent low assessment is second highest at 52½ mills; St. Catharines is third at 50 mills; Kitchener fourth 49½ mills; Brantford fifth 49 mills; Sarnia, sixth, 48 mills; Peterborough, seventh, 45½ mills; Oshawa, eighth, 36 mills.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

DISCUSS COMPANY OFFER

Quaker Oats employees, members of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), will meet at the Knights of Columbus hall Sunday to decide whether or not they will accept the latest contract offer of the company. Details of the offer are not available.

GET SERVICE MEDALS

W. H. Stringer, OBE, commissioner of police for Ontario, will today present long-service-and-good-conduct medals to four No. 8 District Provincial Police. The medals will be for at least 20 years service with 10 years good conduct and satisfactory service. The four are District Inspector C. W. Farrow, Sergeant Price Morris, Corporal Lloyd McClure, and Corporal Douglas Wilson of Cobourg. The presentation will be at district headquarters, Charlotte St.

COW SLIGHTLY HURT

It's not only deer that are struck by motorists on Highway 28. Early today three cows, under the impression the grass was greener on the other side, decided to cross the highway at a point more than three miles north of Young's Point. One of them found it a painful experience. She was hit by a northbound car driven by Victor Brown, Burleigh Falls, and sustained a bad cut; but she was not seriously hurt. The owner of the cows is Edward Dunsford. Provincial Constables C. A. Naismith and L. H. Sinson checked to see that Bessie was done right by.

Lumber Concern To Build Office

Peterborough Lumber Company have plans for a two-storey office and display building on their Monaghan Road mill property. It will be 30 ft. by 125 ft., and will be located between the street line and the front of the present building on that site.

The ground floor will be laid out for sales and display purposes, with provision for executive offices upstairs.

The company is retaining their Hunter St. office, and have room to expand in that premises their facilities for receiving orders and accounts and other business. They will also enlarge some lines which they have been carrying in stock, but have not been featuring, such as details of building hardware.

Continue Their Education

252 Students Out of 262 In High School

"The number of students continuing their studies into Grade IX is "very encouraging", says K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools.

In his September report to the Board of Education Mr. Wightman cites some statistics: Of 262 students promoted to Grade IX, 252 are continuing their secondary education—five of them in collegiates outside Peterborough.

Three have permits to leave school and the remaining seven are over 16 years and are now employed.

"This complicates the high school problem," says Mr. Wightman referring to the already overcrowded condition at PCVS, "but just the same it's the kind of thing we like to see."

Used for Teen Town

Confederation school will be available again this year for members of Teen Town, a group of south-end 'teen agers who have a social club. James A. Goldie, Montgomery St., appeared before the Board asking for permission to meet in the school again this year.

The club began around a nucleus of eight members, he said, and it now has an enrolment of 90 boys and girls with about 75 active members. It is self sustaining except for the heat and light that go with the school accommodation.

Members pay the janitor for his extra time and help him clean up. Last year, Mr. Goldie related, the club was one of the first organizations in Peterborough to make a contribution to the Manitoba Flood Relief fund.

The Board by unanimous vote granted the Teen Towners permission to use Confederation for another school year.

Helps Board of Health

Also passed without dissent was a Health Committee recommendation that Dr. Harold Wright, medical officer, be permitted to work with the Board of Health two afternoons a week. This would allow Dr. Wright to keep his hand in on clinical work and keep an eye on pre-school children, Dr. Russell Morgan explained.

Dr. Cameron Craig has received a part-time appointment as a school dental officer. He will work under Dr. Jethroe Graham, and supply his own materials and office space.

At the end of the year the whole matter will be reviewed to see, if in the opinion of the Board, the post of assistant dental officer should be continued.

Dr. Ralph Honey reminded the Board that October 2-7 is Dental Health Week. Two suitable films from a choice of 14 are to be selected to show in public schools: one for Grades V to VIII, and the other for the junior grades.

Toronto Man Hurt In Crash

James E. Skelhorn, 29, Toronto, is in Lindsay hosital with severe injuries sustained in a car accident Friday night six miles north of Gannon's Narrows.

His injuries include a fractured right thigh, fractured left wrist, facial cuts and bruises. Hospital authorities say he spent a good night and his condition today is satisfactory.

Mr. Skelhorn owns a cottage on Pidgeon lake, near Elim Lodge in Harvey. He was driving along the township road at 6.30 p.m. when his car hit a slippery spot on the road, went out of control and crashed into an oak tree.

The engine was driven in and damage to the car will amount to $300.

Mr. Skelhorn was only a short distance away from his cottage, which he was visiting for the weekend when the accident occurred. He was alone in the car at the time.

Provincial Constables F. M. Rawlings and T. H. Armstrong, both of Peterborough, investigated.

Korean Hospital

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The 176-odd personnel of the Swedish field hospital for Korea are just about ready to leave for the war area. The staff includes 10 physicians, one dentist and two pharmacists, 31 nurses and 48 male attendants, as well as drivers, cooks, etc.

Closely Matched

WALLASEY, Cheshire, England (CP)—Two local golfers ran into a duel of endurance in the final of the Wallasey Club championship. They had to play 102 holes before one of them walked off with the title.

Car, Truck Collide

A car and a panel truck collided Friday as the car, driven by Kenneth Hart, RR 1, Fenelon Falls, was making a left turn from George St., into Romaine St.

The truck was driven by John McCann, 165 Fradette Ave., south on George St. following the car.

Teeth By Bevan

COPTHORNE, Sussex, England —(CP)— Before preaching his sermon at a Roman Catholic church here, Father Camillus said: "You will have to excuse me if I develop a Welsh accent. I am wearing Aneurin Bevan's teeth for the first time." Mr. Bevan, a Welshman, is Britain's health minister and is responsible for the issue of free teeth."

Hold Test Reunion At Kawartha Club

Sports, business, entertainment and special events was the schedule today for the 22nd annual reunion of the CGE Test Alumni Association. More than 400 testmen attended at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club and plant cafeteria.

President of the company, H. M. Turner of Toronto, spoke at the noon luncheon at which Association president Hugh Todd presided. Hugh Rose spoke on the history of the TAA.

Golf, tennis, softball, horseshoes and volleyball events were conducted in the afternoon under the chairmanship of Duncan Bath.

Caught Big Muskie

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15 — (ENS).—Carl Spraggins of Tiffin, Ohio, says he can go home satisfied now, after boating a 24½ pound 'muskie in the Trent river at Puff Ball Inn on Friday.

R. F. Kerkoff of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and Peter Kerkhoff of Tiffin, assisted Mr. Spraggins in his battle with the fish.

The fish, which measured 43½ inches in length, was taken on a jointed pikie.

Fingerprints Identify Body Found In River

Fingerprints identified the unknown body that was taken from the Grand river at Brantford in August, Identification Officer Sergeant William Aggas reported today.

Pictures of the bloated and battered face was posted up in the city police guard room here as it was in police stations across Canada.

He turned out to be Edward Baskett, a 40-year-old former Brantford man. His identity was established when his fingerprints were found to be on file with the Canadian Army where he had served during the war.

How and why he was beaten up and how he got in the Grand river are still a mystery.

Reserve Units Plan Army Week

Army week celebrations by the two local reserve force units next week will be limited to a straight display of equipment at the armouries Tuesday night.

Lt.-Col. M. E. Clark, E.D., commanding officer of the 50th Heavy A.A. Regiment, R.C.A, said today that assistance from army centres is not available this year. He added that the public are invited to the parade Tuesday night to inspect the equipment and ask any questions they wish.

The radar convoy for picking up and checking on targets is probably the most interesting part of the unit's equipment. In addition to this and the trucks there is the predictor which transmits information to the three 3.7 Ack Ack guns. The three guns were completely modernized in the spring and now can be used for either ack ack or anti-tank firing.

At the same time Tuesday the equipment of the 28th Technical Squadron (37th Heavy A.A. Workshop), R.C.E.M.E., will be on display.

Thursday night will be the regular parade.

Youth On Golf Course Run Over By Truck

COBOURG, Sept. 15. — Don Williams, age 16, employed for the past two weeks by the Cobourg Golf Club, received an injured shoulder late yesterday afternoon when a truck chassis ran over him. The vehicle, which had been converted into a tractor-like machine to maintain the golf course, was being driven by E. H. Smith when it ran over a bump. Williams, who was riding with him, fell off and one rear wheel ran over his right shoulder.

Hen or Rooster?

White Leghorn Crows and Also Lays Eggs

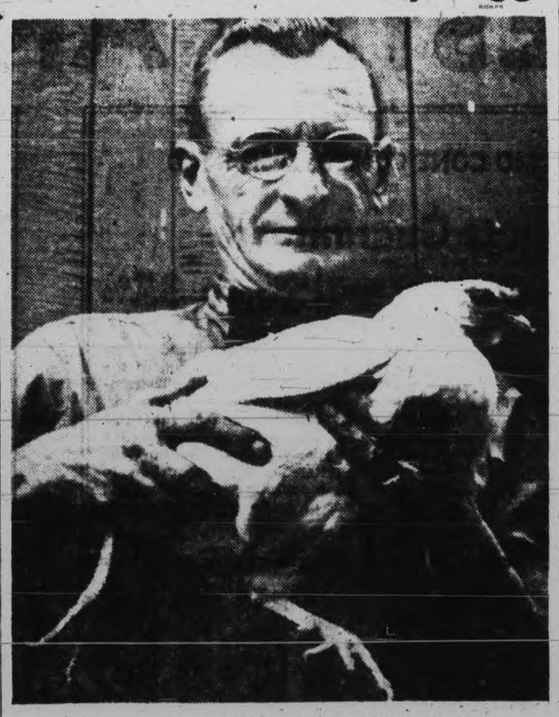
Birds of a feather flock together but there's one bird in Peterborough which just doesn't know in which group it belongs, the roosters or the hens.

"Just one of those things," said William Wight, 167 Adaline St., as he looked at his White Leghorn hen—or rooster.



This bird has taken over as king of the Wight henhouse. It bawls and brushes the other hens around the pen just like a rooster, has a spur on one leg and a bit of one on the other. It's tail is like a rooster's and it crows every morning. But the game little bird produces an egg a day.

Hen? or rooster? Three solutions have been offered on this sex problem, by persons somewhat learned in such matters.

The first is that in colonies of females where no male is about, one particular bird in the flock has to dominate, to take the place of the absent male. (But is the Wight bird a hen?) If this bird, as a hen, has taken over in place of the rooster, it is not only changing its mental attitude toward its mates but also its physical characteristics, evidenced in the spur and the tail.

The second possible but improbable solution is that the bird is a rooster with motherly instincts. In this case the bird's desire for motherhood is so strong that somehow he has tricked Mother Nature into letting him lay eggs.

The third and most probable solution lies in the food of the birds. Tests in universities have proved that if a hen is given a certain diet, it will begin to show characteristics of a rooster. Crowing each morning is generally the main effect. But strangely enough, Mr. Wight's feed for all the birds has affected only the one hen.

WILLIAM WIGHT WITH HIS CROWING HEN

Whatever the reason, Mr. Wight is not worried so long as he gets an egg a day, with or without the crowing.

U.K. Positive She Can Pay Her Own Way

Defence Spending Not Expected To Upset Economy

LONDON, Sept. 16—(Reuters)—Paying her own way at last, Britain doesn't expect her new defence commitments to spoil her recovery. Financial experts said today that her three-year £3,070,000,000 ($9,520,000,000) rearmament program should be possible within her expanding economy—with some help from the United States.

There was high expectation that increasing British industrial production would more than compensate for the greater part of the national income to be devoted to armaments.

The new spending on defence will take 10 per cent of the national income, instead of seven per cent.

But while three per cent extra is being taken out of production for arms, British industry should still maintain its annual five-per-cent increase in annual production, these sources said.

Not Much Worried

Government economists, therefore, show little concern about the plan's effect on the British economy.

No special financial arrangements have been announced, nor has an autumn budget. The immediate effects of the defence program on exports and civilian supplies are thought likely to be minor and delayed.

Prime Minister Attlee opened this week's defence debate in parliament by saying: "We have been working at full stretch and with good effect." Britain was paying her way for the first time since some years before the second world war. Along with her sterling-area partners she was in approximate dollar balance, and was making some increase in dollar reserves.

Allowing for a possible U.S. contribution of about $1,680,000,000 during the three-year span, the extra British spending was not expected to make any substantial difference to internal budgeting.

This year the extra expenditure on forces pay was being absorbed within the existing budget.

July exports were a record 21 per cent above the monthly average for peak fourth quarter of 1948. The overall external payments gap was closed in July.

COMMANDOS IN ACTION — Within 24 hours after the British government announced that Royal Marine Commandos would be sent to Korea, the unit was ready to go. Fit and trained they make a formidable force. British troops are taking part in a 70-mile offensive along the Taegu front which is part of the invasion pincers.

Union Leaders Ask Red Ban

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Reuters). —One of Britain's most powerful trade union leaders today asked the government to ban the Communist party.

The call came from Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the 1,300,000-strong Transport and General Workers' Union.

Deacon's body encompasses the drivers of London's buses, half of which were off the streets today in an unofficial strike.

Labor Minister George Isaacs described it Friday as Communist led and part of a huge plot to disrupt the nation's industries.

About 16,500 drivers and conductors were on strike, with 3,000 vehicles idle. But at 24 of the city's 52 bus depots the men voted to stay on the job.

Three More Rustlers Arrested In Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 16—(CP)—Police said they are holding three more Montreal district "cattle rustlers" today after a series of arrests Friday.

The unidentified trio was arrested near Farnham, Que., 50 miles southeast of here, while they were bringing allegedly stolen cattle to market in Montreal.

Police said the men used a light van to rustle the cattle from farms in several eastern townships counties.

Earlier this month police arrested two other men for cattle theft in the Laurentian district north of here.

Labor Congress Strikes Further Blows At Reds

MONTREAL, Sept. 16—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today entered the final day of its annual convention after a week devoted largely to thrashing the Red fringe of its 500,000 members.

When it winds up its session later today, the convention will have gone down in Canadian labor history as one of the roughest on Communists since they first began getting a toehold on Canadian unions.

The approximately 700 delegates administered the final blow Friday by issuing directions to all its affiliates to rid themselves of Communistic officers under penalty of having themselves dropped from the Congress itself.

A second decision of the T.L.C. put an outright ban on Communists or sympathizers as delegates to future conventions.

Must Prove Innocence

And the Communists were warned that, where there was any suspicion of their following the party line, it would be up to themselves to prove their innocence. They will be considered guilty until they demonstrate otherwise.

"We're going to give them the same treatment as we'd get in Russia," the convention was told by Marcel Franck, chairman of the constitution committee that proposed the new policy.

"We're liquidating them," he told cheering delegates who voted in the toughened program by a majority of around 600 to 10.

The small minority of T.L.C. Left-Wingers, which had made spasmodic fights against other anti-Red policies earlier in the week, gave up completely on these moves and let them go through without a protest.

Philippine Volcano Claims 84 Lives

MANILA, Sept. 16 (CP). — Mighty Hibok Hibok volcano today sent villagers scurrying for cover from red-hot ashes after killing an estimated 84 persons in its latest eruption.

The southern Philippines volcano injured 35 others.

Residents of three nearby villages were evacuated to other parts of Camigiun Island as the big volcano continued to erupt.

The estimate of 84 dead came from the Manila Bulletin's correspondent on the scene. The Red Cross estimated 60 to 70 dead.

Three small naval craft were standing by to take off villagers if necessary.

Propose US-German Troops In Unified Defence Force

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—An historic American proposal to include United States and German troops in a unified battle force for the defence of western Europe today confronted the North Atlantic Council. The plan demanded one of the gravest decisions from the Atlantic Alliance since it came into being.

The plan was outlined to the Council late Friday by Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, who presented it as a one-package deal.

He told the representatives of the other 11 Atlantic powers that the United States is ready to take the revolutionary step in its own foreign policy and assign troops to a European force, provided the other nations take other steps necessary to assure an adequate defence.

Among these other steps, Acheson explained, the United States considers it essential to include provision for the formation and arming German units with, however, the limitation that they should not constitute a German national army and should be entirely subject to the control of the proposed allied command.

Hope For Quick Acceptance

Today is the second and, according to schedule, the last day of the 12-nation council's session here. American diplomats were hopeful that the proposals which Acheson laid down would win acceptance by tonight.

Friday 15 closed-door meetings were authoritatively described as having produced no evidence of basic disagreement, although since Acheson was the last of the ministers to speak, their reaction to his presentation could not be judged fully.

Here are the salient points of the American plan, reported by fully-informed diplomatic sources:

1. Creation of a central, integrated western European defence force under the command staff headed by a supreme commander.

2. Assignment to this force of national contingents of all the different Atlantic treaty nations, specifically including a substantially reinforced American army in Europe.

3. Employment of all the available manpower which can be mustered, including troops from western Germany.

Suggests Priorities

4. Reorganization of the Atlantic treaty machinery to provide for supervision of production of arms and equipment, according to a system of priorities.

5. Establishment of financial co-operation machinery, with the United States prepared to help step up the arms output of any country which already is making

Royal Wedding At Glamis Castle

GLAMIS, Scotland, Sept. 16 — (Reuters)—Royal Glamis Castle 1,000-year-old ancestral home of the Queen today formed an impressive background for a wedding which linked Britain's royal family with that of Denmark.

Denmark's Prince Georg and Scottish Viscountess Anson, 32-year-old niece of the Queen, were married in the castle today after days of last-minute confusion.

Friday night the wedding plans were in a "complete muddle" and Viscountess Anson had "no idea" what form the ceremony would take.

Today the Queen arrived with Princess Margaret at the castle 10 minutes before the end of the service but did not see the ceremony.

The marriage was conducted in Danish and English, the actual ceremony being performed by Rev. Mogens Buch, pastor from a Danish seamen's mission in England.

He was assisted by Canon H. C. Rorison, Scottish Episcopal clergyman. Mr. Rorison was not allowed by his bishop to be the principle officating clergyman because the Viscountess had divorced her former husband.

Cutting Aid To Greece Doesn't Help Herself

ATHENS, Sept. 16 (AP).—The United States notified the Greek government today it will cut Marshall-plan aid because of dissatisfaction with Greek efforts to help themselves.

The American decision was made known at a conference between Paul Porter, chief of the economic co-operative administration, and leading agency officials with Premier Sophocles Venizelos and his coalition government leaders.

A spokesman for Porter said the Americans felt that Greece had not "done as much as it could to help itself, and therefore there was going to be a reduction in the amount of aid."

Greece originally was allocated $220,000,000 in Marshall-plan funds for the current fiscal year. Amount of the cut was not disclosed.

Finally Rescued

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16. (AP) — Herman Knopfel, 21, pinned beneath his overturned car for two hours after he lost control of it on a lonely road today, attracted rescuers by building a signal fire. Knopfel used matches from his pocket and upholstery from a seat in the wrecked car to build the fire. A passing motorist notified firemen who freed Knopfel.

May Restore College

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —Plans are under way to restore Wilberforce Institute here as an all-Negro college at a cost of $50,000. Final decision on the project will be made by the general conference of the British Methodist Church. Considerable repair work would be needed on the building, put up in 1857.

Police Raid House, Seize $100,000 Sweep Tickets

OTTAWA, Sept. 16. (CP)—Police Friday night raided a home in the nearby Dow's Lake district and seized more than $100,000 in sweepstake tickets.

The tickets were supposedly issued by army, navy, air force veterans sweepstakes on a race to be run Nov. 18.

Arrested in connection with charges of conducting a lottery were, Christopher D. Miller, 57, and Christine Donaldson, 36. Both will appear in magistrate's court today.

Police said the tickets seized during the raid were probably counterfeits, and indicated that other arrests would likely follow further investigation.

Also seized by police during the raid was a mailing list of several thousand names, containing information regarding residents from almost every city in Canada.

Included in the truck load of tickets and stationery carted away by police were 10,000 mailing pieces containing a reproduction from an Ottawa newspaper story, with the heading "Canadians Get $272,500 From Irish Sweepstakes."

Slugs Boy 10 Convict Makes Escape

Put Up Road Blocks Around Kingston In Hunt For Prisoner

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 16 —(CP)—Provincial Police and penitentiary guards manned road blocks along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River today in a hunt for 45-year-old Boynton St. John who broke out of Portsmouth Penitentiary Friday night.

He slugged Jimmy Biggs, 10-year-old grandson of Chief Keeper A. J. Atkins, while working as a trusty in the basement of the prison warden's house. Then he walked into Mr. Atkins house, phoned for a cab and escaped with a stolen coat, hat, and possibly a loaded revolver.

St. John left behind an unconscious lad, Jimmy Biggs, whom he slugged over the head with a sharp instrument, causing a compound fracture of the skull. The escaped convict is considered dangerous. He was serving two years and three years consecutively for theft and uttering.

The Biggs lad returned from school this afternoon and went down to the basement of the stone house, one block east of the prison. St. John had been working in the grounds. He was hiding in the basement when the boy entered. He called the lad's name and when the boy answered, St. John struck him over the head. Then he stole the weapon and a coat and felt hat belonging to the chief keeper, A. J. Atkins, and escaped by taxi to Gananoque.

When the lad recovered consciousness, his head was in a pool of blood. He managed to reach the street, leaving behind a trail of blood, and was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he was operated on by Dr. D. W. Boucher. The brain was not injured.

Using the phone in the chief keeper's house, St. John called the Modern Taxi in Kingston, asked the fare to Gananoque, and was told it would cost $6. Driver Ray Babcock picked him up and drove him to the junction of No. 2 Highway and the scenic highway connecting with the International Bridge.

Babcock told investigators he had no suspicion there was anything wrong. St. John was wearing a top coat and a felt hat, and the driver noticed nothing amiss. It is not known whether St. John had managed to obtain any money although it is reasonable to assume he paid Babcock, as the latter did not report the matter to his office.

Must Organize Own Civil Defence

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP). — Ontario municipalities must set up their own civil defence organizations to combat the effects of atomic or other attacks, Arthur Welsh, provincial secretary and civil defence chief, announced on Friday.

Civil defence organizations will be built around a nucleus of civic officials and volunteer organizations and, where needed, provincial and federal agencies, said Mr. Welsh.

Some municipalities would be ordered to create such organizations, while other communities not required to do so might wish to take such action. Each municipal authority will be responsible for evaluating the consequences of attack or disaster and for establishing a public warning system, care and evacuation of injured.

Mr. Welsh said a civil defence school would be established at either Camp Borden, or Meaford to train leaders and future instructors of civil defence workers. Such training was needed.

Special courses for specialists in defence measures against atomic and chemical warfare will begin at the army's Camp Borden site in September.

Abbott Has Surplus

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP) —A budgetary surplus of $292,700,000 was reported Friday by Finance Minister Abbott from governmental operations in the five months ended Aug. 31. This compared with a surplus of $294,600,000 at the same point in the preceding fiscal year and with Mr. Abbott's estimate in his budget last March that the surplus for the whole of 1951-52 would total $20,000,000.

Injuries Force Reardon To Quit Hockey

MONTRTAL, Sept. 15 (CP).— Kenny Reardon, rugged defenceman and spark-plug these last few years of Montreal Canadiens, has retired from professional hockey.

Frank Selke, managing director of the National Hockey League Canadiens, made this known today in a story written for a Montreal paper today.

"Reardon's decision is final and irrevocable," Selke wrote.

"In the Stanley Cup series of 1946-47 Kenny aggravated a back injury which had plagued him from boyhood and three specialists advised him at that time he should have an operation and retire from hockey."

Selke told how Reardon was loath to quit, and to get himself into condition the Winnipeg-born ace went into the Labrador bush during the next summer and came back to continue his starry role with Canadiens.

Shoulder Still Bad

In the playoffs with Rangers last spring Kenny dislocated his shoulder, and, said Selke, this injury has not responded to treatment.

"Reardon is convinced that he should withdraw from active play while he is still in one piece," wrote Selke.

The Canadiens' chief said he would ask the next Canadiens' directors meeting that Reardon be retained as a goodwill ambassador.

Reardon was born in April 1921 and turned professional with Canadiens in the 1940-41 season. Canadiens have been his only pro team.

Tiny Car, Truck Meet Head-On

HAMILTON, Sept. 16 (CP)— In a pre-dawn accident on a condemned highway curve one person was killed and two others critically injured today in a head-on collision between a tiny British automobile and a 10-ton tractor-trailer.

Dead is Carmen J. Peace, 28, of Hamilton.

In poor condition in hospital where they underwent an emergency operation are Hilary Tozer, 19, and Glenn Coombes, 22, both of Hamilton.

The accident occurred on the mausoleum curve on the Toronto-Hamilton highway. A new section of highway replacing this dangerous curve is under construction and is expected to be completed soon.

The force of the impact left the small car twisted, torn, flattened and lying on one side. Provincial police and bystanders worked feverishly with crowbars to rip the top off and release the injured passengers.

Biggest Liner Built In US Changed Over to Troop Ship

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. (AP) —The US Government announced Friday the 48,000-ton super passenger liner it is helping to build will be finished as a troop transport.

Three 13,000-ton combination passenger-cargo ships also under construction will be converted into troop ships along with the big liner, the Federal Maritime Board and Maritime Administration announced.

The changeover is being made at the request of the defence department on recommendation of the joint chiefs of staff, the maritime agencies said.

Vice Admiral Edward L. Cochrane, chairman of the board and chief of the maritime administration, said these four vessels were selected for conversion into troopships because the work could be done on them with the greatest economy by initiating it early.

The 48,000-toner now scheduled for conversion will carry upwards of 12,000 troops while the three smaller ships will carry 2,500 to 3,000 troops each.

The superliner, under construction at Newport News, Va., was to have been the largest and most luxurious vessel ever built in the US.

Capture Kimpo Airfield As Taegu Offensive Helps To Close UN Pincers

Report 40,000 Men Backing Up Marines; Six Destroyers Trick Red Defenders In Invasion Landing

TOKYO, Sept. 16—(AP)—Tank-led United States Marines today captured Kimpo airfield, 12 miles northeast of the new Inchon beachhead and 15 miles northwest of Seoul—the Communist-held former Korean Republic capital. This swift drive inland from the beachhead established Friday was made as a big Allied offensive kicked off all along the 120-mile perimeter on the old beachhead in southeast Korea. It was Gen. Douglas MacArthur's grand-scale gamble to end the war soon.

(Reuters News Agency reported that U.N. troops pushed a spearhead into the outskirts of Seoul. The Agency attributed the report to the South Korean general staff.)

A U.S. air force spokesman said the Marines seized the Kimpo airfield against relatively light resistance. He said the field was secure and soon may be in operation.

Secure Beachhead

The leathernecks swiftly secured their beachhead after 262 Allied ships arrived off the Yellow Sea port with some 40,000 troops. At daybreak Saturday they began fanning out toward the Red-held capital of Seoul, 22 miles eastward.

Troops and equipment poured ashore. Inchon's port installations were put into operation quickly, despite the thunderous naval and air bombardment preceding the landings.

Meanwhile, on the old Allied beachhead, the Eighth Army's big push had gained from one to three miles on a 70-mile front — from the Taegu sector to the South Korea coast.

(The Reuters report said front-line dispatches placed UN troops little more than a mile from the centre of Seoul.

(The report also said Kimpo, an airfield and town 10 miles from Seoul, had been taken, and that U.N. fighter planes were operating from there.

Behind the advance Marine units were some 40,000 men. Offshore was the liberation fleet of 262 ships—including vessels of many nations.

Second Sabotage Case In Navy In Two Days

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Reuters) —Another case of suspected sabotage in the British Aircraft Carrier Vengeance—the second within two days—was reported Friday night. A main valve had been left open in such a way that the engine-room would have been damaged if it had not been found before the propelling machinery was brought up to full power.

Offer Better Price

DUBLIN, Sept. 16. (Reuters)— Irish butter which was to have gone to Britain has been sold to Western Germany, which offered a better price, it was announced Friday. The republic of Ireland has sold 2,900 tons of butter to Western Germany which is negotiating for another 500 tons.

35 Men Missing After Blast Sinks Naval Ship

ST. MALO, France, Sept. 16— (AP)—Thirty-five officers and men of the French navy were reported missing after an explosion [illegible] coast today.

The ship, a meteorological craft, went down in the Bay of Frennale, about 80 miles south of Cherbourg.

Naval rescue vessels and tugs from all along the French coast rushed to the scene.

A Merchant Marine Ministry informant said about 40 of 75 crew members were believed rescued.

Plan Investigation

The frigate was identified as La Place, the former 1,400-ton U.S. frigate Roanoke.

La Place, adapted for weather observation, was en route from Brest to take part in ceremonies at the opening of a new lock in St. Malo, when the mysterious blast occurred.

Andre Monteil, marine secretary of state, hurried to the scene to take charge of an investigation into the explosion.

Two Die; 5 Hurt In Car Crash

PEMBROKE, Sept. 16 (CP).— Two persons were killed and five others injured, two of them critically, in a highway accident east of here Friday.

Dead are: Mrs. R. A. Elliott, 58, of Copper Cliff, and Lawrence Lacroix, 2, of Pembroke, who died in hospital shortly after the accident.

R. A. Elliott, 61, husband of the dead woman, is in hospital with multiple injuries and his condition is described as "very serious." In similar condition is Elmer Kidd, 15, of Pembroke, with two broken legs, concussion and severe shock.

Also in hospital are Mervin Condie, 22, of Pembroke, suffering shock, concussion, lacerations, fractured ribs and a possible fractured leg. Miss Doreen Sheer and Mrs. Renaud Lacroix, also of Pembroke, are in hospital, but their condition is not described as serious.

It was reported the car driven by Condie crashed into a car driven by Mr. Elliott.

Adventure Quay Located In Heart Of Paris

By ERNEST SANDFORD

PARIS —(Reuters)— Thousands of people daily may glance down at the half-dozen ships tied up in a stretch of the River Seine without suspecting the stories behind them and their skippers.

The ships, flying the flags of many nations in the heart of Paris range from scow-like houseboats to knife-prowed yachts. The captains of these vessels are equally varied.

One of the latest adventurers to cast off from this "quay of adventure" was 28-year-old Marcel Bardiaux, who set out in his tiny sloop, Four Winds, to sail single-handed around the world.

Well Known

An incoming craft was the bulbous Dutch barge, De Brave Hendrix, belonging to Jack Bilbo. This black-bearded giant is already well-known in many lands for his "adventures" in art and literature.

He is the sculptor of the largest nude statue in the world, painter of a thousand incomprehensible canvases and author of "I Carried a Gun for Al Capone."

Son of a German circus-owner, he had been drifting around the Mediterranean with no other object than to "sail on and on while the boat stands it."

Sails Alone

A French adventurer who moors frequently at the quay is Jean Saint-Maur, a former naval man who sails alone in an old submarine chaser rechristened Tao.

When ashore, he paints murals, organizes art exhibitions and prepares the decor and costumes for ballets. He says that his curious, combined profession of painter and sailor once saved his life.

Captured by the Japanese during the war, he was already facing a firing squad when the officer in command asked his profession. When he replied "artist," he was reprieved and al-painting.

But of all the craft that come and go at the quay of adventure, none is stranger than that of Miss Isabel Perrin, an American girl who has made Paris her home.

Her craft is simply a small wooden hut floating on empty oil cans, and edged with window boxes filled with flowers. A ladder links it to the shore and there is a dog kennel on the roof. Miss Perrin's favorite pastime is to sit at the wide windows of her floating home and watch other adventurers sail by.

Feel Short Tremor

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 16.—(AP) — An earth tremor of short duration and apparently moderate intensity was felt here at 11:55 p.m. (11:55 p.m. EDT) Friday night.

A STURDY OAK TREE did this to the car of James E. Skelhorn, 29, Toronto. The accident took place in Harvey township Friday night when Mr. Skelhorn's car hit a soft spot on the township road and careened straight into the oak tree causing $300 damage. He is now in Lindsay hospital with a broken right thigh and left wrist.

Rock In Quebec Divides Haves From Have-Nots

By JACK SCOTT

QUEBEC CITY—In most towns the dividing line between the haves and have-nots is a street or a row of factories or, traditionally, the railway tracks.

In Quebec it is a cliff of rock. The top of the cliff, dominated by the heavy tourtourelles of the Chateau Frontenac, is Upper Town. Here live the haves. The bottom of the cliff, on a shelf between the rock and the St. Lawrence, is Lower Town. Here live the have-nots. No other town has such a neat geographic cleavage between suburb and slum.

In Lower Town is the industrial parish of St. Sauveur which, at one point, may be reached from above by a curving roadway. Today I went down that hill in a shiny new Pontiac with Roger Lemelin, a somewhat sensational case of a man who bridged the two.

As we rumbled down the cobblestones, looking out over the crowded rooftops and chimney pots of the basse ville, Lemelin, said, mournfully, "The hill is gentle, but the people cannot climb it."

Lemelin is 30, looks like a matinee idol, talks like Charles Boyer has a city apartment and a country home, a wife and four children (whom he refers to as Pierre "le magnifique," Jacques "le fantastique" and the three-months'-old twins, Dianna and Andre, "the unexpected.")

He also has a good chance of being Canada's best novelist with one of his books already acclaimed (by R. K. Sandwell, among others) as near greatness.

Roger was born in St. Sauveur, lived in its genteel poverty most of his life. Unlike his neighbors, among them Albert Guay, who tried too hard, Lemelin climbed the steep hill and all that it represents. Today, when he went back, it was for a visit alone.

As A Prison

Lemelin and I met for lunch and I heard something of his story.

His first novel, "Au Pied de la Pente Douce" (which means "at the foot of the gentle slope") was a highly controversial success in French-Canada, promptly set him up as the enfant terrible of Quebec literature. Published in English as "The Town Below" it excited interest here and in the United States. His second novel, "Les Plouffes," will be out soon in English.

Both are stories of Lower Town and so I suggested we pay a visit to the scene. As we drove in his car through the city, Lemelin, who speaks English with something of an effort, rambled on about his ambitions.

"I think I know where I am going," he said. "I want to write good books. This is my reason of living. Without that you cannot be happy. I don't want to teach or preach. Just to say what I see. For a time I thought we were French living away from France, but when I went to Paris I realized that we are Canadian. I came home to write of my own people because I understand them."

When we had reached the driveway down the hill Roger slowed the car and looked soberly at the cluttered district below us.

"I feel like a prisoner who goes back to visit the prison," he said. "Sometimes I go back to St. Sauveur to play poker with my old friends, but when I return up the hill it is like being free again.

"I ask myself why I have escaped when others do not. It is, I think, pride and ambition. I wanted to break away from here. But the others—they accept their life, they earn $35 a week in the shoe factory or the glue factory. It becomes a state of mind. They have no wish to be free of their parochialism."

He pointed to a clearing on the side of the steep hill. "I remember fights we had there. Our gangs against the guys from above. They called us 'the bums.' We called them 'the English.' Yes, we fought that way, but so few of those friends dreamed of fighting for a place atop the hill. In St. Sauveur they look up at the towers above and see only another world."

With Laughter

As we drove through the narrow streets of the district I commented on the impeccable appearance of even the oldest houses and the evidence of high spirits and gaiety, rarely, if ever, seen in the poorer districts outside Quebec. It reminded me of Mexico where the gayest songs are heard in the worst squalor.

"It is not really a city district at all," Lemelin said. "The outlook is that of the village. It is a village happiness of people who don't know about the outside world. At night they sit on the sidewalks and play cards. They are the proof that ignorance is bliss. Myself I prefer to be less blissful.

"Ah," he said hastily, "but do not think of these Quebecois as simpletons. They are the extreme in individualists, each dramatizing his life.

"The atom bomb may drop up there on the hill, but here in St. Sauveur the people will be too busy making love or being angry or gossiping or occupying themselves with themselves to notice the bang. They always bewilder the outsider who tries to understand them. Which, of course, makes them interesting to write about."

We made a complete circle of teh district, pausing to lok at the small shop of M. Guay, who is now under the death sentence for blowing up that airplane, and then swung back up the hill again.

"Now," said Roger Lemelin, "we go back to where life is less happy, but full fo challenge. It is surprising how easy the grade appears from a nice new car."

Sees Labor Shortage

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 16—(CP)—Shortage of male workers for industry this winter was forecast here Friday by B. G. Sullivan, Ontario Regional Superintendent of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Mr. Sullivan addressed the Press Day directors' luncheon at the Western fair. He warned that increasing demands of industry as well as a general increase in need for workers will bring about a "definite shortage of labor this winter."

a maximum effort with its own resources.

By far the most controversial of the points is that dealing with limited German rearmament. Acheson said the principle should be accepted now, but that it would be many months before German units could be raised, trained, and brought to the point of readiness to receive combat equipment. Therefore, he argued, the Atlantic Treaty allies whose armament programs already are well advanced have an automatic priority over whatever units may be formed in western Germany.

Judge Rules Farmer Unfit For Trial

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16 (CP).—Alex Gokey, Edmonton district farmer, central figure in the case of the bartered bride, Friday was declared mentally unfit to stand trial and was led weeping from a county court room here.

The 71-year-old man, charged with conspiracy in a bogus marriage of a 15-year-old Edmonton girl, was ordered committed to a mental hospital for an indefinite period.

Allan Ajas, 18-year-old brother of the bride, and Mrs. Jessie Ajas 24, his sister-in-law, pleaded innocent to a charge of conspiring to evade the Marriage Act.

The girl is alleged to have gone through a marriage ceremony with her brother acting as groom under Gokey's name. Gokey, police said, posed as her father, and Mrs. Ajas was a witness at the wedding. The girl has been charged in juvenile court with misconduct.

The story told police was that Gokey had promised to pay the brother $500 for arranging the marriage.

Collegiate Scholarships and Bursaries Amount to $6,057

A banner scholarship year for the graduating PCVS classes, the June departmental examination results, have brought a record total amount of scholarships and bursaries to the students, $6,057.

The most recent award was made known Friday when the local Kinsmen club announced a third $100 bursary would be awarded to Miss Margaret Capron, a Dominion-Provincial bursary recipient of $400. Other Dominion-Provincial bursary students who intend to enter university are Sam Murphy and Joan Seymour, who also received $100 bursaries from the Kinsmen.

The Board of Education $500 bursary was awarded this week to three pupils who had already won scholarships: Miss Joyce Beggs, David Ward and George Gough. The amounts are $215, $175 and $125 respectively.

The annual $100 Kiwanis bursary, awarded to a member of the Kiwanis Key clubs was given this year to James Fowler, it was announced Thursday.

Scholarship winners announced to date are: Mary Elizabeth Rowell, J. S. McLean scholarship, University of Toronto, English and history, $870; Jessie Blackwell, Dickson Trinity College, University of Toronto, for English, history, Latin and French, $880; Joan V. Seymour, W. P. Firth, University of Toronto special award, $100; J. Ronald McGill, W. P. Firth, University of Toronto, special award, $100; David A. Ward, Mowat, Queen's University, for mathematics, $232; Joyce M. Beggs, Nicholls Queen's University, for French, $285; Phyllis A. Davidson, Knight Queen's University, for biology, $825; George Gough, Canadian Legion, $275.

Bursaries awarded PCVS students as grants to assist them in their university studies are: Dominion-Provincial, Sam Murphy, Joan Seymour and Margaret Capron, university bursaries of $400; Marilyn Hollingsworth, normal school bursary of $175; James Liscum and Lorna Stewart, collegiate bursaries of $100 each; Kinsmen's club's bursaries of $100 to Sam Murphy, Joan Seymour and Margaret Capron; Kiwanis bursary of $100 to James Fowler; Board of Education, Joyce Beggs, $215, Dave Ward, $175, George Gough, $125.

Congress Approves Law To Allow Marshall To Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. (AP)—Congress overrode Republican protests Friday to approve a special law permitting General George Marshall to take over the civilian post of Secretary of Defense.

The Senate agreed to lift the present legal barrier against appointment of a military man to the post—with the explicit understanding that the rule is waved for Marshall alone.

While the measure now goes to the White House, the Senate must still confirm Marshall to succeed Louis A. Johnson, who resigned under pressure on Tuesday.

Most of the scattered criticism in both chambers was impersonal, but the debate produced some sharply critical references to Marshall's past roles as a diplomat, notably his policies toward the Chinese Communists.

Opponents also contended that putting a soldier in the traditionally civilian defense job might set the stage for future military dictatorship. Rep. Herbert Meyer (Rep., Kansas) said it was "the first goose step" in that direction.

Senator William Jenner (D., Ind.) launched a bitter attack on Marshall, calling him "a living lie" and a "stooge" for State Secretary Dean Acheson.

Captured Kimpo

Some 165 miles to the southeast, allied troops mounted an offensive on the central and southern sectors of the 125-mile United Nations beachhead perimeter — seeking a major breakthrough. A booming artillery barrage kicked off the push.

Bold Strategy

Thus, the lengthening arms of a giant nutcracker were being applied to the North Koreans — a bold strategy planned by Gen. Douglas MacArthur July 12. This was less than three weeks after the tank-led Reds charged southward across Parallel 38—and at a time when the North Koreans were pulverizing US troops along the Kum River.

MacArthur said the big pincer movement would cause the Korean Red Army to "disintegrate" sooner or later. MacArthur obviously gambled that Red China or Russia would not fight.

Lt.-Gen. Walton Walker, US Eighth Army Commander, told AP correspondent Jack MacBeth that "it should be over quickly" —if the forces in front of him are all that is left of the Red Korean army.

The success of the Inchon landings was credited in large measure to the daring of six destroyers—and a blunder by the Reds

AP correspondent Relman Morin reported that the destroyers —units of Task Force 77 — were ordered to cruise slowly by Wolmi Island which guards the entrance to Ichon Harbor, to draw fire from shore positions.

Open Fire

The Red guns were silent for anxious minutes. Then they made the mistake of opening up on the "sitting ducks." This revealed their positions to the heavy guns of cruisers and carrier planes.

The push on the southern front Saturday was general, from the south coast to Taegu, 70 miles to the north.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the Masan sector—the extreme southern flank of the offensive—that U.S. 25th division units had advanced up to two miles against heavy resistance.

Also in action—on the 25th's right (north) flank—were the U.S. Second Division, the British 27th brigade, the U.S. First Cavalry Division and South Korean units.

They knifed forward on roads leading to Seoul, 165 miles away.

The offensive opened at 6 p.m., EDT, Friday with the second division pushing off from positions east of the Naktong river, southwest of Taegu.

They occupied a commanding hill northwest of Changnyong against fierce resistance.

Kept Pinned Down

Troopers of the first cavalry struck north and northwest of Taegu, by-passing North Koreans dug in on nearby hills. Artillery and planes kept the Reds pinned down while the troopers advanced.

British troops attacked on the first cavalry's left flank while South Korean troops moved forward on the fight. Arrayed in front of the three outfits were an estimated 24,000 Reds—believed the biggest enemy troop concentration along the 125-mile beachhead perimeter.

In all—between the beachhead and the big amphibious landing force in the north—the Communists were believed to have an army of 140,000. The immediate objective of the Inchon landing forces was the recapture of Seoul and the rail and highway supply lines radiating from the former South Korean capital.

"Everything the enemy shoots and all additional replacements he needs have to come through Seoul," MacArthur told AP correspondent Russel Brines.

"We are going to try to seize that distribution area, so that it will be impossible for the North Koreans to get additional men—or more than a trickle of supplies."

Watches Landings

The 70-year-old United Nations commander, wearing his familiar gold-braided campaign cap and faded suntans, watched the landings at Inchon from the flagship of Rear-Adm. James H Doyle, commander of the assault force.

Later, he and his staff boarded a launch and cruised within rifle range of the Reds on the beach.

After the rapid-fire developments at Inchon and the opening of the allied offensive in the southeast, Rear-Adm. Arleigh A Burke told a press conference:

"The Reds are in a helluva bad way and it is about time they realized it. Their best bet is to surrender."

Three army corps were set up for the co-ordinated blows. The 10th army corps, including the U.S. Marines, was the landing force.

On the southeast are the first and ninth corps, including the first cavalry, British and other allies, and the 25th and second divisions.

Overcast skies and rains hampered the offensive during the morning, limiting close support by allied fighters and light bombers. But it cleared in the afternoon.

The Far East Air Force said round-the-clock operations of larger bombers continued. B-29s hammered railroad yards in "various battle sectors."

The U.S. eighth army communique earlier reported the occupation of Angang by South Korean troops who had advanced steadily northward from Kyongju, 10 miles to the south.

Other South Koreans had been reported making progress against stiff resistance north of Yongchon, 17 miles northwest of Kyongju and some 15 miles northeast of Taegu.

Says White Men Don't Know Indian Territory

REGINA —(CP) More than 70 years ago, a young Assiniboine Indian boy watched as white men slew great herds of buffalo and left the carcasses rotting on the great plains of North America.

Ochankugahe, the boy, later went to an Indian school at Lebret, Sask., and then to St. Boniface College in Winnipeg. He now carries the name they gave him at Lebret—Dan Kennedy. But he still believes "the white man does not understand my country."

Kennedy is one of the best-known Indians in Saskatchewan and rated a top authority of Indian lore.

He says the white man in the west "has been 40 years learning a lesson in conservation that a little animal, the beaver, has always known by instinct."

"Over-Capitalizing"

"Now in times of prosperity he is over-capitalizing and mining the land with no thought of the future. He has not learned of the inevitable cycle of nature. And yet in his favor it must be said productive farms that are like oases where once was merely buffalo pasture."

Kennedy would like the federal government to change its policy toward the Indians. He says he favors abolition of treaty money and would like to see the Indian's education on the same basis as that of white children.

"Government handouts and boarding schools produce misfits who will not take their place in the society of this country; who will not try to care for themselves or for their children."

Gives 4,000 Acres

Raleigh, NC, Sept. 16. (AP)—A New York surgeon has granted 4,000 acres of his land in North Carolina for an assembly and recreation area for negroes. Dr. William Sharpe, a specialist in neurosurgery, presented to the board of directors of the Hammocks Beach corporation the deed for the land.

Cowboy Ballads Pay Big Bounty To Rodeo Rider

By The Canadian Press

Canada's top singing cowboy is a Nova Scotian who made good on the prairie rodeo circut before taking to his guitar. Today, Wilf Carter is an internationally-known celebrity whose recordings of western ballads are in great demand.

Carter was born in Guyborough county, NS, but now spends his spare time in summer on his ranch at Carstairs, Alta., and his winters at his home in Clinton, NJ. His working time also divided —between making public appearance tours and records. Latest total of recordings is 248, many of which he wrote himself.

Maybe it's because he's a Maritimer himself, maybe it's because they're so far from cowboy territory, but his most fervent fans are found down east. A series of Wilf Carter fan clubs have sprung up through the Maritimes. One of the most fervid is found in supposedly conservative Ottawa.

Apparently there's quite a feud in progress between Carter and his chief rival, the Maritimes singer, Hank Snow. Recently Carterites felt that their favorite wasn't being given enough time on a popular radio program and let the world know about it.

Contact Everyone

They wrote letters to the station and to their members of parliament. Even A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC's board of governors, was on the receiving end of a letter of protest before the matter was settled amicably.

Wilf headed for Alberta in his youth, and got his share of bumps in the rodeo business. But he found early that he had a way with a guitar and a plaintive western tune, and was soon entertaining customers at the Calgary Stampede in the 1920s'

He later hit the United States and created a wide following as "Montana Slim." Now firmly established, Wilf pays off his income tax in large instalments through one dominion-wide tour this spring and is set for another before the winter sets in. The The rangy singer even looks like a cowboy, even behind the wheel of his 1950 Cadillac convertible.

By the way, you'll never miss his ranch if you're passing through Carstairs. He has his name painted in big white letters on the barn.

Stock Markets Climb Strongly To New Ground

By FRANK KAPLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets pushed strongly ahead into new high ground this week.

Heavy buying carried market leaders well into plus territory despite considerable profit-taking.

Activity increased on the advance and buyers at times flooded markets with orders.

Improving news from Korea and apparent expectations of record earnings by many leading companies spurred investors into the market.

Indications point to full-steam operations of industry. Investors are buying better-class common stocks in increasing quantities. Many observers expect generous dividends by many firms and are buying for immediate returns.

Much of the feeling on Wall Street is that the current market rise is based to a considerable extent on inflation ideas.

One New York broker commented recently: 'The market is saying as eloquently as it can, that the dollar is going to buy less and less and that it is prudent to expend dollars for securities that at least have the chance of appreciating."

Boom First

The New York market started the five days on a downward trend but boomed strongly upwards, rails setting the pace, to touch a four-year high. Steels jumped into the limelight Thursday and buyers overcame heavy profit-taking Friday to climb further into the new high average price territory.

The Associated Press 60-stock average chalked up a gain of .3 at 81.7, highest since 1946 and a gain of 1.2 from the previous Friday.

Canadian markets also climbed. Base Metal stocks attracted heavy buying following news of price increases. The market for Non-Ferrous Metals is reported extremely tight and Producers are having difficulty filling demand. In any case, observers believe base metal producers will have a record year.

In Toronto, the exchange's Base Metal index of representative stocks climbed 3.41 and was at the highest point since 1937.

Industrial stocks reflected the New York trends with papers leading the advance, adding 5.90 at the highest peak since 1934, when the index was first compiled.

Many buyers turned to leading Junior and Senior Gold Producers. The index of Producers rose 3.41. A handful of the more speculative lower-priced stocks were brisk and higher on development and financing news.

Farmer Cleared In Investigation

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP)—An An unidentified Navan, Ont., farmer was cleared by police Friday of suspicion as the supplier of horse-meat said to have been sold in hamburgers at the Canada Central Exhibition here last month.

Complaints during the exhibition led to the closing of some suspected hamburger stands at the fair and examination of the meat showed some contained a quantity of horse-flesh.

Detective James Kettles of the Ottawa police, apointed by Dr. J. J. Day, city medical health officer, visited the Navan farmer Friday in a followup of the case. He came back to report the farmer slaughtered horses for feed for fox farm breeders but there was nothing to indicate he had supplied horsemeat to exhibition concessions.

The detective said the complaints were not so much against the sale of horsemeat as about non-inspection of the meat and its misrepresentation as beef. He added that if a butcher opened a shop, advertised horse meat for sale and had the carcasses properly inspected by health authorities, he would be operating within the law.

City officials believe that the horse-meat sold in hamburgers at the exhibition found its way to Ottawa from Quebec and investigations are still going on.

Pastor Will Show Film Home, School Group

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS).—The executive of the Hastings Home and School Association held its first meeting of the year this week.

Mrs. S. Whitred, program convener, reported that Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood would show a film, Who Will Teach Your Child, at a future meeting.

Mrs. Clifford Scriver was appointed pianist for the coming year.

To Stand Trial

WINDSOR, Sept. 16—(CP)—Two former city constables, Lawrence White and James McCall, were committed Friday for trial in a higher court on a joint theft charge. They are accused of stealing two tires from a service station. The two men were dismissed from their posts as constables by the police commission.

Hastings WA Group Appoints Committees

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS) — Group 3 of the Women's Association held their first meeting of the fall season this week at the home of Mrs. Ethel German. President Mrs. W. A. Thomas was chairman. The program, devotional period and lunch were in charge of Mrs. C. Oliver, Mrs. Clifford Scriver, Mrs. B. J. Preston, Mrs. F. Stevens and Mrs. George Sargeant.

Mrs. J. G. Thompson gave a solo and Mrs. A. Orr a reading.

A telephone committee for the next three months was named, consisting of Mrs. R. Burnham and Mrs. George Brooks. On the visiting committee named were: Mrs. Ethel German and Mrs. A. B. Smith, Albert Street; Mrs. W. Dodd and Mrs. L. Nelson, Front Street; and Mrs. M. Brownell and Mrs. J. H. Hess, Albert Street E. and Norwood Road.

New Army Red Patch To Be Worn Shortly

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — The new red formation patch of the Canadian army's special United Nations brigade will be making its public appearance in and around the training areas across the country in the near future.

Wearing instructions have been issued to the troops.

The patch is made up of a scarlet shield centred with a gold maple leaf and encircled by a wreath of silver olive branches of the same design as that appears on the United Nations flag. The word "Canada" appears in gold lettering across the top.

It will be worn on both sleeves of uniforms and greatcoats directly below corps and unit flashes.

Train In Germany

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15 (Reuters) —Many Dutch troops to be called up for compulsory service will go to Germany for training, Defence Minister W. F. Schokking told parliament Thursday. The minister said the Netherlands has neither the camps nor the training grounds needed for the new army.

Ad-Man Dies

OSHAWA, Sept. 16—(CP)—Robert M. McIntyre, former advertising manager of General Motors Corporation of Canada, died in hospital here Friday. Born in Scotland, Mr. McIntyre served during the Second World War as deputy director of motor vehicles for the Indian government.

Need Engineers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 16—(CP)—Canada requires all the engineers that can be graduated from her universities, J. L. Vance, dominion president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, said Friday night. Mr. Vance was speaking as special guest at a dinner held by the Newfoundland branch of the E.I.C. on its first anniversary.

Army Needing Specialists Still

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — Specialists in certain trades and professions are still in demand for Canada's permanent and special army forces.

Army headquarters said Friday night that with the special United Nations brigade slated to leave Canada about mid-November for training—probably at some Pacific island such as Okinawa—an urgent appeal has been sent out for medical assistants for the active force.

Men with past training and experience in this line are needed and preparations have been made to train the inexperienced. The men are required to fill vacancies in the active force created by sending men to the United Nations force.

Experienced men also are needed for the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps sections in the active and special forces. And from the special force has come a call for officers with previous experience in movement control.

Says Daylight Saving Doesn't Help Power

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — Continuance of province-wide daylight saving would be of no help to the Ontario Hydro Elec- Saunders said Friday. Such action, the chairman said, would only shift the peak consumption period without alleviating it.

"If Toronto and Hamilton, our two biggest customers, continued daylight saving and the rest of the province reverted to standard time that would be a help as it would spread the period of peak consumption. But if all municipalities decided to continue daylight saving time it would not help."

Hastings Group Pack Food Parcel For UK

HASTINGS, Sept. 16 (ENS).—The Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Anglican Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Jones.

The Deanery meeting will be held September 21 in St. John's Church, Peterborough.

A food parcel is being packed for Britain. A sewing meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. C. Baker. Mrs. E. Birdsalls has extended an invitation for a October 4 meeting to be held at her Birdsall home. The hostess served lunch.

Orderly Evacuation

TORONTO, Sept. 16—(CP)—Civil servants evacuated the main legislature building at Queen's Park in 2½ minutes when the fire alarm sounded Friday. But there was no fire. Welders at work in the basement had accidently short-circuited the alarm system.

Queen Elizabeth Charms Irene Dunne

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 16 (AP)—Irene Dunne, home from Britain, is brimming with praise for the Queen.

The actress is back after a six-months absence, during which she played the part of Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark." While she was in Britain, she had a lengthy chat with the King and Queen.

"They were very interested in the picture," she replated, "and were anxious to know if we were getting the right help on preserving the authenticity. They were both very charming."

Miss Dunne had chances to observe the Queen on public occasions, too, and she enthused about her.

"She is the picture of serenity. At all times she seems greatly interested in whom she is meeting and what she is being shown. You can tell that she feels deeply the responsibility to her subjects."

Gruelling Role

Miss Dunne found her own reign as Victoria somewhat gruelling. The reason was the now-famous jowls, which had to be applied every day. The rubbery neckpiece was glued on in a process that required almost two hours each morning.

The chore of putting the jowls on and taking them off was fairly painful, and Miss Dunne isn't sure she would be willing to endure the grind again.

"There were times when part of my skin came off," she said, "and I expected my neck to be never the same again. Amazingly enough, my skin is better than ever. Maybe I'v discovered something."

Porter Says Awrey Understands Firing

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — Attorney-general Porter said Friday that E. C. Awrey was retired as crown attorney at Windsor, because "there was a lack of confidence in the administration of that office and we made a change."

As a result of a shake-up in the Windsor police administration, A. C. Hall, Whitby crown attorney, will take over the duties of crown attorney in Windsor. Mr. Awrey is returning to private practice.

"I've been unable to find out what I've done to deserve this," Mr. Awrey said in Windsor.

Asked for comment, Mr. Porter said:

"I told him. He knows."

Gets Confidence Vote

ATHENS, Sept. 16—(Reuters)—The new three-party coalition government of Sophocles Venizelos Friday gained a vote of confidence by 153 to 43 after a debate of more than 24 hours. The government was making its first appearance before Parliament. It followed another coalition headed by Venizelos which resigned Sept. 9, five days after being completed.

Warkworth Band 1 Year Old Has Money, 103 Members

WARKWORTH, Sept. 16 (ENS) —The Warkworth Community Band is just one year old. Getting its start at a small meeting of interested people in the Community Hall, the band rapidly grew into an experienced organization, playing concerts throughout the district and taking part in community functioins, such as the Memorial Day service.

The band started from scratch, but soon it inherited some horns from a former Warkworth band.

In October, a short time after the organization was set up, a variety concert was held in the Town Hall, with the Campbellford Band helping in a drive which earned $130 to buy more instruments.

One of the band's first problems was to find a bandmaster the members. They hired Joseph Minicola of Peterborough, who was paid his transportation to Warkworth and his board while there and $1 for a half-hour lesson, with a reduction if more than one in a family took lessons.

More instruments were bought from the Orange Lodge in Little Lake and from a music company in Toronto.

Band members practised every Friday night before they had begun to get in shape to present a concert. Finally, April 13 and 14 were set for the band's first concert, and Sunday night practices were added to the schedule. The concert came off in grand style.

But that was not the band's first public appearance. At Christmas time it supplied the music for the Santa Claus parade, and if the playing left something to be desired, there was no doubt it would be a big event the next year.

A glee club was also formed, and Mr. Minicola also took over the training of the group free of charge. For a long time, he practised the band without being paid, but after June he was paid $4 for each practice and a fee for each concert.

By July the band members were able to march as well as they played, and the first Sunday in July they took part in a memorial service held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and at the Cenotaph by the Canadian Legion.

Later in July the band began to branch out and travelled to Roseneath to present a concert there under the auspices of the Anglican Church. August 20 the band members went out of town again, this time to Hastings, under the auspices of Hastings Community Centre.

Helped by government grant which amounted to about $66.00, the band is flourishing, with 42 playing members and 61 associate members. With money raised by concerts, fees paid by the band members, and money given by citizens anxious to see the band succeed, it has almost a full complement of instruments and $145 in the bank, after only one year's operation.

With money in its pockets and considerable experience behind it, the band starts its second year full of hope and promise.

Canada's Population Nearing 14 Million

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP) — Canada's population has topped the 13,850,000 mark.

The Bureau of Statistics estimated Friday that it reached 13,871,000 at July 1—the latest date for which figures are available—for a gain of 143,000 over the Jan. 1 total of 13,728,000 at July 1 last year, it was 13,579,000.

The increase in the previous half year was 149,000, making an estimate gain of 292,000 in the 12 months ended June 30.

In 1941, when the last official census was taken, the population was 11,507,000.

Entry of Newfoundland into confederation last year accounts for 348,000 of the 10-year-gain.

Stanley Ross Dies

REGINA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Stanley Lyster Ross, Regina business man who formerly had wide publishing interests in Western Canada, died Friday on his 70th birthday. Mr. Ross was a partner of the late George M. Bell of Regina as publisher of the Calgary Albertan, Regina Leader-Post, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix and the Northern Mail of the Pas, Man.

Chaplain Calls On Church To Fight Reds

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP) — The Christian church must "declare a state of emergency" to meet the danger of Communism which threatens to stifle Christian life, Group Capt. R. M. Frayne of Ottawa said Friday.

Group Capt. Frayne, principal Protestant chaplain of the RCAF told the 14th general council of the United Church of Canada that "tomorrow may be too late."

"If the Christian church ever needed to declare a state of emergency, the time is today," he said. "All around Christian life is an encircling movement which will press tighter and tighter until the last vestige of Christian liberty would cease to pulse."

He called for an attack against indifference and apathy within the church itself. More than 60 per cent of Canadian boys between 14 and 18, serving with cadet units, are receiving no religious training, he said.

Don't Like Flag

During Friday's session a new flag, proposed for use by the church, was unfurled but members declined to approve it. It has a red cross on a blue background in the upper left corner, with the church crest on a white field. One member suggested the Canadian Red Cross Society should be consulted before a red cross is approved as part of the flag. Another objected to use of the church seal on the flag. The council voted to defer action.

The council also asked for another two years' study of a plan to set up a church committee on community relations. The committee would co-ordinate publicity, discover what principles the church should follow in its relation to the community and fields in which church activities needed more efective interpretation.

Centennial Service
At Civic Arena

The Ministerial Association has arranged an open-air service of worship at Civic Arena for this Sunday evening, September 17th, as its contribution to Peterborough's program of centenary celebrations.

The program includes music and songs by a massed choir of 200 trained voices and the Salvation Army Band.

Dr. George B. Gilmour, Chancellor of McMaster University, will give the address.

The service proper will commence at 7.45 o'clock but the band and its songsters have a special program starting at 7 o'clock.

Plans are completed to accommodate thousands at this service.

You are invited to attend.

It's War

The American magazine Time which has a tremendous circulation in Canada, and is sent all over the world, has had a special section on war (specifically the Korean war) for months. This week's issue shows the usual pictures of generals at the front, and the wounded and killed. These latter arouse our sympathies. They make us feel the war. In addition, this week there is a remarkable article advocating that the United States (and thus the western world) make war on Russia in 1953. As it is an American magazine designed primarily for the American people, we cannot condemn this article, in so far as it touches the American people. If the magazine wants to tell the U.S.A. to make war in 1953, it is free to do so. The trouble is that the magazine comes into Canada, with a Maple Leaf on the cover, and is widely read. Such articles are propaganda (perhaps good propaganda) from a section of American opinion, and out of a United States fevered by Korean war.

• • •

The thesis of war in 1953 may be provable. Our point is that the arguments presented are American, by Americans. Canada is a country independent—in theory at least—of the United States. Canadians have no business of taking their opinions ready-made from an American magazine.

• • •

The pervasive influence of a magazine like Time is enormous—even in Canada. And let it be said that for a long while the magazine has been insidiously warminded. In saying this we do not intend to condemn the point of view. It may be the realistic and right approach to today's international problems. We do most strongly warn against Canadians accepting the doctrines of that magazine as Canadian. Let us form our own opinions, from our own views and the necessities of the situation. The pity is that Canada has not sufficient organs of publicity, or the financial means, to put its own voice before its own people with the same force and cogency. But if Canada goes to war it should not be as a result of American propaganda.

• • •

Let us take a suppositional parallel to Time's influence. Suppose that Canada had a great weekly magazine as important as Time, with as large a circulation, proportionately, in American homes, as it has in Canadian in the years 1939-40-41. Canada was then at war. It had its heroic stories. It had its pictures of Canadian airmen killed, of British infantrymen wounded. If this Canadian indirect propaganda had had the same entrance to American homes that Time magazine now has in Canadian, would the United States have stayed out of the war until December 6th, 1941, when it was attacked and forced thereby into war? Is the present ubiquity of American propaganda going to lead Canada into war by sheer weight and insistence?

Our Weather Forecasts

A regular item of news which we always summarize in a front page line and give in detail on page two, is the weatherman's guess about tomorrow's skies. It is the very best guess we can secure, coming straight from the Dominion Meteorological Bureau in Toronto, which spends its time and science computing weather statistics from data collected at its observer stations at Trenton and Killaloe (for this district).

What is the weather going to be like the week-end? Your guess is not likely to be as good as our experts', but if at times it is better, then you have reason for crowing about a good hunch or a rheumatic knee. Because of full and rapid coverage of weather conditions across vast stretches of country, it is now possible to forecast weather a day in advance fairly accurately. It is a specialized work, and sufficiently reliable and valuable that Corps headquarters of the Canadian Army overseas maintained a weather-man on its staff.

A lumber company at Edmunston had a daily review made of forecasts, to check their accuracy. It found that predictions of weather on the day of the forecast were eighty per cent. correct—it rained or did not rain, according to the forecast, within the specified period. In anticipating the weather one day, the predictions were 73 per cent. right. In temperature predictions 86 per cent. were correct within eight degrees. Two-thirds of the relative humidity forecasts were right within ten per cent.

Sometimes readers of our daily forecasts have their timing wrong. When our front page line reads "Evening showers" it means that the showers are expected tomorrow evening, not the evening of the issue of the paper. We deal with the weather a full day before it happens—anticipating the news. Our page two summary tells what has befallen during the day, as well as forecasts in greater detail what is likely to happen here and there across the country tomorrow.

The twittering occasionally to be heard about our weather news is nothing compared with the roasting the B.B.C. has been getting from English sea-side resort operators. Before the Whitsun holiday the B.B.C. forecast a dull, cold and showery day. Weston-Super-Mare apparently had twelve hours of sunshine and no rain. The resort owners claim that people stayed away in droves because of the B.B.C.'s melancholy prediction. They want forecasts of bad weather banned, because they are bad for their business.

We can forsee the results of such a policy of suppression. When the official weather prophet foresaw rain, hail or frost, there would be an ominous silence. The silence would shriek of bad weather and the people would stay away from the resorts. On the other hand to prophesy good weather when the forecaster's official snout told him that foul was pending would be malevolent. When the rains came the whole country, prepared for sun, would storm in wrath and flail the forecasters as the stool-pigeons of Big Business.

We once had the experience of a snowless ski week-end in the Laurentians. Hundreds of hotel and lodge owners, with million dollar investments to cater to winter sports, peered at the sky, waiting for snow but getting rain. Ten thousand would-be skiers in Montreal hugged their radios for news of the weather in the mountains. If the rain in Montreal were snow in the Laurentians, off they would go for their week-end. We huddled in front of a fireplace in our hotel, glared dismally out the window at the drizzle and the snowless landscape, and heard a Montreal station blandly announce that at this moment inches of good fresh snow were falling at our hotel centre. Had some resort owner given the announcer slush money? We have never trusted that radio station since.

Pickerel, Ont.

This is not a fishing story. Pickerel, Ontario, does exist. It is a place in the Sudbury district. It was in yesterday's news because of the inroads— or rather obstacles—some beavers are making to road-builders' efforts in that area. The point of special interest is that the road being built is part of the Trans-Canada Highway. Peterborough, also on the Trans-Canada highway, looks forward to any signs of activity at all in that direction. There are none now.

We must not let Pembroke put it over us. Pembroke, be it remembered, squawked when it was left off the road map. So Ontario Government officials told it that it would have a supplementary branch of the Trans-Canada. There seems to be a bit of palavering farther down the Ottawa; to be precise, along the roads from Ottawa to Montreal. There are two: via Hull and the Quebec side; and along the south shore on the Ontario side. At the entrance of the latter, just outside the city, some enterprising foresighted officials have put up a sign: "Trans-Canada Highway." They have got the name before the Hull road could make claims. Should Peterborough stake its claim by name before Pemmy gets large ideas?

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is one thing you must say for the egotist; you don't catch him gossiping about other people.

---

Unconventional fashion note, revealed in a contemporary headline: "Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe to Be Clothed With Wide Powers".

---

In Los Angeles a young criminal of 20, with five jail terms behind him is found to have had "Crime Does Not Pay" tattooed on his left thigh. What's the good of having advice like that in a place where you can't see it without taking off your pants?

---

When Mr. Abbott was about to bring down his baby budget several tobacconists in Windsor Ont., raised the price of a package of cigarettes to 41 cents, anticipating an increase in the tobacco tax. They did this several hours before the budget appeared, and then found that the tobacco tax remained what it had been. We have no doubt that the customers joined in the hearty laughter at this miscalculation which had been made at their expense, and congratulated the tobacconists warmly on their shrewdness.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Sir:

It comes to our ears from a professional source that you are bringing suit against your neighbour, Richard Dandiprat, whom you accuse of imprisoning a skunk (Mephitis Canadensis) in your motor car, with resultant damage to same.

We learn also that the success of your suit is jeopardized by your inability to bring forward a single witness who saw Dandiprat commit this misdemeanour.

May we offer our services? For a modest fee we can provide witnesses who will give your case all the corroboration which it needs, ensuring your success. We feel that three capable witnesses (two men and a woman) would amply meet your requirements, and we will provide these for five hundred dollars and expenses. You will agree that this is a ridiculously low sum, and it is only because we work on a very large scale that we are able to make this very special price. All correspondence strictly confidential.

Yours, etc.,
FALSE WITNESS, INC.

Telegraphical Address
"ANANIAS".

◇ ◇ ◇

To Mordecai Mouseman, Esq.
Dear Mouseman:

I enclose a letter which I have just received from a firm which seems to have just what we want. The trial draws near—at least I hope it does, for it is now a year since Dandiprat ruined my car—and I will not tolerate any fumbling. I want Dandiprat to get at least two years hard labour. We want witnesses; these people have them. Will you attend to the matter?

Yours,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

◇ ◇ ◇

To the Rev. Simon Goaste, B.D.
Dear Rector:

Last Sunday when I was out motoring I saw some handsome apples on a tree in a field. It was the work of a moment to skip over the fence and hook a couple. But alas! they tasted like wet cotton wool.

Tell me, godly man, was it the bitter flavour of sin which turned these apples into things of loathing?

Yours in conditional repentance,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

Oh, Mr. Marchbanks, sir! Oh, unhappiest of our clients!! Oh, luckless litigant!!! How often have I not counseled you against taking any step without consulting your lawyer; how often has not our senior partner, Mr. Jabez Mouseman (now, alack, prone upon a bed of pain—shingles, I grieve to say) given you the same tried and true advice? Tell me—though I dread the answer, knowing your fiery and impetuous nature—have you given any money to False Witness, Inc.? For if you have, all is lost indeed!

Understand, my dear sir, that not only do you sully the whole fabric of British justice by suggesting that we employ these people; you gravely endanger your case, as well. The fabric of British justice has been sullied, and cleaned, many times; like an Oriental rug, it shows only the very largest stains; but there is not a judge on the bench in this country who does not know every employee of False Witness, Inc., intimately. For years they have paraded in and out of the witness boxes of Canada dropping the wigs, false whiskers, wooden legs and other unconvincing paraphernalia with which they seek to disguise themselves, and their appearance is now a signal for derisive laughter in every court in the land.

False Witness, Inc. employs all the Canadian actors who are so bad that they cannot even get jobs with the C.B.C. Far better no witness than a False Witness.

I am shocked, sir, that you should think that a firm such as ours would lend itself to such underhand practice. We rely entirely upon the probity of the court, and the forensic brilliance of our barrister, Mr. Cicero Forcemeat. You will understand the unique distinction attaching to Mr. Forcemeat when I tell you that he is one of the half-dozen lawyers in the province who is not a K.C.

And if we feel that the support of expert testimony is required, we know where to get it without resort to the broken-down dialect comedians who work for False Witness, Inc.

Yours chidingly,
MORDECAI MOUSEMAN,
(for Mouseman, Mouseman & Forcemeat).

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

I would fain reply that it was truly the bitterness of sin which destroyed the taste of your stolen fruit. But a complete candour which has been a handicap to me all during my long ministry compels me to say that it was probably the natural flavour of the apples.

When I was but a lad, apples were smaller than they are today, and were often of irregular shapes. Sometimes bough-marks defaced their perfect beauty. But they were of a delicious flavour. This condition persisted even into the years of my curacy. But when apples became Big Business they grew large, and perfect, and unblemished—and tasteless. "Stay me with flagons, comfort me with apples" cries the Beloved in the Song of Songs. Poor girl, had she lived today she would have found the flagons ruinously taxed, and the apples without savour. Bible times were better, Mr. Marchbanks.

Do not worry about stealing apples. In our day the sin carries its own punishment.

Yours in love and understanding,
SIMON GOASTE.

◇ ◇ ◇

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
How, Marchbanks!

In awful trouble, Marchbanks. Winter come soon. I got to get in jail. No jail, no winter home. Two day ago I get drunk. Sick on cop. He mad. Ha, I think; jail for sure. But no. He take pants to cleaner and make me work cutting wood to pay for clean pants. Yesterday I throw brick at cop. Hit him hard. He jump. Ha, I think; jail now. But he say thanks pal; sergeant coming and you just wake me up in time. This one hell country, Marchbanks. Cops all too mean to put poor Indian in jail.

How, again,
OSCEOLA THUNDERBELLY,
(Chief of the Crokinoles).

THE END OF A BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP

Cat's Superior Wisdom

(STRATFORD BEACON-HERALD)

THESE days there is little in the news outside the grim Korean struggle, the railroad problems, unemployment worries and the high cost of living. The world looks as dark as the front page of a newspaper. People are tired. The future is clouded with doubt. Many times it seems as if the struggle is [illegible]

Rusty, the cat, thinks differently. Rusty, a four-year-old mouser, made her home in a distillery plant at Amherstburg. Not long ago her home exploded around her, and fire swept everything away. The cat was listed among the $750,000 worth of stores and equipment destroyed.

A week later Rusty came back. Singed and battered, she crawled from hiding. She gathered up what was left of her nine lives, and faced the world which had used her cruelly. There was no despair about Rusty. She started right in catching mice again. Now she is preparing to train a family of kittens to carry on the mousing job after her.

It looks as if Rusty is still confident that the world is not skidding to ruin. She is ready to go ahead with her job in spite of fire and pain and injury. Evidently the cat is wiser than many human beings who cannot look beyond the present troubles. Rusty has the right idea.

Still An Anti-Submarine Navy

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

CANADA'S naval training policy, in stressing the future role of the Royal Canadian Navy as a predominantly anti-submarine force, is facing squarely the realities of modern sea warfare. Among the navies of the free nations, the RCN is best fitted as a composite force for the defensive role at sea. Unlike those of Britain and the United States, the bulk of Canadian naval vessels are designed and fitted primarily for the escorting of convoys and the hunting of submarines. Only one ship, the cruiser, Ontario, is designed chiefly for offensive fleet duty. Our twelve destroyers and five frigates are equipped with the latest in anti-submarine weapons. Half a dozen specially designed "anti-submarine escorts" will be available shortly. At present the destroyers Huron and Micmac and the aircraft carrier Magnificent are carrying out extensive anti-submarine exercises off the coast of Ireland in co-operation with the Royal Navy and the RAF. Out of four operational naval air squadrons, two are specially adapted to anti-submarine warfare.

Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, chief of the naval staff, has made it clear that Canadian seamen and naval airmen will be expected to carry on the splendid reputation gained seven years ago on the convoy lanes of the Atlantic. During the last two years of the war, the RCN was almost solely responsible for protecting the Atlantic lines of communication. Adding to the technical knowledge of anti-submarine warfare gained in those years has been a major project of Canadian naval planners.

In the event of war, Canada will be responsible for the operation of the Ontario, and possibly another cruiser borrowed from the Royal Navy. These big ships, whose manning will represent a heavy drain on Canadian manpower, will be employed as units of the British and American battle fleets. Two squadrons of naval fighters and bombers may also take part in fleet operations. But the main job of Canadian naval units not assigned to anti-submarine duties will be protection of Canada's coasts against attack from the sea. In designing its sea forces for maximum usefulness in line with the naval policies of other Western powers, Canada is honouring its commitments.

Calculating Cackles

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

"So far this year Canadian hens have cackled 7,501,000 dozen times more than they did in 1949," is how a recent news item put it to indicate how many more eggs were laid.

The person who wrote it could be out quite a few dozen cackles since hens frequently cackle when they hear others cackle. Even brooding Biddy will at times join in the chorus.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord, Keep ye judgement, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed. (Isa. 56: 1.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. (Isa. 65: 17.)

◇ ◇ ◇

The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. (II Pet. 3: 9-13.)

Subnormal Parents

(Brantford Expositor)

A child of mentally defective parents has two strikes against him the moment he comes into the world. In the first place, he is likely to be endowed with an intelligence quota no higher than that of his father or mother. Secondly, because his parents are not sufficiently equipped mentally to rear him properly, even the limited capabilities which he possesses may be directed into anti-social channels or permitted to fall into disuse.

Because, in many cases, mentally retarded couples have children as rapidly as nature permits and without regard for their budget, the children of such parents present a serious social problem. With the parents unable to compete financially or socially with normal people, many of these children are reared in poverty. Fortunately, some of them eventually become wards of the state. The question inevitably arises: Should legislation be passed preventing people of low intelligence from having children?

By passing such a law, Canada would undoubtedly restrict the freedom of individuals who did not measure up to a certain mental standard. On the other hand, by prohibiting mental defectives from perpetuating their own kind, the Government would do much, over a period of years, to reduce the ranks of these unfortunates, and thus improve the nation's mental, economic and social health.

STAND EASY

To two recruits on their first night guard appeared a dark figure.

"Halt! Who goes there?"

"Orderly Officer."

This nonplussed the recruits. They whispered together.

"Come on! Come on!" said the Orderly Officer, testily. "You've had me standing at attention here for five minutes."

More whispering, and then a flash of inspiration.

"Orderly Officer! Stand at ease!"

"Who'd Be A Soldier—And Have All Your Pockets Cluttered Up With This Stuff?"

Fish stories related to me have a certain sameness after a period of time. But that all ended the other day. Alan Wilson of Armour Rd., who came to the city three years ago from his native Bradford, gave me the lurid details of helping Raymond Titterington of King George St., land a fighting 18-pound muskie at Jack's Lake recently. In his broadest Yorkshah, he started his tale with, "Ee, ba goom, la-ad, it were a w'opper." The mighty battle was detailed from the moment Ray's pikey minnow was grabbed by the brute, through to the crowning moment when Alan gaffed it into the boat.

"What a THING!" he cried. "Aren't they AWFUL?"

This dialectal description which comes at the time Lancashire's George Formby was in the city in person, brings to mind one of Stanley Holloway's gems on the landing of a whopper.

"Tooged and tooged and better tooged,
His line it rose and sank,
Till fish gave one last dying gasp
And flopped stone dead on bank."

Ball of Fire In Air From Bewdley

False teeth fashioner, Alf Pink, Jr., and CGE-ster Will Jones, have sworn to water down their six-cent cokes after seeing the light that blinds down Bensfort Bridge way the other night. They were tooling along the Otonabee west of the bridge in Alf's boat after dark watching a TCA plane blinking its running lights overhead when a ball of light bounced over the horizon from Bewdley direction about 500 feet over the water, they thought. After circling a marsh three times, it took off and disappeared in the direction it came from. What was it? They didn't know, but, rather than be accused of thinking they saw a flying saucer without other witnesses at hand, they thought it might have been illuminated swamp gas.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association lads held a full-dress (tartan shirts, that is) corn roast at Deb Watman's place on Pigeon Lake. With a five-piece orchestry on the tail end of a truck, one of Norm Bradley's, no doubt, they consumed several dozen roasted ears slathered in three pounds of BUTTER. There were also suds to wash it down. The 120 members rated it a great evening.

Algae Dulls The Shining Waters

That green stuff, algae, which is dulling the shining waters of the Kawarthas this year, and seems to be getting worse, has caused much comment and not a little agitation among cottagers and campers. DLF biologists say it could have been much worse and that the extreme condition prevalent on Sturgeon during past seasons has lessened. Cool [illegible] temperatures are making it disappear quite rapidly now. The study of algae under microscopes is baffling business for biologists. Specimens distintegrate so rapidly on the glass slides that there is rarely anything to see. We could really holler here if we had the condition which was prevalent in Lindsay this summer. Clover-like duck weed was so thick on the Scugog at one time, some wag floated out an upright sign which read KEEP OFF THE GRASS.

Fishing Pressure, Poaching, Fowling

Fishing pressure, poaching on spawning beds and fluctuating water levels has greatly reduced Lake Trout populations in many Haliburton County lakes. It is so alarming, in fact, that the Department have closed off the season on Oct. 5th; it will not re-open till May 1st, '51. Townships of Hastings County also affected by this ruling are as follows: Bangor, Carlow, Cashel, Dungannon, Faraday, Herschel, Limerick, Mayo, McClure, Monteagle, Wicklow and Wollaston.

I was talking to Frank Seymour owner of Pine Cliff Lodge on the Madawaska River, about it. He was delighted. Frank's 50-guest lodge has been filled until a week ago since June 15 and he is booked solid for next July, too, he says. An ardent practising conservationist, Frank banks on being in business for some years to come. "Abide by the fish and game laws," he said, "it pays off." And to prove what constant good fishing he has in his area, Frank dug out some of the best fishing pictures from his wallet I have seen for some time. Samples: Bruce Jarvis of Ashtabula, O., with a 12-pound, 8, pickerel; Nello Johnston, same city, with 18-pound Laker and Bill Mosser of Allentown, Pa., hanging onto a 7¼-pound Large Mouth.

Repeating again the dope on the coming grouse season in this district,—it appeared earlier in the week as a general news item. For Ruffled Grouse (partridge), Spruce Grouse, Sharp-tailed Grouse and Ptarmigan, two seasons north of Highway 7; Oct. 7th till Oct. 28th and Nov. 6th till Nov. 18th. South of Seven, only, the first listed season will apply in that portion of Hastings as well as in non-regulated areas of Huron, Wellington, Simcoe, Ontario and Durham Counties. Bag limit, five birds per day in the aggregate, possession limit of 15 birds.

If your taste runs to squirrel pies, you may shoot black, grey and fox chatterers on Nov. 10th and 11th, only, five per day in the aggregate, of all kinds.

Heard of a nice mess of speckled trout taken by Cyril Lech, Bud Clarke and Bert Carter, fly fishing, the largest scaling 3¼ pounds. Since the season ended for them on Friday, thought I would pump Cyril for the fishing spot. No dice, though; he gave me the up-Wilberforce-way treatment. Cagey lads, these trout fishermen.

Looking for a good rifle or shotgun, second hand, in good condition? Or, perhaps some of your fishing gear needs replacing, for next season. You could do no better than attend the sale of confiscated firearms, traps and miscellaneous sporting gear in Room B 511, East Block, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Sept. 18-19-20. The Department of Lands and Forests is the auctioneer.

SIGN OF AUTUMN: Heavy ripe wild rice grain is shelling out, what is left after red-winged blackbirds have eaten their fill. The sunken kernels are what the wild duck are waiting for and ducks, observers say, are fairly numerous already.

Begone, dull care! I prithee begone from me!
Begone, dull care! you and I shall never agree.
Long time has thou been tarrying here and fain thou would'st me kill,
But, i' faith, dull care, thou never shalt have thy will.

Too much care will make a young man turn grey,

Village Business Thrives 1,906 Inhabitants By 1848

Samuel Dickson in 1840 leased Hall's grist and sawmills (built by the government 1827-28); a few years late, he built a larger sawmill on the east bank forming the Dickson Lumber Company which grew into the Peterborough Lumber Company Like other mills along the east bank. Dickson's obtained power from a dam built across the river at the west end of Douro Street by Z. Burnham, whence a sluiceway ran south Robert Rogers of Otonabee married Birdsall's daughter in 1840, and two years later opened a grocery store in the Scotch Village; in association with Z. Burnham, he built a large sawmill in 1846 and a gristmill the next year, close to Hunter Street East on the riverbank. The third gristmill was operated by J R. Benson (probably on the site of Scott's first mill). The "Dispatch" of Aug. 31 1848, noted "Three first class flouring establishments capable of manufacturing from 50,000 to 60,000 barrels of flour per annum." One mile from town, A. Sperry had a rake factory turning out 20,000 a year. Smith's "Canadian Gazetteer" 1846 listed in Peterborough: "4 doctors, 5 lawyers, 2 gristmills, 2 sawmills, 1 brewery, 1 ashery, 2 distilleries, 3 foundries, 30 stores, 2 druggists, 5 taverns, 18 shoemakers, 12 tailors, 1 bank" and his 1851 book noted: 3 gristmills, an oat and barley mill, 4 sawmills, a woollen factory, a carding and fulling mill, a brewery, a distillery, 4 foundries, 2 axe factories, 3 tanneries etc." In all, Peterborough had about 40 small industries by 1850, well scattered.

First Hotels

About 1845 the Globe Hotel on Charlotte Street was built of brick, and two years later Thomas Chambers built the Commercial Hotel of brick on the corner of Hunter and Water Streets; this later was burned down in 1858, but rebuilt. In 1849 E. Phelan built a tavern at 181 Simcoe Street, later operated by Mr. Cavanagh as the Cavanagh House Stages to Lindsay ran Tuesdays and Thursdays from the Log House inn which gave "excellent stabling with good hostler attendance."

Businesses were begun, leased, transferred and ended with bewildering rapidity in those days. Ormond & Gilmour opened a drug store in 1848 on George St., which in 1879 was bought by H. S. MacDonald. Some other merchants advertising in the papers were Benjamin Torrance, general store, George St., adjoining the Albert House; P. M. Grover dry goods, groceries, hardware etc., George St.; Robert Ridley dry goods, groceries, hardware, etc., George St.; R. C. Armstrong, dry goods, groceries, etc., opposite Wm. Eastland; Wm. Eastland, "The Cheap Cash Store," dry goods, groceries ,etc., opposite J T. Henthorn on George St.; A. MacPhail, chemist and apothecary, Medical Hall; R. Barrett, tin, sheetiron, copperware, stoves, etc., George St. P. M Grover on Nov. 7, 1845 advertised: "a gigantic sale with great reductions. . . . We are stopping all credit sales as of Jan. 1, 1846 and giving all unpaid bills to a solicitor for collection." Torrance advertised in March 1846: "having relinquished business in Peterborough, requests all persons endebted to him to call on Ivan O'Beirne and pay." Wm. Matthie & Co "will remove their wholesale establishment to their new enlarged warerooms and storehouses at the steamboat wharf, lately purchased, adjoining Messrs H. & S. Jones Wharf, occupied recently by Geo. Sanderson." F Murphy, auctioneer, no doubt had plenty of business. Among the professional people advertising were G. B Hall, barrister, Hunter St over Logan's store; James Scott, attorney, Hunter St. opposite Albert House; Dr. Wm. Bell, Hunter St.; Dr. Wm. James Best, surgeon, in house formerly occupied by James Armour; Dr T Hay in new residence on Brock St next door to Mr. Poole's furniture warehouse.

The "Backwoodsman & Sentinel" ceased publication in 1843 before John Darcus absconded In 1842 the "Chronicle" was begun as a Reform paper by Thomas Messenger, with James McCarroll as editor, in a frame building on Water St.; after moving twice, the shop burned down in 1846 and from the ashes arose a new paper, the "Dispatch" published by George Hazlehurst, Carrying the Tory flag was the "Gazette," owned and edited by Rev J. H. Dunsford, beginning August 1845 and expiring October 1848, in the old Red Store at Charlotte and Water Streets. Dunsford, incidentally resided at "Verulam House" in the Scotch Village. All of these were two-page weeklies costing about $4 a year. By 1850, the only newspaper in town was the "Dispatch." The "Gazette" favoured railroads: "Peterborough is, as it were, locked up in the wilderness by bad roads in every direction and its commercial intercourse with the Front exceedin y troublesome, circuitous and expensive." A railroad meeting in Port Hope Dec. 1845 was attended by G B Hall, MPP, James Hall, Rev R. Taylor, F. Ferguson, T Benson, Jas. Wallis, A. S. Fraser, W. H. Wrighton and T. Harper from Peterborough Sept. 1845, F Ferguson sold a half-acre lot opposite the market for $1,200 In November, Charles Hudson advertised for sale a 50-acre farm in Otonabee, con III, three miles from Keene; Mr. Hudson became a storekeeper on Hunter Street and in 1851 mayor of the town. On March 2, 1848, the "Dispatch" noted: "The town presented a pleasing appearance today The farmers are taking advantage of the slight fall of snow and are hurrying their produce into the market. The prices today are: fall wheat 3s. 9d., spring do 3s. 3d., oats 9-10d., hay 27s. 6 d.- 30s. per ton."

The year 1847 was auspicious in the village. After considering a petition, the executive council granted three acres east of Water between Brock and Murray Streets to be held in trust by the municipal council after incorporation "as a public square—upon condition of the same being enclosed and planted and being retained solely for the purpose referred to." A "handsome and substantial" iron bridge was completed across the river by Whyte & Davis, for which the public subscribed to supplement a government grant. The first wooden sidewalk in town was built, raised upon a ridge of gravel, for one block along George Street, from the Albert House to Cluxton's store. Pauper immigrants brought an epidemic and to keep the fever from spreading an isolation hospital was set up on Point St. Charles facing Little Lake.

According to the 1848 census, Peterborough had 1906 people occupying 340 houses, with 28 houses vacant; there were 145 proprietors and 195 tenants assessed. In the professions were 43, in trade and commerce 51, 156 were craftsmen, 80 labourers and 53 factory workers. By place of birth, the villagers were: Canadian-born 812, Ireland 662, England and Wales 196, Scotland 162, United States 42, other countries 18. There was one negro man, out of 26 in the Colborne District (3 males, 23 females)

By 1850 the population, including the Scotch Village, was over 2,000 people, having just about doubled during the decade An era of even greater expansion and prosperity was at hand.

YW Pool Swim Gives 3 Girls, Polio Victims, Great Hope

By COLETTE FERGUSON.

A wonderful hope of complete recovery has been given to three polio victims of this district through special post-polio swimming instruction at the YWCA swimming pool. Three girls, who would normally be faced with the necessity of using braces and crutches for the rest of their lives are already looking forward to a day when these supports can be discarded.

Joan Fitzerald 20, of RR 8, Peterborough, had finished school and business college and had worked for a year with a city real estate office when she contracted a severe case of infantile paralysis in September, 1948. The major part of the next year of her life was spent in hospitals. From September to January she was a patient in Riverdale Hospital, Toronto. She spent the next five months in the Toronto General Hospital.

"The whole situation looked rather bleak when Joan returned home in June," commented Joan's mother, Mrs. John Fitzgerald. "However, Joan never gave up hope and when her doctor suggested that she try swimming, it made her even more optimistic for the future."

When Joan started swimming, she had been completely paralyzed from the hips down. Now she can walk in the water from one side of the pool to the other. From a non-swimmer, she has become one of the most enthusiastic swimmers in the Y pool, going four lngths of the pool without too much effort.

Work in the pool under the guidance of Miss Audrey Hustwill, swimming director at the Y has helped to restore the muscles which were paralyzed. The swimming has strengthened Joan's whole body and special foot exercises such as kicking while hanging on to a flutter board has partially restored the strength in her legs.

"It is wonderful," gasped Joan after she had successfully dived for a brick in the bottom of the pool and swum with it to the side. "This swimming was my only hope, and I can hardly believe the good results."

"Joan is full of hope for the future, and is planning to take a refresher course at the Business College in the fall and then start to work," added her mother.

Two Others Progress

Two other girls who are polio victims are also making amazing progress through this remedial swimming treatment at the Y pool. Valerie Twa 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Twa, 260 King Street, and seven-year-old Dorothy Lowes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lowes of Lakefield, attend these swimming classes at the pool three times a week.

Valerie took sick in July last year. She spent 33 days in the Riverdale Isolation Hospital, Toronto, and was in a cast until Christmas.

"Valerie doesn't go to school, but has her school lessons at home, said Mrs. Twa. "With the help of these swimming lessons and an operation in October, we are hoping that her braces may be discarded and that she can start to school."

All the left side of Dorothy Lowes' body was paralyzed as the result of polio. She spent eleven months and five days in Toronto hospitals during the last two years before she could return home. Since that time, Dorothy has come to the Y three times a week for swimming instruction. Her left arm is now normal. Her parents have high hopes for her complete recovery with the help of the swimming and an operation at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, this fall.

Part of the costs of the girls' transportation to the Y and their swimming instruction is being paid by the Red Cross and the YWCA swimming clubs.

"We are not performing any miracles," stated swimming director Miss Hustwitt. "It has been a lot of hard work for the girls, and it is only their perseverance that has been the cause of such wonderful results. I think that we, at the Y will be as happy as the girls themselves when the day comes that they can throw away their braces and crutches."

Convicts Publish Own Paper In US Pen

By DAVE WHITE

It's an attractive eight-page newspaper of tabloid size published in California twice a month. There are no comics and the tenor of the articles is serious, even scholarly.

How would you size up a publication running articles like these?: the technique of psychodrama; use of sodium pentothal in the treatment of alcoholics; a thought provoking review of John Hersey's latest book "The Wall"; a discussion on journalism, and a two-column article on the pros and cons of audio-visual aid in education.

Sounds like a college journal, you say, staffed by eager-beaver undergrads.

Not at all. It's the bi-monthly newspaper "The San Quentin News," published by the convicts themselves in the United States' biggest penitentiary.

The newspaper is a product of the enlightened policy of Warden Clinton T. Duffy—a man who believes that a prison sentence is not necessarily "the end of the road" but possibly "the highway which leads to future happiness and success."

Treat a man like a fellow human; don't degrade him; start him on the path to rehabilitation as soon as he enters the grey prison walls of San Quentin: that is Warden Duffy's point of view in a nutshell.

Prisoners' Own

Allowing the prisoners to print their own newspaper is just one of the activities that was introduced to rescue some of them, at least, from the pervading sense of hopelessness and rejection. Give the man (considered just a soulless number in many institutions) something constructive to think about and don't just let him brood on his crime and subsequent punishment during his imprisonment.

Given this opportunity the inmate may regain— and possibly attain for the first time—a sense of self-respect, and make a go of it when he becomes a free man. In any case, the Warden reasons, it's worth a try.

Here is the way he puts it, in a by-lined column on page one: "It's doubtful there is a single man among you who is enjoying his incarceration . . ."

(That rates as the No. 1 understatement of the publication.)

"Yet," the Warden continues, "how few realize their prison sentence could possibly be the most advantageous section of the road to success—that penal servitude can be changed from life's greatest liability to one of its greatest assets for a nominal cost. The price is desire."

And the column continues:

"San Quentin offers you one of the finest systems for inmate education of any penal institution in the world . . ."

(How do you like that "San Quentin offers you" routine? The man sounds like a Sales and Ad Club orator.)

Here is the way he concludes his straight-from-the-shoulder message:

". . . it (that is San Quentin education) costs you nothing more than the will to become eventually what you were not when you entered the front gates —a productive asset to society and to yourself."

Warden Duffy's column is, presumably, in every issue. He is the editor-in-chief and so has the last say.

Apparently the Warden—whose doings as Mr. Big naturally loom large in any chronicle of prison life—is a staunch supporter of Alcoholics Anonymous. He was one of the chief speakers at the international convention of AA held at the tail end of July in Cleveland.

San Quentin claims it is the only prison in the world with two AA chapters. These did not spring to life because of any amount of high living in the institution but because the Warden had a first-rate knowledge of the results of excessive drinking.

In the words of the "San Quentin News": "Warden Duffy explained that AA in prison not only offers its members freedom from the distress of alcoholism . . but also the insurance, as well as assurance, that future years need not necessarily be spent behind walls."

There's not much doubt about it but they're free from that particular distress in San Quentin.

JUDGE'S PROVINCE

It is the province of the judge to expound the law only—the written from the statute, the unwritten or common law from the decisions of our predecessors and of our existing courts—from the text-writers of acknowledged authority, and upon the principles to be clearly deduced from them by sound reason and just inference—not to speculate upon what is the best, in his opinion, for the advantage of the community.

Lord Justice Coleridge:
Judgment in Brownlow vs Egerton, 1854.

is dedicated to the promotion of total abstinence "on scientific grounds."

Sodium Pentothal is discussed on page three of the "News" lead:

"Use of the well-known 'truth serum', sodium pentothal, is no longer limited to that of a chemical stool-pigeon. It can be just as effective in establishing innocence of a crime as in fingering a villain."

Isn't that short and snappy enough for any fussy city editor. And that underworld argot "stool pigeon" as well as the dramatic "fingering the villain" ought to be right down the alley so far as the incarcerated dime-novel readers are concerned.

Sports Section

But the real labor of love in the eight-page newspaper is the sports section. Baseball is the game and apparently the boys go for it in a big way.

There is a four-team league; and to date the Angels (that's what the paper says) are leading the circuit, having won seven, lost one and tied one. Back of them come the Oaks, Solons, (probably all convicted politicians) and the Seals, in that order.

Practically every play is described. A "black cap" head tells the reacer that "Kelley Steals." Probably this is no novelty to friend Kelley but the reader is relieved to find, on glancing into the paragraph, that it is the good American practice of stealing third base.

Kelley later brought in a run to help his fellow "Angels" down the "Solons" 8-5.

The reader finds himself quite at home here with the usual sports jargon popping up all over the page.

There are several cuts (photos). One shows some of the convicts public-spirited enough to be fighting forest fires in an unidentified spot in southern California. Another shows the pen's much-prized furniture factory where 290 men while away their hours manufacturing desks, chairs, tables, etc., for use in state-operated schools, hospitals and the like.

Still another "shot" shows the pure-bred dairy herd of 200 cattle on the San Quentin ranch. They are tended constantly by 15 prisoners.

In the back section of the newspaper is listed the weekly radio schedule of what is ironically dubbed "the grey network." No "gangbuster" programs or the like are permitted. Movies are reviewed in one corner and the weekend movie program listed. Here too, the snarling Bogarts and other assorted bad guys are carefully screened out.

The nearest thing to the iconoclastic touch is a readable but not too meaty little sermon by Walter P. Pitkin, more than somewhat critical of American manners and morals.

Pensive convicts may read this two-column guest editorial taken from "Life Begins At Forty":

". . . as hang-over Puritans, (Americans) dictate other people's morals and affairs, enacting endless laws, few of which are ever obeyed; arousing like-minded fanatics to violence against those whose conduct they dislike; thus producing the complete anarchy which is America of the 20th century."

And to think that U.S. Senator Joe McCarthy and the House of Un-American Activities Committee missed that one.

Section In Spanish

In addition there are some syndicated columns and a special section in Spanish—the latter for the many inmates in California who know that language only.

Subscriptions to the "San Quentin News" are apparently widely solicited.

For any of its old alumni who are over-nostalgic there is a cut-out coupon bearing this advertisement: "Here's how to keep up with what is going on in San Quentin . . . subscribe to the San Quentin News . . . 26 issues for only one dollar."

And what's this on the back page of the paper? . . . a course in journalism offered as an alternative to volunteering for the jute mills?

Pack my bag, Ma, I'm San Quentin bound . . . but on second thought what's an old jute mill got that we haven't got? Thirty.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Public School soccer schedules commence next week on various fronts. The lists are in tonight and should be clipped by those interested. Play will be on the different school grounds or nearby fields for junior and intermediate games, while the seniors have three neutral pitches—two at Morrow Park and one at King Edward Park. Queen Alex and Queen Elizabeth schools combine in the three schedules. Teachers do the coaching and the refereeing, and the boys get a first-class groundwork not only in soccer but in sportsmanship and all that it means. A fine circuit operating each autumn.

Civic Arena will have ice installed in a week and a half. That's to catch the international ice revue of figure and fancy skaters which will do a three-night show here. It headlines Eileen Seigh of New York, USA Olympic star, who gave Barbara Ann Scott many a stirring competition. Later they teamed up in Hollywood for "Ice Capades" and in New York for "Howdy Mr. Ice." A big and outstanding cast, we're told. It's amazing how fancy and figure skating really caught on—though Sonja Henie did a lot for the sport, too—since Barbara Ann won the Olympic title. Quite a figure skating school here the past two winters.

Couple Contests On Tap

A couple of games (baseball and softball) in Riverside this aft and eve, if the weather behaves. Oshawa and Ed Woodcock's local bantams settle their OBA series at three this p.m. in the deciding game and it should prove keen. Our juves are in Oshawa today while the peewees still await action. Tonight at 7.15 under the arcs in Riverside, the Firemen and Policemen stage a softball exhibition under auspices of the Optimists Club. Draw prizes, etc., with funds for service work. Fire fighters will leave their hose at home if the cops do ditto with billy-sticks.

* * * * * *

The Orfuns got off to a tough start last night at Morrow Park, dropping that 1-0 decision to Oshawa Red Raiders. Yes, sir, a 1-0 game, and how often does that happen in football? A rouge in the second quarter meant the difference, though Coach Bamforth's bunch came mighty close several times to getting it back, and almost counted a spectacular field goal in the final frame. But "almost" doesn't count, and it goes down simply as one win for Oshawa and one loss for Peterborough. Orfuns go to Cobourg next week-end, and then have Orillia Bombers here the following week. They just can't afford to lose any more in a short, sharp schedule.

* * * * * *

Low Down And Close, Eh?

We thought the team looked good, every bit as good as the strong Oshawa squad. Just a tossup on the night's play, with Orfuns driving better in the last half but having no luck. And Doug Plunkett was hurt and lost to 'em in the third. Mostly straight football with some "hot potato" plays tried by the locals, not too many passes attempted till the dying minutes, penalties aplenty on both sides, and a fair number of fumbles on a greasy gridiron. A good low-scoring game to see for those who like them played close to the vest, though we can stand a few touchdowns a tussle. A big crowd on deck for the weather, official opening, draws, cheer leaders and the usual color going with the autumn sport.

Men's city softball finals resume Monday evening at the Ashburnham Bowl with a double-header. It'll be Mutuals vs. East City at 7.15, and vice-versa right afterward. How did vice and versa get in there, anyway? Mutuals now lead the four-of-seven serial for the Wm. Taylor—emblematic of the city crown—by two games to one, but every tilt in the playoffs has been close, and the East Citizens might take one or even two of them Monday. If they drop 'em both, they're through for the season. Mutuals are the only local softballers still in provincial playdowns, and will probably hit into semi-finals next week.

Down Sports' Rialto

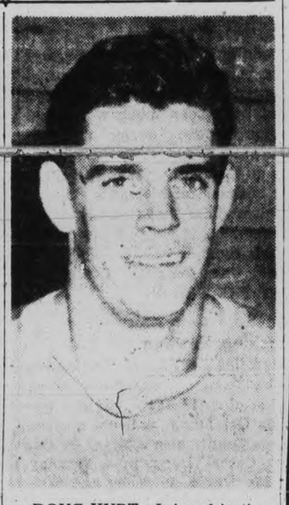
School soccer schedule for the juniors opens with two games Monday, intermediates going next day and seniors on Wednesday... City golf finals are at Kawartha Club tomorrow aft.... Pro mat show booked for here a week from Tuesday....George Campbell of Oshawa, president of the OASA, has been named a vice-president of the International Federation of Softball in a convention at Austin, Texas....Sorry to learn that Vern Dawson is quite sick in hospital.... A nice new press box has been built atop the grandstand at Morrow Park, though it could be enlarged some....Johnny Green is still with the Varsity gridders but he's pretty light for those huskies....Latest word we had on Doug Plunkett was that he suffered a fractured collar-bone last night in the several injuries received when smeared hard by Oshawa tacklers here....If so, he'll be lost to Orfuns for the rest of this season....But one more week of daylight saving, and the days are shortening up.



SCOT TO THE SKIN—Highland dancer David Beattie of Brechin, Scotland, answered the age-old question, "What does a Scotsman wear under his kilt?" In changing his costume for the Highland Games in Birnam, Beattie exposed to the camera his matching tartan underpants.

DENNIS FITZGERALD of St. Peter's High School Athletic Advisory Committee officially makes the presentation of 20 complete outfits for St. Peter's senior rugby team to Fred Allore, left, team coach, and Father John Coughlin, director. In addition, 24 sweaters were made available to the junior team. Money for the outfits was raised last spring in a city-wide canvass of Catholic parishes. St. Peter's seniors will play against St. Michael's and DeLasalle in the Catholic Conference League.

Oshawa Raiders Gain Win By 1-0 Against The Orfuns

In the lowest-scoring ORFU senior "B" game ever seen here, Oshawa Red Raiders opened the grid season at Morrow Park last night with a 1-0 victory over Peterborough Orfuns. Despite damp weather after an all-day rain, a big crowd viewed the tight struggle, the visitors winning on a rouge in the second quarter. Orfuns go to Cobourg next weekend and have Orillia here on Sept. 27. Following a parade behind the pipe band, with another band at the park, the season was officially opened before some 2,500 fans by Mayor Max Swanhonorary president of the football club. Draws for prizes were made at halftime by Stan McBride. While the gridiron was greasy there was not an unusual number of fumbles for an opening football match.

DOUG HURT—Injured in the third quarter of the Oshawa-Orfuns' grid opener here last night, Doug Plunkett (of no-hit fame with the baseball Petes) had to be helped from the field, having his side and a knee hurt in a hard tackle. The husky backfielder had been playing a fine game up till then Oshawa won out 1-0.

Doug Injured

Backfielder and kicker Doug Plunkett was injured in the third quarter, being hit hard on a tackle to hurt his side and a knee. He had just taken a kick back of the goal and ran it 15 yards out to his own 10-yard line when downed. Plunkett, after some delay, was helped off the field. He had played a fine game up to then for Coach Harry Bamforth's homesters against Bob Cosgrove's strong Oshawa Raiders.

Both sides played crefully at first, and sound football tactics prevailed generally most of the melee. Two strong lines with heavy reserve power—fought it out on the ground attack, and the tackling was hard and accurate. Orfuns came up with some razzle-dazzle "hot potato" plays off the snap, but were facing a good defensive foe, and it was pretty even most of the distance. The locals missed several good scoring chances on single points and once on a field goal as they were within range a number of times.

Looked Good

The Peterborough imports looked good, Gord Peachy in the backfield catching the eye especially. Huntley, Lynch, Bonney and Dalton all showed plenty of grid experience. The home talent, too, turned in a hard-fighting chore, the line mucking in all night, with Gord Beatty, Frank Fitzgerald, Don McGillis and others showing plenty. Russ Scriver, Spike Matthews, Plunkett and the rest in the backfield showed a lot of stuff, despite the close loss.

George Ellis, Tom Krowik, Johnny Brodje and George Hulico were outstanding on the attack for the Raiders, with Jack Luke, Cliff James, Tom Murphy and Stan Hodgson good defensively. They proved a pretty fair match for the Orfuns, though they could just as well have been beaten by a close score as coming through victorious. They got their one point in the second on a 35-yard kick by Ellis with Don Barton downing Peachy back of the line.

Careful Play

With play careful on both sides in the first quarter, an end sweep by Hulico for nine and a runback of 20 by Plunkett on a kick were features, as well as a hard tackle by Dalton. After the point was scored in the second, the Orfuns drove for a time but later Brodie moved the sticks and they were on the march till Don McGillis pounced on a fumble. A few forward tries failed and it was up and down between the 30-yard lines till the half.

A kicking exchange started the third and later Krowik bucked for 10 but Plunkett intercepted a forward and they drove up on a Scriver-Peachy-Plunkett extension for yards to Oshawa's 45. A fumble lost it and Ellis and Krowik moved the sticks. Penalties hurt both sides throughout. Brodie plunked 15 and then Plunkett was hurt running a kick out. Peachy took Scriver's later to skirt end for 20 a bit after and a Scriver to Don McGillis forward clicked for 25. Later Matthews had to hoof a long one

Orfuns drove up several times in the fourth, with Peachy being a ground-gainer and Huntley helping out, Matthews also getting distance on his kicks. Huntley recovered a fumble and then tried a field goal from 34 yards out. It came awfully close but Ellis returned the boot promptly and tore up to recover his kick on Oshawa's 48-yard chalk. Hulico tore around end for 20 but later Huntley slanted off tackle for a neat gain, but Hodgson intercepted a pass to take off the pressure. The Orfuns were driving up again at the last but the whistle beat them.

Oshawa: Flying wing, Murphy; halves, Brodie, Hulico, Krowik; quarter, Hodgson; snap, Kiniknisky; insides, Lawson and March; middles, Filopowisz and Almond; outsides, James and Wilson; alternates, Luke, Lyzon, Ellis, Zakarow, Beaton, Sanbansky, Armstrong, Bilsky, Harper, Bouckley, Burkhart, Grice.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

A colorful chapter out of Canada's football past was officially reopened Thursday.

Ab Box, 41-year-old former football great with Toronto Balmy Beach and Toronto Argonauts, signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

The Alouettes, who have lost two of their first three league games, will use Box strictly for kicking—a department in which they are exceptionally weak this season.

---

The Canadian Maccabiah team, which will fly to Israel next week for the world Jewish athletic festival, is holding its final porkout at Ste. Agathe Des Monts in the Laurentians this week.

The team of 16 will participate in boxing, wrestling, swimming and basketball at Ramat Gan, Tel Aviv and Haifa.

---

A Smuts golf competition, along the lines of the United States-Britain Ryder Cup competition, may be started for professionals of South Africa and Australia.

Broadcasting from Sydney Friday night, Bobby Locke, holder of the British open championship said that on his return to South Africa he would try to promote such an event.

Locke, who was on the air with Norman Von Nida, Australia's open champion, said the tournament would be a gesture from golfers in memory of Field Marshal Jan Smuts, former South African Prime Minister.

---

Orville White, 42, Winston-Salem, N. C., pro, blasted his way into the lead in the $15,000 St. Louis open golf tournament on Friday with a three-under-par 67 to give him 135 for 36 holes.

Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill., also fired a 67 for a 136 score.

Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach Fla., and Art Doering of Richmond, Va., were third with 137s.

Trailing closely were Joe Kirkwood, Jr., of Hollywood, known as Joe Palooka in the movies, Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Jim Ferrier of San Francisco and Jim Turnesa of New York—all tied with 138.

Dutch Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., had 139.

The early favorite in the race golf's top money maker this year and last, Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., shot a 69 to bring his total to 140, five full strokes behind the leader.

Australia's Frank Sedgman on Friday scored a repeat triumph over his American Davis Cup adversary, Tom Brown, and U.S. singles champion Arthur Larsen moved into position to tackle his arch rival, Ted Schroeder, in the semi-finals today of the Pacific southwest tennis tournament at Los Angeles.

Sedgman defeated the San Francisco star, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, and he faces young Herbert Flam, national intercollegiate champion in the other semifinal match today.

Flam advanced to the round by whipping Earl Cochell of Los Angeles, 8-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Larsen followed Flam on to the centre court of the Los Angeles Tennis Club and defeated Tiny Felicisimo Ampon of Manilla, P. I., 6-4, 8-6, 6-3.

Public School Soccer Schedules Set

The schedule committee of Central and Queen Elizabeth School submits the following schedule for public school soccer, divided into three sections viz. Senior, Intermediate, and Junior. Those interested should clip this for reference. All intermediate and junior games are to be played on the school grounds or grounds conveniently near the school. All senior games are scheduled for three neutral fields. Permission has been granted by the Recreation Commission for the use of King Edward Park and by the Exhibition Board for the use of the exhibition grounds. # Giants Upset Wings 2nd Time

By The Associated Press.

Jersey City Giants, dark horses in the International League playoffs, will try to make it three victories over the heavily-favored Rochester Red Wings tonight.

Joe Becker's Little Giants, who defeated the Red Wings 2-1 Friday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series, will pitch Roger Bowman. Johnny Keane, Rochester's manager, is expected to counter with his ace righthander and most valuable player in the loop, 20-year-old Tom Poholsky.

Baltimore took a 2-1 edge over Montreal in their elimination round Friday night by downing the Royals 3-1. Bill Kennedy, although relieved in the seventh by Karl Drews, picked up the victory. The loss was charged to Joe Landrum.

Ted Williams' Big Bat Helps Boston Whip St. Louis 12-9

By WILL GRIMSLEY,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Baseball's lean-hitting perfectionist, Ted Williams, is back on the firing line for the Boston Red Sox, forcing a new appraisal of the neck-and-neck American League pennant race.

The willowy slugger, out of regular action since July 11, may provide just the impetus needed for Steve O'Neill's old pros to overhaul Detroit and New York in the mad dash down the stretch.

Williams' big bat boomed like old times Friday. He smashed a three-run homer and three singles to crack an eight-game winning streak of the upstart St. Louis Browns, 12-9, and to move Boston within 1½ games of first-place Detroit.

Boston's half-step up the ladder was aided by developments at Detroit, where the Tigers behind the excellent relief pitching of the veteran Hank Borowy, turned back New York Yankees 9-7 to level this top-drawer series at a game apiece.

Vital Game

The vital "rubber" game was scheduled today with the Yankees sending out their phenomenal young rookie star, Eddie Ford, to recapture the lead they lost to Detroit. The Tigers countered with Dizzy Trout. Ford has won six games and lost none. The veteran Trout, with a 13-4 record has been a surprising stalwart of the Detroit staff.

The Red Sox, Williams and all, move into Detroit Sunday for two games.

Williams' impressive comeback after more than two months on the shelf with an elbow fracture was just one of the highlights of a news-making baseball Friday. Other unusual happenings included:

1. Philadelphia Phillies had to go 19 innings, longest game of the season, to wrest the second half of their doubleheader victory from Cincinnati and thereby put the National League flag under virtual lock and key. The regulation first game was won 2-1 and the second 8-7, pushing the Phils 7½ games in front of Brooklyn.

Breaks Record

2. Big John Mize of the Yankees poled three homers in New York's losing effort at Detroit and broke his own major-league record for the number of times the feat has been turned in a single game. He now has hit three home runs on six occasions.

3. Plate umpire Dusty Boggess twice reversed himself on a play at home at Ebbetts Field, causing Brooklyn Dodgers to protest their 6-2 loss to St. Louis. There was no immediate ruling on the protest.

Emory (Bubba) Church, the Phillies' rookie righthanded pitcher, was hit by a batted ball in Friday night's first game and was taken to a hospital where plastic surgery was required.

The rhubarb at Brooklyn came when umpire Boggess called the Cardinals' Tommy Glaviano safe, then out, then safe again on a play at home in the first inning Bruce Edwards, Dodger catcher, argued Glaviano didn't touch the plate.

In other National League games Boston Braves whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 on pitcher Mike Surkont's three-run homer, and Chicago Cubs beat New York Giants in 10 innings, 4-3, with pitcher Johnny Klippstein scoring the winning run after hitting a double.

In the American, Cleveland split a doubleheader with Washington. The Indians won the first game 4-2, but lost the second 4-1. The eighth-place Philadelphia Athletics snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating Chicago White Sox 4-1.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, St. Louis Cardinals' first baseman, batted in 12 runs in one game to set a Major League record 26 years ago today. Playing against the Brooklyn Dodgers, Bottomley had a perfect six-for-six at bat. The Cards won, 17-3.

John Edmison Well Known, Highly Respected Pioneer

John Edmison, Smith pioneer farmer whose memory is being honored at the centenary year service Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Church, was 97 years old at his death, April 19, 1887.

The following sketch of his life and work was published in the Examiner at that time:

"Thousands of the people of the district will hear with regret of the death of one of the oldest, if not the oldest, resident of the county, and one of the most widely known and highly respected, Mr. John Edmison, Sr., who passed away at his homestead residence, Smith, on Tuesday April 19th, at the age of 97. He was born in Northumberland, England in 1790.

"Mr. Edmison first came to Canada in 1818 (and in May of that year was one of a group of young men from Port Hope who made an exploring trip to the present site of the city of Peterborough).

"His first place of residence was Port Hope, where he remained four years. During that time he located a farm in Smith township, now known as the Isaac Milburn farm, and had some improvements made on it. After four years in Port Hope, he returned to England, and staying six years. While there he married Margaret Ann Hall. He returned to Canada, accompanied by his wife and one daughter, in 1828. He again domiciled in Port Hope, working on shares a farm owned by the late Thomas Ward, until 1832, when he settled on the farm, where he lived continuously till his death, lot 11, in the 3rd concession of Smith."

Farmer All His Life

"Mr. Edmison followed farming with marked success, adding one farm after another, but for the last 20 years he had lived retired on the old homestead. He was a gentleman of exemplary character, enjoying the respect of all who knew him. He was an earnest Christian, and fully exemplified in his daily walk, the virtues of the faith professed, and the full beauty of the Christian character. He never took an active part in municipal or political matters. He never sought or accepted any secular office, but for 50 years he was an active elder of old St. Andrew's Church. He took an active part in the erection of old St. Andrew's, at the head of Brock St., and wrought at its erection not a little, with his own willing hands. He was elder at the time of his death.

Mr. Edmison was not a working politician. Always staunchly Liberal in his politics, he was never a biased partizan; still in profession and practice he upheld the principles of the Reform party even to the time of his death, for his last political act was voting for Mr. Stratton in the December elections, and for Mr. Cox in the February elections.

"In November, 1885, Mr. Edmison lost the partner of his joys and sorrows for 60 years, and since that time the attraction of a better world loosened his hold on earth, and his decline in health dated from the time of the death of his wife at the age of 83. His death was a triuphant vindication of the reality of the Christian religion. He died in sure and steadfast hope of a blissful immortality.

"Mr. Edmison was blessed with five sons and five daughters, all of whom survive; all married and the heads of families; all in prosperous worldly circumstances; all enjoying the respect of the community. His descendants, including children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, may be numbered by the score. He never had to mourn the death of a son or daughter, son-in-law or daughter-in-law, something remarkable in the life of a man who reached the ripe age of 93 years.

"'The memory of the just is blessed,' and long will Mr. Edmison's memory be cherished, a loving father, a loyal friend, a kindly neighbor, in fine, a man of solid Christian character, concerning whom, using the familiar phrase, "too much that is good can hardly be said."

Hamilton Park To Be Unique As Beauty Spot In 1952

Hamilton Park—a 1952 picture of playgrounds for children and adults alike. A wading pool for the tiny tots, a swimming pool for the older youngsters and picnic tables and beautiful surroundings for the oldsters. The Parks Department with Superintendent Armar Butcher at the helm and with the aid of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club this four-year project will go far in achieving for Peterborough, a most unique park.

Winding Creek

A three acre plot of ground, containing a winding creek, a densely wooded area and an old stone quarry, on the north side of Bonaccord St., was donated to the city by ex-mayor James Hamilton, four years ago with the stipulation that it be made into a park.

The Parks Department named [illegible] to work. After two years of study and planning, the project was started. The Kiwanis Club agreed to help in financing this park and it is expected that when work is completed this service club will have contributed approximately $9,000.

That's a lot of money to spend on one park, but the Kiwanis and Parks Department hope to have something special when they get through.

Jackson Park creek that winds through this site gave Superintendent Butcher some ideas. Why worry about artificial swimming pools when with a little work by man, nature has already provided them. The bottom of this stream from Bonaccord St. to Parkhill Road is hard limestone. Two dams, a stone wall along the banks and you have not only a swimming pool, but a wading pool as well.

Island Divides Creek

Last year a wall of limestone laid in cement was completed around the wading pool. This year it is expected that 500 feet of wall will be constructed. Half way through the park, an island divides the creek. The wading pool was built at the west side of the island and the swimming pool will be situated above it, at the north end of the park. When the project is completed the creek will be walled, around the island and from bridge to bridge—Bonaccord St. to Parkhill Road.

Not content to make this park merely a playground with swings, tetter-totters and slides, the Parks Department has made plans to make Hamilton Park a beauty site as well. When the creek walls are finished, the flat area on the banks will be sodded and seeded. The island will also be included in this landscaping scheme. In two years time, two weeping willows will grace either end of the island and it will be connected with the mainland by a rustic stone bridge.

The stone for the walls is obtained in the limestone quarry, owned by the city, on the Lakefield road. The maintenance costs for the swimming and wading pools are expected, according to Superintendent Butcher, to be small.

Innumerable loads of topsoil have been trucked in, and many more will be needed, before the project is completed. A great deal of rubbish cleared away and some of the brush cleaned out are two more items of work to be done.

If all of Mr. Butcher's plans are completed, children will have a playground in the winter as well as the summer. He hopes to be able to construct a toboggan slide from Parkhill Road down into the park.

Two years seems a very short time to complete all these plans, but the Parks Department is confident that they can do it. "We want the Kiwanis Club to get the credit for this park," stated Mr. Butcher. "It is true that we are doing a great deal of the work, but Hamilton Park as it will be in 1952, just wouldn't be possible, if this service club were not providing the finances."

St. Laurent Plans To Attend R.M.C. Dinner

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent has accepted an invitation to be guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Royal Military College Ex-Cadet Club of Canada at Kingston Sept. 30.

The dinner and annual meeting of the ex-cadet club will be held in conjunction with opening exercises at RMC, which reopened as a tri-service college for future officers in 1948. Cadets enrolled then will be starting their third term at the end of this month and first graduates will not leave the college until 1952.

The ex-cadet club embraces all living graduates of RMC. Oldest living grad and only survivor of the original class of 1876—known as "The Old Eighteen"—is Maj.-Gen. A. Bowen Perry, of Ottawa former commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The opening program for the cadets will include a ceremonial parade in the morning and the annual yachting regatta in the afternoon. On Sunday there will be a ceremonial service at the college's memorial arch.

Uniformity In Lighting Helps Reduce Accidents

Good lighting in the home helps to prevent accidents, reduces nervousness and fatigue owing to eye strain, and serves to enhance the decoration scheme.

Uniformity in lighting is essential where the task is severe or close as it is in many housekeeping jobs. Repeated adjustments to contrasting degrees of lighting irritate and tire eyes. Well diffused or indirect light should be used for general illumination wherever possible.

Glare, either direct or indirect, is a major source of eye strain. This can usually be eliminated by placing the source of light above the ordinary line of vision, or by diffusing the light with a correctly designed shade or fixture. Glossy objects, such as mirrors, table tops or glass, may reflect light into the eyes. Changing the position of the lamp or the object itself may solve this type of problem.

Shadow free lighting is a requisite for safety in dark halls and stairways. Switches at the top and bottom of stairs and garage lights which can be controlled by switches at both the garage and house are convenient.

Light fixtures should be selected first for the quality of lighting they give and secondly for their decorative appearance. Above all, study carefully the requirements of your family and plan the number of outlets in your home accordingly.

Make Nursery For Child Practical, Easy To Clean

Maybe baby won't be able to have a separate nursery, but if only a corner for his crib, make it pretty, private, practical and most important of all easy to keep clean.

Decorating and furnishing the nursery can and should be fun . . . fun to be enjoyed while you can because all too soon junior develops his own tastes and will have none of the dainty touches which mothers adore. While you are reveling in nursery rhyme decorations, don't overlook the fact that most important of all is a well-organized background to reduce work and make baby more fun to look after. As with everything else in the house, think twice before you buy his furniture from the standpoint of both practicability and comfort.

Mother's dream of ruffles and pink and blue ribbons will likely give way to more practical decorating when she settles down to the everyday job of caring for baby in his less happy moods. There is little of the fairy prince or princess about a new arrival and it will soon be found that keeping his room scrupulously clean is a much greater ambition than that it be beautiful. Children quickly pass far beyond the age of ruffles before they even notice them . . . and by that time you're sure to have decided that the routine of keeping the room clean and neat makes such luxuries impossible.

Most Practical

For the baby's first five years a sturdy bed with a drop side will prove most practical. A tall chest will accommodate his wardrobe until he's ready for school. And don't overlook a toy box to induce him to take care of his own things . . . an important start in building confidence and initiative in a child. Window seats are excellent for storing. Maple furniture, dark and durable, is often considered a more practical choice than white furniture.

Curtains can be as gay as you like, but be sure to select a fabric that will keep fresh-looking with a minimum of care. Ruffling curtains will only create another laundry problem. Linoleum is admirable for the floor of baby's nursery as it is so easy to keep spotlessly clean. Don't go in for a lot of rugs with a deep pile . . . they're only dust collectors. Braided rugs are much more suitable and can be washed with a minimum of effort.

Finally a word to crowded households where it is impossible to furnish a separate room for baby. This will call for a super-efficient job of organizing his own exclusve corner in your bedroom. Keep in mind that the primary need is to arrange baby's equipment in an efficient a way as limited space will alllow and provide him with necessary privacy by blocking out light and other distractions when he's sleeping.

Provide Play Yard

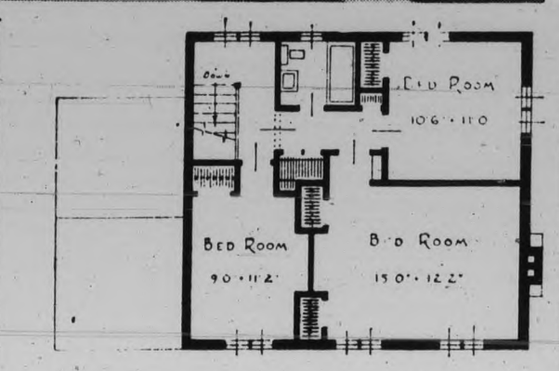
One of the biggest problems facing parents in city or suburbs is finding a safe place for the children to play. This is particularly true of pre-school groups. No community park, however good, is quite satisfactory for children of this age. Mothers need to be close by, and when there's housework to be done there's frequently no place for the youngsters except the front lawn. But here lurk dangers — a fall on the sidewalk, passing cars, backing trucks and a host of other hazards.

The real answer to this problem is a children's play yard. Here the kids can romp to their hearts' content within easy reach of Mother, yet without the dangers of the street.



A little discipline (which, after all, is good for any child) will teach him to stay out of the precious flower beds and confine himself to his private play area. If discipline fails to do the job, a fence may be the answer. The latter treatment provides a run for the youngster's dog as well.

Simple Games

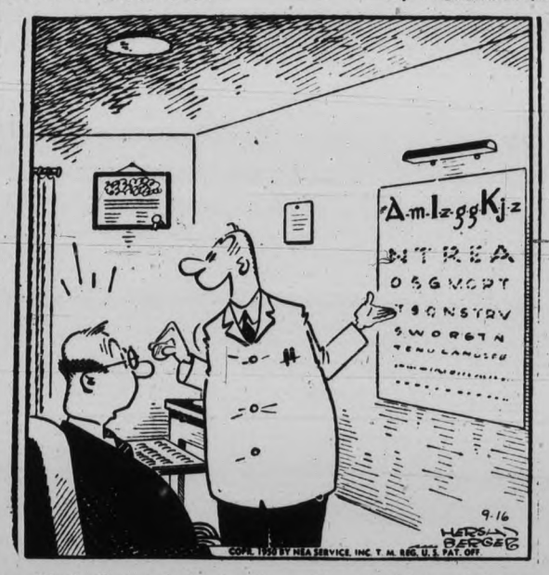
As we all know, children are frequently most amused by the simplest games and toys. Don't overload a play yard with costly paraphernalia, because a simple swing, sand box and hurdle will do the trick. Dad can likely make them all himself in a few evenings, if he's at all handy with saw and hammer. Of course, the children should have a hand in making decisions on the gadgets the play yard is to include, and maybe "helping Daddy" when he makes them.

Naturally where the yard is located is most important. It should get plenty of sunlight, yet have some shade too. Keep it away from the driveway by all means, and pick a spot with good drainage. It may strike you as artistic to have a pretty flower bed in the yard, but our advice is to keep it clear, with good grass turf to tumble on.



HOUSE No. 477 — It is easy to understand the preference of many for brick when you see a home like this. Color, warmth and permanence are only a few of the qualities that attract the home builder. This home is typical of the fine work done by Canadian architects in the small house field. Almost square in its basic plan, which assures construction economy, it contains six rooms designed for economy. This house was erected on an attractive suburban street and contains about 21,200 cubic feet without garage. For further information, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

New Windsor Police Board To Sit Monday

WINDSOR, Sept. 16 (CP)—The Windsor Police Commission will meet here next Monday to consider further steps in the reorganization of police administration announced Thursday by Attorney-General Porter.

Two new members will sit on the commission with Mayor Arthur J. Reaume. They are Lt.-Col. Roland Harris, newly-appointed magistrate, of Windsor, and Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton.

Chief of Police Claude Renaud, who normally attends the commission meetings, will also be present.

Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan, one of two police commission members whose resignation was announced Thursday, said difficulties had arisen from combination of his duties in the courts and on the commission.

"As a member of the commission I sometimes learned things that hindered my work in court," he said.

Must Wait Till Monday

No changes in the police force itself can be taken before Monday's meeting of the commission when six recommendations made by Provincial Police inspectors in a report on Windsor law enforcement will be studied.

Meanwhile, resignation of Constable Gilbert Ouellette as president of the Windsor Police Association is scheduled to come before a special meeting of the association today.

Constable Ouellette confirmed Thursday night that he had tendered his resignation Sept. 11 but emphasized that it was not directly connected with the reorganization. He gave dissension in the ranks of police and disagreement with the association's board of directors as the reasons for his resignation.

Millbrook WMS Study Japan

MILLBROOK, September 16—(ENS)—Mrs. M. E. Hobbs gave a talk on her impressions of the School for Leaders, recently held at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, at the September meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United church Millbrook.

She outlined the devotional, recreational and social periods of the school and stressed the importance of community friendship secretary's work and the call for continued sending of supplies of food and clothing as well as more missionaries to Japan. In order to obtain a better knowledge of this country, Mrs. Hobbs told the members that they should read books and magazine articles about Japan and make use of all available films. Some of these books were provided members by the book shelf award which they won for achieving the highest score in the Peterborough Presbytery, in 1949. The aim for 1950 is five books a member.

The worship service held at the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Percy Stinson, assisted by Miss Finniemore and Mrs. John George and Mrs. J. McKnight Mrs. Lawrence Winslow sang a Japanese hymn and Mrs. John Ridge and Miss Estella L. Hetherington led the prayers. Mrs. Richard Matchett, president, took charge of the quiz on Japan.

Mrs. W. E. Ball reported that she had prepared a history of the local WMS from its initiation, which will be deposited in the Presbytery archives.

An invitation from Centreville WMS to attend their Thankoffering Service, September 28, was accepted.

James, Brother of Jesus Man Of Authority

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD

When Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household" (Matthew 10:36), he was speaking out of what must have been His own sorrowful experience.

In John 7:5 we read that "neither did His brethren believe in Him." Apparently, without having any of the cruel and vengeful spirit that Joseph's brothers displayed, there was in a milder way much the same attitude. They thought of Him as a dreamer, and they taunted Him with His claims of such a great mission. A great feast, the feast of tabernacles, was about to be held at Jerusalem. So, without faith in Him, his brothers urged Him to go. "If thou do these things, show thyself to the world"

Jesus had evidently been saying in the home in Nazareth, as He had said to His parents at the age of twelve, in the temple, that He must be about His Father's business. But Jesus kept His own counsel, and awaited His own time. Constantly there was the consciousness that "His hour had not yet come. So, when His brothers had gone, He went up to Jerusalem, to the feast, in His own way.

What happened there is recorded in John 7, but what we are concerned with here is this background, and in noting the welcome fact that at least two of the brothers of Jesus became earnest Christian disciples. These two, James and Jude, are authors of two New Testament books.

Jude Obscure

Of Jude we do not know much. His book consists of a single chapter, but it is a vivid appeal and warning to early Christians, and it closes with a notable and beautiful benediction, often repeated.

Of James, on the other hand, we know a great deal, partly because of his own longer Epistle, and partly because of references to him in other parts of the New Testament. This James, who is to be distinguished from the Apostle of that name, was the one of the two, James and John, whom Jesus called "Boanerges," the "Sons of Thunder," was the leader in the Christian Church at Jerusalem.

This was a position of considerable authority and influence. Various New Testament references indicate how Christians and leaders in other Christian communities looked to Jeruslam for guidance, and for counsel in matters of controversy that sometimes arose.

Spiritual Authority

But the notable thing is that the authority of James seems to have been spiritual, rather than official. His influence seems to have been commanding because of his deep integrity, and the purity of his heart and mind.

In our day I think James would have been called a good, democratic Christian, a man of good practical judgment and common sense. The "man with the gold ring," and the goodly apparel (See James 2:1-9), meant no more to him than the poorest saint.

James is the apostle of good works, but of good works springing from Christian faith and character. Luther, in his emphasis upon faith, called the Epistle of James an "epistle of straw," and would have left it out of his Bible.

But even great men are not infallible. I have just read how an eminent scientist scoffed at Edison's incandescent light, saying it would never be of value. The general verdict is that Luther was as wrong about the Epistle of James. It is the Epistle of a genuine Christian, a man of great faith, saying that great faith must be manifest in good works.

Missionary Experiences

WARKWORTH, Sept. 16 (ENS) —The first fall meeting of St. Paul's United Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. H. C. Kelly.

The program was in charge of Mrs. O. B. Hopkins and Mrs. J. A. Greenly.

Mrs. J. A. Greenly introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. E. Tooms, of Campbellford. Mrs. Tooms talked of her personal experiences during the 18 years she spent as a missionary in India. Mrs. Hopkins thanked the speaker.

A gift of $10 from the Norham Women's Association (branch of St. Paul's) was received.

KILIMANJARO

The highest mountain in Africa is Kilimanjaro in Tanganyika (19,319 feet); it is an extinct volcano.

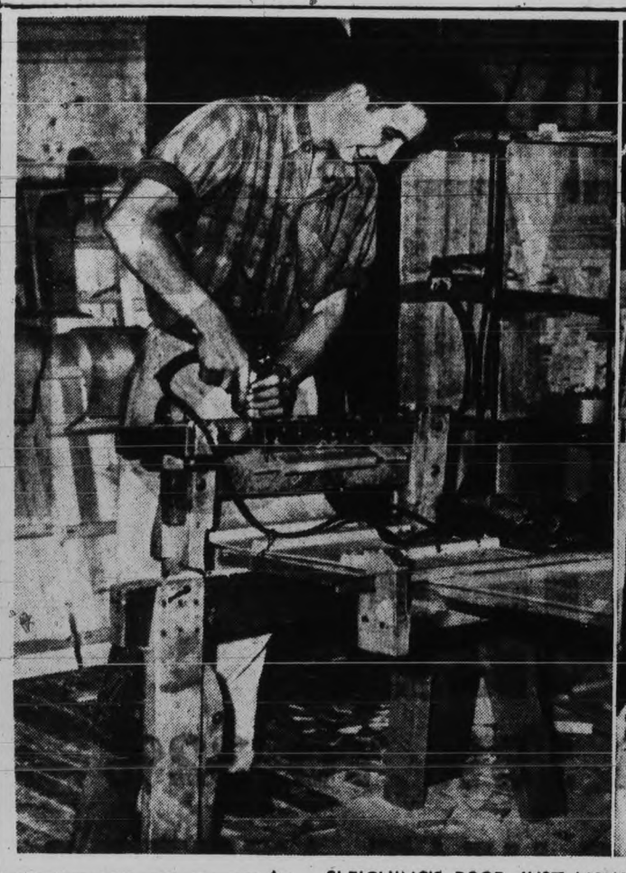
Mark Centennial With Service In Civic Arena

Peterborough's Centennial combined church service arranged by the Ministerial Association will be held in the Civic Arena Sunday night with a special speaker, a well-known guest soloist, songs by a massed choir of 200 singers from the churches and music by the Salvation Army band.



In the morning all churches in the city will hold special Centennial services, many of them with guest speakers, as their contribution to the city's celebration of its 100-year birthday.

Mayor Max J. Swanston, the city council and members of the city boards will attend the morning service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church where the Moderator of the General Assembly is the special speaker.

Guest speaker at the combined evening service which thousands are expected to attend, will be Dr. George B. Gilmour, chancellor of McMaster University and great grandson of the founder of Murray Street church.

The guest soloist will be Albert Marson, soloist with the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir. He is a well-known tenor who has appeared in many recitals and concerts in Toronto with the Royal Conservatory of Music where he is a senior student. He has also sung in many cities in the province and has been heard in Peterborough on a number of occasions.

A good deal of music will be featured at the service by the choir and the Salvation Army band. The service proper will begin at 7:45 p.m, but the band and the choir will have a special program starting at 7 p.m.

SLEIGHING'S POOR JUST NOW, but judging by the toboggans being built, about 250 per day, and shipped, 25,000 within the next couple of months, it looks as though winter is not far off. In the plant of the Peterborough Canoe Company, Bob Killingbeck, LEFT, assembles a short model on a jig. Waiting to be packed into a railway car, a small part of a 2,000-lot shipment for Winnipeg is shown in the RIGHT photo, as shipper Bill Miller, extreme right, talks with his helpers Lorne Beavis and Bill Hudson.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Peterborough Ranks Fourth Among Secondary Group Of Eight Cities In Ontario

Peterborough ranks fourth in population among a secondary group of eight cities that are reviewed statistically for 1949 by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs. Peterborough is also third in total assessment, is third in tax levy per person, and is seventh in its tax rate. In total revenue last year this city was in fourth place for $2,039,903; also fourth for total expenditure at $2,030,041; showing third highest surplus of $9,862.

Kitchener had a deficit of $4,004 and Sarnia $16,382. The cities finishing the year with surpluses were: St. Catharines $66,153; Kingston $21,630; Peterborough $9,862; Brantford $7,969; Oshawa $6,880; Guelph, $4,051.

Toronto stands far out in front with a population of 673,104 (not including its separate suburbs); total assessment of $1,311,479,907; total tax levy of $41,477,560 or $61.62 per capita; and tax rate of 30½ mills for Public School supporters and 33.15 mills for Separate School supporters.

Hamilton, Ottawa, Windsor and London are grouped together, and following them are: Kitchener, St. Catharines, Brantford, Peterborough, Kingston, Oshawa, Guelph and Sarnia.

Kitchener population 42,212; total assessment $39,001,414; total tax revenue $2,145,825; total tax levy per capita $50.83; tax rate in mills: PS and SS supporters each 49½.

St. Catharines: pop. 37,249; total assessment $36,559,724; total tax revenue $1,920,029; tax levy per capita $51.55; tax rate, PS and SS supporters each 50 mills.

Brantford: pop. 37,113; assessment $33,855,160; taxation revenue all sources, $1,780,474; tax levy per capita $50.23; tax rates—Pub. mills, SS 55 mills.

Peterborough: pop. 35,682; assessment $35,030,175; taxation revenue—$1,650,041; tax levy per capita 46.24; tax rates—Pub. School supporters 45½ mills; Sep. School supporters 46½.

Kingston: pop. 32,742; assessment $24,665,510; taxation revenue $1,379,903; tax levy per person $42.14; tax rate PS and SS 52½ mills.

Oshawa: pop. 28,552; assessment $33,251,265; taxation revenue $1,224,379; tax levy per capital $42.88; tax rate, PS and SS 36 mills.

Guelph: pop. 26,588; assessment $17,331,760; tax revenue $1,057,740; tax levy per capita $39.78; tax rate PS and SS 59 mills.

Sarnia: pop. 23,481; assessment $20,879,480; revenue from taxes $1,071,599; tax levy per person $45.64; tax rate: PS 48 and Sep. School supporters 54.40 mills.

Peterborough is fourth in population; third in total assessment; fourth in total taxation revenue; fourth in tax levy per capita; and in its tax rate it is seventh for Public School supporters and also seventh for Separate School supporters.

Guelph with the lowest assessment has the highest tax rate at 59 mills; Kingston also with an apparent low assessment is second highest at 52½ mills; St. Catharines is third at 50 mills; Kitchener fourth 49½ mills; Brantford fifth 49 mills; Sarnia, sixth, 48 mills; Peterborough, seventh, 45½ mills; Oshawa, eighth, 36 mills.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

DISCUSS COMPANY OFFER

Quaker Oats employees, members of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), will meet at the Knights of Columbus hall Sunday to decide whether or not they will accept the latest contract offer of the company. Details of the offer are not available.

GET SERVICE MEDALS

W. H. Stringer, OBE, commissioner of police for Ontario, will today present long-service-and-good-conduct medals to four No. 8 District Provincial Police. The medals will be for at least 20 years service with 10 years good conduct and satisfactory service. The four are District Inspector C. W. Farrow, Sergeant Price Morris, Corporal Lloyd McClure, and Corporal Douglas Wilson of Cobourg. The presentation will be at district headquarters, Charlotte St.

COW SLIGHTLY HURT

It's not only deer that are struck by motorists on Highway 28. Early today three cows, under the impression the grass was greener on the other side, decided to cross the highway at a point more than three miles north of Young's Point. One of them found it a painful experience. She was hit by a northbound car driven by Victor Brown, Burleigh Falls, and sustained a bad cut; but she was not seriously hurt. The owner of the cows is Edward Dunsford. Provincial Constables C. A. Naismith and L. H. Sinson checked to see that Bessie was done right by.

Car, Truck Collide

A car and a panel truck collided Friday as the car, driven by Kenneth Hart, RR 1, Fenelon Falls, was making a left turn from George St., into Romaine St.

The truck was driven by John McCann, 165 Fradette Ave., south on George St. following the car.

Teeth By Bevan

COPTHORNE, Sussex, England —(CP)— Before preaching his sermon at a Roman Catholic church here, Father Camillus said: "You will have to excuse me if I develop a Welsh accent. I am wearing Aneurin Bevan's teeth for the first time." Mr. Bevan, a Welshman, is Britain's health minister and is responsible for the issue of free teeth."

Lumber Concern To Build Office

Peterborough Lumber Company have plans for a two-storey office and display building on their Monaghan Road mill property. It will be 30 ft. by 125 ft., and will be located between the street line and the front of the present building on that site.

The ground floor will be laid out for sales and display purposes with provision for executive offices upstairs.

The company is retaining their Hunter St. office, and have room to expand in that premises their facilities for receiving orders and accounts and other business. They will also enlarge some lines which they have been carrying in stock, but have not been featuring, such as details of building hardware.

Caught Big Muskie

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15 — (ENS).—Carl Spraggins of Tiffin, Ohio, says he can go home satisfied now, after boating a 24½ pound 'muskie in the Trent river at Puff Ball Inn on Friday.

R. F. Kerkoff of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and Peter Kerkhoff of Tiffin, assisted Mr. Spraggins in his battle with the fish.

The fish, which measured 43½ inches in length, was taken on a jointed pikie.

ALBERT MARSON noted Canadian baritone who will be the special soloist at the community church service being held in the Civic Arena on Sunday night commencing at 7.45.

Continue Their Education

252 Students Out of 262 In High School

"The number of students continuing their studies into Grade IX is ... meet in the school again this year.

Wightman, superintendent of schools.

In his September report to the Board of Education Mr. Wightman cites some statistics: Of 262 students promoted to Grade IX, 252 are continuing their secondary education—five of them in collegiates outside Peterborough.

Three have permits to leave school and the remaining seven are over 16 years and are now employed.

"This complicates the high school problem," says Mr. Wightman referring to the already overcrowded condition at PCVS, "but just the same it's the kind of thing we like to see."

Used for Teen Town

Confederation school will be available again this year for members of Teen Town, a group of south-end 'teen agers who have a social club. James A. Goldie, Montgomery St., appeared before the Board asking for permission to ... began ... a nucleus of eight members, he said, and it now has an enrolment of 90 boys and girls with about 75 active members. It is self sustaining except for the heat and light that go with the school accommodation.

Members pay the janitor for his extra time and help him clean up. Last year, Mr. Goldie related, the club was one of the first organizations in Peterborough to make a contribution to the Manitoba Flood Relief fund.

The Board by unanimous vote granted the Teen Towners permission to use Confederation for another school year.

Helps Board of Health

Also passed without dissent was a Health Committee recommendation that Dr. Harold Wright, medical officer, be permitted to work with the Board of Health two ... allow Dr. Wright to keep his hand in on clinical work and keep an eye on pre-school children, Dr. Russell Morgan explained.

Dr. Cameron Craig has received a part-time appointment as a school dental officer. He will work under Dr. Jethroe Graham, and supply his own materials and office space.

At the end of the year the whole matter will be reviewed to see, if in the opinion of the Board, the post of assistant dental officer should be continued.

Dr. Ralph Honey reminded the Board that October 2-7 is Dental Health Week. Two suitable films from a choice of 14 are to be selected to show in public schools: one for Grades V to VIII, and the other for the junior grades.

Fingerprints Identify Body Found In River

Fingerprints identified the unknown body that was taken from the Grand river at Brantford in August, Identification Officer Sergeant William Aggas reported today.

Pictures of the bloated and battered face was posted up in the city police guard room here as it was in police stations across Canada.

He turned out to be Edward Baskett, a 40-year-old former Brantford man. His identity was established when his fingerprints were found to be on file with the Canadian Army where he had served during the war.

How and why he was beaten up and how he got in the Grand river are still a mystery.

Youth On Golf Course Run Over By Truck

COBOURG, Sept. 15. — Don Williams, age 16, employed for the past two weeks by the Cobourg Golf Club, received an injured shoulder late yesterday afternoon when a truck chassis ran over him. The vehicle, which had been converted into a tractor-like machine to maintain the golf course, was being driven by E. H. Smith when it ran over a bump. Williams, who was riding with him, fell off and one rear wheel ran over his right shoulder.

Reserve Units Plan Army Week

Army week celebrations by the two local reserve force units next week will be limited to a straight display of equipment at the armouries Tuesday night.

Lt.-Col. M. E. Clark, E.D., commanding officer of the 50th Heavy A.A. Regiment, R.C.A, said today that assistance from army centres is not available this year. He added that the public are invited to the parade Tuesday night to inspect the equipment and ask any questions they wish.

The radar convoy for picking up and checking on targets is probably the most interesting part of the unit's equipment. In addition to this and the trucks there is the predictor which transmits information to the three 3.7 Ack Ack guns. The three guns were completely modernized in the spring and now can be used for either ack ack or anti-tank firing.

At the same time Tuesday the equipment of the 28th Technical Squadron (37th Heavy A.A. Workshop), R.C.E.M.E., will be on display.

Thursday night will be the regular parade.

Toronto Man Hurt In Crash

James E. Skelhorn, 29, Toronto, is in Lindsay hosital with severe injuries sustained in a car accident Friday night six miles north of Gannon's Narrows.

His injuries include a fractured right thigh, fractured left wrist, facial cuts and bruises. Hospital authorities say he spent a good night and his condition today is satisfactory.

Mr. Skelhorn owns a cottage on Pidgeon lake, near Elim Lodge in Harvey. He was driving along the township road at 6.30 p.m. when his car hit a slippery spot on the road, went out of control and crashed into an oak tree.

The engine was driven in and damage to the car will amount to $300.

Mr. Skelhorn was only a short distance away from his cottage, which he was visiting for the weekend when the accident occurred. He was alone in the car at the time.

Provincial Constables F. M. Rawlings and T. H. Armstrong, both of Peterborough, investigated.

Korean Hospital

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The 176-odd personnel of the Swedish field hospital for Korea are just about ready to leave for the war area. The staff includes 10 physicians, one dentist and two pharmacists, 31 nurses and 48 male attendants, as well as drivers, cooks, etc.

Closely Matched

WALLASEY, Cheshire, England (CP)—Two local golfers ran into a duel of endurance in the final of the Wallasey Club championship. They had to play 102 holes before one of them walked off with the title.

Hen or Rooster?

White Leghorn Crows and Also Lays Eggs

Birds of a feather flock together but there's one bird in Peterborough which just doesn't know in which group it belongs, the roosters or the hens.

"Just one of those things," said William Wight, 167 Adaline St., as he looked at his White Leghorn hen—or rooster.

This bird has taken over as king of the Wight henhouse. It bawls and brushes the other hens around the pen just like a rooster, has a spur on one leg and a bit of one on the other. It's tail is like a rooster's and it crows every morning. But the game little bird produces an egg a day.

Hen? or rooster? Three solutions have been offered on this sex problem, by persons somewhat learned in such matters.

The first is that in colonies of females where no male is about, one particular bird in the flock has to dominate, to take the place of the absent male. (But is the Wight bird a hen?) If this bird, as a hen, has taken over in place of the rooster, it is not only changing its mental attitude toward its mates but also its physical characteristics, evidenced in the spur and the tail.

The second possible but improbable solution is that the bird is a rooster with motherly instincts. In this case the bird's desire for motherhood is so strong that somehow he has tricked Mother Nature into letting him lay eggs.

The third and most probable solution lies in the food of the birds. Tests in universities have proved that if a hen is given a certain diet, it will begin to show characteristics of a rooster. Crowing each morning is generally the main effect. But, strangely enough, Mr. Wight's feed for all the birds has affected only the one hen.

WILLIAM WIGHT WITH HIS CROWING HEN

Whatever the reason, Mr. Wight is not worried so long as he gets an egg a day, with or without the crowing.

The ECONOMIST REVOLUTIONIZES OIL TEATING

There is no substitute for Quality

--- low priced oil burners usually are too expensive for anyone to afford. They burn many gallons of oil needlessly, and are costly from the standpoint of service. The Econo-Mist Oil Burner is built for long life. It is quality equipment which will provide years of economical trouble-free operation.

Econo-Mist dealers are picked because they are masters in the trade, having the skill and equipment with which to properly engineer your installation. He will gladly make a free heating survey of your home and give you the facts about the Econo-Mist Burners. There is no obligation, of course, but you owe it to yourself to call him, before buying any oil burning equipment.

CHECK THESE FIVE FEATURES:

1.—THERMO-CONE COMBUSTION HEAD
Thermo-Cone Combustion Head produces a finer mixture of air and oil than any other make of burners. There is no enlargement or distortion of the vapour particles so that you get more intense heat, more evenly distributed in the fire-box.

2.—ONE-PIECE CAST ALUMINUM HOUSING
No bolts to lose, no rattling parts; it's all set in a one-piece cast aluminum housing of unusual thickness and durability.

3.—PRECISION MACHINED
As the housing is cast in one piece, then precision machined, no working parts can become out of alignment, thus ensuring many years of silent, trouble-free service.

4.—FIRING ASSEMBLY
The firing assembly has been expertly engineered so that it may be removed as one assembly through the opening at the rear of the burner. Your serviceman can then clean and adjust the burner quickly and easily.

5.—18 MONTHS' FREE SERVICE AND GUARANTEE
We have tested it; we know it is good, and we therefore guarantee the "Econo-Mist" Oil Burner unconditionally for 18 months. Because "Econo-Mist" is a 100% Canadian product, parts are easily obtainable. It is fully approved and bears the seal of the Canadian Standards Association. Should any adjustments be necessary, we completely service your burner for 18 months absolutely free of charge!

TESTED AND PROVEN

THE PATENTED THERMO CONE COMBUSTION HEAD

Tested Fuel Savings Guaranteed To Range from 15% to 32%

The Econo-Mist Oil Burner equipped with the Thermo-Cone Combustion Head has proven itself the most efficient oil burner on the Canadian market. Field tests as well as tests made in the laboratories of Canadian Universities show that savings up to 32% is made over conventional gun type oil burners.

The Thermo-Cone Combustion Head is the greatest advancement in oil burning, in the history of the industry. Because the Thermo-Cone Head use a minimum of excess air, higher CO 2 is obtained, and at the same time lower stack temperatures. The relative position of the parts of the Thermo-Cone Head can be altered during operation to achieve the best operating conditions and adjustments can be made without dismantling the unit.

Saturday Enquiry Column Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: I would appreciate it very much if you would send me your calorie chart.

Can you also tell me if ice cream is fattening and how many calories it contains.

I am also looking for a recipe for barbecue sauce that can be made up ahead of time and served later on pork barbecues on the bun. MRS. C. L.

Answer: I have sent you a calorie chart.

Four ounces commercial ice cream contain 214 calories, so it must be considered definitely a "fattening" food. While it may not contain cream it always contains sugar, milk and "thickeners" or "stabilizers" such as cornstarch or gelatin. Ice cream is seldom included in a reducing diet.

Quick Barbecue Sauce

Two thirds cup of thick chili sauce, 4 tablespoons sugar, brown or white—4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard. Mix these ingredients and let them stand until serving them. This sauce is delicious if poured over broiled meat cakes or pork chops or delicated steaks when they are turned for the first time under the broiler. It is also good to marinate the less tender cuts of beef in, overnight, before frying or broiling.

Barbecue Pork On Bun

Using slices of roast pork, or raw pork chops or frenched pork tenderloin, marinate them overnight in this sauce: 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1¼ teaspoons mustard, 1 teaspoon sugar, and 1 shake of paprika.

If roast pork is used heat in this sauce in top of double boiler. If raw meat is used broil it under very hot broiler to cook it. Heat the marinating [illegible] table to pour over the meat.

The above sauce is also good with 2 tablespoons each of ground green pepper, green onions, celery and some celery and parsley seeds added. Let stand in covered jar in refrigerator overnight before using. This sauce will keep a week in refrigerator.

Question: Will you please send me your calorie chart, also would you print a recipe for gum drop cake. I read your column faithfully and have found it very helpful.—Mrs. K. H.

Answer: I have mailed the calorie chart.

Gumdrop Cake

Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour or all-purpose flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, 1 pound small gumdrops less the black ones, chopped, ¾ cup raisins, ½ cup butter or margarine or good quality shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs beaten well, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup milk.

Dredge the cut up candy and raisins with the sifted dry ingredients. Cream the butter or shortening until very light then cream the sugar into it, then beat in the eggs. Add the flour and dredged fruit alternately with the milk and vanilla until all ingredients are just mixed. Bake in large loaf pan which has been lined with buttered paper. Bake in slow oven of 275 deg. or 300 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ hours. This cake keeps fairly well if you do not have a cake-box plunderer.

Nurse Shortage May Be Relieved By New Training

TORONTO —(CP)— A new kind of nursing course, combining two years' study with one year of on-the-job training, has started at Toronto Western Hospital. Seventy-seven young women are attending classes.

The course is a major departure from the traditional three-year unpaid apprenticeship, which requires a combination or regular hospital service and studies throughout. The Western students will receive all their academic instruction in the first two years and their third year will be devoted to full-time hospital work for which a salary will be paid.

The revised course, being tried out for the first time, is supported by the Atkinson Charitable Foundation through grants of $20,000 annually for five years. The ultimate purpose is to make the nursing profession more attractive to Canadian girls, without sacrificing quality and scope of training.

Gladys Sharpe, Western's director of nursing, has high hopes for the course.

"Only Solution"

"It's the only way to solve the nursing shortage," she said in an interview. "I'm hopeful that the fall of 1952 will see us with an increased nursing staff of well-prepared young women."

Members of the initial class have varied racial backgrounds. Austra Evele came here from [illegible] couver-born Japanese-Canadian. Barbara Lane is a Chinese-Canadian from Toronto. Maire Mattila was born in Finland. Harriette Trawin is a Canadian of Ukrainian descent.

Others in the class are: Mary Robertson, Shelburne, NS; Patricia Hale, Edmonton; Eleanor Croxall, Orillia, Ont., Verla Casselman, Englehart, Ont.; Carole Gomoll, Levack, Ont.; Millicent Hunter, Huntsville, Ont.; Doris O'Grady, Timmins, Ont., Lois Carlisle and June Scott, Owen Sound, Ont.

Still others are from such Ontario centres as Port Colborne, Alliston, Milton, Waterloo, Guelph and Palmerston.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

There is a period of about three weeks every summer when Larceny Lou disappears from his usual haunts and actually spends his time out in the country.

I believe that he puts in most of this time fishing and I really pity the poor fish that have to put their poor talents against him. However, while he is away, his human fish get a well deserved rest.

He dropped in to see me the other morning looking all sunburned and healthy, and much to my surprise had a Canasta hand for me. I say "much to my surprise" because in bygone years, Lou had never played any cards at all while on his vacation.

Here is the story in Lou's own words: "While I don't like to play cards when on vacation, I just couldn't keep away this time. The hotel was a real Canasta centre, and there were dozens of games every night. While some of the players were terrible, there was one bunch that played a pretty fair game and I got in the habit of joining them after dinner.

"I find that Canasta players are even more gullible than bridge players or fish, and that even the best will bite on any new form of bait.

"It was one of those unusual hands in which each side had managed to get a couple of discard piles. Both had several melds, many in the same rank, as their opponents. Finally, someone froze the discard pile and it looked as if the hand would go to the end with no one going out or getting the discard pile.

"I knew that I could play safely to the end, but at the same time saw that only a miracle or a really fancy play could get me the pack; the reason being that the only pair I held was jacks. My partner had melded joker, jack, jack early in the hand, and I had gradually acquired four jacks as play developed, without adding any to the meld.

"Of course, I might have tried the old chestnut of adding two of the four to his meld, but even in that hotel my reputation had preceded me, and I doubt if my oppenent would have fallen for it. However, somethting better developed.

"I drew from the stock, counted and found that there were only three cards left. That gave me no more plays, but I would still have a crack at one more discard. I still held two wild cards. So, I added two jacks and two wild cards to the meld, thereby completing the canasta and leaving myself with two more jacks.

"The play might not work, but It cost me little to try and since I am telling the story, you can imagine the result."

Fall Millinery Flattering But Not Conceivably Mad

By GAILE DUGAS.

NEW YORK (NEA).—Millinery could not conceivably be termed mad this fall. Instead, hats are pure flattery. They are, fortunately, not trimmed by carrots, miniature Eiffel Towers or bird cages. They are pretty wearable, and they have infinite variety, small, medium or large, with all shadings of desgn interpretation.

The drama inherent in Eric Bragaard's black satin-and-velvet bicorne typifies the big hat for the season. It's a hat to be stared at, but it's also a hat which flatters. The only trim it needs, it has: a small jeweled square.

A helmet hat in Cognac and white wool jersey, by Laddie Northridge, is downright practical. It has a snood which ties under the chin. The designer actually intends that this snood shall keep the wearer warm on cold and blustery days.

For late-day wear, a blue satin hat by Laddie Northridge has a really commanding elegance. It fits the crown of the head snugly and has a cuff trimmed with gold braid and coral beads. It's worn with a matching gilet.

Another late-day hat, by this same designer, is a real charmer A Watteau bicorne with upturned velvet brim, its rose satin crown shines with half-circlets of black jet.

The Spanish mood is seen in Eric Bragaard's red velvet toreador hat edged with black silk ball fringe. The designer borrowed the inspiration for this hat from a dancer in a Goya painting.

A pie crust cloche, designed by Laddie Northridge, represents the small hat which has finally come into its own. Its significance is in both design and trim, since these are departments where the small hat once was neglected. The crown of this hat hugs the head and sparkles with clusters of amber beads which encircle jeweled centers.

Britons "Wolves" French Girl Says

PWLLHELI, North Wales —(CP)— Claude Fabius, 20-year-old jewelers' assistant from Paris, spending her summer vacation at a holiday camp here, says of the British male:

"They are the freshest pack of wolves I have ever met.

"I think someone has been telling them tales about French girls. When I explained that all I wanted was to argue seriously, to learn more about the English, they considered that a waste of time."

Claude has solved her problem by asking permission to work in the coffee bar, for free, so she can listen to the conversation around her and perhaps join in.

WOOL PRODUCTION

Canada's wool production in 1948 amounted to 12,000 000 pounds, only about 12 per cent of her consumption of wool for that year.

Report Pre-Assembly Congress

St. Paul's Auxiliary of the WMS met in the Guild Room Friday afternoon with Mrs. E. H. Howson in the chair. Mrs. W. L. McNeil presided at the piano and Mrs. J. H. Eastwood was in charge of the devotional period. Guest speaker was Mrs. H. G. McKenzie who brought a comprehensive report of the Pre-Assembly Congress meeting held in commemoration of the 75th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Sessions were held in the Mac Vicar Memorial Church, Montreal, June 5 and continuing for three and a half days. Great and vital subjects having to do with the faith, work resources and witness of the church, were set forth and reported upon by distinguished ministers, teachers and laymen. Appreciation for a most excellent report was expressed by Mrs. James Dutton. Mrs. Howson referred to the severe loss sustained in the recent death of Miss Mina Ross, who had for many years been a faithful member and office bearer in the Auxiliary.

Review Handwork Completed

Mrs. T. Glover, Homewood Ave., was hostess thursday evening for a meeting of the Cheerful Worker's Bible Class of St. James United Church. An inspiring devotional was led by Mrs. R. English, her subject being "The power of prayer." The scripture reading was taken from Luke and the hymns selected were "In the Garden" and My Faith Looks Up to Thee." In a brief business session it was planned to have a bazaar in the church in November 8 and the amount of work now ready was reviewed and other items decided upon. A program of music and contests was arranged by Mrs. H. Holbrook and Mrs. H. McMahon. After the serving of lunch by Mrs. Carter and committee, president Mrs. A. E. Prest expressed a vote of thanks.

Resolutions Need To Have Prefacing Facts

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—Are the resolutions which women's organizations pass of any value? Do they serve any purpose in getting what the women want?

These were questions with which Mrs. W. R. Lang, secretary of temperance and Christian citizenship prefaced her talk on resolutions at yesterday's sessions of the Dominion Board WMS 25th annual meeting in St. Columba's United Church. Mrs. Lang is convener of the committee on resolutions which will come before the society next week.

"Resolutions are necessary, because women must be vocal in order to convince the Canadian public, stated Mrs. Lang. But resolutions must be followed up with continued interest, with visits to members of parliament and with efforts to stir up interest in the community, she said.

"Remember, you put your member of parliament where he is—do not hesitate to go for him and press for measures the women want," she said.

Women must know what they are talking about before they pass resolutions, they must study the facts and really know the field, she said. Mackenzie King had once reminded a delegation of which she had been a member that for every resolution received there would be a flood of literature on members' desks putting forth the opposite views.

An increase of 10,000 in membership of 3,200 children's groups totalling 100,000 children was reported. Policies in accord with modern educational methods were discussed, including desirable and non-desirable training in the use of money. Harmful effects of draws and raffles for children, even in some cases contributing to juvenile delinquency, were cited.

Challenge Women On Christianity

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP)—Dr. Margaret McWilliams said Wednesday night that there is a great challenge "to make our western civilization truly Christian."

The challenge is imposed by the paganism of Russian Communism, Dr. McWilliams, wife of Lt.-Gov. R. F. McWilliams, told a dinner meeting honoring the 35 women delegates to the 14th general council of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. McWilliams, an author, lecturer, and former newspaperwoman and member of Winnipeg city council, said women must play an important role in making Christianity a vital part of western democracy.

She said women "have been the age-old caretakers of the human race, the makers of home, and also of happiness within the home. Their skill rests on thousands of years of experience, and is precisely what the world needs today."

There is a special challenge to women, therefore, to move out into spheres of national and world action—they can not meet the challenge without becoming part of the government bodies—the final control is there."

THE BACKLOG of freight that piled up during the nine-day rail strike has caused a shortage of box cars on Canada's two main railroads. The Canadian Pacific says that there is 13,000 of their cars in the US, while there is only 4,000 US cars on CP lines, leaving a deficiency of 9,000. Toronto's freight terminals are jammed and Canada Steamship Lines have placed a two-week embargo on shipments until those there can be distributed.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD DUNNING of Toronto are shown following their marriage in St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock. The bride was formerly Rubena Ruth Rice, of Toronto, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wililam Rice of Havelock. The groom is a son of the late D. L. Dunning of Winnipeg. The couple will live in Toronto.

At the regular Percy Municipal Council meeting held in Warkworth Town Hall Tuesday, the council voted to purchase 100 folding chairs through LeRoy Newman at $1 each.

A wedding of interest to residents of Warkworth took place in St. Joseph's Cathedral, Edmonton, when Alberta Margaret Brenda Forsythe, daughter of Mrs. J. Forsythe, became the bride of John Joseph Convey, son of the late John Convey and Mrs. J. Convey of Percy township. Nuptial mass was celebrated by Father Forsythe, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Convey are visiting relatives in the village.

Provincial Council Lauds Action Windsor Women

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—The role played by the Windsor Council of Women in demanding a clean up of vice conditions in that city, was praised yesterday by Mrs. James Roberts, president of the Ontario Provincial Council of Women. She paid tribute to the efforts of Mrs. Gordon Kerr, president of the Windsor body.

"This is just an excellent example of how civic-minded organizations can triumph over organized crime and inefficient police administration if they are determined to do so," Mrs. Roberts said. "Mrs. Kerr has earned the gratitude of all women, indeed of all citizens, for her actions."

"What has been accomplished in Windsor can be done in other centres of the province where conditions indicate such action is necessary. We feel confident that such action will be forthcoming."

Library Club Holds Picnic

The Boys' and Girls' Department of the Public Library held a picnic for 24 members of the Canoe Club on Friday afternoon, at the Library. In order to belong to the Canoe Club and attend this picnic, the children were required to have read and reported on 10 books during the summer.

Raymor Turnbull, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Turnbull, of 638 George St., won the prize for reading and reporting on the greatest number of books in Grades VII and VIII. Raymor read 44 books.

The prize for reading the most books in Grades IV, V, and VI was won by Melvin Peterseil, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peterseil, 218 London St. Melvin read and reported on 27 books.

The prize for the best reviews was won by Gwen Rivers, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Rivers, 689 Elcombe Crescent. "All Gwen's reviews were exceptionally well written and concise," commented Miss Lillian Wesley, who is in charge of the Boys' and Girls' Department.

The theme of the picnic was Indian and the children played Indian games and competed in Indian contests. The picnic lunch was provided by the members of the Library staff.

BROWNED BLANCHED ALMONDS in a medium white sauce add the chef's touch to a snowy white platter of baked fish.

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Using Right Sauce on Fish Changes Common Dish

The finishing touches to a fish dish are often as important as its preparation. To make the most of fish you must see "250 Different Fish and Seafood Recipes," the ninth release in The Examiner's series of twenty-four Cookbooks being made available to readers one book a week.

This remarkable Fish Book is full of helpful hints, luscious illustrations and appetite-whetting recipes, but perhaps most important of all are the suggested sauces to add the chef's touch to what might otherwise be just an ordinary dinner. Here, for example is a basic white sauce for baked fish that can be varied in a number of ways.

Medium White Sauce

2 tablespoons Butter
2 tablespoons Flour
1 cup Milk
½ teaspoon Salt
Few grains Pepper

Melt butter, remove from heat, add flour and mix until smooth. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Season. Makes 1 cup sauce.

Bercy Sauce — Cook 1 tablespoon chopped shallots in the butter before adding flour. Use fish stock instead of milk.

Brown Almond Sauce—Brown ¼ pound sliced blanched almonds in butter before adding remaining ingredients. Thin with additional stock.

Cheese Sauce—Add ½ cup grated cheese.

This is just a small sample of the taste treats contained in the Fish Book. And all you need do to obtain your copy of it is clip a coupon from page 2 of any issue of this newspaper and present the coupon with 25c at The Examiner Office, or from your Examiner carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets. Or send the coupon and 30c (5c additional for postage and handling) to Cookbook Department, Examiner, Peterborough.

Rare CLU Degree Awarded Edmonton Woman

EDMONTON — (CP) — Mrs. Mollie Stevenson of Edmonton has been awarded the ninth chartered Life Underwriters Degree ever awarded a Canadian woman.

Though many men in the insurance field have passed the examinations, Mrs. Stevenson is the third woman in Western Canada to pass the three-year course given by the University of Toronto which is necessary to receive the CLU degree.

Mrs. Stevenson, a school teacher before her marriage, re-entered the business world with the Canada Life Assurance Company four years ago.

She now is a life member of the Women's Round Table Club of America, having sold more than $250,000 worth of insurance every year for the last three.

Enthusiastic about the possibilities of insurance salesmanship for older business girls, she thinks it is one of the few professions in which women can still find plenty of opportunities.

Apsley News

A very enjoyable party was held by relatives at Mrs. Lorne Youngman's to honor her brother Gerald Dafoe who with his bride, are spending their honeymoon here. During the evening a gift of a combination lamp and smoking stand was presented by Mrs. F. Dafoe and L. Youngmans on behalf of their friends. Lunch was served, the prominent item being a beautiful bride's cake which had been donated by Mrs. F. Dafoe.

Mrs. Howard Reid of Peterborough is spending some time with Donna and David Lean.

Mrs. Rickles of Clanricarde is visiting Mrs. Gordon Reynolds.

Miss Olga Whitmore of Toronto is holidaying at her home here.

Greatest Harm to Children Done by Indulgent Mothers

What is the worst thing that a mother can do to her child? Spoiling it. Pampering it. Making it feel that it must have its own way and whatever it wants, regardless of the rights and comforts of others. Indulging its every whim and caprice.

Most of the failures in the world are the men and women who were spoiled children. Mother always removed the crumpled rose leaf from under their forty mattresses of ease and they expected existence to be soft-padded for them the way she did it.

Dorothy Dix

She gave them everything they wanted on a silver salver and it never occurred to them that they would have to work and struggle to get their desires. She fed them on cake. So when they found out that they would have to toil and sweat to get even bread, and that nobody cared a hoot for their comfort or pleasure, they simply couldn't stand the gaff.

Divorce A Result

Nine-tenths of the divorces are the result of Mother's spoiling. Mother brings up Johnny to think that he is the kingpin of the universe and that all a woman is good for is to minister to his comfort and pleasure. She does all the hard chores around the house so he will be free to play with the boys. She draws his bath. She blacks his shoes. She waits on him hand and foot. She takes all of his impudence without ever answering back.

In time Johnny grows up and gets married, and when he tries his spoiled-child tactics on his wife and treats her as he did his mother she hauls him into the divorce court.

The same thing happens when Mother spoils Mamie. While Mamie is still in the cradle, Mother begins crawling on her stomach before her. She gives her everything she cries for, even if she knows it will hurt her. She turns her into a little tyrant before whom the whole household cringes. She never crosses Mamie's will.

Mamie also grows up and marries, and when she finds out that her husband won't spoil her as her mother did and that he expects her to fulfill the responsibilities of marriage, she packs her trunk and hikes out to Reno. It is the spoiled boys and girls who get married who keep the divorce courts busy.

Another great wrong that mothers do their children is in not disciplining them when they are little and teaching them self-control. Mothers have an optimistic theory that it isn't necessary to teach children to control themselves, or to be brave, or unselfish, or obedient because when they are grown a miracle will occur that will turn little hellions into adult angels. Of course, it never happens.

Some Prime Examples

The grouchy man who can never get along with anybody in business and who makes his wife's life a hell on earth was the little boy who was permitted to be surly and rude around home. The wild girl who mocks at Mother's efforts to restrain her was the little girl Mother never taught to behave. The peevish, fretful, discontented cowards who sit down and wail over their fates are the men and women whom Mother never taught to get up and laugh when they stubbed their toes and bumped their noses as babies. The disrespectful sons and daughters who show their parents no consideration are the children Mother allowed to talk back to her.

Another great wrong that mothers do children in in being too possessive. They want to monopolize their children. Often they don't want even the children's fathers tto have any part in the youngsters. They want their children to look to them for everything and to be rubber-stamps of themselves.

A mother will try to make her child just what she is and will deny it any life of its own whatever. She will not leave it free to follow its own tastes and desires in choosing a career and dooms it to failure because she forces it away from its natural bent. Many mothers are so possessive that they are not willing to have their children marry, and when they do, they often try to break up their homes.

And the sad part about these terrible things that mothers often do to their children is that they are done in love, and because the mother is so obsessed by her passion for her child that she cannot see what she is doing to it.

Fashion Flashes

Discreet glitter adorns some of the newest wedding dresses. Candlelight silk satin for a beauty, adorned with four floating, scalloped-edged panels of cream colored Chantilly type lace, discreetly trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The neckline is tulle-edged and is trimmed with appliques of the lace set with the pearls and sequins.

✧ ✧ ✧

Easy to dress up a basic suit or coat, come autumn. Many shops will stock chockers fashioned of a single mink skin, or fashioned of leopard or Persian lamb. With these tiny fur chokers come matching bracelets of fur easily slipped over the sleeves to form a cuff-like band.

✧ ✧ ✧

The gathering of the clans best described the scene in the stores as new merchandise arrives, for everything is tartan. Red, green and yellow tartan tweed for a three-quarter topcoat with raglan shoulder. Plaid is used on the bias for pocket flaps. With it a trim town suit in a tiny green and black check tweed that has a monotone effect.

✧ ✧ ✧

Far and away the best hats for fall are of the smallish order, with many handled on casual, even mannish, lines. A side-tilted cloche of black hatter's plush is covered with tiny loose triangle tabs of black velvet lined with shocking pink and with a triangle of pearls beneath each tab.

✧ ✧ ✧

A revival of gray flannel, foretold for some time, has come to pass. A handsome town suit of deep gray men's wear flannel has a narrow collar of black Persian lamb that widens to a square above the three-button, single-breasted closing. Slashed pockets have side tabs.

✧ ✧ ✧

Juniors should be delighted with their new fashions. Designed for mid-teens in a slim sheath of a frock in black velvet with long tight sleeves of black ribbed wool-knit. Ribbing is also used for the high, round neckline.

BIG MARKET

About one-quarter of Finland's exports are slated for Soviet Russia.

Sewing of Velvet Requires Skill to Add Style

This fall of 1950 is truly a "velvet" season and women of all ages are wearing it in blouses, gowns, suits, hats and accessories.

One manufacturer of velvets, velveteens and corduroys is supplying instruction-tags for the handling and home-sewing of these fabrics. These will surely be a boon to the many sewers who may have limited experience with velvet.

Size of needle, size of thread and number of stitches to the inch are three of the important clues to successful handling. Machine tension, layout of the fabric and pressing are other details fully explained in the tags, which include the following suggestions.

"When cutting, lay the velvet on a smooth, flat surface with pile side up, except where it is necessary to cut on a fold or double, when the velvet may be folded lengthwise with the pile inside. All pieces should be laid in the same direction, so that the pile runs upward.

"To avoid injury to the pile, use long, fine needles in place of pins to fasten pattern pieces to the velvet. Make all pattern markings with tailor's tacks, using silk thread.

"Place cut sections, lightly and without folding, in a drawer or box or roll them loosely, with patterns attached to avoid crushing. When assembling, use fine needles in place of pins.

"Short, even basting stitches with silk thread are suggested. Machine stitches, about 12 to an inch, are recommended. Avoid outside or top stitching on velvet. Inside seams, hidden by the pile of the velvet are most effective. Finish seams with overcasting or bind them with net.

"Use a velvet press board for seams, placing velvet with the pile face down on the press board. A slightly damp cloth should be placed on the wrong side of the velvet and the iron should be warm enough to create steam without pressure. Float the iron slowly over the seams. Press only a small section at a time. Keep the fingers dry and lift the velvet only when dry and very lightly to avoid finger marks."

These pointers can do so much to add to the style and life of a garment and the instruction tag also gives information on care and cleaning which should be of value.

BETHANY, Sept. 16—(ENS)—Members of the Women's Missionary Society of the United church gathered for their September meeting, at which Mrs. T. J. Jackson presided.

The group studied Japan and missionary activtiies in that country.

During the business session, Christmas cards were distributed to be sold by the various member 17 at which there will be a funds.

An invitation was received to attend the sectional rally to be held at Bailieboro, October 6.

Plans were made to hold a tea in the church basement, November 17 at which there wil lbe a demonstration of cuts of meat.

The program beginning with "What do we know about Japan?" was led by Mrs. Jackson. The first chapter of the new study book, "The United Church Reenters Japan," was discussed and various items of interest given by the members.

The president closed the meeting and refreshmetns were served by the hostess, Mrs. George Waddell.

Mrs. Wm. H. Rodgers Dies In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 16 — (ENS)—Captain McIntyre of the Salvation Army, and Rev. J. McKibbin of Christ church in Campbellford, conducted funeral services this afternoon for Minnie Violet Davidson, wife of William Henry Rodgers. Mrs. Rodgers, who had been ill about a week, died at her home on Thursday. She was in her 64th year.

Mrs. Rodgers was born in Belmont township, and had lived in Campbellford for 23 years, coming here from Healey Falls and Stanwood. Her father, Robert Davidson, now resides at Stanwood.

Besides her father and husband, she is survived by five sons, Wilbert Earle of Campbellford, Norman Daniel of Colborne, Neil Vernard of Cobourg, Donald Kenneth Francis of Campbellford, and James Randland, with the Canadian Army at Shilo, Manitoba, one daughter, Mrs. Jack Low (Laurettia) and several grandchildren.

Mrs. Rodgers was a member of the Salvation Army in Campbellford, and a member of the Loyal True Blue Association No. 35.

Pallbearers were her four sons, Neil, James, Donald and Norman, and Sanford Chard and Leonard Hampson. Burial was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Grandsons, and children of neighbors acted as flower bearers.

Miss Pauline Weir Auxiliary Hostess

NORWOOD, Sept. 16—(ENS)—The September meeting of the Evening Auxiliary was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Pauline Weir, the president.

The meeting opened with a prayer for guidance by Miss Weir, who introduced the new study book, "The United Church Reenters Japan." Prayer was offered for missionaries there.

Mrs. Flett and her group were in charge of the programme. The theme of the worship service was "The Spirit of the Cross" and Mrs. Weir read a poem by the great native Christian, Kagawa. Greta McGee took the scripture reading.

Mrs. Flett issued a challenge to the society to do its share for overseas relief. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction. Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Glamis Open To Public

GLAMIS, Scotland (CP). — Glamis Castle, ancestral home of Queen Elizabeth, is to be opened to the public. Twice a week, visitors will be shown around the ancient castle.

Students Line Up In Parties To Elect Governing Body

The Buttons will try to undo the Bows next week at the Collegiate and the Bows will try to undo the Buttons as the Students Council election campaign will be held.

Students and teachers went into action early this week and chose eight students to form two sides of the election for the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer positions on the student executive.

The Bows got the jump on the Buttons when they erected the first banners announcing their candidates, for president Mary Craw, for vice-president James Armitage, for treasurer Carol McKenzie and for secretary Donald Ash.

Kay Grier is running for the president on Buttons slate and she has Ronald Strickland for vice-president, Jennie Luther for treasurer and Donald Hillis for secretary.

Miss Grier and Miss Craw will open the campaigns officially Monday at the senior assembly with 10-minute speeches. The vice-presidents will follow Wednesday afternoon with five-minute addresses, the treasurer candidates Friday and the secretaries Monday.

The election campaigns will close a week Monday when the presidential candidates will follow the secretaries with two-minute summaries.

The election period is one of "the" moments of the school year at PCVS. Besides having longer assembles, therefore shorter afternoon periods in the classrooms the students hear the candidates promise everything from complete student power over the teachers to burning the building down for shorter school hours.

In addition to the campaign speeches and the posters plastered about the corridors the Buttons and Bows will each be allowed one skit. Quite often the students in the audience are drawn into the skits unexpectedly. The public address system is also rationed equally.

Voting wil ltake place a week from Monday. This is one of few elections where nearly 100 per cent of the eligible voters participate.

Woman Paints by Day, Scrubs at Night To Outwit Starving Artist Tradition

By JOE SCHUPPE
NEA Staff Correspondent

BERLIN —(NEA)— Bertha Splittberger paints with a mop by night so she can live to paint with a brush by day.

A 42-year-old former window decorator, Fraulein Spittberger refused to get as discouraged as a lot of others in Berlin's art colony because Berliners are too busy rebuilding homes to collect art.

She found a job cleaning offices and scrubbing floors at night. It gives her the luxury of having her days free to paint—and it also pays her 35 West marks a week, just enough to finance rent, food, canvas and paints.

Having outwitted the "poor starving artist" tradition, she works at her easel from mid-morning until it's time to pick up her scrub pail again in the evening. Occasionally she paints Berlin's ruins, but just for "exercise"; tropical fish and colorful animals take up most of her painting time.

"Why should Berliners want to be reminded of the ruins within their family walls?" she asks.

From time to time, Fraulein Spittberger puts on a "one woman" show at an open air exhibition on Berlin's streets. Critics have shown a lot of interest in her work. And sometimes people even buy one of her oils or pastels.

But even when she's scrubbing to mark time until more people buy, she doesn't stop painting. At night, other scrub women are her gallery when she pauses to sketch a fish with her mop on the floor she's cleaning.

ART AFTER DARK for Fraulein Splittberger is an occasional fish she paints on floor with a mop during scrubbing duties.

ART IN DAYTIME for Bertha Splittberger is done at her easel in the alcove of her tiny quarters in a bomb-damaged building.

Derby, Cutaway Watchman's Aristocratic Garb

LONDON (Reuter) — Aristocratic Richard Paget, who sports a monocle and a string of bloodstock horses, is celebrating a year's work as a London night watchman.

Clad in a cream derby hat, a pale green velvet cutaway coat, hunting waistcoat, breeches and leather leggings, he surveys the would philosophically from a contractor's hut on a bombed site in Mayfair.

Polishing his monocle with a silk handerchief, Paget, who has private means, explained his unusual occupation by saying the peace of night helped his health. He had a serious operation some time ago.

Gentle-spoken, Irish and 60, he referred enthusiastically to his private hobby — his string of horses.

Stable Subsidized

"I have nine bloodstock animals," he said, adding that the government fed them and paid him 10 shillings a year for each in return for the right to take them over if needed.

From his nights with the moon, the stars and owls from nearby Regent's park, Paget goes out to the country several times a week to say hello to his horses.

With a high rating among London's most picturesque citizens, he moved about on his duties unworried about the risk of soiling his immaculate garb. "I wear it because I like it," he said.

Though not much interested in money, he does not belittle the $18 a week (less income tax) he gets.

With the general splendor of his get-up — a blaze of color among the excavations — he is regarded by overseas visitors as one of London's most worthwhile "showpieces."

Cottesloe Women To Attend WMS Rally

COTTESLOE, Sept. 16 (ENS) The September meeting of the WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Dave McCoy. Helen Tedford president led the meeting.

The president asked as many as could to attend the section rally to be held at Westwood United Church on October 4 in the afternoon.

The secretary was asked to write Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe of Hastings asking her to speak at the association's Thankoffering service in October.

Yugoslavs Need Tourist Dollars Ease Curbs For Foreigners

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

BELGRADE—(AP) —Marshal Josip Broz Tito's Yugoslav government wants and needs hard cash from the western world. In return it promises to tourists sunshine, sea and a big dash of scenery.

On a 50-50 basis, the trade seems fair enough. There are few places the world over which can duplicate the grandeur of Slovenia's snow-capped mountains, or match the sheer loveliness of the history-wrapped Dalmation seacoast.

There are no hot dog stands or ice cream nooks. The roads are rough and the hotels frequently crowded. But the food is adequate and the hotels are accommodating. The scenery comes free. And there's a chance to sit in on a sideline of history.

Only a year ago there seemed little chance that Yugoslavia could pad its pocketbook with cash from the tourist trade. United States passports were stamped "not valid in Yugoslavia." Russia and the Soviet satellites were boycotting the country as a result of Tito's stand for independence.

The Cominform boycott continues, but the US state department has erased its restriction against travel in Yugoslavia as part of a broad plan to encourage Tito's independence and his challenge of the Kremlin.

Still a Trickle

There has been nothing sensational, to be sure, about the increase in the tourist traffic this year. It's still a far cry from the pre-war years when holiday trippers thronged such beauty spots as Dubrovnik, Bled, Split and Obatia.

But, slowly, they have started coming back—despite difficulties in Britain over currency limitations, the concern internationally over the Korean war, and the possibility Yugoslavia may be the next target for a Communist attack.

The government itself has taken an important step to encourage visitors. For the tourists, it offers a cut-rate dinar (officially worth two cents) at half the nominal value in order to get hard cash in return.

That has helped—not only to bring more tourists here, but to build up the trade with which Tito hopes to finance his five-year program for balancing Yugoslavia's agricultural economy with an industrial machine of its own.

Truman Urges Seaway Work Started Soon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) —President Truman said Friday the proposed United States-Canada St. Lawrence seaway power project is needed to make a "major contribution to our growing economic strength."

In a letter to the Great Lakes St. Lawrence Association, Truman said that the "demands of the present situation greatly increased the urgency of getting started on the project and completing it as rapidly as physically practical."

Truman's letter was read to the association's annual luncheon meeting by Lewis G. Castle, Duluth, Minn., chairman of the association's executive committee.

"We urgently need the seaway," Truman's letter continues, "especially as a secure route for transporting iron ore from new sources to supplement our diminishing domestic source of ore.

Need Power

"We urgently need the power, not only for normal use in farms, homes and factories, but especially to help in expanding important chemical and metals industries."

He told the association that the "relatively" small investment of materials and manpower needed to build the St. Lawrence project would be "richly productive."

Truman, even prior to becoming president, had advocated construction of the long-discussed St. Lawrence project. On many occasions since entering the White House he unsuccessfully has called on the Congress to take action on the project, first considered more than 50 years ago.

Legislation to authorize the more than $800,000,000 development has been introduced in this Congress but, because of the nearness of adjournment, is virtually certain to receive no action.

NS Town Honors American Doctor

CHESTER, N.S. (CP). — In memory of a famous and kindly United States surgeon, a fund has been organized here to assist the needy.

The man honored was Dr. John M. T. Finney of Baltimore and Chester, for 35 years attached to John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. A memorial fund has been established in his name at Baltimore as well as here.

Dr. Finney first came to nearby Little Fish Island in 1907 to spend his summer vacation. But when he saw there were many poor people in need of medical attention, he made it his business to help them.

In his 45-foot schooner Meemie he visited the sick and performed the functions of a general practitioner. He kept up the job through the years.

Throughout the neighborhood he was known as "The American doctor at Chester."

Moose Jaw's Origin Starts Controversy

MOOSE JAW, Sask. —(CP)— One of the commoner questions asked around town is: How did Moose Jaw get its name?

The legend usually told visitors is that it was named after a white man mended the wheel of his car with a jawbone of a moose.

But Mrs. Angie L. Wallis says that's ridiculous. She claims the Sioux Indians named the site Moose Jaw because the bend where two creeks met was shaped like a jawbone.

She says that at that time there were no moose within hundreds of miles of the site of the present city.

Quite A Shock

WESTON-SUPER-MARE, England (CP)—F. Parsons, a retired tax inspector, played the football pools for years without luck. He died recently—four days after winning £11,000 ($34,100) in a pool.

Civilization

GISBORNE, NZ —(CP)— The Maoris still use their traditional cooking methods for ceremonial occasions. The system is much like the modern clam-bake. Biggest problem today is digging the large pit that is necessary. But the Maoris hire a bulldozer operator as assistant cook and borrow a bulldozer from a construction gang to scoop out the hole.

SHIP'S PET — Meet Little Joe, celebrated bald eagle aboard the Dominion Government's survey ship William J. Stewart. Little Joe was a helpless ball of fluff when he was rescued two months ago by the ship's crew members after falling from his nest on Sentinel Island, near Prince Rupert, BC. He was revived and fed chipped fish and meat scraps. Holding him is crewmember Ron Genis. In two years he'll have the familiar white patchy head.

Big Wheat Crop Stalls Reds In Backward Iran

By ROBERT HEWITT

TEHERAN —(CP)— A big wheat harvest, coming after a year of depressing crop failure, is helping Premier Ali Razmara combat Communism in Iran.

The average peasant, still using the farming methods of his ancestors, doesn't really know or care much about Communism. He's mainly concerned with his daily struggle to get enough bread. Bread, tea and sugar are his main diet.

Last year he didn't get enough bread because a hard winter and late spring ruined much of the wheat crop. Widespread hunger and unrest provided a fertile field for agitators of the underground Tudeh (Communist) party.

Mass March

Protest demonstrations were climaxed by a mass march of some 20,000 peasants which lies along the Soviet frontier. Azerbaijan was th scene of the 1946 revolt which collapsed a few months after the Red army withdrew from Iran under United Nations pressure.

The new and bigger wheat crop is filling Persian stomachs a little better this summer. Discontent has eased somewhat. Razmara, installed at the head of a so called "reform" government in June, has won a little more time to carry out measures of economic reconstruction with American aid.

Reds Occupied

Even since the inflationary war years, when Iran was occupied by the Russians and the British to forestall a threatened German coup, the rich have been getting richer and the poor getting poorer. This has provided plenty of propaganda material for the Communists.

Some observers believe a peasant revolution would have broken out in Azerbaijan this year if the wheat harvest had been bad again.

Razmara, former army chief of staff, has promised to improve the economic plight of the poorer classes. Allied officials here see him as the country's best hope to restore a degree of peasant prosperity and avert anti-landlord unrest.

In his first six weeks in office, Razmara was blocked by the majlis (parliament) from carrying out his program to decentralize the government and set up local councils to administer economic aid. When the majlis, largely composed of wealthy landowners and businessmen, recessed, Razmara announced he would go ahead with his program without specific parliamentary approval under authority provided by the constitution.

Razmara is the first post-war premier in whom American diplomatic officials have placed any real confidence. Ambassador Henry F. Grady is reported urging Washington to act speedily to provide loans to stimulate Iran's economic machine.

Manchester Doctor Has Strange Accident

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Reuters)— A Manchester doctor describes an unusual accident in the current British Medical Journal.

According to the doctor, a man slipped while undressed and landed heavily on a glass paste pot, three inches wide and four inches high.

He fainted.

When he came to, he found that the bottle had vanished—inside him.

Although he was in great pain, he rode a motorcycle eight miles to his doctor and then three miles more to a hospital.

Efforts to remove the bottle whole failed. It was broken up with a hammer and chisel and removed.

The Journal did not identify either the man or the doctor.

Quebec Truckers Told To Watch Red Propaganda

QUEBEC, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Premier Duplessis Friday reminded Quebec truckers that their licences are issued for "recommendable purposes" and warned them not to carry Communist propaganda in their trucks.

The premier also made known during his regular Friday press conference that an inquiry is being conducted into a statement made by Charles-Emile Poliquin, key-figure in the trial of two provincial police detectives and a former policeman, that he trumped up evidence in a "plot to overthrow the Union Nationale government."

Also announced was the government's decision to introduce legislation at the next session of the legislature to allow the fire-wrecked towns of Rimouski and Cabano to make provincial government-guaranteed loans to help home building.

Intend To Stop

Some truckers, the premier said, are using their trucks to distribute Communist literature in the province and it was the government's intention to stop that.

"We have been given information that Communist propagandists, some operating in disguise, have used trucks circulating in the province to difuse literature and propaganda that is aethistic, anti-patriotic, unwholesome and unfortunate."

The premier said some truckers may have unknowingly carried the propaganda but he was issuing a warning so that no one would be surprised when the government took action.

Raise Paper Wages

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)— The New York Times said Friday that wage increases of from $3 to $10 a week were awarded to editorial and commercial employees of the newspaper by an arbitrator, and embodied in a new two-year contract with the American Newspaper Guild (CIO). The top minimum pay for editorial employees the newspapers says, is raised from $110 to $120 a week.

All WA Members Contribute 2 Dozen Eggs

ROSENEATH, Sept. 16 (ENS) —Planning their autumn bale, was the important item of business at the September meeting of the W.A. of St. James' Anglican Church, held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James L. Timlin. On motion it was decided to purchase a pair of flanellette blankets from W.A. funds to be included in the bale with the articles of warm clothing donated by the members. The bale will be shipped to the W.A. House in Toronto, then forwarded to a mission where it will be distributed amongst the needy.

Mrs. Earl Braithwaite presided over the business period. Mrs. Ray McCracken was appointed secretary pro tem owing to the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Jack Webb.

The treasurer, Mrs. James Brown, reported a balance on hand of $255.84.

Canon C. R. Spencer was in charge of the devotional period Mrs. James Timlin was pianist.

To Swell Funds

Birthday money was given in by the members having birthdays in September, also a donation of two dozen eggs by every member to swell the society's funds.

A quilt was quilted during the afternoon and several custom quilts were on order. Some of these will be quilted at an early date at the home of Mrs. James Webb, Mrs. Herbert McCracken and Mrs. James Brown.

Plans were made to attend the W. A. Deanery meeting to be held in St. John's Church, Peterborough on Thursday, September 21st.

Mrs. William J. Robbins offered her home for the October meeting.

Canon C. R. Spencer closed the meeting with prayer. The hostess served lunch.

Crown Attorney Goes To U.S. For Prisoner

TORONTO, Sept. 16 —(CP)— Crown Attorney W. O. Gibson is in Los Angeles personally directing efforts to have Stanley Buckoski returned to Canada to stand trial for murder.

Police officials said to their knowledge it was the first time a crown attorney has personally gone to the United States to fight for the return of a prisoner.

Buckoski is wanted here as the alleged slayer of Alfred Layng, shot following holdup of a groceteria a year ago last month.

Extradition proceedings were under way when Los Angeles police found ballistic tests linked Buckoski with the slaying of a woman during an attempted house-burglary there.

Los Angeles authorities then sought to try the man on a murder charge there before handing him over to Toronto.

Hayloft Show In Omemee For Legion

OMEMEE, Sept. 16 (ENS)— Uncle Ezry's Hayloft Jamboree, under the direction of Mari-Lynn Domm and sponsored by the Omemee branch of the Canadian Legion, provided two nights of fun for the people in the Omemee vicinity. Proceeds were for the benefit of the Legion Building Fund.

Coronation Hall was filled both nights to witness the local talent show. The cast was: Bill Weir as Joe Kelly, Master of Ceremonies; Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt as Uncle Ezry Jim Brooks as Hiram Hicks and Orma Brooks as Lula Belle.

The stage was set for a hayloft studio, and their visitors included several contestants for prize performance, a set of square dancers and twenty-one Hayloft Sweethearts. The loft rang with music, laughter and applause, the interludes being filled in with jokes and quips by the cast.

Hayloft Sweethearts.

The Sweethearts were: Marilyn Hart, Ruth Morrison, June Collins, Sharon Toland, Rosemary Garvey, Joan Pooley, Evelyn Fee, Jean Deyell, Shirley Bannon, Mary Ann Pooley, Eileen Zufelt, Temple Morcombe, Nancy Robinson, Verna Zufelt, Marilynne Green, Ann Pelling, Shirley Clifford, Jean Deyell, June Crawford, Edna Gladding and Barbara Rawlins. Six of these played the roll of Quiz Kids and a few sang solos and duets, all were very energetic in chorus singing and in applauding the performers.

The contestants included Russell McElwain with his banjo, Marie Robinson (Tillie Twinkletoes) tap dancer; Even Clifford (Wilf Carter) with his guitar; Dorothy Connell soloist; Clare Fox (Hank the Cow Boy) and his guitar; Muriel Hillis, violinist; William Hillis on the guitar and Bob Turner (Snappy Sam) pian-cessary accompanying for the show the first night. Joan Whitemore was pianist the second night.

Judged by Audience.

The performances were judged by the votes of audience. Claer Fox was in the lead the first night but at the end of the second performance Erwin Clifford was proclaimed top performer. His yodeling song made a hit. Clare was second and little Marie Robinson's tap dancing was liked next best. She was accompanied on the violin by Mr. Robert Graham. The prizes were $10, $7.50 and $5.00 respectively.

The Tiny Tots popularity contestants were brought to the platform and introduced to the audience. Johnny Parker, son of Mr and Mrs. Leslie Parker had the highest number of points among the boys and Baby Fay McQuade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. McQuade was highest for the girls. They were crowned King and Queen and each was presented with a silver cup.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS—When East German Communists examine their potato bugs under the magnifying glass, they find their faces look like President Truman, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and other American officials. At least, that's the story they're circulating in the anti-American pamphlet from which this sketch is taken. The Reds call it "documentary proof that American planes are dropping potato bugs to sabotage East German crops."

Beer Price Rise Been Delayed Over Dispute

TORONTO, Sept. 16 —(CP)— Announcement of increased beer prices in Ontario, said to be necessary because of the recent Dominion budget, is being held up because of a dispute between brewers and beverage room operators, it was reported Friday.

While general agreement is reported reached on a 25-cent pint bottle, there is said to be a difference of thought on any increase on draught beer.

Brewers, faced with an increased tax on malt, are reported asking hotelmen to absorb the increased cost of production rather than pass it on to the public. Equally, beverage room operators want the manufacturer to stand the jump.

Both sides are reported seeking some way out that will not increase the present 10 cents for a glass of beer. Hotelmen are reported opposed to cutting the size of the glass from its present eight ounces.

Shouting Match Staged In Commons

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP)— The House of Commons was thrown into an uproar Friday by a shouting match over whether War Minister John Strachey is fit to run a fight against Communism.

The question was raised by Conservative T. H. Clarke, a former brigadier-general.

Strachey, an avowed Communist sympathiser in the 1930s, insists he abandoned his former views early in the second world war. There have been demands for his resignation, nevertheless, by some sections of the British press and of the Conservative party.

Clarke touched off the argument by declaring: "The government should look into the credentials of the war minister." Labor party members yelled "Withdraw."

The Speaker ruled that Clarke's remarks were out of order.

William Keenan, Labor, said Clarke "is accusing the minister of war of being, in effect, a Communist."

"I did not say he was a Communist," Clarke said. "I was referring to his past tendencies."

"Callous," "indecent," and "disgraceful," yelled Labor government supporters.

A confused shouting match developed. The Speaker finally stopped the uproar.

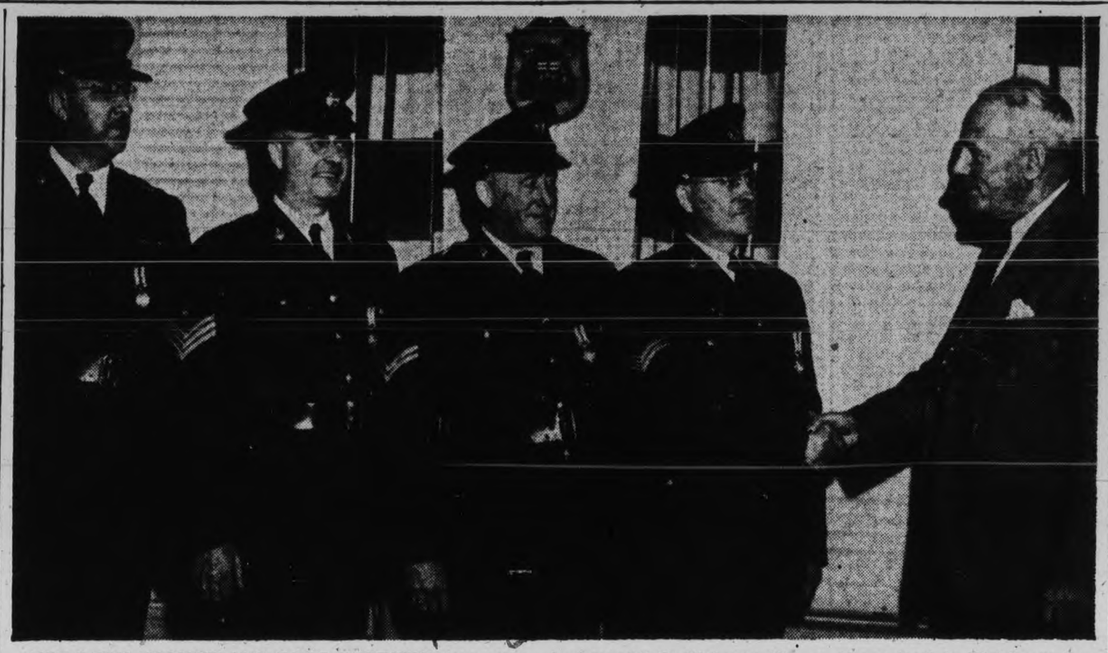
Canadian Officer Commands UN Navy Task Group In Korean Invasion Force

Three Canadian Destroyers In Action In Inchon Beachhead; Brock's Job Close Blockade, Cover Armada

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—A Royal Canadian Navy officer is commanding a United Nations naval task group in the West Korean invasion force, the Navy announced today. He is Capt. J. H. Brock of Winnipeg and Vancouver, Commanding Officer of the Canadian destroyer Cayuga and senior officer of the three Canadian destroyers operating in Korean waters. The three Canadian destroyers went in with the U.N. forces which established the Inchon beachhead, off Korea's west coast. The size and composition of the task group of which they are part and which Capt. Brock is commanding has not been announced.

The Navy said Capt. Brock's force has been assigned several responsibilities. These include close blockade and extended cover for the flanks of the invasion armada and the provision of anti-[illegible] required.



During the opening stages of the invasion, one of the Canadian destroyers teamed with a British cruiser in bombarding North Korea shore batteries protecting the approaches to Inchon harbor.

While making a reconnaissance of their patrol area, at dawn, the British cruiser and the Canadian destroyer spotted several shore bateries occupied by Communist troops.

The two ships quickly opened fire. Repeated hits were scored on and near the gun emplacements and the results of the bombardment were officially termed "satisfactory." There was no return fire from the enemy.

In addition, two salvoes from the Canadian ship were seen to land on enemy-held buildings half hidden in a clump of trees to the rear of the batteries.

The Canadian destroyers returned to familiar ground when they sailed with the invasion fleet into the Inchon approaches. For nearly a month they had been making sorties into this area as they carried out blockade and patrol duties. Several times, too, they had co-operated with South Korean forces in capturing islands off Inchon harbor, providing them with bombardment and other assistance.

Medals Given to 4 Policemen

Four veteran provincial policemen of No. 8 district on Saturday afternoon were presented with long service and good conduct medals by W. H. Stringer, OBE., commissioner of police for Ontario. The recipients were C. W. Farrow, district inspector; Sergeant Price Morris and Corporal Lloyd McClure, both of district headquarters, Charlotte St., and Corporal Douglas Wilson, Cobourg. To qualify for this new medal the recipient must have completed 20 years service and kept a perfect good conduct record for the last 10 years. Commissioner Stringer said the medal was struck only after a careful investigation into similar awards to police in Great Britain and the United States. "The award will bolster morale and make the personnel proud of their organization," he said. "In addition it will help develop a sense of esprit de corps."

Silver Medal

The silver medal, one and a half inches in diameter, has the Ontario Coat of Arms engraved on it; and on the obverse side is inscribed "For Long Service and Good Conduct." The decoration will be worn on the left breast directly after British and Canadian war service ribbons.

As many provincial constables as could be mustered turned out for the ceremony: buttons shining and uniforms neatly pressed. After the investiture there followed the unusual spectacle of dainty, afternoon-tea sandwiches being passed around district headquarters. Tea was also served.

Guns, Tanks And Infantry Massed At Beachhead For Assault On Han River

Hand-To-Hand Battle Gives UN Troops Control Of Kimpo Airfield; Marines Trap 2 Communist Tank Columns

TOKYO, Sept. 18—(AP)—American forces drove today to within three miles of Seoul, the North Korean-held capital of South Korea. The U.N. spearhead was less than one mile west of Yongdong, a suburb of Seoul. The main striking force was on its heels. A crushing weight of infantry, tanks, heavy artillery and bridging equipment rolled out of the Inchon beachhead 22 miles west of Seoul toward the front. They were massing for the assault across the Han river, Seoul's natural defence barrier.

U.S. Marines held Kimpo airfield 15 miles northwest of Seoul against five Red Korean attacks. Then they stabbed north to the banks of the Han. The airfield is in operation and several Allied planes already landed there.

The North Koreans defending Seoul were without artillery support but had some mortars, U.S. officers said. The Reds were rushing reinforcements into Seoul.

Opposition Not Heavy

The U.S. Eighth Army communique reported "United Nations forces made general advances today (Monday) in all sectors against light enemy resistance. Only in a few small areas did the enemy offer stiff opposition."

On the southeast "defence box" battlefront, U.S. infantry crossed the Nakhong river in captured Communist boats and set up a solid beachhead on the west bank. Communists were reported nearby "digging in in strength—at least a full battalion."

The jaws of the giant nutcracker were closing on 140,000 or more North Korean troops. Some already were reported in flight. Others fought stubbornly.

Allied planes showered 3,000,000 leaflets on the Reds with the message: "Surrender or die!"

At Inchon, U.S. 7th Division troops rolled ashore from the 262-ship Allied task force which opened the second front last weekend.

Say Attlee Gov't Wants Fall Election

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP)—Political correspondents of London's three evening newspapers said today there is a growing belief that [illegible] autumn election.

All agreed that signs now are that Prime Minister Attlee's administration may precipitate a new election soon whether it wins or loses in Tuesday's vital parliamentary division on iron and steel nationalization.

The Evening Standard, which opposed the government, said in a front-page story the belief grew during the week-end that the Socialists want an early election. The Conservative Evening News and the Liberal Star published stories in much the same vein.

Some informed sources said a threatened Labor party revolt forced Attlee to risk defeat by putting the touchy nationalization issue to a Commons vote.

These sources said Attlee fully realized that placing the appointment of a government steel board before Commons in the midst of the defence crisis would expose his regime to an attempted knock-out blow by the Conservatives.

The House debates Tuesday a motion of censure against the government by Winston Churchill. Most observers believe Attlee's government will squeeze through the vote, but perhaps by the narrowest possible margin. But should Labor lose the vote, a general election would follow.

Gem Smugglers Reap Fortune

DUBLIN, Sept. 18 (CP)—Gem smugglers in the Republic of Ireland are reported to be reaping a small fortune by recourse to a new technique in transporting their wares.

Police say that homing pigeons are being used as carrier. The birds, with the gems tied to their legs, are being released from some Irish hideout. They find their way to a loft in Britain, operated by a gang of accomplices.

As there is no purchase tax in the republic on jewellery, smuggled gems fetch a high price in tax-bound Britain.

Customs officials are keeping a close watch on shipments of pigeons to the republic.

Report 12 Injured In Head-On Crash

SUDBURY, Sept. 18 (CP). — Twelve persons were injured, one critically, in a head-on collision between a car and a truck seven miles east of here yesterday.

Critically injured was Mrs John LaFleur, of Cartier, Ont., a passenger in the truck. Her husband, daughter Aline, 14, and son Louis 15, were also injured.

The other eight injured were riding in the automobile. They are: Louis Poitras, 26, and Mrs Poitras, 27, their two children, Maurice, 2, and Richard, 4; Magloire Poitras, 65, and Mrs. Magloire Poitras, 54; all of Sudbury; Raphael Guillemette, 53, Corbeil, Ont., and his daughter Irene, 19, North Bay.

Police said LaFleur, driving the truck, apparently pulled out of a line of traffic and failed to see Louis Poitras' approaching car.

Belleville Boy Killed In Hunting Accident

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 18 (CP). —Lenard Patrick McGrath, 9, was killed and Bruce Thompson, 10, was struck in the leg by a bullet in a hunting accident on Sunday.

The McGrath boy died en route to hospital after a bullet went through his abdomen and entered Bruce Thompson's leg.

Police did not say who fired the shot.

MISSING PLANE SOS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said a plane missing near Iceland since last Friday with seven men and 10 dogs sent out an SOS today. The cutter Ingham said the message read: "SOS, SOS, all alive." It was signed by the call letters of the missing plane. The message was picked up by a passing plane.

Windsor's Police Board Plans To Move Carefully

WINDSOR, Sept. 18 (CP). — Windsor's new police commission began its first meeting today with an indication that it will move cautiously in studying methods of reorganizing law enforcement in this city.

Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton was chosen commission chairman in a preliminary meeting with the other members of the three-man board, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume and Magistrate Roland A. Harris.

Judge Cochrane made only a brief announcement as the formal sessions began.

The meetings will probably last several days, he said, and there would be no announcement of decisions as they progress.

"It's a touchy subject," he said "I don't want to say anything that would be misleading."

Chief of police Claude Renaud waited outside Mayor Reaume's office as the meeting began. Judge Cochrane said the commission would interview Chief Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale during its deliberations.

As today's meeting began, the commission had before it a hard-hitting report by two provincial police inspectors, which was published last Thursday.

"We have a lot of ground to cover," Judge Cochrane said, referring to the 10,000-word report. He said the meetings would be closed to the press.

Oakes' Murderer Said Known To Machinist

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 18 — (CP)—A machinist, arrested on a drunk charge, told Oakland police Sunday he knows who murdered Sir Harry Oakes, Canadian mining millionaire, at his home in the Bahamas seven years ago.

Police identified the man as Edward Majava, 31. They said he told them the name of the man who bludgeoned the Baronet but police declined to make the name public.

The Oakes slaying remains one of the most sensational unsolved cases in years. Count Alfred De Marigny, Oakes' son-in-law, was acquitted in November, 1943, of charges that he clubbed the millionaire to death and set fire to the bedclothes. De Marigny and Nancy Oakes, have since been divorced.

A Frightened Man

The Finnish-born machinist was picked up by police Sunday on the drunk charge. They described him as "very sober and very frightened" today.

Police quoted Majava as saying he received two threatening telephone calls after he had learned the identity of the Oakes slayer from an American society woman in Fort Lauderdale Fla., two years ago.

"Both times a man told me to keep my mouth shut and get out of town—or else." Inspector Jas. J. Mangini quoted Majava as saying. The police officer also withheld the society woman's name.

Car Crashes House

TIMMINS, Sept. 18—(CP)—Mrs. Alex Richard was watering a plant in the living room of her home today when a car crashed through the front of the house, throwing her on to a chesterfield. She was treated for bruises and shock. The driver, Alphonse Laverdure, 27, of Timmins, was charged with dangerous driving and driving without an operator's permit.

Food, Shelter Allowances For Jobless To Be Boosted

TORONTO, Sept. 18—(CP)—Food and shelter schedules for unemployable persons in Ontario will be boosted in keeping with the higher cost of living, Public Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow announced today. This follows a general review of regulations covering Provincial grants to municipalities which provide for relief recipients on a 50 per cent. basis.

Mr. Goodfellow also announced a new policy in the granting of an incapacitation allowance upward to $40 monthly shareable by the municipalities for persons who are physically or mentally disabled. At the same time Provincial funds will be available to assist such civilians who require rehabilitation measures.

The major features of the new relief regulations, which will cost the province an estimated additional expenditure of $400,000 a year, are:

1. A 10-per-cent increase in food schedules for all age groups plus a 25-per-cent basic increase for single persons and adult members of families of two.

2. A 20-per-cent increase in shelter allowances for single persons with a relative increase for families who require additional shelter payments.

3. An incapacitation allowance upward to $40 a month for individuals who qualify as physically or mentally disabled.

4. Rehabilitation measures in the form of occupational therapy or prosthetic appliances for incapacitated persons.

5. Medical services covering all persons in receipt of relief by arrangement with the Ontario Medical Association to be increased approximately 50 per cent to 83 cents per person per month rather than 56 cents.

6. All unemployed male persons 65 years or over and female persons 60 years of age or over who qualify for public assistance will be eligible without regard to physical or mental conditions.

7. Residence regulations revised elminating former gainful employment basis and replaced by one year's residence after April 1, 1948.

Air Ministry Takes Action Over Crash

LONDON, Sept. 18 (Reuters)—The minister of civil aviation has taken action against the owners of the Tudor Airliner which crashed in South Wales last March, killing 80 persons. It was the biggest disaster in the history of air travel.

The ministry has taken out a summons against Fairflight Limited, alleging infringement of one of the conditions of the plane's certificate of airworthiness.

Only three of the 83 passengers and crew survived.

Nab Convict At Brockville

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 18 (CP) —Boynton St. John, 45, who escaped Friday from Kingston penitentiary, was recaptured here early Sunday.

St. John surrendered to police in a hotel after being recognized by the night clerk. Police said he was carrying an automatic pistol and ammunition.

He claimed at first to be Joe Howard of Oshawa but admitted his identity under police questioning.

St. John fled from the penitentiary in a taxi he had called from the home of the prison's chief keeper, A. J. Atkins. He had been working as a trusty in the basement of the Atkins' house. In making his escape St. John slugged Atkins' 10-year-old grandson Jimmy Biggs.

The boy is in hospital in Kingston, suffering from compound skull fractures.

St. John was arrested just a few minutes before his planned departure by bus for Ottawa. He had a one-way ticket in his pocket.

Lineman Aids Crash Victims

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 18 (CP) — A quick-thinking telephone lineman speeded medical aid to a mother and son, victims of a car-truck collision today, when early arrivals at the accident scene were unable to get a call through on a farm party line.

Donald Capel, Bell Telephone employee, climbed a pole and cut in on the Owen Sound circuit to summon a doctor, ambulance and Provincial Police.

The accident occurred six miles south of here when a car carrying Mrs. A. J. Storey and her son, Roger, both of Owen Sound, collided with a truck which, police said, was driven by Chief Constable James McIntosh of Chatsworth.

Both Mrs. Storey and her son were severely injured and were rushed by ambulance to hospital here. Full extent of their injuries has not yet been determined. The driver of the truck was not hurt.

Nobody Will Claim Poison Ivy Patch

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 18 (CP)— There's a controversy on here between the city and board of education as to who owns a patch of poison ivy.

The ivy patch is near the Prince Charles Public School but the board of education says it's on an old road allowance and thus the responsibility of the city. The city engineer says no such old road allowance exists and the ivy is the board's baby.

Most irritated about it all are the children — who keep getting into the ivy.

Worst Gales In 23 Years Lash Britain Over Weekend

LONDON, Sept. 18 (Reuters)— The worst gales to lash Britain in 25 years blew themselves out early today, but were expected to get their second wind tonight or Tuesday.

The gales, reaching 82 miles an hour, were the tail-end of a cyclone that battered shipping in the Atlantic a week ago.

The storm resulted in the death of two men, smashed small craft, hammered sea walls, sank a pleasure steamer and damaged resort installations.

The 27,000-ton liner Georgic, homeward bound from the United States, was delayed 24 hours on arrival at Liverpool.

The storm ripped steel plates off a towed liner, the 9,000-ton Biscoe Nine. She was being towed from Lisbon to the Clyde when she was ripped from her tug and dashed on rocks near Compbeltown, Scotland. Eight crew members were rescued by breeches buoy.

A pleasure steamer, the Lady of the Lake, sank at her moorings at Lake Windermere in the northwest lake district.

Peter Halley, 83-year-old watchman at Aberdeen Harbor, was killed when a 100-foot pole fell on his hut.

The body of Arthur Edward Winter, 78-year-old night watchman on a dredger, was recovered from the water at Southampton. He was believed to have been blown overboard.

Gales sweeping Ireland reached 70 miles an hour on the south coast.

MacArthur Tells UN Red Arms Aid Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur was reported today to have informed the United Nations he has positive evidence that Russia supplied munitions to North Korea in 1949 and 1950 and that Communist China supplied "trained manpower."

Informed quarters said MacArthur made his statement in his latest report to the Security Council as commander of U.N. forces in Korea. The report was received by Secretary-General Trygve Lie this morning, but it has not yet been made public.

Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, Jakob A. Malik, has insisted that Russia has given the Korean Communists no military supplies since 1948, when the Soviet Communists no military supplies since 1948, when the Soviet Army was withdrawing from North Korea.

Study Windsor As International Airport Centre

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 — (CP)— Two United States government aeronautical officials arrived here today to explore the possibility of using Windsor as an international airport.

Delos Wilson Rentzel, U.S. Civil Aeronautics Administrator, and Percy Warner, of the U.S. State Department's aviation policy staff, made the trip from Washington in a private plane.

After a brief conference with Ambasasdor Stanley Woodward of the United States, the two officials immediately went into a closed meeting with John Baldwin, chairman of the Canadian Air Transport Board, and Air Vice-Marshal A. T. Cowley, director of the Transport Department's Air Services.

Though they made no public statement on their trip, the two U.S. officials are believed to be entirely in agreement with Canadian officers on the use of Windsor as the first Canada-United States international airport.

Big stumbling block, however, is the United States desire to have the airport located close to Detroit at the Windsor end of th e International Ambassador bridge. Canada is believed to favor the Walker field, at the northeast corner of Windsor, about three or four miles outside the city.

Tallest Man Grows 6 Inches

ENGLEFIELD GREEN, England, Sept. 18 —(Reuters)—The tallest man in the world, 26-year-old Ted Evans, told reporters today that he has grown six inches since January and still is going strong. He measures nine feet, 3½ inches.

"I am still growing. I can feel it," he said.

Evans listed some of the problems of being the world's tallest man.

He can't find a job "big enough" to admit him.

The only clothing items he doesn't need to have specially made are shoelaces.

His shoes cost him $60 a pair.

He can't get into a hotel bed.

Buses are out of the question and his head bumps the baggage rack when he sits in a train.

Three years ago, when he reached seven feet, seven inches, doctors told him he would stop when he reached eight feet.

That was 18 inches ago.

Princess Anne Makes First Appearance

LONDON, Sept. 18—(AP)— Tiny Princess Anne made her first public appearance Sunday, on the arm of her mother, Princess Elizabeth.

The occasion was the departure by train of Princess Elizabeth and her two children for Balmoral Castle in Scotland to join the King and Queen on their autumn holiday.

Princess Elizabeth carried her month-and-two-day-old daughter proudly through a station crowd which cheered her and the children.

There was a first for young Prince Charles, too. He walked in public for the first time, strutting into the special royal coach beside his mother and baby sister.

US Government Lifts Ceiling On Arms Buying From Canadian Factories

Washington Officials Confirm Idea They're Counting Heavily On Dominion Production In Emergency

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—The U.S. Government has paved the way for greater future arms purchasing in Canada by lifting the ceiling on the $25,000,000 Canada-U.S. arms reciprocity deal. Lifting of the ceiling was disclosed by a government source Saturday. In effect, the U.S. Government has informed Canada that it no longer considers there is any limit to the amount of armaments the U.S. can buy from this country.

It means, too, that the U.S. Government has decided to ignore completely the Buy America Act of 1934, which restricted the U.S. fighting forces from placing offshore orders for arms, unless such orders were in the "public interest."

Find Loophole

The loophole—the public interest—provided the legal basis for cementing of the reciprocity deal last May, and for the latest move of eliminating the ceiling.

1. Complete removal of the Buy America Act.

2. Reduction of high U.S. tariffs on Canadian armaments.

Lifting of the ceiling, latest tangible achievement of joint industrial mobilization planning, does not mean that the U.S. will immediately start buying beyond the $25,000,000 mark.

Help In Planning

But it will help both countries in planning ahead. Under the reciprocity deal, the United States agreed to spend in Canada as much money for armaments as Canada spends in the U.S.—up to $25,000,000. Since Canada was certain to spend much more than that amount in the U.S. for aircraft parts, anti-tank weapons and other equipment, the arrangement favored the U.S.

By elimination of the ceiling Canada is assured that heavy arms buying in the U.S. won't be too hard on her dollar reserves, since the U.S. virtually promises to buy to the same amount in Canada.

In Washington defence officials confirmed Saturday night the United States is counting heavily on Canadian production in case world developments require a full mobilization.

However, they express doubt that U.S. purchases of munitions from Canada during the current fiscal year will exceed $25,000,000.

Officials said the ceiling on American purchases is not fixed, but floating—depending on U. S. needs for Arctic equipment, clothing, auto vehicles and other items that Canada can supply.

15 Countries Study Army Plan

PARIS, Sept. 18 (AP)—Winston Churchill's European army proposal will be placed before the parliaments of 15 western countries, it was disclosed here today.

A spokesman for the European Consultative Assembly said the individual national parliaments will be asked to debate Churchill's idea and decide whether to demand action by their governments.

The year old 125-member Consultative Assembly, which can only recommend, approved Churchill's proposal last month by a vote of 89 to five, with 17 abstentions.

Suggested as a reply to Russian threats of aggression, the proposal called for creation of a unified Western European army serving under a unified command and directed by a European defence ministry. Western German contingents would be included.

Industrials Continue Last Week's Advances

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Industrials continued last week's advances into new high price ground on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. A wide list of market leaders climbed steadily on gains ranging from fractions to more than a point as the average price level of the industrial board advanced to a new peak. Volume for the first three hours was 1,454,000 shares.

Papers paced the industrial advance. Utilities, Agricultures, Steels and Liquors were also well ahead. Interlisted issues like Massey - Harris, International Paper and Hiram Walker's were leading gainers.

Western Oils also advanced. Mild selling last week held the list in check but buyers moved in with a rush today chalking up gains ranging up to 25 cents.

Several low-priced gold stocks were in strong demand. Keybocon, Porcupine Reef, Paymaster and Mylamaque traded briskly. Base Metals brightened quietly. A few leaders added small amounts in early dealings but profit-taking on last week's advances reduced the gains as the session progressed.

Set Out To See World Find Boys Near Home

KINGSTON, Sept. 18—(CP)—Two Kingston boys who set out Friday for the Southern United States ended their voyage Sunday at Clayton, N.Y.—20 miles from home.

James McCammon, 18, is being held by U.S. immigration authorities at Clayton on a charge of illegal entry. His travelling companion, Teddy Whitehead, 14, was sent home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Whitehead.

The boys disappeared Friday and a widespread police search failed to turn up any clues. Immigration authorities said the pair set out from Kingston in a rowboat, spent Friday night on Wolfe Island, just off Kingston, and completed the other two miles to Clayton on the east shore of the St. Lawrence the following day.

Minister Dies

TORONTO, Sept. 18—(CP)—Rev. John Alexander Mustard, a Presbyterian minister for 55 years, died Saturday, aged 83.

He held mission charges at Botany, Kent Bridge and Harwich before he was ordained by Chatham Presbytery in 1895. He was a former Moderator of Toronto Presbytery and of Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

U.S. army combat engineers rolled heavy equipment over the Inchon sea walls and through shell-pocked streets to the main inland artery.

They raced against time to span the Han, a natural barrier, before the surprised Red Koreans could organize a defence wall on their main line of communication to the south.

All through Sunday North Korean from the north and south poured into the Seoul area. Gen MacArthur's headquarters said navy and Marine planes attacked them continuously.

MacArthur himself visited front lines. The United Nations commander calmly questioned officers on Communist strength, chatted with the men, posed for pictures, distributed awards and compliments, inspected captured Russian-made weapons and ordered Red Korean prisoners worked hard.

MacArthur insisted on visiting forward areas despite chance sniper fire.

The Marines drove out of their Inchon beachhead Sunday morning. They fanned out in two directions, east toward Seoul and northeast toward Kimpo, Seoul's main airport.

Associated Press correspondent Don Whitehead reported from the front:

Collide Near Taejong

The Reds sent two tank-led columns down the main road from Seoul to Inchon. The Marines and Reds collided near Taejong town, eight miles east of Inchon.

Marines let the Red tanks rumble through their lines in the morning mists. Then Marine tanks "behind cover and looking down their throats," blazed into action.

They knocked out six Red tanks along the main artery and five on another road, bringing their two-day bag to 16.

Columns of Marines marched eastward around the burned hulks. Enemy dead littered the road.

The Reds were running so fast we couldn't keep up with them," one Marine outside Seoul said.

Nearly 1,000 Reds were taken prisoner.

Seize Airfield

The second marine column stabbed to Kimpo airfield against only light resistance and seized it Sunday night. Earlier, navy big guns and Allied planes had pounded the strip.

But the Reds stormed back on Kimpo before midnight, surrounded the marines and locked with them in hand-to-hand combat.

AP Correspondent Bill Ross, who was pinned down at the airfield by the Red attack, reported:

"American causualties told the story of the toughness of the close-in fighting which, at times was on a virtual marine-to-Communist basis."

The marines hacked a path through the North Koreans after nearly 10 hours of fierce infighting. The way was clear for reinforcements and supplies.

Not Secure

"We hold Kimpo but it sure as hell is not secure," Lt.-Col. Harold Roise told Ross Monday morning.

Ross reported the marines hurled back at least five assault waves. Only rigid firing discipline which let the Reds come within a few feet of marine positions kept the U.S. troops from being overrun, Ross said.

The twin-pronged marine drive cut rail traffic on the line from Seoul to Suwon, site of another good airfield 20 miles south of the old South Korean capital.

MacArthur's headquarters said the enemy "has not yet recovered sufficient equilibrium from the surprise to organize more than sporadic resistance."

Allied strength mounted rapidly on the Inchon spearhead. Troops and supplies moved ashore both by day and under powerful floodlights at night.

Docks were stacked high with equipment.

Powerful new Patton tanks, 155-mm. artillery, trucks and heavy equipment wormed through the battered, congested dock area toward the front.

South Koreans flocked back to their mud houses in eastern Inchon. Youngsters smiled. A few older Koreans waved, but most just stared or went about their business.

On the southeastern front, a U.S. 2nd Division spokesman said a battalion crossed the Naktong River barrier at Hajok, due west of Changyong and about 25 miles south of Taegu.

Allied troops Sunday had driven to the east banks of the Naktong along a 12-mile stretch. This ran from a point below Yuonpung to five miles southwest of Changnyong.

A spokesman said the 2nd Division had killed or wounded 14,000 Red Koreans since it went into action Aug. 25. It has taken 400 prisoners.

Not Organized Unit

The North Korean division which opposed the U.S. 2nd "no longer exists as an organized unit on the east side of the Naktong," the spokesman said.

On the extreme southwestern front, the U.S. 25th Division launched a concerted attack Sunday in its central sector. This was a stubborn area of Red resistance. American units earlier beat off savage Red Banzai charges.

The right and left flanks of the U.S. 25th were advancing against light opposition. They gained nearly two miles Sunday.

In the Taegu sector, Red resistance continued strong despite reported withdrawals of some units.

AP correspondent Jack MacBeth said the Reds were withdrawing in force along the Taegu-Tabu road.

Police Smash Red Plot In Saigon

Hold 100 Terrorists As Police Seize 60 Grenades

SAIGON, Indo-China, Sept. 18—(AP)—More than 100 terrorists were under arrest today after French and Vietnam police smashed what they called a Communist plot to make a general attack within the city.

The outbreak was timed to start Sunday night, authorities said. Informed of the plan, they blocked it Sunday.

Authoritative sources were quoted as saying the plot was cooked up by Ho Chi Minh, Moscow-trained leader of the rebel Viet Minh.

Police said the captured terrorists, described as "volunteers of death," admitted the plot. They said they were hired to infiltrate the city and begin a grenade and small-arms attack. Some terrorists still were at large today.

the Canadian Army and the Royal

Only one grenade was thrown—by a Terrorist who was caught trying to hide 30 grenades in a water cart to smuggle them into the city.

Find 60 Grenades

Sixty other grenades were found in vehicles checked Sunday, a French police spokesman said.

The planned attack was not regarded as an all-out effort to seize the city, which is heavily garrisoned. Even regular Viet Minh units are not strong enough to do that.

The Terrorists said they had been directed to operate in teams of five to make their way to public places, under protection of armed associates, and toss their grenades and open up with the small arms.

Police said they learned of the plot three days ago when they arrested a Terrorist captain. They said he admitted he was ordered to reorganize the Viet Minh underground Terrorist and propaganda cells.

The captain said reorganization became necessary after successful police action against the organization weakened it considerably.

Police said other Red Terrorists may try to make a second attempt next Thursday through Sunday, anniversary of the Viet Minh uprising in Cochin-China, the southern province of the French-sponsored Viet Nam State.

US Puts Curb On Hoarding War Materials

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Thirty-two war materials including steel, lumber, industrial alcohol and nylon yarn—were ordered under Federal anti-hoarding control Sunday night.

The order is effective today simultaneously with the restoration of government curbs on consumers' easy payment credit affecting cars, furniture and household equipment.

The National Production Authority, backing up President Truman's $30,000,000,000 defence program, issued an "inventory control" regulation to prevent overbuying by businessmen. It was unexpectedly broad.

The NPA order will not affect consumer buying—though this may be slowed by the credit controls, which operate separately. NPA exempted all purchases for personal or household use from the inventory regulation.

No consumer items were named. Thus, while stocking makers may not pile up nylon yarn to excess, woman may buy as much nylon hose as they wish. Officials foresee no shortage. Industrial alcohol was named but not liquor.

But factories and dealers were forbidden to buy, receive, order or deliver more than a "practicable minimum working inventory" of the following materials essential to the munitions drive:

Building materials: cement, gypsum board, sheathing and lath.

Chemicals: Industrial alcohol, benzene, caustic soda, chlorine, glycerine and soda ash.

Forest products: Softwood and hardwood (excluding hardwood flooring, railroad ties and mine ties); softwood plywood; and wood pulp.

Iron and steel: Pig iron, grey iron castings; carbon and alloy steel; rough forgings; iron and steel scrap.

Find 100 Wedding Guests Stricken By Food Poisoning

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 18—Nearly 100 guests at a wedding reception here Saturday night were affected by food poisoning, and 18 required hospital treatment. Most of the victims recovered sufficiently to return to their homes during the night, but three were kept at St. Catharines General Hospital until Sunday morning. The bride and groom were among the few who escaped.

Ill In Evening

Guests of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Letkemann, began to complain of stomach cramps shortly after 10 o'clock, less than an hour after the bride and groom had left. St. Catharines police were called, and the most seriously affected were moved to the hospital. Dr. K. M. Johnson and Dr. R. K. Orr, aided by other physicians, provided first aid.

Most seriously ill were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bezeruk of Thorold and Harry Letkemann of Niagara-on-the-Lake, a brother of the groom.

Sanitary inspector from the office of Dr. D. V. Curry, MOH for Lincoln County, took samples of chicken salad and a variety of sandwiches.

Strike Ends In Aussie Port

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 18—(Reuters) — Sydney's four-day dock strike broke up today when stevedores and longshoremen decided to resume work Tuesday.

The walkout started Thursday when 7,000 waterfront workers refused to work after the suspension of men engaged on one ship.

The suspended men had demanded full pay for eight hours, though their ship was unloaded in five. The workers said employers had taken on extra help for the job.

The stoppage involved more than 70 ships and at one stage threatened to spread to other ports.

College Honors Three Canadians

KINGSTON, Sept. 18 (CP). — Three prominent Canadians representing widely different branches of public service and industry, will be honored with honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws at the autumn convocation of Queen's University on October 7.

All graduates of Queen's they are: Fred M. Connell, mining engineer, Toronto; Dr. A. R. Lord, former principal of the Normal School, Vancouver, and Minister of National Revenue McCann, Ottawa.

Mr. Connell is a director of Noranda and Kerr-Addison Mines, president of Central Patricia and president of United Keno Hill, Yukon, and active in numerous other mining ventures throughout the world.

Dr. Lord is a graduate of Queen's, Class 1910. He is a brother of Professor Lord of Queen's staff.

Mr. McCann will be the speaker at the convocation in Grant Hall, which commences at 11 a.m. on October 7.

Had Liquor In Car

The refreshments were prepared and served by the wives of the provincials and some of the girls of the headquarters staff.

Outside Guests

Among those present were Judge S. L. Smoke, who, in a brief address, congratulated the men on their awards; Crown Attorney John Bradshaw; and Alderman Hurrell Dodds, representing the city.

Inspector Farrow joined the force in 1927 and was first stationed at Windsor. Later he went to Amherstburg, Brantford, Hamilton, and Dundas. His promotion to corporal came in 1941 and four years later he became a sergeant.

After a commendation for his work in the Evelyn Dick murder case he was appointed district inspector on August 1, 1949, and was posted to District 8 headquarters, Peterborough. He succeeded Inspector Edwin V. McNeill who was promoted to Staff Inspector at Toronto headquarters.

Joined In 1927

Sergeant Morris joined the OPP in December, 1927, at Belleville, after serving for five years with the city police in that city. His various stations include Madoc, Picton, Bancroft and Bowmanville.

In April, 1941, he was transferred to Peterborough. Five years later he received his corporal's hooks and when district headquarters was organized in January, 1948, he was promoted to sergeant.

Corporal McClure also has more than 20 years service, though he has been stationed in only two localities—Hawkesbury and Peterborough. He joined the OPP in July, 1930.

His promotion to corporal came in June, 1948.

Corporal Wilson joined the OPP the same day as Corporal McClure, July 12, 1930. Before that, however, he was with the highway traffic patrol for five years.

During his period of service he has been stationed at Colborne, Windsor, and finally Cobourg. He received his corporal's hooks March 1, 1948.

Civic Workers End Strike In Hamilton

HAMILTON, Sept. 18—(CP)—The strike of Hamilton civic employees has ended and today — for the first time since the strike began 5½ weeks ago—garbage trucks made their rounds, collecting an accumulation of refuse.

Members of Local 5, Hamilton Civic Employees Union, Sunday accepted a settlement offer by a vote of 410 to 73. Ten votes were spoiled.

Maintenance men Sunday night began servicing trucks to prepare them for their morning collections. All civic workers were instructed by the union to return to work today unless otherwise directed by civic officials.

Effective Immediately

The city's offer accepted by the union provides for a 42-hour, five-day week with the same take-home pay, effective immediately.

A 40-hour, five-day week with no cut in pay is to be instituted Jan. 1, 1952, providing the contract is extended to at least Jan. 31, 1952.

The city will pay a cost-of-living bonus, effective next Jan. 1, and a 50-cent weekly bonus for each 1½ per cent rise in the cost-of-living index over the June level of 168.5. The 50-cent bonus goes into effect Oct. 1 and remains in effect until the index reaches 180.

Garbage men and sewer maintenance men receive a 2½-cent-an-hour increase immediately. Employees will receive a flat payment of $40 overtime wages for the job of restoring the city to normal. A seven-cent-an-hour shift differential will be paid employees who work between 3 and 11 p.m. and nine cents an hour between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

SEND CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations and best wishes on the occasion of the celebration [illegible] been received by Mayor M. J. Swanston from the people of Moncton, N.B., through their mayor, T. Babbitt Parlee. "It is our hope that the progress of your community will continue and that the future will be bright for you," wrote Mr. Parlee.

False Concept Of Security Held In World

"Security for the individual, society and the nation," was the theme chosen by the Rev. George Forsey of Central United Church, Moncton, New Brunswick, for his sermon at the Centennial service held in Trinity United Church. Sunday morning.

Rev. Forsey read a letter of greeting to the people of Peterborough from the mayor of Moncton whose city is celebrating its 60th anniversary.

Choosing as his text the parable of the sower whose seeds fell by the wayside, on stony ground, among thorns and on good ground from St. Mark, chapter 4, the guest preacher explained that intangible virtues and strength had gone into the development of Peterborough that has made it the prominent and beautiful city that it is today. As these virtues built in the past, they will continue to do so in the future.

Keep Eye On Goal

The secret of success in life is never to take the eyes off the end desired. The goal of humanity in all ages has been to obtain security. On the national scale this means freedom from aggression which can only be obtained by co-operation among nations and the submission to a higher council. For society, there has been an ever increasing development of various types of social security.

However, even more fundamental and important according to Rev. Forsey, is the security of the individual. The greatest fault of people today is that they have a false concept of security. There are three ways which are falsely believed to bring security—the attainment of wealth, success in work and the gratification of all desires of pleasure. These only provide a shaky foundation for life and when disaster strikes are unable to bring solace.

These earthly treasures can be corrupted, but the treasures stored in heaven—religious faith and love of God hold strong through any conditions. The results of these heavenly treasures are peace of mind, happiness of disposition and a good attitude of mind. From these alone is man able to obtain true security. It was on this type of security that the Kingdom of God was built by the pioneers in this city and in this land.

Building a Heritage

"Today is a special day for all of us," stated the Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon of Trinity United Church. "With this religious commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the city of Peterborough, we have a renewed consciousness that we have built and are building a heritage for our children and our children's children. This has and will only be achieved by the co-operation and service of all the people in the city."

Special music for the service was provided by guest soloist, Donald Landry. Mr. Landry sang "I Repent" and a special prayer that he wrote especially for this Centennial service.

Pleads Guilty To Theft Count

COBOURG, Sept. 18—(ENS)—John Dracup, 31, Cobourg, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and theft of cigarettes from Halligan's store on Sept. 12 and was remanded for sentence. Dracup was arrested by constables H. Pearse and H. Seale shortly after midnight on Sept. 12 when they spotted him lurking in the shadows not far from the store. Dracup blamed his deed on the fact that he had been drinking.

The inadequacy of provisions for handling certain types of youthful offenders, was painfully evident in regard to breaking and entering charges against three ten age Cobourg boys. The three broke into a local factory on August 13 in a foolish venture that netted them nothing in the way of loot.

All three were sent away for mental examinations but only one was considered sufficiently defective mentally to be sent to an institution. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman commented in the course of the hearing that the other two were also backward but apparently not to a sufficient degree to be admitted by the institution. There have been several adjournaments while Magistrate R. B. Baxter made enquiries to find out what could be done with the boys.

It was finally decided to see if one could be taken into the army and the other will be allowed to return to school to see if he can make some progress. The boys were too old for the training school and there was no other place to send them.

CPR Conductor Retires After 50 Years Railroading

HAVELOCK, Sept. 18 (ENS)—Conductor Edward J. Walker, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, completed his last run on Saturday afternoon. Stepping from Train No. 604 at Peterborough, he signed his train sheet for the last time after 50 years of service on the road.

Mr. Walker commenced employment with the Canadian Pacific Upper Lakes Steamships in the summer of 1900. He served with the company as cabin boy, locomotive foreman's clerk in Owen Sound, checker, trainman and was promoted to conductor in 1907, to assistant superintendent in June 1920 (Bruce Division) and later to superintendent, which position he held until 1939. Since then he has been conductor between Havelock and Bobcaygeon, Toronto and Montreal; and on the Toronto- Peterborough local since 1943.

Funeral Held For Alfred Lake

BONARLAW, Sept. 18 (ENS)—The funeral of Alfred Lake was held in Eggleton United Church on Saturday and was largely attended. Burial was in Clarke cemetery.

Rev. Morley Clarke conducted the service.

The pallbearers were members of Stirling LOL No. 110 under the auspices of which the funeral was held.

Mr. Lake died in his 70th year at his home at Holloway Wednesday after an illness of two years duration. He was born in Sidney township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lake.

He was a member of Eggleton United Church and a member of Stirling LOL No. 110 and the Royal Black Perceptory.

He leaves a widow, formerly Almira Stapely, one step-son, Lawrence Wilson of Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Wallace (Mary), Harold, Ont., Mrs. P. Page (Priscilla), Grand Rapids, Mich.; two brothers, Samuel Lake, Kingston and Robert Lake, Stirling; one granddaughter, Valerie Wilson of Peterborough.

Pallbearers, all LOL members, were Milton Reid, Ross Holland, Clarence Fitchell, Frank McGee, George Sailes and Harold McGee.

Campbellford Boy Awarded Bursary

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 18 —(ENS)—One of the three Dominion-Provincial bursaries for Grade 13 students in Northumberland county has ben awarded to John D. Mull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mull of Raglan St. in Campbellford. The bursary is worth $100.

John has had a high standing throughout his school career at Campbellford, heading his class in Grades 10 and 12. He obtained first class honors in Grade 12 in all nine papers, with an average of 85%. He plans to continue his studies in preparation for a course in medicine at Queen's University.

Smokes Cigaret As Leg Cut Off

OSHAWA, Sept. 18.—A train cut off the right leg of Carl Lathangue, 32, of Belleville, Saturday and he smoked a cigarette on the way to the hospital.

Lathangue was employed as brakeman on a through freight which stopped at the CNR station here to drop some cars. Trainmen said the injured man was on a low car called a gondola when the train started up and he fell between two cars.

The injury was so high on his thigh it was impossible to apply tourniquets, they said.

Ambulance driver Alex Boyd arrived at the scene as Lathangue was lifted by fellow workers onto a stretcher. He was conscious all the time, and smoked a cigarette in the ambulance on the way to Oshawa General Hospital.

Lathangue is progressing as well as can be expected, according to Dr. H. M. MacDonald who attended him, with Dr. D. E. Sturgis. The doctors said he suffered a great deal from shock and loss of blood.

William R. Melville Dies In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 18 —(ENS).—Residents of this district were shocked to learn of the death of William Russel Melville, following a sudden heart attack at his home in Campbellford on Saturday.

Mr. Melville who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Henry Melville, was born in Seymour township 66 years ago. He had lived in Campbellford for about 45 years, most of which he worked at the Woollen Mill in town. He had been a foreman in the weave room for a number of years, and had worked steadily up until the time of his death.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. John Wrigley of Campbellford, and his wife, the former Minnie Ames.

Mr. Melville was a member of the Ionic Chapter 169 of the Royal Arch Masons, and was a Past Master of a craft lodge.

Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of St John's United Church, of which Mr. Melville was a member, conducted services at the church at 2.30 this afternoon. Interment was in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Fellow members of the Masonic Order were pallbearers.

in the face of death

the real-life story of a

cancer victim

If you had been told by your doctor that you had but a few months to live, how would you prepare for death? Have you led a good life? How would you face up to the shock of having to part with all you hold dear? In The Standard this week, Mr. C.T. Russell, doomed to die of cancer, continues his deeply-moving story of how he is prepared to meet death with calmness and dignity. This week he tells of his trip to Vancouver in a last desperate effort to seek out a "diet" cure; of the agonies of mind and body he went through; and, finally, the realization that he must accept the inevitable.

The Standard is privileged to print Mr. Russell's story, "In the Face of Death", in the hope that not only cancer sufferers, but others, too, will gain from it both strength and understanding.

Our Little, Remote Town

The following account culled from the Erie (Pennsylvania) Daily Times may flabbergast some of Peterborough's boosters.

Speaking of vacation, the Leo Gerbrachts and daughter, Nancy, and the the Bookmeyers, are just back from Canada, on a fishing trip. They went to Peterboro, Canada, on a fishing trip, which is a little town in the middle of nowhere. While there, Mrs. Bookmeyer developed blood poisoning, and found it very difficult to locate a doctor. To add to their misfortune, Mr. Gerbracht had an attack of acute indigestion. All in all, they came back a little disgusted with vacations in the wilderness.

* * *

This "little town in the middle of nowhere" is 160 miles as the crow flies from Erie, Pennsylvania, the home town of American visitors who so unhappily developed blood poisoning and had difficulty securing a doctor. We do not doubt at all that the visitors may have been remote from a doctor. Holidayers in our Kawartha lakes, if they seek solitude and wilderness life, can still find it, but they cannot at the same time find a doctor around every bay or at the end of every rural section's telephone lines. However, when these people get back on one of our good county roads, or one of the several Provincial highways serving the district, they cannot be more than a half-hour's run from the nearest village doctor or a place like the Haliburton Red Cross Hospital. Within two hours at most they can reach Peterborough, where there are some sixty doctors, and two excellent hospitals, with 400 beds. This little town of 35,000 people, in the midst of nowhere—to be precise, 28 miles from the shores of Lake Ontario—is providing these two modern hospitals (new and with additions) at a cost exceeding four million dollars.

* * *

It is strange that the international line is still a large mental and psychological barrier, even now when so many tourists cross it. The barrier looms large as close to the line as northern Pennsylvania and the south shore of Lake Erie, an area from which this Kawartha district draws very many summer visitors. Most Americans still know very little about Canada. A newspaper reporter on a daily paper in a city of 120,000 can still describe a Canadian city 160 miles away, and the twenty-fifth largest in the Dominion, as "a little town in the middle of nowhere". The ignorance is two-sided. How many Peterborough people know exactly where Erie (Penna.) is, or its size?

* * *

Such reports as the one from Erie show that our local Chamber of Commerce and other tourist agencies in this province have still a job of informing to do. Perhaps, too, Pennsylvanian schools could improve their teaching of Canadian geography?

Fun In Bed

We have been considerably agitated by a description of a new kind of bed which is now being offered for sale in Boston for the trifling price of $3,500. Here is a catalogue of its delights:

It is a ceiling-high mahogany affair with a canopy; it has a television receiver, home movie projector, air-conditioning controls, hydrostat, thermostat, aerostat, thermometer, barometer, fire extinguisher, radio, spot reading lights and an intercommunication system with other rooms in the house. There's a bundling board, down the centre so when the big man turns over, his wife won't jounce and rock.

This is all very well, but could one sleep in such a machine? It combines all the features of a business office and a rumpus room. Who would be strong-minded enough to stop playing with the gadgets, turn out the special lighting, and surrender himself to Morpheus?

We have strong views about beds. We like them to be as plain as possible, so that they give a clear field for sleep. The last thing we want is a bed equipped with home movies—notorious destroyers of one's peace of mind. When we are in bed we do not want to know what time it is, or what the temperature is, or what somebody is doing next door. We can do all our reading in bed with the aid of a gooseneck lamp which we have had for years, and which throws a very bad light of the type which suits us best. We go to bed to sleep, and we do not want anything near us which is likely to turn our night's repose into a replica of the Midway at the C.N.E.

Let the sleepless and the sensation-seekers hasten to Boston with their $3,500 to buy one of these beds. We have an old straw tick which we have thumped and crushed into a shape we like; and upon it we shall continue our nocturnal rodeo with the nightmare.

Congressional Dilemma

Members of the United States Congress, Senators and Representatives alike, want to shut up shop and go home. With only a few weeks left in which to campaign before the election, they feel that party interests call for their presence in their various states. As one reporter put it, they would like to get back "for just a few handshakes before the election score is in." Those who have dared to say so, however, have learned that many of their constituents hold other views and have no hesitation in saying so.

A political asset in many states is what may be described as a "homey" or "folksy" approach to the voters. It usually works well in the South, and Representative Sidney Camp, Georgia Democrat, uses it regularly and effectively in a weekly news letter to the voters of the Fourth District of that state. Not long ago, it seems, Washington meals aroused in Mr. Camp yearnings for the delicacies of his native state, and he wrote to his constituents about it.

He was pretty hungry, he told them for "muscadines, persimmons, 'possum and 'taters". He wrote that he "sure did hope Congress would adjourn soon", so he could join his neighbours in this favourite diet. We do not know what sort of answer Mr. Camp expected to this expression of gastronomic wistfulness, but it could hardly have been the flood of angry letters he received, telling him to stop thinking about 'possum and stay on the job in Washington while a war was going on.

Mr. Camp back-tracked quickly and neatly. He could hardly claim he was misquoted, but he implied that the version of his letter broadcast over the radio was incorrect. He also declared he had urged Congress to remain in session until all needed legislation was passed. As for the delicacies, "If I do now get home in time to eat muscadines, persimmons, 'possum and 'taters, I guess I will survive."

This shift may have assuaged the wrath of the Georgia voters, but it emphasized the legislators' problem: how to get home and do a little campaigning without alienating voters. It may be solved by the neat Senate formula of adjourning without seeming to, by holding token meetings until after the election.

Beach Nuts And A Hard Winter

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests is under the direction of Peterborough's representative at Queen's Park, the Hon. Harold Scott, and this gives the Department's pronouncements special value in our ears. This is what the Department had to say recently about the approaching winter:

Amateur weather prophets seem to believe that a heavy crop of beech nuts indicates a severe winter will follow. That being so, the winter of 1950-51 should be severe because beech trees are bearing an unusually heavy crop of nuts this year.

The beach trees have spoken and the Department has backed them up: what is there for us to do but put on our storm windows, stuff all cracks with rags and cotton wool, and await the worst?

We like weather predictions based upon the behaviour of nut trees, the industry of beavers, the speed with which birds fly south, the thickness of fox pelts and other natural manifestations. The weather bureaux, with their charts and instruments, do a pretty good job (though they have slipped rather badly during the past summer) but they are not prepared to make predictions for several months ahead. Ask a professional weather man what sort of winter it is going to be and he will probably give an evasive answer. But ask an old woodsman, and he will come back at once with a bit of information about the nut crop, or the way moss has been growing, or the number of stripes on a trout's tail, or something else which appears to mean a great deal to him and has never meant anything at all to you. We do not say, mind you, that these old woodsmen are infallible. We have known them to be just as wrong as somebdy who never saw a trout's tail. But they advance picturesque reasons for their beliefs, and we like them for it.

In the past century the world has grown to rely very heavily upon science, and there is nothing picturesque about science—except possibly the way scientists cover their tracks when they discover that they have been dead wrong about something. But when it comes to weather, give us the beech-nut prophets every time. And apparently the Department of Lands and Forests feels the same way.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Scientists are timing the movement of a glacier in Greenland. This is the sort of job on which it should be possible to do some solid reading, and we hereby apply for the next vacancy. Though, on second thought, we would prefer to watch a glacier in the Bahamas.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

THE other day I read that Rudolph Schwartz, conductor of the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra, England, has refused to conduct any of Shostakovich's works. He feels, doubtless, that Shostakovitch, as a communist, is making communist propaganda with his music. Incidentally Shostakovitch himself is in the doghouse with the Soviet authorities for failing to give proper musical expression to the communist "ideology", but that is not the point. There is always a possibility of being carried away by his music to an enthusiasm for the "Soviet way of life". I have not felt it myself in this instance, but I have often felt inclined to embrace Roman Catholicism after hearing Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius", one of the most powerful pieces of musical propaganda that I know. We English-speaking people are apt to underrate the power of music in stirring up political passions; and when the Germans banned the music of Chopin in Poland during the last War is seemed a piece of unnecessary officiousness. When Finland was under Russian rule it was forbidden to play Finlandia owing to the riots and demonstrations that it would provoke against the oppressors. Personally I doubt the wisdom of banning Shostakovitch and company, though we might well forego the delights of the numerous "odes to Stalin" that all good little Soviet composers are obliged to write.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Summer Theatre has been a great success again this year; it leads one to wonder whether a Festival of music might not also be worked in. I do not of course mean a competitive festival—that is already in being, thanks to the public spirit of the Kiwanis, but a fortnight or so of concerts given by visiting artists, supplemented where possible by local talent. In a venture of this kind a bold policy of obtaining only the very best, and a vigorous advertising campaign aimed at attracting visitors would offer the best chances of success. One of the main difficulties is the lack of a good concert hall. There is of course the auditorium of the Collegiate, but its capacity is limited and the acoustics are poor. We are paying dearly for the demolition of the old Grand Opera House. Unlike the Queen's Hall in London, which was destroyed by enemy action, it was a casualty of economic forces of supply and demand. There are other obstacles too, but when one remembers that a mere 150 years ago this city, with its thriving industries and commerce was non-existent, these difficulties seem somehow to subside to more manageable proportions.

◇ ◇ ◇

COMPOSERS have suffered much at the hands of over-zealous editors. In no case is this truer than with Chopin. There was a strange belief that Chopin's knowledge of harmony was defective. His scores were overloaded with a mass of fussy phrasing. Chords were altered — the poignant minor ninth near the beginning of the first ballade was expurgated and the E flat minor study was "doctored up". Even extra bars were interpolated in the interests of regularity. In fact there is scarcely a single indignity that has not been practiced on his works. Even Debussy, who edited Chopin for Durand and should have known better, persistently comes down on the wrong side of the fence. At length the Oxford University Press did justice to Chopin's memory by publishing what is, so far as I know, the only edition based on the original manuscripts. This is not an ideal students' edition, but it is a pleasure to read after the overloaded stage directions of most editors and an invaluable check on the authenticity of different readings.

◇ ◇ ◇

ONE would imagine that the text of Bach's Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues, so often referred to as the Musicians' Bible, would be respected, but it has come in for some of the roughest handling. Czerny's edition, which held the field for many years and is still in print, so far as I know, is notorious for its high-handed alterations and deformations of Bach's clearest indications. He even composed an extra bar in the First Prelude of the First Book which kills the entrance of the carefully planned pedal point. Incidentally Gounod took over this little addition lock, stock and barrel when he wrote the sentimental and treacly air "Ave Maria", using the Bach Prelude as the accompaniment to this rather nauseating piece of gooey sham religiosity. One last word about Czerny—his fingering is admirable. One of the best editions of the 48 is published by the Associated Board (London, England), and is invaluable for the remarks by Tovey on each Prelude and Fugue. Moreover the original text has been shorn of nineteenth century "improvements".

◇ ◇ ◇

I WAS listening on Wednesday night to Salvatore Baccalone, basso buffo of the Metropolitan in a recital broadcast by the CBC. The basso buffo is the Fat Man of Italian opera. He must have a deep voice, considerable girth (no falsies!) and a gift for ripe comedy. Mr. Baccalone has apparently a rich bass voice, though to judge by his selections not extraordinarily deep. As for the other two conditions we were obliged to take a good deal on trust, the recital not being televised. We were however assured by the announcer that Mr. Baccalone weighs over 300 pounds. His comic gift came over the air fairly well, but we wished we could have seen the grimaces and gestures that go with this style of singing. All the time we were hampered by bad reception. This was apparently the fault of the station (CBL) and not the receiver, as other stations came in without trouble. There was bad distortion, and two or three times the station went off the air altogether. I have noticed this frequently with this station lately. If other readers of this column have been having the same trouble it would confirm my belief that our set is not to blame for this disturbing state of affairs. In any case, why not use an orchestra for accompaniments of operatic numbers? The piano arrangements are seldom effective and usually sound quite silly.

Letters To The Editor

SIMPLIFYING THE PROBLEM

Sir: After reading the recent letters re lunch-counter on wheels, surely one can leave such matters to be fully decided by our aldermen. On the other hand, if we are to criticize the Council's business too much, it may become difficult to get men of good calibre to serve on the Council.

When the Council deals with matters which naturally affect the city and its welfare as a whole, the subject becomes free from individual personalities.

Therefore, the matter at issue appears to be simply:

(1) To license, (or not), a lunch wagon on the city streets.

(2) To license one, or a limited number of such wagons.

Yours very truly,
A. N. OTHER.

LIMITED FREEDOM FOR CHIP MAN

Sir: The controversy, potato-chip man versus stores, rages on with the general public apparently siding with the former and the Council with the merchants.

There is reason in both arguments because the solution lies midway between complete freedom and no freedom for this chip man to do business.

In a city the size of Peterborough there is room for both ways of merchandizing,—the store-way and mobile way.

Merchants pay high rent or taxes and therefore are right when they say they deserve a certain amount of protection against someone parking out in front or near their premises, taking away business. If rolling dry goods, hardware, drugs, shoes, grocery etc. trucks started to line our streets what would happen to our merchants and what would the streets look like?

On the other hand merchants have no business wanting our Council to enact any law that would ruin this young man's business, either through denial of license or excessive license.

I have a door-to-door business and certain Peterborough interests tried to ruin my business.

The proper solution is to grant this man a license at a reasonable figure on condition that he stay away from the main street section of the city. When a person is not actually up-town it is rather handy to have a merchant like that passing your door. The children especially should not be denied this pleasure because of stupidity or selfishness in our Council.

Yours truly,
REASONABLE FREEDOM FOR ALL.

HOW "BROAD" IS BROADMINDED

Sir: Your correspondent's reviews of the George Formby show at the Brock Gardens, Thursday, appears to me to savour of "sour grapes".

He comments that "George Formby's salt was not quite savoury to the audience". Also he wonders whether the alleged corn smut of a London Hall, can be imported to a Southern Ontario stage.

Presumbaly T.J.A.'s review of vaudeville in this parochially-minded city, smacks of a paucity of knowledge of the broadminded English theatre goer. Further, he need only pay a visit to the Queen City to absorb "smut" in a much greater degree.

Incidentally, Mr. Editor, it was announced from the stage that this was their twenty-sixth anniversary, not twenty-five as your correspondent suggests. A quarter century, mostly taken up with philanthropic objects similar to the Winnipeg Flood Relief Rally.

In conclusion it should be remembered that George Formby was awarded the O.B.E. for his humanitarian efforts towards charity and the entertainment of our Forces overseas.

Yours truly,
"A LANCASHIRE LASS".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; Selah. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. (Ps. 67:1,2.)

He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. (Ps. 68:20.)

Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her root by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit . . . I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings . . .

A glorious high throne from the beginning is the place of our sanctuary, O Lord, the hope of Israel, all that forsake thee shall be ashamed, and they that depart from me shall be written in the earth, because they have forsaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters.

Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for thou art my praise. (Jer. 17:7,8,10,12-14.)

Rice For Beer

(The Sudbury Daily Star)

Western Ontario corn growers are said to be somewhat perturbed over reports that rice is replacing corn as a constitutent in the manufacturing of beer.

The Kent Federation of Agriculture maintains there is a loophole in the tax law which enables brewers to use rice more cheaply than corn.

More closely guarded than the Royal mint is the formula a brewmaster uses in the manufacture of his product, although it is not difficult to ascertain whether malt, corn or rice is the basic ingredient.

Excise tax on malt used for brewing is 16 cents a pound, and if corn flake is used the brewer is taxed at the rate of 45 cents a gallon, which can scarcely be termed as encouraging the use of corn to make beer.

Rice malt is a substitute for the regular malt, but in order to use it, the breweries must install cookers and it is problematical whether or not the extra expense warrants the use of the rice substitute.

In the United States, beer is manufactured out of almost anything, but Canadians have been conditioned to beer brewed from malt, and U.S. tourists have little hesitation in giving Canadian beer a higher rating than their own product.

On the surface, it would appear that the Western Ontario corn growers are unduly alarmed. In any event, they could always undertake a campaign to educate people to eat more corn flakes and corn fritters.

Turn Church Into Fortress Against Vandals

LONDON —(CP)— Ancient St. Giles' Church, in London's Cripplegate district, where Oliver Cromwell was married and the poet Milton lies buried, has been turned into "a veritable fortress" to guard it against vandalism. The original St. Giles' dates back to 1090 and was rebuilt in 1545.

The vicar, the Rev. E. G. Turner, has complained to the authorities that damage amounting to hundreds of pounds has been done to the church, a tourist attraction for years Some time ago, he said, a fire had been started in the vestry and the lead stripped from the roof.

More recently, the vicar charged, children playing "commandos" around the church had been causing destruction "just for the love of it." Barbed wire had been put up and the windows bricked up, but to no avail.

"Every precaution is being taken, but even youngsters learn how to use wire-cutters and somehow find their way through the barbed wire," Mr. Turner said. "We are being forced to turn it into a veritable fortress and a fence would have been put around the church but for the lack of material."

Baird was a junior member of a Cambridge University expedition to Greenland and Baffin Island. He found it on his recent trip.

MYSTERY OF POWER—Here is the first photo ever made public of Canada's celebrated Chalk River atomic pile. Through the mysterious-looking apparatus, Canada is playing a leading role in the search for practical uses of atomic energy. This National Research Council photo shows the atomic furnace—or pile—the circular piece in the background that resembles a ship's funnel. It has "the highest flux of thermal neutrons ever recorded," says NRC. This makes it possible to study the fundamentals of atomic energy and the behaviour of materials under intense bombardment by neutrons. The equipment in the foreground is used in various kinds of experiments. Concentrated beams of neutrons, emerging from openings in the face of the reactor, are guided into the assemblies. These are aligned like spokes on a wheel of which the reactor forms the hub. Also in the foreground is a neutron spectrometer, used to determine the structure of certain chemical compounds; apparatus to produce isotopes for use in biological agriculture, medical and industrial fields; and a special type of electron-pair spectrometers which make it possible to study energy levels within the very core of the atom.

Hat Now 100 Years Old First Made As Crash Helmet

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP) — Tommies fighting in the desert dreamed about them. One of them marked a famous American politician. They are still the proper thing for informal wear in the presence of the King.

If you haven't solved the riddle yet, the answer is the derby hat, which is just exactly 100 years old.

Britain, where the derby was born, is celebrating the anniversary. Newspapers already are retelling the story of its birth. Hatmakers have set aside Oct. 2 as the begining of "Bowler Hat week" and are planning a special party for 84-year-old H. T. Bowler.

Bowler knows the first derby was put together by his hat-making ancestors but he isn't sure now whether his father or an uncle actually made the first one.

Dignified Helmet

In the beginning the bowler was simply a dignified crash helmet, conceived by William Coke, dashing, steeplechasing kin of the Earl of Leicester.

Coke got fed up with having his silk hat topple off at the first jump and getting his bare noggin bruised with every tumble from his horse. So he took his design for "a hard, round felt with a flat brim and a low-melon-shaped crown," to his local hatmaker in Norfolk. The local firm sent the queer order to James Lock and Company, who did business with the swells at a shop near St. James' palace in London.

Second Customer

The first derby was turned out and Coke had the field to himself with this new fashion for nearly a year. Then another customer walked into Lock's and bought the only other one yet made.

By the time the big London exhibition of 1851 rolled around a few months later almost every fashionable dresser in London, including Prince Albert, was wearing one.

At first they were called Billy Cokes, after their originator. That soon became Billycock. The name that stuck was bowler, after the six Bowler brothers who worked in Lock's shop.

It got to be called a derby in the United States because Lord Derby was famed for wearing one when the style spread across the Atlantic.

In London, it's still the mark of bank clerks, employees of financial houses and the well-dressed man about town although the soft felt has been edging it out in the popularity race during the last 15 years.

Dentist Decides To See World As Deckhand

NANAIMO, BC —(CP)— A youthful Fiji Island dentist has taken time off from his drills and pinchers to see the world as a deckhand on the steamship Lakemba.

The dentist who'd rather explore the world than his patients' mouths is 29-year-old Dr. Johnnie Sogeta, who took a six-months leave of absence last July from the Colonial War Memorial Hospital in Suva to ship aboard the Lakemba—which docked here to load cargo recently.

A chance meeting with a sailor may have prompted the barrel-chested native's decision to doff the white coat of his profession in favor of a deckhand's dungarees.

The Lakemba's quartermaster, Willie Wilder, lost his teeth on a trip and came to Sogeta's office in Suva for replacements. Shortly after Sogeta made the switch from syringes to winches.

The sea-going dentist is also an expert under-water swimmer. He took time off from lounging at the Nanaimo Yacht Club to dive into deep water to recover a pair of glasses dropped overboard from one of the boats moored there.

Sogeta's ship is an 11,000 ton Carpenter Line vessel, carrying lumber for Fiji and Australia.

Bartered Bride Trial Brings Conviction

VANCOUVER, Sept. 18—(CP)—Allan M. Ajas, 18, of Edmonton, was convicted Friday of conspiracy in the bogus marriage of his 15-year-old sister. He will be sentenced Sept. 25.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. Jessie Ajas, 24, Haney, B.C., was acquitted of a similar charge by Judge James A. McGregor in County Court.

Alex Gokey, 71-year-old Edmonton district farmer, central figure in the case of the bartered bride, was declared mentally unfit to stand trial. He was ordered committed to a mental hospital.

Woman Chokes Herself In Jail

BLUFFTON, Ind., Sept. 18 — (AP). — Mrs. Wanda Roberts 49, charged with murder in the shooting of her husband Saturday, strangled herself to death with a jacket sleeve Sunday in jail.

Sheriff Alva F. Smith said Mrs. Roberts had told him she shot her husband accidentally, trying to protect him from something she could not describe. He was 62-year-old Douglas A. Roberts, retired engineer for Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

After the shooting she tried to kill herself with a razor blade, and set fire to their home, eight miles east of here, the sheriff said. She suffered only a minor cut from the blade and the fire went out.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Men's softball holds sway tonight at the Bowl, if it's not snowing. Or raining, or something. This is being written in advance, so of course we don't know what the weather will be like shortly before game time. But knowing what the past summer (ho, ho—stop, you're killing us!) was like, we keep fearing the worst until sports move indoors when winter arrives. Which it will shortly. Oldsters in years to come will speak of 1950 as the year with no summer. Though we did have a few summery days here and there. But to get back to softball, East City and Mutuals play twice tonight, starting at 7.15, in city finals, Mutuals leading the best-of-seven now two games to one.

* * * * * *

When it comes autumn, we rather expect odd weather and usually get it. Probably frost in September, warm polio weather in October, and then comes the rad-bustin' clime of November ere a slushy December oozes in. Sometimes, anyway. So, you're squawking that we're talking weather, instead of sports—well, who doesn't talk weather? You meet a guy and say: "Hi, Joe, how you doing? Lousy weather, huh?" And weather has a lot to do with our job. Three seasons of the year, it has and even the fourth as far as minor—or outdoor—hockey is concerned. Until we get that forgotten Memorial Centre built. If you'll recall, the city rinks were closed up on account of rain last mid-winter. Then winter came in the spring.

Grid Action For PCVS

But getting away from morbid subjects, the footballers—who play in any kind of weather—are at it this Friday eve in Morrow Park. Yeah, the Exhibition Grounds, under the arcs. Two PCVS teams make their 1950 debut, the juniors in an exhibition first against St. Peter's seniors, and the senior PCI-ers taking on Runnymede Collegiate of Toronto in the other tilt. Both local halls of learning will supply cheering sections, and there'll be the usual color and hullabaloo which goes with high school football each autumn. It's lots of fun.

* * * * * *

Along about this time of year we look forward to football, or rugby as some call it, after the strain of summer sports. And shortly before hockey skates onto the scene. A rousing, rugged sport which attracts a great many fans. As stated before, we regret the fact that it has a comparatively short season—not much more than two months on the average here—unless a team goes a long way into playoffs. Old school grads, be they machinists, painters, doctors or what not, never miss a game, and the high school lads capable enough to make the teams are considered pretty good by their class-mates. If we may repeat (and we darned well will), football is lots of fun.

Oshawa Can Lose, too

Our juvenile and bantam baseball teams came through twice with triumphs over Oshawa squads on Saturday, neat wins in both cases. While the Firemen-Policemen softball exhibition was postponed for wet grounds at Riverside in the eve, Ed Woodcock's bantams found the terrain okay to eliminate the Motor City bantams 5-2 in the deciding joust of their OBA playdowns. Jerry Frizzelle pitched fine ball, Jerry Strickland fielded swell and Lorne Ball led the hitters. Garry Kearns—we played ball with his dad—hit a two-run homer. Len Symond's juves won 7-6 in Oshawa to tie up their series with Jack Murdock hurling, as Foley, Ferguson and Wilson led the hitters in a tight fray. They settle the issue in Oshawa this Saturday.

And a para on local lacrosse. By the way, Don Ashbee and Bob Thorpe left yesterday for Fort Erie to join Buffalo for pro puck play again. Our junior "B" OLA champs are guests of Harry Yudin at the Centre on Thursday and meet there at seven p.m. Our midgets leave here at 5.30 this eve to tackle the Green Gaels at Weston. Local bantams leave at three Wednesday aft to play Port Dalhousie, return OLA joust being here Saturday at 8.30 p.m. Peterborough peewees reached trail's end Saturday at Brampton in the OLA playoff tourney. Locals took Port Dalhousie 8-6 but later lost to St. Kitts 11-10 after three overtime periods. A grand showing, and Terry Davis starred for the young Petes, though all did fine.

Kingston Gets Round, 7-5 Against UEW

Peterborough U.E. soccer eleven were eliminated by Kingston in the semi-final return game at Kingston, on Saturday afternoon 5-2, in Ontario cup play, making the total goal count 7-5 in favor of Kingston United. Best of the U.E. were Strong, Craig, Jones, Cobourg goalie (late of the Peterborough Legion) and for Kingston, Dack, Grandy and Gargaro.

Harry Pyle, Kingston, (late of Peterborough) did not play Saturday owing to a severe injury he received while playing earlier.

The spin of the coin fell in favor of the Petes (UE) and they selected the strong wind at their backs to inaugurate a steady pressure on the Kingston goal that finally resulted in Strong accepting a perfect pass from Smith to open the scoring. Encouraged by their success the UE half back line—Steel, Downer and Craig—confined their activities to interception along with first time clearances that culminated in Strong enacting the same performance as Smith slipped the ball to him and he beat the custodian with a hard drive. Kingston battled hard later.

On resuming the UE board of strategy altered their front line by switching Featherstone to right wing with Strong, and Latham replacing Murduff, at inside left. After five minutes of play, Gillespie, Kingston centre-forward, gathered the ball cleverly in a scrimmage tackle to beat three men in a row, draw out the defence to give Petes' custodian A. F. Jones, no chance to save. This was followed by two penalties that Grandy's first effort resulted in the ball hitting the cross-bar but he made amends a little later when he picked the far corner of the upright as Jones was a second late in stopping. At this point the Petes wilted away while Kingston rolled to perfection in every department as Russell rattled in the third goal. Dack scored from a flag-kick placed by Hutchinson, Kingston. Then in the last minute of the game Dack registered the fifth counter.

Peterborough U.E.—A. F. Jones, goal; S. McGann and F. C. Munday, full backs; H. Steel, E. Downer and J. Craig, half backs; R. Strong, S. Murduff, J. Halroyd, A. Smith and A. E. Featherstone forwards. Subs: J. Hutchinson, Latham, J. Chamberlain.

Kingston—G. Lapage, goal; G. Grandy and R. Mesiner, full backs; J. Pollitor, J. Russell and V. Berryerick, half backs; R Hutchinson, C. Heighalo, J. Gillespie, M. Gargaro and R. Dack, forwards. Subs: G. Forrest, A. MacGregor, J. Stanford.

Jamieson Pitches Cobourg To Title

COBOURG, Sept. 18. — Pro prospect Weems Jamieson pitched Cobourg to the Lakeshore League Intermediate "AA" baseball championship here Saturday, defeating Port Hope, 7-0.

Jamieson, Philadelphia Phillies rookie, held the losers to seven hits. He fanned four and walked none.

Second baseman Fred McMillan led the winners with a double and two singles as well as fielding perfectly.

Cobourg will now meet either Napanee or Trenton RCAF 6 RD

Argos Crush Hamilton In 48-8 Debacle

By The Canadian Press

If you score touchdowns while on the defensive, you have time to score a lot more of them in a single football game.

Toronto Argonauts reached a high in the technique Saturday. They smashed Hamilton Tiger-Cats 48-8 and scored four of their eight touchdowns from defensive formations in a brilliant exhibition of football that marked them as the team to beat in the east.

Ted Toogood ran back two kicks for touchdowns—one of them a 50-yard and the other an 80-yard dash. Byron Karrys, defensive secondary, and Joe Krol, used mainly as a kicker, each intercepted forwards and went for touchdowns.

But even those performances didn't dim the display of a savage line and speed-crazy backfield that left Tiger-Cats crushed and bewildered.

Paste Alouettes

In the other Big Four game, Ottawa Rough Riders climbed out of the cellar by pasting Montreal Alouettes 42-15.

Edmonton Eskimos went into first place in the Western Conference with a 29-22 win over Calgary Stampeders. With Pass-pitcher Jack Jacobs back in the line-up after an injury, Winnipeg Blue Bombers went into second place with a 26-13 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders. The Bombers, however, have a game in hand over Eskimos.

Sarnia Imperials won their third straight in the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union—a 21-6 win over Windsor Rockets. In exhibition games, Toronto Balmy Beach of tht ORFU beat Queen's University 14-1 Saturday then smashed Pittsburgh Black Bears, a United States pro club, 31-0 Sunday.

Hard On Backfield

The Argo line harried the life out of the Tiger-Cats' backfield and fought the vaunted Hamilton front wall to a standstill. That gave quarterback Al Dekdebrun the time to work out an offensive system that rolled for 270 yards along the ground and 163 yards in the air.

Ulysses Curtis went for two touchdowns—one a 79-yard dash down the sidelines, the other a 35-yard smash through centre in which he carried big Ed Jones of Hamilton on his back for the last 10 yards.

Dekdebrun tossed a touchdown pass apiece to outsiders Marvin Whaley and Bob Heck. Krol got the other point on a single.

Big Bill Gregus, slowed to a standstill most of the day, barely bucked across for the lone Hamilton major. Fred Kijek kicked two singles and Jones booted one for their other points.

Get 276 Yards By Air

Ottawa gained an amazing 276 yards through the air on quarterback Andy Gordon's passing to beat the disorganized Alouettes.

But they didn't get started until the second quarter—after Virgil Wagner scored the first of his three touchdowns for the Alouettes. He got the first on a pass from Frank Filchock and the rest on plunging.

Bill Larochelle galloped for two Ottawa majors with the rest by Gordon, Howie Turner—playing his first league game this year—John Wagoner and Bill Stanton.

Montreal gained 241 yards along the ground to 167 for Ottawa, but the passing of Gordon and Frank Dunlap—they completed 16 out of 21—more than made up the difference.

Oshawa Teams Drop Two To Locals In OBA Playoffs

Jerry Fizzelle was in fine form Saturday at Riverside as Peterborough bantams took the deciding game of their OBA series against Oshawa by a score of 5-2.

He limited his rivals to six hits and, although he walked six, his control was good in the pinches, while his mates gave him gilt-edged support to earn a triumph.

Frizzelle fanned 13 batters, a nifty achievement for playoff ball. This victory qualifies Ed Woodcock's team to meet further outside opposition (probably Toronto) as they advance in the OBA playdowns. Petes took a three-run lead in the third on hits by Lorne Ball, Moe Burns, two Oshawa errors on raps by Kearns and Carleton, and Brown's wild pitch, while Oshawa tallied one in the fifth. Gorman relieved Brown in that frame and the pitcher's duel continued with the motor boys fighting hard—but to no avail.

Gets A Homer

Gary Kearns, mighty atom of several sports here, really put the game safe in the eighth when he caught one of Gorman's fast balls and drove it deep on a line into left centre where it rolled near the fence for a homer, scoring Burns ahead of him. It was a terrific smash and the fans gave the boy a big hand.

Jerry Strickland featured the game with sparkling catches in centre. Lorne Ball led the hitters with three safeties and caught a fine game. Kearns had a double and homer. Doug Ash, Moe Burns, Brian Turner, Stewart and Leach gave their best as they all went good.

Juves Triumph

Len Symond's juvenile baseball squad defeated Oshawa Saturday 7-6 before a good crowd at the Motor City to tie up their OBA series at one game apiece. The first game was a tie, the second an Oshawa win. Next Saturday the teams settle the issue at Oshawa.

Jack Murdock was particularly effective with men on bases and though touched for 13 hits, his suppirt was good with only one error afield while some timely hitting on their own account enabled the snappy Symonds crew to edge out a much-needed win.

Foley, Pete Ferguson and Roger Wilson led the Petes' hitters, each hitting a double and driving in a pair of runs. Petes scored all their runs in the second, third and fourth innings as they bunched them for a lead that held up, though the Motor City boys fought hard to the finish. Brian Young starred afield, hit a triple and scored a run while Ed Hillier made a great catch off Starr in the seventh with two on and two out to possibly save the game.

Galloping Ghosts Blank Orillia

ORILLIA, Sept. 18.—A power-packed Cobourg football team steam-rollered their way to a crushing 16 to 0 win over the Orillia Silver Bombers in the opening league game of the ORFU intermediate schedule here on Saturday afternoon. Led by Bob Cooper and Ernie Darragh, the Galloping Ghosts scored two touchdowns and added a field goal and two singles to their total, while holding the Orillians well in check.

Cooper kicked a single in the first quarter and added another early in the second. Paul Currelly booted a perfect placement from the Orillia 15-yard line before the half ended 5-0.

Orillia did better early in the third quarter and twice drove deep into Cobourg territory. However, they lacked the punch to put the ball over for a score. Following a Cobourg interception of an Orillia pass, Bill Douglas ran around his right end for a major score which Currelly converted. Minutes later, Darrah tore through the Orillia line on a cut-back and went 25 yards for the second touch. Jim Hamilton's attempt at conversion failed.

Orillia's vaunted forward passing attack by Jim Milligan bogged down when a lot of long passes found no receivers. However, Milligan clicked for good gains with shorter attempts.

Dennis Bell Wins Caddy Tournament

Dennis Bell won the second annual caddy tournament and the Wally McIlmoyle Trophy at the Peterborough Golf Club on Saturday, with a score of 48. Doug Baptie was runner-up with 53 and Mel Innis third with a 57 count. Other scorers were: Brian Guerin and Alec Baptie, 62 each; Jack Leahy, 63; Don Fallis, 63; Barry Campbell, 64; Ron Tate, 65; Terry Walsh, 69; Mel Barnes, 84 and Lee Barnes, 93.

The dozen competitors, who had one or two mornings a week all summer to practice, turned in a neat showing under directions of Alex Walker, assistant pro. After the tourney, the entries were treated to lunch by the club steward, John Lavictoire, with Mel and Lee Barnes playing the piano for a sing-song. Members J H. Vernor, Vern Selkirk and Bob Sager donated prizes, and members contributed the lunch. Westclox watches went to the second and third finishers, all caddies getting a neck tie, and all will be guests at the next ORFU game here.

Peewees Ousted In Tourney After Fine Try

BRAMPTON, Sept. 18 — Over 400 young lacrosse stars from all over the province literally "took over" Brampton on Saturday, as 17 teams competed for the provincial peewee title in a day-long tournament. Although starting at 9.00 a.m. and continuing through the day until 10 p.m., the exhausted OLA Secretary Chuck Rowan and his cohorts were still unable to declare a champion. The Brampton Excelsiors and the Ohsweken Iroquois, both winners of three consecutive games, were named finalists. The teams will probably battle for the laurels prior to the Mann Cup games in Maple Leaf Gardens in October.

Peterborough and St. Catharines supplied the fans with the most gruelling game of the tourney, battling through three overtime periods to an 11-10 St. Kitts verdict. Two other elongated matches featured the elimination Orangeville and Roden A.C. provided the day's fireworks as a total of 30 minutes in penalties were doled out to the scrappy knee-highs in a rugged fixture.

The finalists, Brampton and Ohsweken, swept all opposition in their march to the title. The Excelsiors started their day with a 9-1 victory over Long Branch, edged Roden A.C. by 7-6, and swamped St. Catharines 12-5 in the semi-final. The Iroquois K.O.'d Owen Sound, squeezed past Norval-Georgetown in an overtime tussle and clocked a 6-2 win over the well-drilled Parkdale Lions. Terry Davis of Peterborough was unanimously granted laurels as the day's individual star. Half the size of a regulation length lacrosse stick, Terry paced his team in a rousing uphill battle with St. Catharines that forced three extra periods of play. He fired five of his team's ten goals in a great display that had the crowd cheering his spunk and spirit.

Empress Shield Captured By Percy Skitch

By HERB. MARTIN.

Playing in the annual open trebles tournament on Saturday for the Empress Hotel Shield, the Lindsay boys made it win place and show place. So completely did the visitors dominate the play that only one local rink reached the pay-off station. The veteran Percy Skitch came through to win all three games and the Empress Shield, closely followed by his club mates Jack Brennan and Charlie Bell. The two-game winner went to another Trent Valley veteran, Archie Meyers of Campbellford; while the high single stayed in Peterborough, F. Worsencroft's rink being responsible for that.

The afternoon games were played under fair conditions, but the night game was not so good; it became quite damp and cool. However, the boys played right through, and all seemed to enjoy it. With the presentation of the prizes, the tournament closed out around 11 o'clock. William Moorhead and Fred Dearborn handled the draw in fine style, and kept the games going along without delay.

Winners

Lindsay—O. Culbert, B. Everson, P. Skitch, skip—first and the Empress Hotel Shield.

Lindsay—T. Adams, L. Sheridan, J. Brennan, skip—second.

Lindsay—H. Williams, A. Jeffries, C. Bell, skip—third.

Campbellford— J. Ballantyne, J. Miller, A. Meyers, skip—fourth

Peterborough—R. Hopkins, V. Hill, F. Worsencroft, skip—fifth.

Tonight we play the men's club singles; all of the players are asked to be at the greens at 7:15 o'clock sharp.

Also tonight, the ladies are having a draw-from-the-board tournament, individual scores to count.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the ladies continue with their draw-from-the-board tournament.

Tuesday evening the men play their postponed games of Wednesday, August 9.

Rochester Takes 3-2 Lead In Playoffs

By The Associated Press.

Rochester Red Wings, International League champions, will try to clinch their best-of-seven semi-final playoff series against Jersey City Giants tonight.

The Wings, if they are to advance to the finals, will have to make it with a pitcher who failed last Friday—Johnny Yuhas. The Little Giants kayoed Yuhas then in the sixth inning, en route to a 6-1 triumph.

Things have changed since then however. The Red Wings took a 3-2 lead in their series Sunday with a 6-3 victory. Ed Mierkowicz paced Rochester's 14-hit attack with two home runs and a single. Jack Faszhold was the winning pitcher, Sammy West the loser.

Trusting Tomasic

The Jerseys will pin their fading hopes on Andy Tomasic, who stopped Rochester on five hits Friday. Either Andy wins, or that's the end for Joe Becker's crew.

Montreal Royals, meanwhile, evened their semi-final series at 2-2 with Baltimore, blanking the Orioles 5-0 behind Tom Lasorda's one-hit pitching. Lasorda gave up three walks and struck out seven. Butch Hoyt got the only hit off him—a third-inning single.

Rocky Bridges, with a double and two singles, was Montreal's big gun against Russ Bauers and two relief pitchers.

The teams will resume play again Tuesday either Tommy Fine or Karl Drews will pitch for the Orioles, while Turk Lown is figured to receive the nod for Montreal.

Browns Wreaking Havoc On Top Leaders

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's a move reported underfoot in the American League to move the St. Louis Browns to Timbuktu.

For years rumors have persisted that the Browns would be shifted to Baltimore, Montreal, Los Angeles and other points, but now those cities are considered too close—at least for the comfort of some identified as Cleveland, Boston and New York.

The Browns, used as a doormat for the greater part of the season, have suddenly grown ferocious, playing like champs instead of chumps.

Cleveland was the first to meet disaster at the hands of the "New Browns." The St. Louis club knocked the Indians out of pennant contention with four straight victories in Cleveland.

Next On List

The Red Sox and Yankees were next on the list. The Browns took two out of three from Boston's third-place Sox and followed by splitting a doubleheader with the league-leading Yankees Sunday.

They knocked the Yanks off 6-5 in the first game and battled the Bombers tooth and nail until the last inning of the second before capitulating 6-1. At that, it took a grand-slam pinch-hit homer by 34-year-old Johnny Hoop to beat them.

Despite the split the Yanks moved a game ahead of the second place Tigers who lost a 3-2 squeaker to the Red Sox in Detroit.

The Browns' biggest crowd of the season, 21,082, showed up at Sportsman's Park to witness two thrilling games.

Goes All The Way

Lefty Stubby Overmire went all the way in the opener for the Browns while the Yanks employed three pitchers—Ed Lopat, Tom Ferrick and Joe Page. Page was the loser, failing to retire any of the three batters he faced.

The nightcap was a nip-and-tuck mound duel between Allie Reynolds of the Yanks and Al Widmar. The Yanks loaded the bases in the ninth on a hit, a bunt which Widmar threw to second too late and an error. Hopp then batted for Reynolds and socked the pitch off the right-field roof. It was Hopp's first American League homer and his second in the majors with the bases loaded.

The Red Sox and Tigers also put on a spine-tingler before 53,-167 fans in Detroit. The Sox jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the first four innings.

Tigers Catch Up

Lefty Mel Parnell nursed this margin until the ninth when the Tigers caught up with him. Pinch-hitter Joe Ginsberg walked and pinch-hitter Charley Keller followed with a booming triple. Johnny Lipon kept it alive with a single. Then Ellis Kinder was called in. Gerry Priddy sacrificed Lipon to second but he died as George Kell grounded out and Vic Wertz struck out. The victory was Parnell's 17th and his ninth straight.

In remaining American League games, Philadelphia Athletics edged Cleveland 10-9 in 11 innings and Washington Senators and Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader. The White Sox won the opener 4-0 behind Bill Wight and the Senators the nightcap 3-2 on Irv Noren's ninth-inning homer.

Philadelphia Phils continued to move along in the National League, beating Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3. The league leaders scored all of their runs in the fifth inning, three on a homer by Gran Hamner.

Take Second Place

Boston took over second place from Brooklyn Dodgers by sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds, 6-2 and 3-1, while the Dodgers lost a 3-2 decision to Chicago Cubs. Warren Spahn became the National's first 20-game winner by stopping the Reds on six hits in the opener.

New York Giants scored three runs in the last of the ninth inning to shade St. Louis Cardinals, 7-6.

Field Sec'y Tells Chamber Need For Long-Term Plan

MARMORA, Sept. 18 (ENS).—Members of Marmora District Chamber of Commerce and guests listened to an address by Charles Bantock, field secretary of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce at the monthly dinner meeting in the Royal Hotel Thursday evening. President Alex Fraser introduced the speaker.

Because in Canada we are facing a period of imminent growth and development embracing the next 25 years, the speaker felt that in his remarks he should express some thoughts picked up in his travels across the province. He confined his observations to four projects, the civic, agricultural, commercial, and industrial. It is fatal, he said, to neglect any one of these four in a community even such as Marmora.

Taking industry first, he mentioned that it is flourishing, mainly because Canada is a stronghold of free enterprise. Chambers everywhere need a strong industrial committee. A water and sewage system is being found to be a prime requisite in every community.

With regard to agricultural affairs, the committee assigned to it should be possessed of the importance of personalities. People living on the outskirts of town must be regarded as just as important as those living on front streets. Therefore good urban-rural relations should be built up.

Shop Elsewhere

The speaker drew attention to the fact that in commerce, the past two years, there had been the change from the sellers' market to the buyers's market. A retail survey had disclosed that in merchandising and retailing there has been a little carelessness. The committee dealing with commerce should be interested as to whether or not there was a sufficient range of stores and a sufficient range of goods in the particular community. It had come to the speaker's knowledge that because of price or range of goods, persons of one community had travelled ten miles to another to make their main purchases.

In discussing civic matters, Mr. Bantock stressed town and community plannings as a vital concern to ensure progress.

Because of the lack of foresight and vision many communities now were faced with the problems of parking industries were mixed up with homes and other drawbacks were to be met with. This country, it is reliably estimated, will double its population before many years. For that reason there should be a strong committee on town planning within each chamber.

As his last thought the speaker mentioned that we should raise our sights from the community level to the national level avoiding the danger of apathy and indifference.

H. W. Labine voiced thanks of all present for the fine address. Floyd Loveless as treasurer presented financial statements. The first was that of the regatta which showed a slight deficit. That of the general funds showed $112 on hand. Initial plans were then discussed for ladies night in October. For the membership committee James Shannon reported the present number of members to be 62.

Municpal Problems

The meeting supported the suggestion of the Rev. G. D. Young that the November meeting be assigned to agriculture.

Parking on the main business street, Forsyth, came up for discussion. Reeve Lynch mentioned that this was receiving consideration by the village council.

Concerning the volunteer fire Brigade, the Reeve also stated that it was hoped to have the provincial fire marshal back for two days this fall for instructional purposes. The president suggested the holding of occasional fire practices as an additional benefit to the brigade.

In discussing the advisability of continuing the Halloween shell-out, vice-president Irwin McCoy's suggestion that last year's plan be followed was accepted. James Walker was appointed chairman of the committee with power to name other members. Reeve Lynch called for an opinion on the reverting to Standard Time and those present unanimously favored September 24 as the date.

Some suggestions regarding safety on the highways were given an airing towards the close of the meeting, interesting and helpful to all present.

3 Preachers Held

VAL D'OR, Que., Sept. 18 (CP)—Three Baptist lay preachers were arrested Saturday night when they tried to hold a street-corner meeting in this Northwestern Quebec mining town. Arrested and released on $50 bail were Jane Culp, 20, Toronto; Elgin Last, 25, Windsor and Gaston Gariepy, 23, LaSarre, Que. They will appear in court Monday.

Bicycle Big Help

GRANVILLE FERRY, N.S., Sept. 18 (CP)—Charles Callahan of nearby Karsdale figures bicycle riding is a good way to keep fit. Thirty-five miles a day is "nothing," says Mr. Callahan, now 84.

Makes Proposals

SHERBROOKE, Que., Sept. 18 (CP)—Gerard Picard of Montreal, president of the 90,000-member Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, proposed $50 monthly old age pensions for women at 60 and men at 65 in his presidential report Sunday to the body's 29th convention.

Tank Springs Leak

PARRY SOUND, Sept. 18 (CP).—A monster oil slick spread over the Parry Sound harbor Sunday when a 50,000-gallon storage tank, owned by the Imperial Oil Company, sprang a leak. The slick was said to be nearly a foot thick and spread nearly a quarter of a mile out into the harbor.

NAMED MAGISTRATE — Roland A. Harris, Windsor, Ont., business man, was one of two men appointed to the Windsor police commission, replacing two who resigned following a report by Ontario Provincial Police inspectors which found gambling and other vices flourishnig in the border city. Mr. Harris was appointed a magistrate without pay so he could qualify for the appointment.

GOLDEN HARVEST — Dewain Jensen, left, and his brother, Norman, both of Cardston, Alta., watch their harvest being piled beneath the skies for lack of granary space. The pile, containing 45,000-50,000 bushels of Marquis wheat, is 260 feet long, 33 wide and 12 high. It was grown on land of the Blood Indian Reserve leased by white men in the largest grain field within one fence in the Commonwealth — 1,000 acres.

6 Aviation Nominees To Study In Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 18—(CP)—Six nominees chosen from the 58 member-nations of the International Civil Aviation organization for the fourth trainee program have arrived here to begin studies, it was announced today.

The representatives, sent here to study ICAO's headquarters organization, will study three months and then return to their home government to act as liaison officers.

Burma, Indonesia, Italy, Lebanon, Pakistan and Iran have sent representatives.

Note Increased Air Travel This Year

MONTREAL, Sept. 18—(CP)—A general increase in international airline traffic as shown by increased inter-line transactions was announced Sunday by the International Air Transport Association.

Association officials said the IATA clearing house in London, Eng., handled nearly 10 per cent more business for the first seven months of this year than in the same period last year. Total cash turnover for the period was $96,241,000 compared with $87,903,000 last year.

Officials said the clearing house transaction eliminated more than 80 per cent of the cash payments and foreign exchange dealings between the 35 member airlines.

Newspapermen Hold Meet In Saskatoon

SASKATOON, Sept. 18 (CP).—Newspaper representatives from Fort William to Victoria, BC, on Saturday discussed news problems at the annual Western regional meeting of The Canadian Press. Herve Major, news editor of Montreal La Presse and president of CP, the national news co-operative, was chairman.

A panel discussion on methods of increasing member co-operation in the coverage of Western news was opened with a paper writeen by Angus MacKay, Port Arthur News-Chronicle. In Mr. MacKay's absence, his paper was read by A. A. Phillips, Fort William Times-Journal. Allen Bill, Calgary Herald, presented additional suggestions as the second speaker.

Others attending were H. L. Crawford, Brandon Sun; Don MacDougall, Edmonton Journal; Hugh Buchanan, Lethbridge Herald; Ron Brownridge, Moose Jaw Times-Herald.

Director Kazan Unpopular With Reporters

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18 (AP)—Here's a man you should know. His name is Elia Kazan.

His first name is pronounced EE-LY-A, but if you know him well you can call him Gadge. That is short for gadget, of all things. He was named that by actor Alan Baxter when both were in college. Why? Kazan isn't sure. "Maybe it's because I was small and neat," he muses. It could also be because he is useful, as Hollywood has found out. He has directed some of the best pictures of recent years, including "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "Boomerang," "Gentleman's Agreement" (for which he won an Oscar), "Pinky" and "Panic in the Streets."

His second picture was "Sea of Grass," with Spencer Tracey and Katharine Hepburn. It was his only film that wasn't a rousing success.

Takes the Blame

"I guess it was my fault," he admits candidly. "I didn't give enough preparation to the script and I allowed process shots instead of shooting in real locations."

Kazan has just turned 41 but looks much younger. Born in Constantinople, he is a Greek-American with a face that could have come off an old Grecian coin. He is an independent guy and his movie sets are often closed to the press. He ignores the sniping of columnists who complain.

"The important thing is the actor's performance," he says. "It takes a lot of work and concentration to give a good performance and I want to avoid distractions. Often an interview takes too much out of an actor and when we reach a big scene, as we often do towards the end of the afternoon, he has nothing to give."

Ideas About Acting

Having been on both sides of the floodlights and camera, Kazan has some definite ideas about acting.

"Actors should stay hungry," he says. "When they are too well fed, they become satisfied. Then they don't act with as much fire."

The problem, he admitted, is the conflict between creativeness and the desire for security.

OH, FOR A HOLE TO CRAWL INTO! Fancy your Junior on a spot like this. Duked up in velvet trousers and beruffed silk blouse, four-year-old Nicholas Goodman had to stand and "take it" from the razzing gang behind him. Young Nicholas was saddled with the fancypants outfit when he was a page boy at the recent wedding in London, England, of Actress Jill Raymond and Clement Freud, grandson of psychoanalyst Sigmund Freud Blimey! It's enough to give a chap a complex.

AFL Printers Reject New York Offer

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP). — AFL printers Sunday turned down a contract with all major New York City newspapers after a union leader said the contract represented "the last ounce from the publishers without taking us out on the street."

Members of Local 6 of the International Typographical Union, which represents 3,500 printers on all major dailies here, voted 827 to 190 against the proposal.

It would have given them a $3.50 weekly wage increase and and $1.50 in other benefits.

Printers at the meeting also turned down a proposal to submit the proposed contract with the Publishers Association of New York to a referendum of the entire local membership.

They told their negotiators to start talks with the publishers, again immediatetly.

The proposal would have provided the $3.50 increase for journeymen printers, with apprentices receiving smaller increases.

The present scale is $99 for dayworkers, $104 for the night shift, and $109 for those starting work at midnight.

GYPSY MOTH

The larva of the gypsy moth has caused millions of dollars of damage to New England wooded areas since its introduction in 1868.

MEALTIME — This mother Barn Owl was frozen in the blinding glare of camera flash as she returned with a mouse to her nest and young in the 125-foot town hall bell tower at Blenheim. Photographer Harold Whyte waited nearly three hours in the darkness and caught the scene in the beam of his flashlight before clicking the camera. The owl took little notice and continued with the feeding of her hungry babies.

Wanted: A Shipload

WELLINGTON, NZ (CP). — T. L. Hayman, a New Zealand MP, recently asked the government to investigate the properties of durian, a native fruit of Borneo, that "makes haid grow on shining pates and makes old men skip like goats." Opposition members immediately urged that a shipload be imported— for the Cabinet.

Paris' Old Xavier-Privas Street Quaint Spot In Latin Quarter

By PHILIP CLARKE

PARIS, Sept. 18 —(AP)— If you'd like to eat your way around the world in one night, hop down to quaint old Rue Xavier-Privas in Paris' colorful Latin Quarter.

Xavier-Privas is but two narrow blocks long, but it boasts a formidable variety of foreign restaurants — Romanian, Greek, Algerian, English and Chinese. Around the corner, there's an Egyptian night club with a buxom dancer.

The outnumbered French bravely hang on to a couple of tiny coffee counters.

Rue Xavier-Privas is hard to find. It starts at the left bank of the Seine River within shouting distance of Notre Dame Cathedral.

The restaurant "Bucharest" is typical of this alley of the nations.

Patrons stroll in with copies of one of Paris' three Romanian-language newspapers and order their first "tuicas" of the night. Tuica is a sweetish, clear white plum brandy and it burns all the way down.

Brothers in Charge

About 9 a.m. Dmitri Aerikide, a student of chemistry, and his brother, Nicolas, put on aprons and go to work. Dmitri, the owner, does the cooking on the heavy old range in the kitchen. Nicolas waits on table.

Each night, one of the regular customers puts on an apron and helps serve. He gets free wine for his trouble but must pay for his dinner, about 400 francs ($1.15), like the others.

There are dozens of national dishes, plus tasty cream cheese, ripe olives, peppers and pickles. All, of course, is washed down with liberal quantities of white wine.

Time For Music

Around 11 p.m., it's time for music. A muscular, bearded Romanian art student played an accordion every night until a few weeks ago when his landlady seized the instrument for three months' back rent.

This gave Tzoeproel Caras, a gray-haired part-time lawyer and plastic art worker, his big chance to make music with his ivy leaves.

Caras, who escaped from Romania through Yugoslavia and Italy in 1947, learned how to sing through a leaf while languishing in Communist prisons.

It's a strange mixing of many voices as Rue Xavier-Privas sings of faraway places and the days gone by.

Fire Razes 4 Barns

WOODBRIDGE, Ont., Sept. 18 (CP).—Damage was estimated at $125,000 Sunday after four large barns and 3,000 bushels of wheat were destroyed on the farm of Jack Creed, Toronto furrier, near this village 10 miles northwest of Toronto. The origin of the fire is not known.

Study Fuel Situation

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 18 (CP) —A study of Canada's fuel situation in view of critical international conditions was recommended Saturday at the seventh annual conference of provincial ministers of mines.

Council Intentions Good, But Need Cash

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Sept. 18—(CP)—It all started when a lawyer's office burned down on the main street of Birch Hills, 40 miles southeast of here.

The village council decided it was time to get a new fire-truck. A second-hand truck seemed a bargain.

But when the truck arrived the old fire-hall proved too short. The council decided to build a new hall, on the site of the burned-out lawyer's office.

Now the council finds it is short of cash to complete the project. Saturday night it decided to ask the Board of Trade to help.

GETS U.N. POST — John Decore, Liberal member of parliament for Vegreville, Alta., has been named a member of the Canadian delegation to the General Assembly of the United Nations. A native of Andrew, Alta., he is the only Ukrainian-Canadian with the delegation.

TLC Would Like Closer Co-operation

MONTREAL, Sept. 18 (CP) — A move for closer co-operation between Canada's two biggest labor bodies was taken Saturday by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

The annual convention of the 500,000-member TLC called on its executive to take joint action with the 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor wherever it considers this in the interests of labor.

However, the Congress did not go to the length of endorsing complete unity between the two bodies, which has been an objective of the CCL for some years.

It noted with approval that the TLC and the rival CCL had taken joint action on several matters during the last year, notably in the general rail strike last month and expressed the hope of similar joint action in the future.

THOMAS ROSSLER was recently convicted for the murder of an R.C.M.P. constable while escaping empty-handed from an attempted hold-up of a Montreal bank. Rossler was captured in Montreal and brought back to stand trial for the fatal shooting. He will face the gallows in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail on Dec. 15.

17 Fatalities Reported Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Weekend mishaps and accidents took 17 lives in Eastern Canada, with a Canadian Press count Saturday and Sunday showing seven killed in Quebec—all by traffic accidents—and 10 in Ontario.

Five of the Ontario deaths were caused by traffic accidents and three by drowning. There was also an accidental shooting and a death by asphyxiation.

Two of the Quebec traffic victims remained unidentified — a woman killed in a collision between a car and a truck at St. Faustin, 50 miles north of Montreal, and an 18-months-old baby killed in a collision near Berthier.

Jocelyne Landry, 27, a passenger in a truck, was killed when the truck went out of control Sunday near St. Donat. John Diabo, an 80-year-old resident of the Caughnawaga Indian reservation near Montreal, was killed late Saturday when struck by a car, and Rene Chamberland, 24, was struck down by a car Saturday night at Point Aux Trembles, a Montreal suburb.

Athur Campeau, 40, was killed in Montreal when his motorcycle hit a street car and 69-year-old Gideon Chartrand died in hospital in Pembroke, Ont., after being hit by a car in Chapeau, Que., across the Ottawa river.

Ontario Victims

The Ontario traffic victims were: Mrs. Kate Spink, 77, of Leeds, England, struck by a streetcar in Toronto; Mrs. Herman Sylvester, a young Indian woman hit by a car while walking along the Queen Elizabeth way near Toronto Saturday; (Miss) Hilary Tozer, 19, and Carmen Peace, 28, both of Hamilton, killed in a collision near Hamilton Saturday, and Fred Kiewan, 34, killed when he lost control of his car near Welland Sunday.

The boys were reported drowned in Lake Scugog Sunday. One body, identified as that of 16-year-old Ed Walker of Toronto, was recovered. The body of Hugh Ross, 68, a night watchman, was found in the Niagara river near Niagara-on-the-Lake.

John Buchan, 48, was found in his garage in Toronto from asphyxiation Saturday. Police said he apparently fell asleep after returning home Friday night.

Near Belleville, Lenard McGrath, 9, was shot and killed, apparently by a hunter, while walking with a playmate Sunday.

Hormone Injection Breeds More Sheep

CHICAGO, Sept. 18—(AP)—A new hormone injection which enables sheep to breed twice a year was revealed Sunday by researchers of Armour and Company. Normally, sheep breed once a year.

In use, the injection would enable a herder with 100 sheep to increase profits up to $1,500 a year and raise from 65 to 85 more sheep than normal, the researchers estimate.

The hormone used is gonadotrophin. It is administered to ewes and costs from 20 to 25 cents a ewe.

Endorse Nehru Policy

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 18 —)AP)—Resolutions giving unqualified endorsement to Prime Minister Nehru's policies regarding Communist China and Korea were adopted Sunday night by the high command of the Indian Nationalist Congress Party.

350 Test Men Hold Reunion Turner Speaks

From Halifax to Vancouver members of the Test Alumni Association of the CGE attended Saturday the 22nd annual reunion held at the Peterborough Works and the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

More than 350 men from Toronto, Windsor, Vancouver, Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa and other centres were present for the day's proceedings. Some of the members who attended the first reunion in 1928 took part in this year's.

H. K. Thompson, of Toronto, was elected president of the association for the coming year to succeed Hugh Todd. Other officers elected were honorary president, L. D. W. Magie, of Peterborough; vice-presidents, D. G. Emery, of Peterborough, I. M. MacLean, of Toronto, O. H. Boyd, of Hamilton, J. L. Killoran, of Drummondville, Quebec; secretary-treasurer, W. F. McMullen, of Toronto.

60 New Testmen

At the dinner at the works cafeteria following the president's and secretary-treasurer's reports 60 new Testmen were introduced by William McMullen, of Toronto, assisted by Cy McKenzie, of Peterborough. Hugh Rose, of Toronto, gave a humorous talk on "TAA Down through the Years" which included some of the highlights of other Test reunions.

The nominating report was presented by Vincent Young, of Toronto, and the new slate of officers istalled by Ted Bourne, and Al Burrow, both of Toronto.

Peterborough Testmen, Robert Fleming and Melville Coterill then presented a brief skit called "The Testmen's Lament."

President Speaks

The business portion of the reunion concluded with a short address by H. M. Turner, president of the CGE. He welcomed the new Testmen to the company and the TAA and counselled them briefly on several matters.

Prior to the registration in the morning, some of the members played a few holes of golf. Following the business session in the afternoon, they adjourned to the Country Club where they participated in golf, tennis, softball, horseshoes and volleyball.

A buffet supper in the Kawartha clubhouse and the presentation of prizes ended the day's scheduled activities.

Sales And Ad Club Hear Cameron Ralston

Cameron Ralston, author, educator, lecturer and civic leader will be the guest speaker at the open meeting of the Sales and Ad Club, to be held Tuesday, at 6.30 p.m. at the Club Aragon.

The topic of Mr. Ralston's address will be "A Scotsman looks at North America."

An American citizen Mr. Ralston was born in Paisley, Scotland. He is a faculty member of Washington and Jefferson College and Director of Public Forums, United States Department of Interior, Office of Education. He won renown as executive secretary of the Chicago Committee of One Hundred in their great offensive against Al Capone and other gangsters. ## Lad, 10, Injured In Back Yard

Ten-year-old Larry Heard was run over by a car and had his thigh bone fractured and his shoulder injured Saturday in a backyard behind 630 Little St.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Heard, 629 Hawley St., is reported to be in an "unchanged" condition in Civic Hospital today.

Driver of the car which backed over the boy was Michael Drumm, 290 Westcott St.

Watching Family Move

The boy was in the yard watching a family move into 630 Little St. Two cars had driven into the yard. One, driven by Bill Woodbeck, 284 Romaine St., had backed into the yard and was facing toward the street.

The Drumm car, alongside the Woodbeck car, was facing in the opposite direction. Young Heard was standing in front of the Woodbeck car. Woodbeck asked him to move away so he could drive out. The youngster backed behind the other car which was just starting to back up.

It is believed a wheel of the car ran over his leg. Traffic Officer Harold Mesley investigated.

Will Install Seats In Otonabee Rink

Plans to have seats installed and painting done at the Otonabee Memorial Arena in Keene have been completed. Seats are being erected overhead on each side and at the south end of the rink. Any volunteers are asked to contact Dave McNevan or Robert Keitel. This work must be completed before the province will pay the balance of the provincial grant.

The following is a list of donations received recently: Fred Doris, $75; K. Houle, $10; Anna Houle, $10; William Sanderson, $8; Victor Edwards, $10; Albert Fife, $4; Peterborough Co-op Services, $100; Galls store, $77.76.

Draw To Perth Man

Winner of the draw for a boat and outboard motor held by the Peterborough Red Patch Club was S. D. Stewart, 2 North St., Perth.

Mayor Max Swanston made the draw Saturday night. Mr Stewart is railway express clerk who will be glad he stopped at Peterborough. He was notified of his good luck by telegram.

Honor Memory of Pioneer At St. Andrew's Service

At its centennial service Sunday morning the congregation of St. Andrews United Church honored the memory of the late John Edmison, Sr., a Smith township pioneer farmer. A memorial plaque was unveiled dedicated to Mr. Edmison, Sr., his son John, and his grandson, the Rev. John Hall Edmison. All three were staunch members of St. Andrews.

About 50 members of the family attended the special service and then had a get together at the Milburn home on the 3rd concession of Smith.

The plaque was unveiled by J. P. Edmison, a grandson of John Edmison, Sr., and an editor of The Indianapolis Star. Also participating in the service were the Rev. George A. Edmison, DD, a grandson of John Edmison, Sr., and a son of the Rev. Henry Edmison (1839-1924). He is a retired Presbyterian clergyman, a graduate of Queens, now living in South Orange, N.J.

The Scripture lesson was read by the Rev. A. K. Edmison of Brighton, a retired United Church minister. He is the son of the Rev. T. J. Edmison (1835-1895) whose father, Thomas Edmison (1808-1895) was a brother of John Edmison Sr.

The address was by J. Alex Edmison, assistant to the principal of Queens University, a son of the Rev. J. H. Edmison, DD (1871-1928) and a great grandson of John Edmison Sr.

For his centennial address he chose the 16th Psalm, verse six for his text: "The lines are fallen unto us in pleasant places, yea, we have a goodly heritage."

He recalled to mind the sacrifices of the early settlers in the Peterborough area, who more than a century ago "crossed estranging seas" and "broke the hush of the primeval wood" in this area.

"Their joys and their sorrows, their handicaps and their achievements have been chronicled in enduring fashion by Mrs. Susanna Moodie, Mrs. Catherine Traill, John Langton, and other gifted early settlers of Peterborough county. No section of Canada has been more blessed with literary figures than this."

"Through the pens of observant people," said Mr. Edmison, "we have ready access to the colorful and inspiring history of these Kawartha settlements. That there is here a mine of rich pioneer lore has been demonstrated again in 1950 by Robertson Davies in his most recent play. It will be demonstrated further, I understand, by H. T. Pammett who will in a few months, publish in book form the highly interesting and informative articles on local history which have been appearing in the Peterborough Examiner."

Not all modern advances have been for the better, he suggested. No longer are there the same qualities of friendship and neighborliness.

"The early books and letters from this area are full of references to family and neighborhood gatherings. These were the greatest joy in pioneer life, and indeed they were up to the turn of the century."

"We don't seem to have time now-a-days for being good neighbors, this age of speed not permitting it... In the old days if a man missed a stagecoach he was quite content to wait two or three days for the next one to come along, but now we complain if we miss one section of a revolving door. Modern transportation gets us everywhere faster, but I think it has deprived us of many of the joys of leisure and comradeship."

Disturbed the Peace

His left eye discolored, Carl Edwards, 719 Wakefield Ave., pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of disturbing the peace in a local beverage room Saturday night. He was fined $15 and costs.

4,000 Take Part In Culminating Evening Service

In one of the largest religious services ever held in Peterborough, more than 4,000 persons of all denominations of the Christian faith crowded into the Civic Arena Sunday night to give thanks in prayer and hymn for the first century of Peterborough's progress as an incorporated place. It was the culmination of a day dedicated to the observance of Centenary Sunday in all city churches.

The great service was organized by the Peterborough Ministerial Association, whose president, Major Cyril Everitt of the Salvation Army, conducted it. A massed choir of 240 voices from 13 churches led the singing and sang anthems and choruses under the direction of F. G. Mann. Albert Marson, Toronto tenor, was soloist; the Salvation Army band gave instrumental accompaniment, and the Reverend President George P. Gilmour of McMaster University, a descendant of pioneer Baptist leaders in the district, was the preacher.

Well before 7 p.m. the people started to fill the arena, first there filling the centre floor seats before the speakers' stand, band and choir. The arena was packed before the worship service began at 7.45, and still late-comers squeezed in.

Guest Preacher

Guest speaker, the Rev. Dr. George P. Gilmour, president and vice chancellor of McMaster University, chose his text, I Peter 2:17, "Honour all men; Love the Brotherhood; Fear God; Honour the King." He recommended this text as Peterborough's slogan for the future.

To "honour all men" is to respect all people of other races and nations. The injunction, "Love the Brotherhood" has a special community significance. To "Fear God," is the basis of the good life, not a cringing terror before God.

Dr. Gilmour reminded the great audience that the command "Honor the King" was delivered to Christian people whose King was Caesar, not a Christian, was therefore difficult for them to obey. But any community which is to amount to anything is founded on law and order.

Dr. Gilmour, whose great-grandfather was John Gilmour, one of the earliest settlers in this area and founder of Gilmour Memorial Church, was introduced by the Rev. Ivan Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church.

Special Music

A moving moment of the service was Albert Marson's singing of "Going Home." During the service he also sang: "Ye People Rend Your Hearts, If With All your Hearts" from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn); "I Stood on de Ribber ob Jordon," "Nobody Knows de Troubles I've Seen," (both arranged by Burleigh); and Handel's "Where'er You Walk."

The massed choirs sang F. G. Mann's "I Will Give Thanks" as an anthem of the service. They also sang the noble hymn "Now Thank We All Our God," and during musical prelude to the service "All People That On Earth Do Dwell," as a choral. Charles Allen was organ accompanist.

From 7 p.m. until 7:45 the Salvation Army Temple band presented selections. There was also an organ interlude with Harry Northrop at the console. The male voice party for the Salvation Army sang two selections, "I Love To Tell the Story" and "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling."

During the service greetings were brought to Peterborough by J. A. Edmison, assistant to the principal at Queen's University. Introduced by the Rev. M. J. Aiken of St. Andrew's Church, Mr. Edmison is a great grandson of one of the founders of Peterborough, John Edmison.

Major Cyril Everitt, conducting the service, was assisted by the Rev. William Kibblewhite of All Saints Church who gave the prayer of thanksgiving and the Rev. Charles C. Boyd, of St. Paul's Church who read the scriptures.

Rovers from the 5th Peterborough Crew (All Saints Church) acted as ushers for the occasion.

Dancer Is Fined Assaulted Woman

Pleading guilty to a charge of assaulting a woman and causing a disturbance at a local dance hall Saturday night, Robert Burrows, 21, of Oshawa, was fined $10 and costs on the first charge and $15 and costs on the second in police court today.

Burrows said he hit the woman, Mrs. Ethel Tynchuk, Oshawa, unintentionally in a scuffle.

Acting Crown Attorney Walter Howell said that when Burrows hit Mrs. Tynchuk, her husband got into the mixup and a fight developed.

"We can't have this sort of thing in our dance halls," Magistrate W. R. Philp KC, said.

WINTER LIBRARY HOURS

The Public Library is now open every evening until 9 except Wednesday beginning this week, notes William Graff, librarian. On Wednesdays the library will close at 12.30 p.m. The branch library will also remain open an extra half hour each evening. With the exception of Wednesday, the Branch Library will be open from 2 p.m to 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Frost Nips Vines

Tomato and cucumber vines nipped by the weekend frosts showed today darkened and wilted vines in city and suburban gardens. They are not a total loss, but the effect of the chilly weather wil lbe seen in reduced crop. Similar damage has been done the corn crop in the country, now on the way to silos.

W. W. Dawson of Otonabee said this morning he was doubtful about the ear corn, hybrid varieties grown chiefly for grain. They need several weeks to reach maturity, but recent frosts, extending to two weeks ago, may set this crop back seriously.

Special Service At Cemetery OfRemembrance

Roman Catholic citizens extended the observance of centennial Sunday to remembrance of the departed at St. Peter's cemetery in the afternoon. A temporary altar was set up under a marquee for benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by Monsignor J. V. McAuley, of Lindsay. Rev. F. Morrocco led the assembly in the prayer of the rosary. Rev. J. J. McCarthy, of Douro, preached on a text from Proverbs, "By the blessing of the just, the city shall be exalted."

Hymns were concluded with "Holy God We Praise Thy Name." St. Peter's parish guest for the occasion of the centennial event, Most Rev. J. R. MacDonald, of Antigonish, was present with Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, and other members of the clergy of the city and district.

Late flowers of the season were placed on many of the graves by the attending members of city parishes.

Father McCarthy said that the graves of the dead buried in the cemetery's consecrated ground were evidence that they had followed after the pattern of holiness, and by their lives through a long span of years had given in large measure to the progress and happiness of the city, much more than the unthinking world appreciated. Among the earliest settlers were spiritual children of St Patrick who had brought to the young community the faith and turst he planted in Ireland 1500 years ago.

Plan Contest For Fiddlers

The scraping of fiddles and cries of square dancers will fill the night air on Tuesday, starting at 9 p.m., as Peterborough's Centennial street dancing takes place, both old-time and modern. There will be two bands supplying music, Jim Byrnes for the former group and Bob Kinsman for the latter.

More than $50 in prize money will be distributed between the two groups in step dancing and fiddling, the dividing line being for those under and those over 16 years of age. The affair will take place on Aylmer St., between King and Charlotte.

Chairman of the committee is Bruce Sargent and judges for the fiddling will be Robertson Davies and Christopher Gledhill, and for the dancing, Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Stanley Northrop.

240 IN MASSED CHOIR

The massed choir composed of members of the choirs of 13 of the city's churches which lead in the service of song at the church service in the Civic Arena on Sunday night numbered 240. They were under the direction of Fred G. Mann, organist and choir director of St. John's Church and dean of the organists in Peterborough. Choirs taking part were: United Churches— George Street, Mark Street, St. Andrew's, St. James, Trinity and Knox; Anglican Churches—St. John's, All Saints' and St. George's; Baptist Churches — Murray Street and Park Street; St. Paul's Presbyterian and Salvation Army Temple. Charles Allen of George St. Church and Harry Northrop of St. Andrew's presided at the organ.

St. Thomas Gets Possibly Five New Industries

Mayor John F. Peterson mentioned the possibility of a fifth new industry for St. Thomas at the Friday night meeting of the city council which left him nominally in the mayoralty to the end of the year, although he is returning to the Canadian Army for active service.

One of the big industries of the United States is a lively prospect which may require a new survey of the industrial area of St. Thomas.

In addition to the new industries which had been announced, Mayor Peterson said a fourth was almost a certainty and a fifth was a possibility.

The former Examiner staff man was given leave of absence to the end of the year, and Ald. E. C. Gliddon was appointed acting mayor.

Tribute To Mayor

Ald. Stokes paid a warm tribute to Mayor Peterson. "I think he will go down on record as one of the greatest mayors St. Thomas has ever had. He will be a hard man to follow. I know it is a distinct loss to St. Thomas, but as Mayor Peterson told us, Canada comes first."

A deep thoughtful vein of character which his Peterborough friends had recognized was reflected in part of the reply Mayor Peterson made to the council. It is especially interesting for its freshness. There was nothing set or stereotyped about the career of Jack Peterson from the time he arrived in St. Thomas.

He said he was proud to have assisted in the industrial expansion of the city.

"But, the chief joy I have found, and nearly the only justification I have been able to see for occupying this post has been through the assistance I have been able to give to some people.

I would say to you that the keynote of this community—or of any community — should not be economy, but should rightly be compassion. We have a fine system of government, one for which I propose to fight again, but there are, nevertheless, circumstances which reach out to people and make them suffer what are apparently unwarranted and seemingly unjustifiable agonies.

If we in council can remember to help these people rather than to save money, then I think we will be true representatives of all our people. Certainly if we give compassion we will be repaid in our own peace of mind over and over again. If the council will follow that policy I know that St. Thomas will be a better place in which to live."

Bound For Korea

Mayor Peterson is leaving today to join the Royal Canadian Regiment that is bound for Korea.

Chamber of Commerce presented him with an engraved cigarette lighter which was presented by R. W. Richardson, defeated mayoralty candidate in the municipal elections for 1950. The dinner was reported as "unique" probably with appreciation of its singular meaning. One of those at the head table was Frank A. Best, president and general manager of Backstay Standard Company which is moving from Windsor to St. Thomas providing initial employment for 150 to 175 persons. Mayor Peterson was a moving spirit in attracting this new industry and also the Canadian plant of the Ridge Tool Co. of Elyria, O.

Pioneers Had Proper Estimate Of World's Material Values

That while the Canadian pioneers are often thought of today as being narrow in their outlook, they did have a proper estimate of material values and placed spiritual things first in their lives the Rev. Prof. F. Scott Mackenzie, D.D., moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada said at the centennial service at St. Paul's Church on Sunday morning. The speaker declared that today material values were being placed first and sufficient thought was not being given to the example of the pioneers. They were just as anxious to make money as people are today but they placed this desire in its proper place.

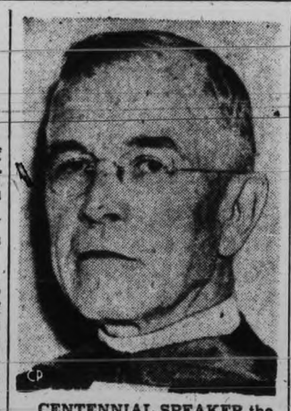
The centennial service was largely attended with the Mayor and Aldermen, members of the Utilities Commission, the Centennial Committee, the Board of Education and the Board of Governors of the Civic Hospital attending.



The Moderator took as his text Deuteronomy 8:2: "And thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee." Remembering the past he said would permit men and women to make the proper contribution to enjoy the future and have better days ahead. Thus looking back over the past and recalling the hardships, the backaches in clearing the forest and the great difficulties which the pioneers overcome will quicken in the heart of all a resolution to be worthy citizens of the future. They established the foundation for religon in this land. They set up the family altar they built churches and attended their church. They provided schools, and planned for a better life in the days to come.

Material Things Provided

Today the moderator said the material things are provided but he questioned if the people were being equipped for life so that they could go out in the world to keep the proper vision and be able to determine what things should be first. Trying to live by [illegible] alone was not enough but they should think of the past and thus be able to bear witness in the future.

Before beginning his sermon Dr. Mackenzie said he had no great knowledge of the history of Peterborough but he was sure that it was similar to the great history of Canada. Peterborough has a roll of honor carrying the names of the men and women who have labored faithfully to make the city what it is and in this list he was sure there would be found the names of many Presbyterians for it is a part of their faith that they should give leadership to their fellow citizens whenever called upon.

The service included a special prayer for the "For Our City" which was repeated by the entire congregation. Rev. Charles G Boyd, the minister, conducted the service and the music was under the direction of Christopher Gledhill, Mus. Bac. (Oxon).

CENTENNIAL SPEAKER the Rev. Prof. F. Scott Mackenzie, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada who preached in St. Paul's Church on Sunday. The service was attended by the mayor and council and representatives of other civic bodies.

Air Trip Helps U.S. Wounded

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—The chief of the U.S. army's largest hospital says Korean battle casualties brought home so far look a great deal better than homecoming wounded of the last war — partly, at least because they have all been flown home.

By and large, wounds are much the same as those received in the European and Pacific conflicts, but the men are in such better physical and mental shape, says Maj.-Gen. Paul H. Streit, commanding general of the Army Medical Centre.

The Military Air Transport Service does the transport job. MATS also uses helicopters to carry certain casualties from front lines back to bases in Korea. Transport from Korea to Japan is by either air force planes or naval ships.

Evacuated to the U.S. are casualties not expected to return to duty in 120 days.

Streit says another factor that had benefited early casualties of the Korean conflict was the availability, right from the start, of army doctors trained in specialties.

Since the war the army medical department has set up a system of graduate training of its own doctors to keep them in step with the latest developments in all fields of medicine and surgery.

AFL Has Loss Of 100,000 Men

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 18 (AP)—The AFL reported today a loss of about 100,000 paid-up unionists—instead of the 1,000,000 new members it set out a year ago to gain.

In the same report, the AFL executive council called for stronger union safeguards against Communists. It said new wage boosts demands can be expected this fall.

The 252-page report, released today, will be submitted to the 750 delegates at Tuesday's opening session of the AFL's 69th annual convention.

The federation gave its total membership in good standing on Aug. 31 as 7,142,603. On the same date of 1949, it had 7,241,290.

Sign Agreement

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP)—The CIO-ousted United Electrical Workers and the General Electric Company today signed a labor agreement containing wage increases of 1 to 15½ cents an hour. The agreement also provides a contributory pension plan with minimum benefits of $125 a month including social security, and other improvements.

Killed By Tram

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP). — Mrs. Kate Spink, 77, of Leeds England, died in hospital here on Saturday night after being struck by a street car. Police said Mrs Spink, accompanied by her sister, ran through heavy traffic to cross a street and darted into the path of the tram.

Canon Spencer Marks His 69th Birthday

ROSENEATH, Sept. 18—(ENS)—Canon C. R. Spencer marked his sixty-ninth birthday on Sunday, September 17th by taking the services at St. James' Anglican church, Roseneath, and St. George's Anglican church, Hastings.

In Mr. Spencer's 46 years in the Anglican ministry he has only had six parishes, Haliburton, Young's Point, Millbrook, Shanty Bay, Bowmanville and his present charge. He served in France during World War I and was chaplain at the internment camp at Bowmanville in World War II.

Although superannuated in the Anglican ministry, Canon Spencer feels he is too young to quit working, so he continued on with his life work of preaching the gospel.

Radio Man Causes Furore Announces Stalin Dead

MONTREAL, Sept. 18 (CP)—Radio producer Jean Bradley — the man who likes to shock the public—did it again Sunday night.

Mr. Bradley produces a French language show on local station CHLP called "C'est Arrive Demain" ("It Happened Tomorrow"). Sunday night's broadcast dealt with the life of Joseph Stalin—and in the middle, an announcer broke in with a fake news bulletin saying that the Soviet leader was dead. The bulletin was credited—without any justification—to The Associated Press.

Radio listeners started telephoning newspapers and broadcasting stations asking about the death. To confuse things even more, another local station, CFCF carried in its regular news report an item about radio actor Fernand Picora dying of a heart attack. Picora was widely known here for his portrayals of Stalin on the air.

Mr. Bradley's previous productions have feature such sensational hoaxes as the dropping of an atomic bomb on New York City, the slaughter of United Nations troops in Korea and the capture of Montreal by Soviet paratroops.

A CHLP official said listeners are warned before the program starts that it is fiction, but the production is so realistic that many listeners feel that it is actual.

Yard Attends Labor Meetings

LONDON, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Labor unrest bubbled among the workers of four key industries on Sunday as a four-day strike which had tied up half of London's 5,000-bus system collapsed.

Men from the unions of building workers, dockers, road haulage services, and meat transport services held mass meetings to discuss labor grievances.

As they met Scotland Yard agents were present seeking confirmation of charges that Communists were behind a threatened wave of British strikes.

The charges were made before the House of Commons by Labor Minister George Isaacs. He said an organization to promote labor unrest had been created by men prominent in previous unofficial strikes, including some who had just returned from a meeting with their Cominform friends in Warsaw.

Men of Scotland Yard's special branch made reports of the labor meetings, but those in charge refused comment on their findings.

Building workers voted to press claims for a wage increase of sixpence an hour.

The dock workers in their meeting asked that the unions and employers negotiate a new contract calling for pay of 25 shillings per day, paid holidays and pensions.

Popular Way Serving Fish Is in Crusty Brown Batter

By MARY MOORE

Caught between the vise of insurmountable meat prices on one side and everlasting fatigue on the other, a dear friend of mine asked me to "write something for women who work all day and have to get a hot dinner at night when they get home — exhausted."

She figures that she can save $5.00 per month serving her family of five fish three times per week — IF she can find a fast way to prepare and cook it.

What she was leading up to was a ready-mix batter for deep frying fish. I have never heard of such a product, but doubtless a dry mix of flour, baking powder, salt, egg and milk powders could be dreamed up, that needed only the addition of water. I will try it some fine day.

One of the most popular ways of serving fish IS in a crusty brown batter, so I am glad she brought the subject up.

Furthermore, the price of fats is down and frying fats and oils can be used over and over again — especially if handled by careful cooks.

There are two simple and straightford batters for frying fish that I will give you today — you can make up your minds which you like better.

The first is an all-purpose batter:

All-Purpose Batter (a cover batter for deep-fried foods).

One and one-third cups bread flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup milk, 1 egg. Mix and sift dry ingredients; beat egg, and add it to the milk, and stir into the dry mix until smooth.

The above batter may be used for dipping, raw apples, bananas, tomatoes, but addition of 2 tablespoons powdered sugar is recommended.

The next one is a little more delicate and should be reserved for impressive occasions when you are serving fried oysters or clams or shrimps OR if you want to make ordinary fresh cod taste like not so ordinary halfbut.

Delicate Batter

Two beaten eggs are added to ¾ cup milk, shake of white pepper, 1 teaspoon salt. Sift 1 cup bread flour over and stir until smooth.

General Directions for Dipping and Frying Fish

Fillets or steaks of fish must be wiped dry. Dip in batter, drain for a minute, lower into fat at 385 deg. Fahr. Turn once when under side is brown. Both sides and the fish will be done in 8 or 10 minutes, if fish is not more than one inch thick. Drain on rough paper towel and serve as soon as possible—preferably with lemon or a lemon-containing sauce.

❖ ❖ ❖

Next is a glamorous supper dish, made from South African Rock Lobster — 49 cents per tin in Canadian stores.

Emem's Lobster Croquettes (for four).

One 7-ounce tin lobster, 1 teaspoon each grated onion, Worcestershire sauce, salt, juice of ½ lemon, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 beaten eggs, fine crumbs. Flake lobster, remove any bones, and mix with onion, W. sauce, lemon and cayenne. Melt the butter, stir in the flour, then the milk until thick. Remove from heat and stir in 1 beaten egg and the lobster mixture. Chill until stiff on shallow plate. Beat remaining egg with 2 tablespoons water, and when lobster mixture is formed into croquettes, dip in egg, then in crumbs. Fry in deep fat or cooking oil at 370 deg. Fahr. until golden on all sides. Drain on rough paper. This makes 4 large croquettes or 8 small ones. This is reputation-making fare.

Watch this column soon for a piece featuring cooking vegetables — Chinese fashion — with particular attention to peanut oil. Peanut oil is notable for its tastelessness and is good for frying he above croquettes. It is about $3 per gallon in Canadian stores.

MR. JOHN ANDREW KNOX of Norwood and his bride, the former Miss Mary Robson, Reg.N., and supervisor at the Civic Hospital, Peterborough.—(Roy Studio Photo)

Mary Robson and John Knox Are Married at St. Paul's

The wedding of Mary Helen Sarah, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robson, North Monaghan to Mr. John Andrew of Norwood, son of Mrs. J. A. Knox and the late Mr. Knox, was solemnized Saturday afternoon in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Miss Robson is a graduate of the Civic Hospital school of nursing and has been on the supervisory staff of the hospital.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd performed the ceremony with a background setting of white and American Beauty gladioli. Soloist was Mrs. Donald Hendren of Lakefield who sang "O perfect love" and at signing of the register, "My World." Mr. Christopher Gledhill was at the organ and played traditional music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown with train of white slippers satin, the bodice fastening at the back with covered buttons and the sleeves tapering to points at the wrists. A headdress of the satin held her half-moon veil of net and she was carrying a cascade of roses.

Miss Olive Parrington as bridesmaid and Mrs. William Robson as matron of honor were gowned alike in American Beauty taffeta and wore hats and mittens of the same material. They carrietd nosegays of white gladioli.

Mr. James Girven attended the groom and William Robson and Edward Girven ushered.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Robson chose a dress of cocoa brown crepe and hat and accessories in dark brown shades. Her corsage was of yellow roses The groom's mother was dressed in black faille and wore black hat and accessories and a red corsage. Both assisted the wedding party at the reception held at the bride's home.

When leaving later for a honeymoon in Northern Ontario the bride was wearing a navy tricotine suit with pink blouse, navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox will live at Norwood.

Pasty-Making Mayor Tours America

By WILLIAM BOSS

FALMOUTH, England —(Reuters)— Mayor Albert Baker's mouth is watering already.

Mayor Baker's a baker, and for 10 years the Cornish pasties he's been turning out—"well, not as good as pre-war, you know."

Pasties — pronounced paasty, with the "A" flat as in "appetite" —are traditional Cornish specialties, lush meat-filled pastry shells.

Mayor Baker—cocked hat, red plus robes, chain of office and all—leaves Sept. 26 on a tour of the United States, Canada and Jamaica. And the pasties he's going to make . . .

Perhaps the western hemisphere will include them in its diet as a result of his trip.

Besides carrying greetings to the 11 Falmouths and three Ruros (good Cornish names both) he's going to visit, his worship is going to demonstrate pasty-making.

Highlight will be his demonstration in Chicago to the annual conference of the National Cooks' Association. Daughters of the Empire in Windsor, also will be shown the secret.

"Over there," Baker said, "I'm going to make Cornish pasties with all the trimmings. Here we have been sadly hampered by rationing of fats and meat."

The "trimmings," if you follow the mayoral recipe (hallowed by tradition) means:

Half quantity lard to flour for the pastry. For filling, fairly-fat steak and kidney to half the weight of the potatoes when peeled.

Chop the meat small, "but don't use a mincer or you'll lose the juices." Add chopped onion and a little turnip and seasoning.

Warning: "The filling must be put in raw."

"When done, the pasty should ooze gravy. Do not use a knife and fork. Bite off the left-hand corner and eat your way slowly through the pasty, which should be about the size of a dinner plate."

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Can Vary Ham and Eggs With Seasoning or Sauces

The tenth release in the Examiner's series of 24 cookbooks, "300 Ways to Serve Eggs," is full of brand new ways of making that favorite of the breakfast, lunch, dinner or buffet table more attractive and appetizing than ever before.

Everyone knows how valuable eggs are in the daily diet but sometimes it becomes a problem to get away from run-of-the-mill recipes and still produce a dish that will make the family want to come back for more of these vitamin-filled packages. The Egg book is just what every conscientious homemaker needs to help out her lagging fund of ideas.

Here for example is a way to vary everybody's favorite—ham and eggs—so that it will afford new eye appeal:

Instead of baking eggs in usual round custard cups or muffin tins, why not use star-shaped or square tins such as you might happen to have for individual cakes? They can be buttered and the eggs broken into them and baked 15 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees). And for a special treat that can be served with grilled ham, too, here is another and quite different suggestion from the Egg Book:

Eggs Poached in White Wine

1 tablespoon butter
½ cup dry white wine
4 eggs
Salt and pepper
Few grains cayenne
2 tablespoons grated Roquefort cheese
Hot buttered toast.

Melt butter in a skillet, add wine. Slip in eggs one at a time, season with salt, pepper and cayenne, and poach until whites are nearly firm. Sprinkle with cheese and cook until melted. Serve on toast for 4.

It is so easy to obtain your copy of the Egg Book. Just clip a coupon from page 2 of any issue of this newspaper and present it with 25c at the Examiner Office, or to your Examiner Carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets. Or send the coupon and 30c (5c additional for postage and handling) to Cookbook Department, Examiner, Peterborough, and you will receive a copy of the Egg Book by mail.

HAM with poached or baked eggs makes an ideal beginning to any humdrum day.

Wilfong-Mills Rites Performed At Bridgenorth

Bridgenorth United Church, decorated with gladioli and ferns, was the scene on Saturday afternoon of the wedding of Helen Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Mills, Chemong Rd., to Mr. Roy Herbert Wilfong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Dilfong of Richmond Hill.

The Rev. D. P. Morris officiated in the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mrs. C. Telford and Mrs. Arthur Wilfong of Peterborough sang. "Because" was the selection rendered before the service and at the signing of the register it was "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an afternoon dress of powder blue crepe, designed with a square neckline and draped front. She wore a bonnet of navy taffeta with pale blue ostrich plume and navy accessories and her corsage was of red roses. Miss Lois Murray as bridesmaid wore a beige crepe dress with dark brown hat and accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. Arthur Wilfong was his brother's groomsman. Ushers were Robert Clarke, formerly of Medford, Mass., and Lloyd Mills, brother of the bride.

Receiving at the reception, held in Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother wore a dress of navy faille, navy accessories and a pink rose corsage. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was wearing a two-piece maroon dress with bead trim, black accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

The couple left later for Toronto, the bride wearing a navy suit with matching accessories. On return they will live at 558 Park St. N. in Peterborough.

Opinion of an onlooking male: "They haven't got glamor."

Smith-Sage Rites

The marriage took place quietly on Saturday in the Pentecostal Church of Orpha May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sage, to Clarence Edgar Smith, youngest son of Mrs. George Smith and the late Mr. Smith of Cobourg. The Rev. Fred Parle officiated.

The bride was attired in a suit of pearl grey wool, and black accessories, and her corsage was of pink roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Phyllis Sage, who was wearing a dress of jade green faille ,with dark brown accessories, and her corsage was of yellow roses.

Mr. Robert Smith was his brother's groomsman.

A reception for the immediate family was held at the home of the bride, after which the couple left on a motor trip.

They will live at 656 Cameron St.

LAKEFIELD'S OLDEST MARRIED COUPLE, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hunter, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday. Before moving to their Katherine St. home in the village 24 years ago, they farmed for some years between Lakefield and Peterborough. (Examiner Staff Photo)

Lakefield Couple Celebrate Diamond Wedding Day

Sidney Hunter, 89, and Louis Laing, 88, celebrated 60 years of married life at their Katherine St. home in Lakefield on Sunday. They were married at the bride's home on the 9th Line of Smith township; her parents were the late William Laing and Mary Savigny who had 15 children.

The Hunters moved to a 92-acre farm three miles south of Lakefield and remained there for some years. They had no children but made a home for a niece, Mrs. John Boyd (Majory Laing) of Toronto.

After moving into the village due to Mrs. Hunter's ill health, they finally settled on Katherine St., where they have lived quietly for the past 24 years.

Mrs. Hunter has been a very active worker in the Lakefield Baptist Church, its former Sunday School superintendent and teacher and a member of the Mission Circle. She is still an industrious knitter for the Red Cross while Mr. Hunter spends his time at gardening. He worked in the former Harry Fitzgerald Hardwware for more than 20 year. Mrs Hunter has one sister living, Mrs. George Johnson (Hannah) of Peterborough.

Brooks-Clarke Nuptials Held

Summer flowers formed a lovely setting in St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock, on Saturday for hte marriage of Helen Ilene Clarke, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Clarke of Havelock to William Archie Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks of Norwood.

The Rev. P. A. Rickard performed the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Donald Kirk, who played organ selections during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by Mr. S. J. W. Clarke of Peterborough, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin. It was fashioned with a nylon net yoke outlined with lace, long sleeves coming to points over the hands and was fastened in the back with small satin buttons. The full skirt had a lace trimmed peplum and extended into a long train. Her long veil of silk embroidered net fell in a full train and was caught to a net headdress in bonnet style trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

Miss Eleanor Forsyth was bridesmaid wearing a gown of pastel green satin, and Miss Carolyn Clarke, sister of the bride, flower girl, was in a gown of pink satin. Both gowns were fashioned with round necklines accented with a frill and small bows of satin, puff sleeves and full skirts scalloped at the bottom and trimmed with bows of satin in front. Their headdresses were bands of matching satin with pleated net across the front, centred with an orange blossom, and finished with side rosettes and ties of net. They wore matching mittens and carried baskets of baby 'mums.

As the bride was entering the church for the ceremony, the flower girl strewed rose petals down the aisle.

Groomsman was Mr. Grenville (Bud) Clarke of Smith Falls, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who received in a black silk crepe gown with grey accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore black with pink accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

For the honeymoon trip to Montreal the bride wore a green silk velvet dress with matching accessories. The couple will live in Norwood.

Politics a Cinch for Women Port Arthur Alderman Says

PORT ARTHUR —(CP)— Mrs. Eunice Beaver Wishart, only woman alderman in Northwestern Ontario, says the political field is a "cinch" for any married woman —providing she has a tolerant husband.

Once hubby is won over to the idea of his wife entering politics, she says, all that is needed is access to some money for campaign expenses, boundless energy and a liking for long hours. Then you support whatever issues are close to the housewives' purpose and you are a cinch to be elected.

Serves 3 Years

Mrs. Wishart became interested in the possibility of running for public office while working on the Port Arthur Wartime Prices and Trade Board. She ran for city council three years ago and was elected the first time out.

The lady alderman and her male colleagues didn't hit it off right at the beginning. She was quoted as saying some of the aldermen were "so narrow-minded that their ears almost touched," and there were repercussions.

Now in her third term, she finds the city fathers have "mellowed" and consider her an alderman and not a woman intruding on municipal affairs.

More Sopranos Needed

"Women think of little things that men cannot comprehend," observes Mrs. Wishart, explaining why she thinks more women's voices are needed in running the country.

"They are less materialistic and more humanitarian Most of us are mothers and we think in terms of flesh-and-blood when it comes to matters like welfare and schools."

Two of her pet topics are conservation of the vast pulpwood forests in the lakehead and the beauty of the Port Arthur district as a tourist attraction.

Good Housekeeper

A neat, conscientious housewife, she keeps her big, old-fashioned home spic and span although sometimes attending as many as four council meetings a day. For housewives thinking of entering politics she offers this tip:

"I live only a block away from city hall and I can leave supper cooking in the oven and drop over for a 4.30 p.m. committee meeting and get back in time to have supper ready."

And what does Mr. Wishart think of his wife's public career?

"If you want a lot of free time, nominate the wife for civic office," is his advice. "She'll be too tired to ask questions when she comes home after a busy day at city hall."

Anna Hubel, Reg. N. Marries Harry D. Reid of Toronto

The wedding took place in Park St. Baptist Church, Saturday afternoon of Anna Esther Jeanette, only daughter of Mrs. E. Hubel and the late Mr. Ernest Hubel, and Mr. Harry Denton Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Reid of Toronto.

The bride is a recent graduate of the Civic Hospital School of Nursing.

The Rev. E. J. Whan officiated in the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with pink and white gladioli and banked with ferns. Wedding music was played by Mr. Adam Hawley and Mrs. Murray Thomas was soloist Before the marriage she sang "O Perfect Love" and during signing of the register, "Through The Years."

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harold Kerr. She wore a gown of blush slipper satin, made with fitted bodice and soft folds that accented the smoothly sloping shoulders and high neckline with tiny pointed turn-down collar. The full skirt extended in a train and her full-length veil which fell from a tiny lace cap was an heirloom from her great aunt. Her bouquet was fan-shaped of white gladioli and sweetheart roses.

Attendants were Mrs. Isacc Larmer, matron of honor, and Miss Alice Woldnik, bridesmaid, who wore gowns of wine and gold velveteen with matching hats and gloves and carried fan-shaped bouquets of yellow and burgundy gladioli. The bride's cousin June Devitt as flower girl was frocked in nile green velveteen and matching hat and gloves and she carried a small fan of Piccardy gladioli.

Groomsman was Mr. Arnold MacNaughton of Toronto and the ushers were Robert Read and Clayton Kerr, both of Peterborough.

The bride's mother, who had chosen a gown of lucky coin crepe and brown accessories and wore a corsage of Talisman roses, received with the groom's mother as guests assembled afterward in the church parlors. Mrs. Reid was gowned in dusky blue with cinnamon accessories and a mink neckpiece and wore an oval jewel corsage of Talisman roses.

When leaving for the honeymoon the bride was wearing a brown suit with a brown velvet hat with golden ostrich plume and mink furs. Her corsage was a jewel pendulum of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid will live at 223 Johnston Ave., Toronto.

Guests attending the wedding were from New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Blind River, Kirkland Lake, Parry Sound, Windsor, St. Catharines, Toronto, Bobcaygeon, Havelock and Peterborough.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Men Should Shave, Keep Neat Or Wives' Eyes May Wander

DEAR MISS DIX: What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. You are always telling women what they should do to keep their husbands' love. Why not tell men what they should do to keep their wives' interest in them alive? We no more admire unshaven, slovenly husbands than men do slovenly wives. Marriage does not blind us to the fact that there are other attractive men in the world any more than it makes our husbands unaware that there are other charming women. After all, love has been woman's game since time immemorial. So men need advice on this subject more than we.

Dorothy Dix

MRS. S. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are quite right in saying that women are fickle even as men are, and that wives fall out of love with their husbands just as easily as men fall out of love with their wives. And this is a fact that men do not sufficiently appreciate. They cling blindly to the theory that there is something curious in a woman's make-up that enables her to love the unlovable and enjoy kissing the unkissable. Which, of course, is all nonsense.

Women are no more enamoured of a three-days' beard than men are of cold cream and curl papers. Nor does any woman see in a slovenly man, who thinks home is a place where you can go about in a soiled collar and your stocking feet, the hero of her girlish dreams.

Mistreated Women

Most of the disgruntled wives in the world, the women who are peevish and fretful and complaining, the neurotic semi-invalids, the slack housekeepers and the extravagant women are the direct results of men believing that no matter how they treated their wives they go on worshiping them, and so it isn't any use in bothering to keep their wives in love with them.

They didn't think it was worthwhile to dress up for wife and try to be easy on her eyes. They thought a grunt was all the conversation that was necessary to come her way and make no attempt to entertain her. They never notice what she had on, or paid her a compliment, or did anything to interest and amuse her, so wife got bored with such an uninteresting companion and took to fretting and complaining or buying things by way of revenge, and said, in effect, "Oh, heck, what's the use in wearing myself out in getting up a good dinner for a man who is going to growl over it anyway," and slapped something from the delicatessen down on the table.

Oh yes, it certainly would pay a man to keep his wife in love with him because as long as a woman is in love with a man she breaks her neck to please him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I was engaged to a widow but through some misunderstanding we quarreled and parted and I went to another city to live. While there I became closely acquainted with another woman. I learned to like her, but she is madly in love with me. I returned home, whereupon this woman insisted upon visiting me quite often in the interest of an early marriage. In the meantime, the widow and I made up and I realized more than ever that it is she whom I love. I very much want to marry the widow, but fear the other woman will become heartbroken and despondent.

A. B. H.

ANSWER: It must be terrible to be such a devil of a chap among the women, but I am afraid you will have to decide which one of these lovelorn ladies you prefer, since the law takes a narrow view of marriage and limits up to one spouse at a time.

Apparently you are a sympathetic man and don't like to hurt the feelings of a lady, but how can you help it since both women love you and you can marry only one? Such being the case, I think that you should marry the woman you love rather than the one who loves you. That would insure the greatest amount of happiness to the greatest number. I might, indeed, say the greatest happiness to all concerned, since no man can be a good husband or make a woman happy if he marries her from a sense of duty, or because she dogs him into it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: To settle an argument will you tell us what you think of a boy who will let a girl acquaintance casually treat him to a soda or a package of cigarettes or a show? Some of our friends do it, but it seems distasteful to us.

TWO BOYS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: In the old days when girls were dependent upon their parents and never had even a thin dime in their pocketbooks, it was up to a man to always pay the money for every treat. But now when girls work side by side with men in offices and get just as much pay it is just as much her part to pay as it is the boy's. In fact if a girl doesn't furnish her own cigarettes and go dutch treat with the boys or make it up in some way by inviting them to her house to meals or furnishing the car when they go out or pretending to have theatre tickets now and then, she is rather a grafter.

Review Growth In Obstetrics

WINNIPEG —(CP)— Winnipeg General Hospital, in a brochure celebrating opening of its new maternity pavilion, recalls that its first maternity section more than 60 years ago had only 17 beds.

"In 1888 custom dictated that all women who could were delivered at home," writes Dr. Ross Mitchell, head of the hospital's honorary consultant staff.

"This left for a maternity hospital only four classes—unfortunate girls, the destitute, rural patients who had no friends with available homes in the city, and those whose labors were expected to be extra difficult or [illegible]."

Today Winnipeg has seven maternity hospitals with 282 beds.

Soprano's Voice Simply Superb Stokowski Says

LONDON —(CP)— Kathleen Ferrier's voice is "simply superb," says Leopold Stokowski.

Commenting on her performance in Mahler's "Das Lied Von Der Erde," the renowned conductor said the English girl's voice was "full and beautiful, the intonation perfect, the phrasing so elastic and the interpretation so eloquent."

In this particular work, Kathleen sings the mezzo-soprano part, but she ranges through soprano and contralto with equal facility.

Her singing career started as the result of a bet.

While working as a telephone operator, she entered an English music festival as a pianist. For a wager, she also competed in the singing division and won a first prize.

Rapid Success

A period of training led to her professional debut and success followed success. Her reputation spread rapidly and she found herself singing in the leading opera houses and concert halls of the world.

Among her outstanding performances was that in "Das Lied Von Der Erde" at the first Edinburgh Festival, which led to an invitation to sing the work under Bruno Walter in New York.

At this year's Edinburgh Festival, she sang Brahm's Alto Rhapsody for Contralto and Orchestra.

Born and brought up in Lancashire, Kathleen left school at the age of 14. She entered the post office as a telephone operator, studying piano with little idea of a music career until the wager which won her international acclaim.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Even a writer on Canasta is entitled to let off steam once in a while and today is my day.

Canasta is a card game and there are very definite rules for it. I admit that the laws are not perfect and expect that it will be many years before they get to be. On the other hand, they are the laws for a mighty fine and popular game.

The game has grown so fast that there must be some confusion, and I do my best to answer and explain all serious points that come up. However, consider this letter.

"Dear Mr. Jacoby: We play Canasta according to your laws, except that we give a 100-point bonus to a player who makes a perfect cut. However, we have two points of argument. The first is as to what constitutes a perfect cut. I claim that a perfect cut must leave just enough cards so that the dealer can turn the up card and have no cards left in his hand. My husband claims that a perfect cut should leave just enough cards for the four hands only.

"Then suppose our score is 2950 and I make a perfect cut. Would the 100-point bonus bring our score to 3050 and make us need 120 for our initial meld, or would the bonus be awarded at the end of the hand"?

My answer to those questions is that I just don't care. The idea of giving a special bonus for cutting a specific number of cards is about as silly as allowing a prize to a player who can toss his discard into its proper spot in the Canasta tray from a distance of six feet while holding a highball glass in one hand and balancing a lighted match on the end of his nose.

I write on Canasta, and is somebody wants to play some silly rule of his own, I am not going to dignify it by making further silly rules for him.

Here is another annoying question, but at least it comes from someone who is playing Canasta. This lady from Chicago wants to know if the pack is frozen from the start, due to the dealer turning a red three or a wild card, does the player who gets the first discard pile get the freezing card also?

She is sure that he does, but someone had a different idea. I am glad to say that the lady is right. Any time you take the discard pile, you take all the pile.

Third Offenders Jailed For 3 Months

Frank Johnston, 110 Simcoe St., was sentenced to three months in the county gaol when he pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of being drunk, his third offence under the Liquor Control Act within a year.

A second charge of vagrancy against him was dismissed when the crown offered no evidence.

Vernon O'Brien, 94 Stewart St., was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk.

Further Remand

Floyd Michel, 690 Frank St., was in police court today remanded a further week on a charge of careless driving involving an accident in which Mrs. Sarah Edwards, 62, Claraday P.O., was knocked down and injured Wednesday night.

Mrs. Edwards is still in St. Joseph's Hospital. Her injuries, a cut scalp and scrapes on her forehead and arms, were not considered serious and she was reported today to be improved.

Man And Wife Charged

A man and his wife, Mossom and Whipple Lancaster, 302 Reid St., were today both charged with drinking liquor while on the interdicted list.

The wife pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. The husband asked for an adjournment for a week. It was granted.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18 (CP) — Prices generally showed an easier tone in early trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Offerings were light and confined to local selling and a few hedging sales. Routine shipper demand was in evidence in oats and barley.

Prices:

Oats—Oct. ⅞ lower at 89; Dec. ⅝ lower at 81⅝; May ¾ lower at 82¾.

Barley—Oct. 1⅛ lower at $1.31-⅝; Dec. ⅞ lower at $1.18⅞B; May ½ lower at $1.18⅝B.

Rye—Oct. ½ lower at $1.45½B; Dec. ¾ lower at $1.43⅝A; May ⅝ lower at $1.48⅞A.

Flax—Oct., Dec., May not open.

Inspections (two days): Wheat this year 715; last year 1714; cars of contract 389; oats 91-376; barley 260-570; flax 0-5; rye 98-47; other grains 0-12; total 1164-2724.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Set. 18 — (AP) — Soy beans dropped several cents at the opening on the Board of Trade today, creating an easier undertone in most other cereals.

Wheat started ⅜-½ cent lower, December $2.26¼; corn was ⅛ to one cent lower, Sept., $1.54¼, and oats were ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, Setember 81⅛. Soy beans two to 3¼ cents lower, November $2.37-$2.37½.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP) — Trade was dull at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle, 5,900; calves 820; hogs, 610; sheep and lambs, 1,360. Left from last week were 200 cattle.

Prices were easier on steers and heifers and about steady on other grades of cattle; few good weighty steers $30-$30.50; medium to good light steers $27-$29; medium to good heifers $26.50-$28; canners and cutters $15.50-$18; few good cows up to $22.50; good bulls $23.50-$24; common down to $18; choice fed yearlings $31-$33; good stockers $28-$38; common down to $23.

Good to choice calves steady at $30-$32 with tops at $33. Common to medium $20-$29.

Hog prices were not established.

Lambs were steady at $28 for good ewes and wethers with bucks at $27; good light sheep $13-$16.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 18 (AP) —Cattle 700; good Holstein cows 20.00-21.00; good dairy type heifers for slaughter 22.00-24.00; good weighty sausage bulls 24.00-25.00.

Lambs and sheep 450; lambs 29.00-30.00; culls 28.00 down.

Rear End Collision

Two cars travelling in the same direction collided Sunday afternoon when one, driven by Harry McNabb, 670 Ross St., stopped on Charlotte St. for the Aylmer St. traffic light.

Driver of the car behind, George Spence, Lakefield, was not able to stop in time to avoid crashing into rear of McNabb's car. Traffic officer Claire McGillen investigated.

Say Socialists Easy Victors

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Socialists today appeared easy victors in Sunday's country-wide local Swedish elections. Unofficial returns gave them almost 50 per cent of the total vote and indicated a crushing defeat for the Communists.

Preliminary complete returns (with 1946 figures in brackets) showed these results in the contests for 1,609 city councillors elected yesterday:

Socialists—1,816,502 votes (1,478,818) 744 seats, 49.07 per cent total vote.

Liberals—799,723 (520,593) 330 seats, 21.6 per cent.

Agrarians—459,773 (452,793) 218 seats, 12.42 per cent.

Conservatives — 438,551 (494,949) 123 seats, 11.85 per cent.

Communists—184,503 (372,424) 29 seats, 4.98 per cent.

The Socialists gained 80 seats, the Liberals 103. The Communists lost 62 seats of 91 previously held. The Conservatives lost 37 and the Agrarians 21.

The Socialists, who have controlled the country since 1932, seem assured of retaining their majority in parliament. Before the present election, the loss of three seats in the upper house would have cancelled their margin. But the local councillors elect one-eighth of parliament's upper house, and the considerable Socialist vote in the local elections apparently assures the Socialists continued control of the government.

Honor Memory

"Gone are the delights and friendly discourses we used to have on the steamers "Water Lily" and "Stoney Lake" as we boarded at the Lift Lock. The last of Captain Pat Young's boats is rotting in storage at Young's Point, and with its disintegration also collapses a way of Kawartha Life"

Local residents got to know their summer neighbors as they [illegible] on the decks of the "Islinda" or the "Empress", he said Now they just exchange clouds of dust on the crowded modern highway.

Will To Work

Have we lost the ability or the will to work that our forebrears had? Descendants of pioneers who felled the primeval forests now hire others to mow their lawns and shovel their snow

Mr Edmison spoke of the "robust religion" of the pioneers. Their beliefs, though often narrow, supported them, he said, "It would be a dire situation indeed should we ever lose those spiritual values on which our Canadian civilization was established by our forefathers."

He suggested that the strong religious motivation in the early settlements had a direct relation to the maintenance of law and order. This sense of security was remarked on by Mrs. Catherine Traill in her Canadian Settler's Guide.

"The old-time Canadians believed in liberty for themselves and for you, if you owned any belief in it yourself. Canadianism to them meant independence and they couldn't get enough of it."

"How we need this breed of people today . . . people who won't be pushed around, people who scorn to follow the party line of either Communism or Fascism, people who live democracy rather than just talk about it."

Qualities Needed

It is almost impossible to predict the future in this age of conflicting ideologies, he said. Even the most optimistic person realizes there are many difficulties ahead.

And Mr. Edmison concluded:

"We shall need all those sturdy qualities of our forebears if we are to survive. We shall need their industry, their fortitude, their independence and their spiritual motivation. And at this time—and in this historic St. Andrew's church of the pioneers—it is fitting that we acknowledge that from them we have indeed received a goodly heritage."

On the memorial plague, placed on the north wall of St. Andrew's is the following inscription:

"To the Glory of God and in memory of John Edmison Sr. (1790-1887) a Smith township pioneer (1818), one of the founders of this congregation (1833) and Elder for over half a century; and of his son John Edmison (1836-1894) an elder of this church; and of his grandson the Rev. John Hall Edmison, BA, DD (1871-1928), secretary of the Board of Home Missions, United Church of Canada, whose widespread church service commenced here."

LABOR COUNCIL MEETS

The Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL) will hold its September meeting tonight in the CCL hall, Charlotte St., at 8 p.m. There will likely be a report on the recent Labor Day celebration held in Riverside Park.

DIDN'T COLLECT PRIZE

One of the prizes offered by the Peterborough and District Labor Council during the Labor Day celebration has not been claimed. A boy who gave his name as Kenny Stekle (no address) was a winner in the tricycle class but he didn't show up to get his prize. It can be obtained through Ed Humphrey, Sophia St., secretary of the Labor Day committee

Henry Wallace Changes Mind Says Stalin's Gone Too Far

By GEORGE CORNELL,

SOUTH SALEM, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP). — In the cool twilight, Henry A. Wallace sat on the wide sunporch and sipped a glass of grape juice.

"I thought Russia would have more sense," he said. "But she didn't."

Gone is Wallace's trust in Soviet motives that fired him through four hectic postwar years of pleading for mutual confidence between East and West.

"Stalin has gone too far," he said slowly.

Then the former vice-president, who once wrote to Stalin saying there was no difference between the United States and Russia that could not be solved by peaceful negotiations, added with a note of bitterness:

"I would write him a different kind of letter now." I would say to him: 'You said you wanted peace. But we moved our troops out of Korea, and you marched against us.'"

The Korean fighting has been to Wallace as a call-to-arms.

"Now, truly, we need unity," he said.

Modifies Ideas

A few months back, Wallace viewed the Atlantic pact as war-creating, the Marshall plan as a weapon of geo-political pressure, and U.S. stockpiling of the atom bomb as immoral and provocative.

New conditions have modified his position.

"The Atlantic pact was not justified at the time it was drawn up," he said, "but in view of actions in the interim, I say it is essential."

As for the Marshall plan — originally opposed by Wallace although for years he has been among the most fervent advocates of aid to needy nations as a key to global prosperity—he said:

"If Russia wants a hot war, it (the Marshall plan) is a good thing. Otherwise, our funds should be channelled through the United Nations."

Wallace says he now feels sure that Russia wants to continue the cold war, and that the U.S. should muster its might, including the A-bomb, for any crisis.

"We must prepare for the worst," he said, "and at all times offer a program for the best.

"At every stage of arming, we ought to have spread out to them our willingness for peace."

Won't Discuss

Now that Americans are engaged on the battlefield, Wallace declines to discuss any of the old, bitter grievances he still may have against administration foreign policies.

Wallace said he was urged by Progressive party leaders to claim that the outbreak of fighting was a vindication of his past predictions that the administration's policy was heading the nation for war.

He recently quit the Progressive Party, for which he was the 1948 presidential candidate, because it opposed the U.S. stand in Korea.

Right now Wallace is out of the political scene for the first time since the depression.

Often condemned as Communist-minded and scorned by many as an impractical idealist, he nevertheless has left a deep imprint on recent American history.

Ousted from the government and a rebel from the new party he helped found, Wallace spends his hours experimenting with chickens, fruits and flowers.

Phillies Set Precedent In Ticket Plan

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18. — (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies, their first pennant in 35 years virtually in their grasp, today announced a precedent-shattering plan for distribution and sale of world series tickets.

Bob Carpenter, president of the National League club, said that single-game tickets will be sold and each applicant will be limited to just two of these.

"That way," Carpenter explained, "we'll be giving about 92,000 fans an opportunity to see the world series instead of 23,000." His figure, he explained, was based on a seven-game series — four games of which would be played at the Phils' home park.

Major league pennant winners have always sold tickets in strips of three or four.

Want to Give Break

"Our idea is to try and take care of as many of our fans as possible," said Carpenter. "The people who supported us during the season are entitled to tickets, but since it is impossible to accommodate them all we figured selling individual tickets was the only sensible solution.

"It is quite possible that fans who get tickets for the sixth and seventh games will be disappointed and not see a game but at least they will know we tried to treat them fairly."

The first two world series games will be played in the home park of the National League pennant winner. The third, fourth and fifth games in the American League park and the sixth and seventh games, if necessary, in the National League stadium.

Expensive Tickets

Carpenter announced the following prices: Box seat—$8.75 ($17.50 for two); reserved seat—$6.50 ($13 for two), and bleacher seat—$1. The postage and registry charge on a single or pair of box or reserve tickets will be 60 cents. Bleacher tickets will be sold only at the park. Requests will not be considered if postmarked earlier than one minute after midnight Sept. 20. The tickets will be distributed, starting with game number one, as the requests are processed.

Only certified cheques or money orders will be accepted and the name and address of the applicant must be clearly written in the upper left hand corner of the envelope as well as on the ticket request.

The ticket requests should be sent to: Philadelphia National League Club, Box 6925, Philadelphia, 32, Pennsylvania.

Film Councils Plan To Hold Conference

Peterborough has been chosen as the site this year of the annual meeting and fall conference of the Federation of Film Councils of Eastern Ontario, to be held September 29 and 30. Special speakers will include S. E. McDowell, president, Ronald Ward and Miss Jessie Mennie, of the National Film Board, and Inspector R H. Macklem. Mr. William Graff, librarian, is scheduled to give a report on "Films and Community Leadership."

The conference session will be held in the Public Library on Friday night and Saturday morning and afternoon.

PRESIDENT G. P. GILMOUR

McMaster Head Cites Mosaic Example

Building a city, like being a servant of God, is not a matter of happy and momentary inspiration, but a task in which people "must hold confidence steadfast to the end," Dr. George P. Gilmour, president and vice-chancellor of McMaster University, told members of Murray St. Baptist Church and other citizens who listened to the radio broadcast of the church Centennial celebration service Sunday morning.

Dr. Gilmour, who was also guest speaker at the special combined celebration service in the Civic Arena in the evening, is closely connected with the city. His great-grandfather, John Gilmour, was one of the founders of Murray St. Baptist Church, and the families of both his mother and father still live in Peterborough.

The service at Murray St. Church was but one of the Centennial services held in all the churches in Peterborough Sunday.

Example Of Moses

"Righteousness is not a moment of ecstacy but a lifetime of discipline," Dr. Gilmour explained. He drew on the life of Moses, "the servant of God," to illustrate that learning to live as God directs, to carry out His will, is not some easy task a man can do in a spare moment when he is feeling perhaps penitent.

It was Moses' task to organize the Hebrew slaves of Egypt to loose them from their bondage, teach them to live as self-directed men and prepare them to enter Israel, the Land of Promise. But it was a task Moses never completed. He died while his people waited in the wilderness outside.

All his life Moses we renewing his confidence in God. There were four major turning points or four beginnings Moses' life Dr. Gilmour said. His first lesson was that even though he made a move to accept responsibility by going to the Israelites to help them escape slavery, they rejected him. God was not ready to delegate responsibilty the moment Moses made an offer to accept it. Moses thought he was through with God, but God wasn't through with Moses.

His second turning point occurred when he witnessed the burning bush in the wilderness and felt an inner compulsion from God to go back to Egypt and assume the responsibility of leading the Israelites. Moses knew, at least partly, that he was walking straight into difficulties, by leading the Israelites into the desert but he was learning confidence in God.

Moses' third beginning was of coherence or order. From God he received the Ten Commandments. He found he could not run the whole camp of Israelite personally. Under the advice of his father-in-law, Jethro, he delegated authority and so the people learned to govern themselves to some degree.

Learned Meekness

At the end of two years of wandering, Moses learned meekness. He learned to have patience to wait another 38 years until his people were more ready to enter the promised land. He found that when they reached the boundary of Israel and heard the reports of the spies their "brittle courage broke." Moses had to wait 38 years for the people to catch up to him and they never really did.

Administrators and leaders throughout the world experience the same difficulties continually, Dr. Gilmour said. They have to wait for public opinion to catch up to them. Or they have to wait until some old person standing in the way of progress dies out. But they must learn by long life in the family and community "to hold confidence steadfast to the end."

Murray St. Baptist Church's minister, the Rev. Ivan Morgan, welcomed Dr. Gilmour back to the church.

Bishop J. R. MacDonald Returns For Centennial At St. Peter's

"There is no better citizen in peace or war than the Christian who is mindful of his duty", was the quotation from the encyclical of Pope Leo XIII on which Bishop J. R. MacDonald of Antigonish, N.S., based his sermon at the religious observance of Peterborough's centennial year at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday morning.

Bishop MacDonald was the immediate predecessor of Bishop Gerald Berry as head of the diocese of Peterborough.

The pontifical high Mass for "the graces and blessings God has bestowed on our city", in the words of the rector, Monsignor P. P. Butler, was celebrated by Bishop Berry, assisted by Rev. F. A. Marrocco, Ottawa, as deacon, and Rev. R. J. Garvey of Peterborough as subdeacon.

Monsignor Butler was assistant priest; deacons of honor were Rev. V. J. Corkery and Rev. F. K. Malane; Rev. A. A. Johnston of New Waterford, N.S., was assistant at the throne with Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan; Rev. John Coughlan was master of ceremonies.

Present in the sanctuary were Monsignor J. J. O'Brien of the Church of the Sacred Heart; Monsignor V. J. McAuley of Lindsay, and J. P. Collins of Cobourg.

The music of the choir was a notable devotional contribution to the solemnity of the occasion, which was also marked by a large congregation.

"This is a very happy occasion that brings me back to Peterborough," Bishop MacDonald said. "It is happy for me because five years of separation have not lessened my love for Peterborough and its kindly and hospitable people. It is happy, too, because it is the celebration of the progress of this community, which was founded 17 years before Confederation.

Peterborough is now one of Canada's most thriving cities. Its growth in these last hundred years is a manifestation of the youth and vigor of Canadian life.

To the officials and citizens I bring a Nova Scotian greeting coupled with congratulation on this centenary of civic achievement, and my best wishes for the continued prosperity of this beloved city."

"It is appropriate that this civic event should have its religious observance. God alone is the supreme Lord of the world. Whoever rules in church or state, rules by the authority of God. St. Paul said, "There is no power but from God."

In Charge of Divine Things

Bishop MacDonald said God had placed the church in charge of divine things and the state in charge of human things. Some things had both religious and civic aspects, and with the same authority of God there should be no need of conflict. Marriage and education were examples of shared jurisdiction. The civil authority regulated the aspects of these fields which pertain to the civil and political order and the common good of the citizens. The church had a spiritual and moral jurisdiction relating to the salvation of mankind.

To the general reason that the church was the mainstay of the state, Bishop MacDonald said there was also a specific reason "why your Bishop and the Catholic people should offer together this pontifical mass in gratitude to God for His favors to this community during its first century, and in petition for the continuance of those blessings in the next hundred years which you are now beginning.

Peterborough is a Christian city. The wisdom of Christian precepts were brought here by its founders ,and has guided its destiny for one hundred years.

The church and her institutions have played a valuable part in the development of this community. The first priest, Father Crowley, came here in 1825, and was followed in 1826 by Father Ahearn. In 1926, one hundred years later, the ceremony took place, on the lawn of this church, of the unveiling of a statue of Christ the King, on the site of the first parish house. That unveiling by your late Bishop O'Brien marked the 100th anniversary of the founding of this parish. It proclaimed, as far as the church was concerned, her efforts to bring all under the leadership and kingship of Christ."

That pioneer parish had now expanded into the diocese of Peterborough, comprising the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria and districts of Muskoka and Parry Sound. There were now 30 parishes, 67 churches, two hospitals, two orphanages, a home for the aged, and other institutions, including seven schools here educating 2,000 Catholic pupils.

"It is interesting to know that one year after the founding of Peterborough, the first Catholic school was held in rented rooms at Simcoe and Aylmer Streets. Interest in Catholic education has never faltered in all those years."

Quoting St. Thomas Aquinas, Bishop MacDonald said the duty of the citizen may have two ways of action towards the welfare of the nation. One way sought his own benefit the other the conserving and development of the state. The first was not the way of the good citizen. It was selfish and not patriotic. True patriotism was found in trying to conserve and defend the state. Obedience to lawful authority and readiness to do every good work were marks of good citizenship. The Christian citizen was obedient and respectful to public authority.

Enjoins Respect

Quoting an encyclical by Pope Leo XIII in 1901, Bishop MacDonald said: "The law of nature and of Christ enjoins respect for all who hold office in the state, and obedience to their lawful commands." Loyalty and obedience is love of country.

Love of country was not merely love of green fields, and the beauty of hill and valley. It did not reside in political, commercial and industrial power. It resided in the soul. It was one aspect of Christian charity. "Love of country is the love of one's fellow citizens, fulfilling the first Christian commandment to love they neighbor as thyself. The Christian citizen loves church and country because God is the author and the cause of both."

"These two loves are never opposed. The Christian loves his neighbor and cherishes his country and the authority that rules over it."

"How different is this concept from the concept today that makes every effort to drive God and religion from the lives of men, from the political order and the social order in which men work out their temporal needs and their eternal destiny."

"St. Paul urges us to do the truth in charity, that is by knowing and exercising the complete Christian life to build up the body of Christ on earth by sincerely loving God and neighbor. In fact, the love of our neighbor is the love of God at work. 'By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples, that ye love one another.'

"The Christian citizen serves his country with a sense of duty with a dedication that no disappointments can obscure and no hostile forces can destroy."

Bishop MacDonald spoke finally of the characteristics of self-discipline and self-control, recalling the decline of the spirit and character of the Romans of the republic until their chief aim in life became bread and circuses.

Undoing Of Our Future

The licence of our day could be the undoing of our future, bringing us to inevitable disaster whereas with self-control and discipline, with the Christian virtues in our lives, Canada would continue heading for the heights of achievement.

"While our attention is focussed today on Peterborough, a jewel in the crown of Canada, we pray both for the welfare of the part and also for the welfare of the whole, Peterborough and our country, for a growing number of Christian leaders on the national and local levels, for an army of men and women in all fields of the national and civil life, to lead this city and this country to the high destiny of democracy, solidly and enthusiastically Christian.

We pray for the widespread influence of the Christian philosophy that respects the dignity and rights of all, that offsets disrupting and degrading influences and gives full scope to the exercise of the Christian virtues of justice and charity to all men.

On this anniversary we pledge ourselves as Christian citizens to the task of building for all Canada and the people of the world a civilization in peaceful harmony and order, rendering to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's. Proud of our Christian heritage we renew our loyalty to our own our native land. "O Canada, glorious and free we stand on guard for thee."

A NOVA SCOTIAN GREETING to Peterborough was the centennial year salute of Most Reverend John R. MacDonald, Bishop of the diocese of Antigonish, who delivered the sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday morning. His theme was the great value to the community of the dutiful Christian citizen imbued with the virtues of the founders of this city and country.

World Has Not Yet Learned Way To Peace, Padre Says

COBOURG, Sept. 18 (ENS).—"There are no medals coming to the world today," declared Rev. J. A. Munro, Toronto, padre of the 3-47th Battery in addressing the re-union of the veterans at a cenotaph service yesterday afternoon. Around 200 members of the unit gathered at Cobourg this past weekend for their annual reunion.

"Today we are most conscious of those who shared in the family life of our own unit. Several of our number died in England, when we were stationed there, others died in Italy and later in the final stages of the war, we lost other members of this unit. But there are no medals coming for the world today because the world has not yet learned the way to peace. The world still has its politicians and statesmen who haven't been able to solve the problems of this universe without war. The men who are gone and those who remain, have purchased us time in which to rebuild a world in which lasting peace can be instituted. Let us hope that this purchased time will not run out before this new world has been established," declared the padre.

The 3-4th wreath was laid on the cenotaph by Jack and Jill Schliehauf, whose father, Gunner Homer Schliehauf, was killed in action. The two children and Padre Munro took the salute in the march past the town hall, after the ceremony at the cenotaph.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Everyone thought St. Catharines Athletics won the Minto Cup and the Canadian Junior Lacrosse championship when they knocked off the Vancouver Burrard Juniors at Vancouver last week.

This week it appears that they'll have to win the cup all over again—even though a Canadian Lacrosse Association vice-president formally presented it to them after they whipped the Burrards in three straight games.

Winnipeg All-stars suddenly claimed a shot at the title, charging that the Garden City entry hadn't kept a date in Winnipeg on their way west. Confused officials, most of whom thought the Winnipeg-St. Catharines meeting was to have been an exhibition only, finally upheld the Manitoban's claim.

Unperturbed, the Athletics went to Winnipeg and knocked off the All-Stars 21-16 in the opener of the new cup finals.

Kenny Reardon, bustling, bushy-browed hockey basher, has retired from the game—and will get back his $1,000.

Recurrent and serious back injuries have forced the move of the rugged Montreal Canadiens' defenceman, one of the few really colorful players in present-day hockey.

The $1,000 is the all-time-record-fine—made returnable with certain provisions—slapped on him last season by president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League.

The roaring 29-year-old Reardon now becomes a good-will ambassador for Canadiens with a roving assignment.

The $1,000 fine episode was the outgrowth of a feud Reardon carried on with Cal Gardner, now of Toronto Maple Leafs.

With New York Rangers in 1947, Gardner laid into Reardon in a great inter-club rhubarb. The feud went on, and in Montreal early last season Reardon checked or smashed into Gardner and Cal came out of it with a broken jaw.

"Couldn't happen to a better guy," was Reardon's later quip.

Then came a magazine article which quoted Reardon as saying if it was the last thing he did in hockey he would "get" Gardner President Campbell, last March, nailed down the $1,000 fine in a hurry. It was returnable on Reardon's retirement from the NHL — provided the rambunctious Mr. Reardon behaved himself reasonably well meanwhile, he did, reasonably well.

Given Seven Days For Drunk Driving

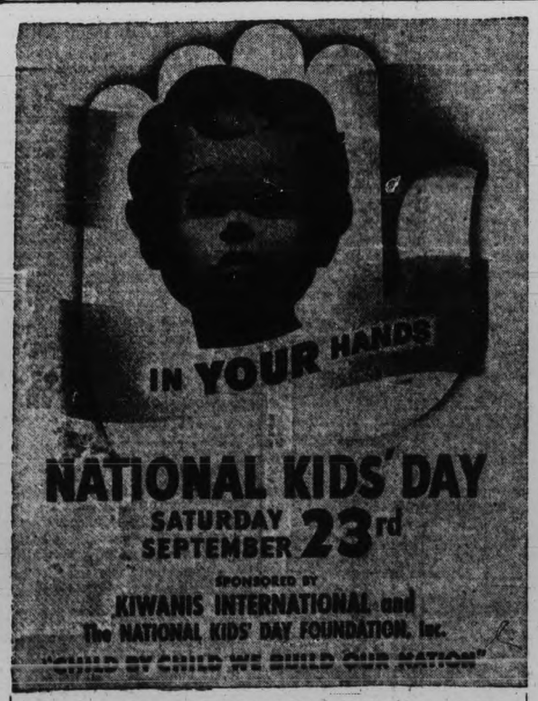
On his plea of guilty to a charge of drunk driving, Adrian Kelly, 132 Hilliard St., was today sentenced in police court to seven days in the county gaol.

Constable William G. Scott, testified he had been patrolling George St. on a motorcycle the evening of Aug. 25. At Hunter St. he saw there had been an accident involving a city bus and a truck. As he pulled up to the accident, Kelly drove away north on George St.

Constable Scott went after him and caught him at Murray St. He said Kelly was staggering and could hardly stand. The constable considered him drunk.



About $25 damage had been done to the bus. Kelly had driven into the rear of the bus while it was stopped on George St. for Hunter St. traffic lights. No damage was done to the truck.

Tip Tops Dethroned

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 18—(AP)—Clearwater (Fla.), Bombers Sunday night dethroned Toronto Tip Tops as the Amateur Softball Association's world champion, 1-0. John Hunter struck out 13 and gave up only two hits as Clearwater touched Charlie Justice for five hits and grimly hung on to a one-run lead grabbed in the first inning.

Send Volunteer Force

LUXEMBOURG, Sept. 18 — (Reuters) — Luxembourg is to send a volunteer force to Korea—about 50 men — it was learned today. This equals one man for every 5,800 of the population of this tiny country. The force is expected to be incorporated in the 1,000-strong Belgian force being formed for Korea.

World Still Remains Vast Place Ships, Planes Vanish; No Trace

By E. V. W. JONES

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 18 —(AP)— It's a small world? No, it's still the same vast globe the ancients knew, with the same misty limbo of the lost.

We think it is small because of speeding wheels and wings and the voice of radio which comes out of the void. A mile is only a minute's travel by wheel or a few seconds' flight—but it is still a mile.

The miles add up to a vast unknown into which 100 and more persons have flown or sailed within brief memory, to be swallowed up just as ships were swallowed in the old sailing days.

The Sandra carried radio. It was a 350-foot freighter which sailed with 12 men from Savannah for Puerto Cabello, Venezuela—and disappeared without a trace. On June 16, in the "small world" year of 1950, search was abandoned. The fate of the craft and the dozen on board was written down as an official mystery.

Never Arrived

Where are the men and women and two babies—32 persons in all—who happily boarded a plane at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and flew 1,000 miles toward Miami? A radio message at 4 a.m. Dec. 27, 1943, reported them 50 miles south of their goal. They never arrived.

On Jan. 18, 1949, a British airliner, the Ariel, vanished near Bermuda which it had left with 20 persons on board on its way from London to Chile. A naval task force in the area combed the waters with thousands of pairs of sharp eyes on watch. They learned no hint of the Ariel's fate.

A year earlier, Jan. 31, 1948, another British plane, the Star Tiger, approached Bermuda with 29 on board. The craft radioed its position several times. Then silence enveloped it, and mystery. To this day no trace has been uncovered.

Older Mystery

An older but more perplexing mystery is that of the five torpedo planes. They took off from the US navy's Fort Lauderdale air station Dec. 5, 1945, with 14 persons aboard for a navigational training flight and were never heard of again. A search craft with 13 men on board disappeared while looking for them.

These and other model mysteries have established a roll of about 135 persons who went forth confidently into a world they thought small.

But it is the same big world the ancients knew into which men and their machines and ships can disappear without a trace.

London Attendance Tops Fair Record

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 18—(CP) — Attendance at Western Fair shot over the top, after five of the six fair days had been marred by rain. Three all-time attendance records were set.

For the first time in the fair's 75-year history, attendance for the week passed the 300,000 mark. 67,137 people swarmed the grounds Saturday, to set a new record for the day.

Highlights of the week-long fair were record livestock entries, harness races, and the first dog show since 1939.

New RCAF Jet Fighter Travels 635 MPH

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP). — The RCAF's new F-86 Sabre jet fighter flew from nearby Malton Airport to Montreal at an average speed of 635 miles an hour Saturday, but failed by 10 seconds to break the record between the two cities.

Test pilot Al Lilly of Canadair Ltd., which is manufacturing 100 of the fighters for the RCAF, covered the distance in 30 minutes 14 seconds.

The record is held by the CF-100 Canuck fighter which made the flight in 30 minutes 4 seconds.

Greece Gets Chance To Regain More Aid

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 18—(AP)—The United States told Greece Saturday that Marshall plan aid will be reduced because Greece has not done what it could to help itself.

But ECA chief Paul Porter said that the reduction might be restored partially if the Greek government cuts its expenses and builds up revenues.

This hope of restoration of the Marshall funds was contained in a statement issued by the government after Porter conferred with Premier Sophocles Venizelos and his coalition government leaders.

Porter said the reduction was decided upon some time ago in Washington and casts no reflection on the new Venizelos government which took office Wednesday. He described the present coalition government as stable.

The issue between the government and the economic co-operation administration boils down to waste of government funds and failure efficiently to collect taxes, particularly from the wealthy classes, a spokesman for Porter said.

British MP's Rushing Back From Hospital, Holidays For Vote On Nationalization

5 Votes Largest Majority Labor Party Expects To Record; Experts Believe Gov't To Scrape Through

LONDON, Sept. 19—(AP)—Winston Churchill accused Britain's labor government today of plunging the country into bitter political strife at a time when it should be seeking unity against Communist enemies at home and abroad. That, he said, was the result of Prime Minister Attlee's decision last week to go ahead with State ownership of the steel industry. Churchill opened a one-day debate on a motion of censure which might topple the government and force Britain's second general election within a year.

Attlee's Cabinet looked upon the vote as one of confidence in the government. They believed enough ailing Labor supporters would rally tonight to save them from defeat by five or six votes.

Churchill said the government's action "took all of us and our friends abroad by surprise."

"There was no need for the Prime Minister to take this hazardous course at the present time," he said.

Not Fair Deal

The opposition leader noted that the government has "a majority of two, three or four seats, or whatever it is" and added:

"One half of the nation ought not in such circumstances to claim the right, on so slender a margin, to knock the other half about and ride roughshod over them."

The steel industry above all others in Britain, Churchill said, "deserves the prize for its efficiency and its smooth working expansion."

"The rearmament effort cannot possibly proceed except with the smooth, efficient working of the steel industry at its highest," Churchill asserted.

Charge Red Involved

Conservative Tufton Beamish alleged there was an "active Communist agent" on the new corporation which is to control the industry.

Another Conservative accused Attlee of submitting the industry to the 'control of "Marxist riff raff."

They were referring to the appointment of William Stokes, a trade union official, as a member of the corporation.

Veteran political observers believed the government would survive this attack as it had all others which Churchill has led unceasingly against the Socialist battalions since Labor came to power in 1945.

They agreed, however, that it would scrape through only on the strength of sick men who are rallying from their beds to be in the House for the vital vote expected tonight about 5 p.m. EDT.

The Labor Whip, William Whiteley, gathered reports on his many ailing members at the House Monday night and said he expected to win by at least three votes. At least one man, T. F. Hubbard, promised to come by

Pearson Says Arctic Attack Not Big Worry

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP). — Lester B. Pearson, Canada's Minister for External Affairs, said his government is not so worried about an attack on the Arctic as it was several years ago.

Pearson, questioned by United Nations correspondents on the ABC's "United or Not" program, was asked about the "scorched ice" plan to put air bases along Canada's Arctic border.

He replied that his talks with military men gave him the impression that an attack over the Arctic is not considered as likely now.

He said these opinions apparently were based on the "scale of attack" necessary for such an operation.

Must Watch Germans

Saying that he felt it was necessary to admit western Germany to "some kind of association" with the rest of western Europe, he said he opposed building up a German army under German command.

"I don't think anyone wants that. . . . "We know from bitter experience that a German with arms in his hands is a dangerous fellow," he said.

He added, however, that Germany must be involved in collective action in Europe "if we're going to defend freedom as far east of the Rhine as possible."

Stiff Sentences In Windsor Case

WINDSOR, Sept. 19 (CP). — E. C. Hall of Oshawa, newly-appointed Windsor Crown Attorney, took his first case in Essex County Court here Monday.

The cases resulted in stiff sentences for two men convicted of receiving stolen goods. Angus Ronald MacDonnell was sentenced to two years less a day in reformatory and William Ballantine was sentenced to a year definite, six months indeterminate in reformatory.

Similar charges against William Logan and Bruce Ballantine were dismissed by Judge Joseph A. Legris.

Crown Attorney Hall, former Crown Attorney at Whitby, replaces E. C. Awrey, who was retired by Attorney-General Dana Porter last week following a provincial police report of law enforcement in Windsor.

Farm Federation Asks Freight Boost Halted

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP).—The 400,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture today asked the Board of Transport Commissioners to block the rail freight rate increase on livestock which goes into effect Oct. 2.

The Federation said in a statement that it is informed that a number of provincial governments are considering similar action and are preparing to oppose the latest boost.

The proposed rate hike would vary from point to point, but in the main might amount to a general increase of from 15 to 17 per cent.

The Federation asked for suspension of the new rates until a full board hearing could be held. It asked the board to fix a date for such a hearing.

Just A Poor Man!

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Sept. 19—(AP)—Only about $8,000,000 of the late oil man Frank Phillips' fortune, once estimated at five times that amount, remained at his death, it was disclosed in his will. The greater part of his wealth was given away before he died last Aug. 23 at the age of 76. The philanthropist was founder of the Phillips Petroleum Company.

Says Poor Roads In Canada Halt Tourists

WINNIPEG, Sept. 19 —(CP)— The president of the Canadian Good Roads Association said today that Canada faces "a national traffic jam" because highway construction has not kept pace with the output of automobiles.

Errick F. Willis, former Manitoba cabinet minister in charge of highways, said in a prepared speech at the opening of the Good Roads Association's annual convention that the lag in road construction would "slow progress, discourage tourists and cost us all money."

He said that provincial highway ministers need behind them a strong body of public opinion "demanding and insisting" that an adequate proportion of public expenditure be allocated to roads.

He said that in recent years the marshalling of public opinion on health matters had resulted in greatly expanded government expenditure on health and public welfare.

Roads Need Support

"Quite to the contrary, no effective block of public opinion has been created in support of the continuous building of modern highways," the association president said.

"In times of difficulty, expenditures on government departments such as health are said to have become 'permanent' and 'inescapable,' whereas those on highway construction are said to be 'easy to eliminate,' because there has been no public body organized to effectively protest."

Mr. Willis said that to make the association more representative of highway affairs, direct representation on the executive had been given equipment distributors, road contractors and supply men.

Car Accident Nearly Causes UK Election

LONDON, Sept. 19 (CP) Reuters).—An automobile accident that might have caused a national election in Britain occurred in London late Monday night.

Four Labor members of parliament, whose votes will be desperately needed in parliament tonight if the Labor government is to survive the Conservative censure vote, were involved in an accident while driving home from a late house session.

Their car crashed through an iron railing and teetered over a sunken basement entrance.

All four escaped injury.

UN Gets Gun From Korea Russians Look Other Way

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Sept. 19 —(AP)—Everybody but the Russians got a good look at a captured North Korean sub-machine-gun with 1950 Soviet markings at Monday's session of the U.N. Security Council.

The Russians made no effort to inspect the weapon, placed before the council by the U.S. delegate, Warren Austin.

Gen. MacArthur has called the weapon "physical proof of Soviet delivery of munitions to North Korean forces during 1949 and 1950." The Russians claim they have made no such deliveries since December, 1948.

For a while the gun lay on the table almost studiously unnoticed by the Security Council members. But after Austin completed reading MacArthur's report and suggested that the council members examine the accompanying exhibits, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, council president, suggested almost wryly:

"I suggest that they be passed around."

The delegates, all except Russia's Jakob A. Malik, showed marked interest. They held it, hefted it, aimed it, and as it circled the table toward Malik, the Russian arose abruptly and took a walk. The Norwegian representative, Bredo Stabell, proferred the gun repeatedly to A. A. Soldatov, senior Soviet adviser, but the Russian seemed not to see.

It was after the council adjourned that newspapermen had an opportunity for a close-up at the weapon, crudely made, but strong.

"It is a good gun," explained Col. John T. Cole, of the U.S. military staff committee. "It is very workable."

Technically labelled a 7.62 mm. Prsh-A1 sub-machine, Col. Cole said it is "a modification of the Thompson sub-machine-gun."

ReportEnemy In Retreat On All Fronts

US Troops Capture Waegwan Stronghold; Enter Seoul Suburb

TOKYO, Sept. 19—(AP)—American forces today captured Waegwan, North Korean strongpoint in southeast Korea on the main road leading back to Seoul. The Reds appeared to be withdrawing all along the perimeter of the old Allied beachhead defence box. Red columns pulling out of the long-beseiged Taegu - Waegwan area may be racing northward to defend Seoul.

U.S. Marines were battering there at the gates of the 500-year-old Korean capital on the Allied second front 140 miles north of Waegwan.

U.S. Marines leading a 40,000-man Allied liberation force from Inchon port still had to cross the half-mile-wide Han river to enter Seoul.

They were in Seoul's southwest suburb, Yongdungpo, with engineers moving up river-crossing equipment to the Han.

A South Korean division entered Pohang after the battleship Missouri's big guns had pounded Reds in the bitterly-disputed east coast port.

A spokesman said U.S. 1st Cavalry troops rolled through the highway town of Waegwan without opposition and moved 1½ miles farther on the road to Kumchon, 18 miles northwest.

He said the Korean Reds were fleeing toward Kunchon.

Waegwan, 14 miles northwest of Taegu, had been the strongest point of Red resistance as Allied forces fought to crack out of the old South Korean beachhead in the centre of the perimeter.

Quit Masan

Two other Red Korean divisions were reported retreating from the Masan front far to the south. U.S. 25th Division troops drove ahead there as much as four miles.

On the Naktong River front between Masan and Waegwan, the U.S. Second and 24th Divisions punched four battalions—4,000 men—across the stream.

Engineers threw up a bridge over the Naktong behind which Allied forces had retired Aug. 4 for their final defence.

A massive break-through all along the old front appeared to be in progress.

On the Inchon-Seoul second front, 22 armed transport planes landed 215 tons of cargo and troops at Kimpo airfield, 12 miles northwest of Seoul.

The landings were made in the first hour of a continuing air lift to reinforce the liberation assault on Seoul.

Question Woman In Oakes Murder

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 19—(AP)—Police of two countries questioned a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., woman Monday night to see if she had any knowledge of who murdered Sir Harry Oakes seven years ago at Nassau.

Augustus Roberts, assistant Bahamas police superintendent, and Chief Roland Kelly, of Fort Lauderdale, visited the woman's home. Her name was a guarded secret.

"We didn't get much," Kelly commented.

Edward Majava, 31-year-old mechanic who formerly lived in Fort Lauderdale, told Oakland, Calif., police Monday the name of a man he said slew the Canadian mining millionaire in his Nassau home in July, 1943.

James J. Mangini, Oakland police inspector, said Majava, a native of Finland, stated he learned the name of the slayer from a woman at Fort Lauderdale two years ago.

The woman interviewed at Fort Lauderdale, however, said Majava told her the slayer's name and said he had learned it from a Miami woman.

The Fort Lauderdale woman, an artist, was highly nervous while being interviewed.

G. H. Ranoe, Nassau police commissioner, acknowledged that new information had been received but refused comment.

Credit Controls Likely By November

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Credit controls on instalment buying may be brought into operation before the end of October, informed quarters disclosed Monday.

It was indicated that the government now is talking over possible credit curbs with various industries, department stores and other retailers with the view to preparing credit-control regulations during the next few weeks.

At the same time a Prices Board official has been dispatched to Montreal and Toronto to feel out finance corporations on the idea of tightening up on the extension of loans to finance purchasing of new passenger cars.

Finance Minister Abbott's officials are expected to present him with a complete report through which the regulations can be drafted within the next two weeks.

Speed Report

Regulations, outlining the government's steps to curb instalment buying, then are expected to be prepared "without delay."

Authority to effect consumer credit controls was given the government during the last session of parliament.

Designed to fight inflation by discouraging people from buying, the credit regulations are expected to be drafted on "a general pattern" of those in effect during the second world war. However, there will be several changes, including the maximum amount of goods which can be purchased under the instalment plan.

During the Second World War, the regulations specified:

1. A maximum of six months credit for wearing apparel, including footwear and headgear, but excluding furs and fur-trimmed clothes.

2. A 10-month credit period for other goods, valued at less than $500.

3. A 15-month credit period for goods valued at more than $500.

The controls may be on such goods as clothes and household equipment and passenger cars, but will exclude food and fuel, and all captial and producer goods such as farm machinery and trucks.

Queen Warns Dutch Increase Defences

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Dutch people were warned today they would have to increase their own defence efforts.

Opening the Dutch States general (parliament) session, Queen Juliana read the speech from the throne. The speech said:

"It is an established fact that a great effort will have to be made by the whole population to meet the changed cricumstances.

"On the free peoples rests the task to ensure collective security in closest co-operation and to protect the costly heritage of liberty against any possible assault from without and undermining action from within."

Tries To Keep Light Going Despite Ruptured Appendix

KAGAWONG, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP)—For three days, lighthouse keeper William Baker, 56, endured the pain of an appendicitis attack. He lay in his dwelling on lonely Clapperton Island, 12 miles north of here in Lake Huron, too sick to get to his boat or to signal from the lighthouse for help.

Finally, realizing that the light was running out of oil, he tried to crawl on his hands and knees the 30 or 40 yards separating his home from the lighthouse. But he collapsed with pain while still several yards from his goal.

That happened Sunday morning. Five hours later, Harold Hutchings, who lives four miles away on Harbour island, rowed to the lighthouse with Bert Bailey of Kagawong to return some articles he had borrowed from Baker.

Taken To Hospital

Hutchings and Bailey took the sick man to Kagawong, on the northern short of Manitoulin Island and then by automobile to the Red Cross hospital at Mindemoya.

Doctors performed an emergency operation to remove a ruptured appendix. They said today that Baker's condition is satisfactory.

Ex-Constable Keays Has Been Ruled Sane

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Ernest Keays, former Ontario Provincial Police constable arrested last week after brandishing an automatic pistol in County Court, has been adjudged "sane" by psychiatrists and will face trial next week on two charges.

He appeared in Magistrate's Court today and was formally charged with unlawful possession of a weapon capable of being concealed and with unlawfully wearing a police officer's uniform.

Keays, whose charges — later found unsubstantiated— sparked a Royal Commission investigation into Provincial Police activities last year, pleaded "not guilty" and elected trial by magistrate. The case was adjourned for a week at the request of Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier. Bail was set at $50 on each count.

2 Red Patrols Kill Each Other

TAEGU, Korea, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—British troops in Korea last night beat off a North Korean raid on their left flank.

The Communists, who occupy an area on the east bank of the Naktong river south of the British brigade, crept up on the Britons under cover of darkness.

Men of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders were ready for the Communists and let fly with small arms and machine-gun fire.

Seven of the raiding party were killed and the rest dispersed. There were no British casualties.

Two Communist combat patrols brushing the left flank of British positions along the Naktong river before dawn today opened fire on each other and killed 12 of their own men.

The skirmish ended in shouting and screaming as the Communists discovered their mistake and withdrew.

Atlantic Pact Council Turns Down Turkey

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Reuters)— The Atlantic Pact Council has turned down Turkey's application for full membership in the alliance, usually reliable sources said here today.

Reason is that most members of the council are unwilling to stretch the obligations of the pact during the present international crisis, these sources said.

Failing full membership, the council is understood here to have proposed that Turkey, and also Greece, should maintain continuous contact with the military chiefs of the Atlantic Pact powers concerned in the defence of the Mediterranean.

Commonwealth Officials To Hold Informal Talks

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Reuters)— Prime Minister Attlee today received ministers of nine Commonwealth countries before they began informal discussions on trade, economic and financial problems.

Later the ministers met to draw up an informal agenda for the discussions which are expected to last about four days.

Countries represented are: Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, South Rhodesia, Northern Ireland and the United Kingdom.

When the ministers discuss Commonwealth trade problems, Harold Wilson, President of the British Board of Trade, will preside. Hugh Gaitskell, British Minister for Economic Affairs, will be in the chair for the discussions on economic and financial questions.

Canada is represented by George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe; and Graham Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada.

The ministers are likely to discuss ways of counteracting inflationary tendencies which may arise from the rearmament programs of some Commonwealth and Western countries and the United States.

The sterling-dollar position will be reviewed and the ministers will examine how they should develop inter-Commonwealth trade.

Germans Get Police Force But Not Army

Allies Plan To End State Of War; Warn Russ Leaders

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 19—(AP)—Britain, the United States and France joined today in a warning to Russia to keep hands off Western Germany.

The three powers moved to end their state of war with Germany and to strengthen her industrially and defensively, but announced that there is no call for recreating a national army in the western zones.

Any attack upon Berlin or upon Western Germany will be regarded as an attack upon the occupying countries themselves.

This was made clear in a communique issued by Secretaries Acheson, Bevin and Schuman after their New York conferences. The text was made public here tonight.

York session, also decided to:

1. "Permit the establishment of mobile police formations organized on a land (state) basis but with provisions which would enable the Federal (West German) Government to make effective use of all or part of this force in order fully to meet the exigencies of the present situation."

2. Review present prohibitions and limitations on German industries.

Lift Ship Ban

3. Remove immediately all restrictions on the size, speed and number of commercial cargo ships built for export.

4. Permit steel to be produced beyond the present limits laid down by the Allies wherever such increased production would "facilitate the defence effort of the west."

5. Permit West Germany to set up a ministry of foreign affairs to handle its own foreign relations, now handled by the Allies.

The foreign ministers said they had given serious consideration to the problem of Germany's military security and to sentiments favoring German participation in the defence of Western Europe. But no decision was reached on this question. "Study and exchange of views" will continue on it.

Britain Halts Tools To Soviet

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Reuters)— Britain will suspend export of certain machine tools ordered by Russia and other East European countries while she checks her own needs and those of the Commonwealth and Atlantic pact powers, it was announced in the House of Commons Monday.

The Anglo-Polish trade agreement of 1949 will also be reviewed because of the changed circumstances, Harold Wilson, president of the board of trade, said.

These promises were made after Conservative members again challenged the government on the supply of metal goods to possible aggressors.

But Wilson said he could not promise that after the investigation the government would necessarily stop the export of metal goods to Eastern Europe.

Find Stolen Car In Ship Channel

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP). — Police sand Monday an automobile recovered from an east-end ship channel was stolen from Pte. Gordon Turner of Petawawa.

Turner hitch-hiked from Kingston to report the loss. He said the automobile was stolen from outside the barracks at the army camp.

The late model car was dragged from 40 feet of water, and no trace was found of any occupant. Police said the accelerator had been jammed down with a chunk of concrete and the doors were open, apparently so the car would sink.

United Church To Transfer Properties In India, Ching

TORONTO, Sept. 19 —(CP)— General Council of the United Church of Canada decided Monday night to transfer all the church's property in China and India to native churches in those countries.

The Very Rev. Jesse H. Arnup, secretary of overseas missions, said the United Church had always intended to turn over the properties as soon as the churches in China and India were strong enough and had sufficient leaders to carry on the work. In China, it was considered possible that the Communist government might seize all property owned by foreign interests.

The United Church will continue to send missionaries to India and China, Dr. Arnup said.

The Rev. D. H. Telfer of the British Columbia Conference told the general council:

"We are transferring great properties to the church of China, recognizing that the time has come to hand over not only our work but also properties into which we have poured hundreds of thousands of dollars."

The Rev. A. J. Wilson of Toronto, editor of the United Church Observer, said:

Not Too Much Credit

"I don't think we should take too much credit to ourselves if we had no alternative."

General Council voted down a proposal to seek income-tax exemption for ministers earning less than $5,000 a year.

The Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon of Toronto, a former moderator, in a report on training for the ministry blamed "niggardliness" on the part of General Council for difficulty in obtaining candidates.

He said Alberta alone needs 30 ministers and he blamed the situation on the lack of financial aid to theological colleges.

Can't Be Separated

"You can't separate the decrease in assistance and the decrease in the number of ministers," he said. In 1929 the theological colleges received more than $2,000,000 but, although their work had tripled since then, last year they were given only $95,000, he added.

The council voted its officers a straight salary of $5,500. They have been receiving $4,500 plus a 15-per-cent cost-of-living bonus for the last two years. The change means that they will get a net increase of $325 dating from Sept. 1. The increase also applies to field officers and superintendents of home missions.

It was dcided to ask the Federal government to remove the eight-per-cent sales tax on materials used in construction of new churches, a concession now given to hospitals and welfare agencies.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel — And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the digestive tract. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 35c at any druggists.

ambulance from a hospital where he is scheduled to undergo an operation the morning after the vote.

If every member of parliament were present, the government would have a majority of seven.

Hope Majority of Five

At least two Labor members, however, are travelling so far abroad they cannot return for the vote, leaving the government a working majority of five.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, ordered to take a three-month rest at the beginning of this month, was driven more than 100 miles from his rural home Monday night.

For the attacking Tories, one member hopped off an Australia-bound ship at Gibraltar and flew to London. He plans to rejoin his ship in Egypt if the government wins.

Against Government

Another Conservative, the Rev. J. C. MacManaway of Belfast, announced he would vote against the government although his right to sit in parliament has been challenged under an 1801 law banning clergymen from parliament. He is a Church of Ireland vicar. The privy council has not yet ruled on the case. Nobody has yet puzzled out what might happen if MacManaway's vote should overthrow the government.

Meantime, London bookmakers were offering odds as high as 9 to 4 that the government would win the vital vote.

Churchill angrily forced the issue on the steel bill last Thursday when the government disclosed it was going ahead schedule to carry out the law nationalizing the industry.

Canada May Follow

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP). — Government sources said today they thought it likely Canada soon would follow the lead of Britain, France and the United States in ending the state of war with Germany. They emphasized however, that this step would be for the cabinet to decide.

Report Enemy

Capture Suburb

Two heavily-armored marine columns, spearheading the 40,000 man Allied liberation force in Western Korea, prowled the near approaches to Seoul.

The bag of Red Korean prisoners reached nearly 2,000 since the second front opened Friday at Inchon Port, now 20-odd miles behind the forward marines.

One marine force paced by powerful Patton tanks smashed into Yongdungpo, an industrial suburb of Seoul on the southwest bank of the Han.

The second drove along the Han toward the capital after seizing Kimpo airfield Sunday night 12 miles northwest of Seoul. At last report, this marine force was seven miles from the city.

Planes At Kimpo

Marine planes flew support missions from Kimpo.

To the southeast, 140 miles away from the Seoul front, American troops were fighting bitterly-resisting Communists for toeholds on the west bank of the Naktong River.

Units of the trail-blazing U.S. 24th Division which were pulled back from the Pohang port front in a surprise move crossed the Naktong 10 miles west of Taegu Monday but ran into a bloody ambush.

Associated Press correspondent Bem Price said there was no retreat for the 24th which, as the first U.S. division in Korea, had fought the long delaying action down the highway from Osan to Taejon into the old southeastern Allied beachhead.

This time, said Price, the 24th "went to stay—and it did." Dug-in Red Koreans laced machine-gun fire at the river-crossing Americans, clearly outlined against a white sand beach.

After bitter fighting the Americans gained high ground on the west bank.

Crossing Secure

Earlier, a U.S. 2nd Division battalion had crossed the Naktong west of Changnyong, to the south. The Reds hurled repeated attacks against the battalion throughout Monday night, but a division spokesman said the crossing was secure.

All around the Waegwan area on the northwest corner of the old beachhead, the Reds were resisting fiercely. They fought desperately to prevent a breakthrough by American, British and South Korean forces to the main artery leading north to Seoul.

Allied forces had smashed the weight of their south-bound offensive in this area.

On the southwestern front near Masan, the Reds were making wholesale withdrawals.

Air observers spotted columns of retreating Reds. A spokesman said the Red Korean 7th Division seemed to have disappeared during the night. The Red 6th Division had withdrawn earlier.

They left much war booty.

Allied 10th Corps troops and supplies, still streaming ashore at Inchon, on the Yellow Sea 22 miles west of Seoul, were building the power of the liberation force at the capital's gates.

The Red Koreans were rushing reinforcements to the area.

Spot Three Columns

Air observers spotted three Communist columns moving toward the besieged city. One was racing north from Taejon, 90 miles south of Seoul. A second was seen in the Yongdong area, 21 miles southeast of Taejon. The third column was rolling northwest toward Yongdong from Kumchon.

Allied planes strafed and rocketed the rear column and were seeking out the others.

While the Reds rushed troops from the southern battle zone to defend Seoul, AP correspondent Don Whitehead reported the Communists also were trying to build up their defence with a "phantom division" which the Americans once had written off the books.

American intelligence last July had tabbed the Red 18th division as stationed in Seoul. But after is failed to show in three months of combat, the division was listed as a paper force.

Whitehead said the phantom 18th, however, showed up Monday as flesh-and-blood defenders of Seoul. Prisoners identified the division. Its strength was believed to be about 4,000 men.

Police End Search For Missing Boys

PORT PERRY, Sept. 19. — An intensive search by two provincial police officers for a pair of Toronto boys missing since Sunday was called off temporarily Monday.

Const. Gordon Keast, Whitby, and Const. Arthur Linklater of Lindsay, combed Scugog Island from north to south and trailed the boys almost the length of the island. The two, Edward Walker, 17, of Sumach St., and Frank Ferguson, 15, of Parkview Ave., were reported missing after they rowed a boat from the north shore of Lake Scugog and abandoned it on the island.

They were traced through information from storekeepers, farmers and cottagers almost to No 7A Highway, which goes through Port Perry to Toronto. The trail ended when no further information could be gleaned from residents of the area.

Germans Get

Won't Rebuild Army

However, the ministers ruled out any idea of rebuilding the German army outside the framework of common European defence.

They said:

"The ministers are fully agreed that the recreation of a German national army would not serve the best interests of Germany or Europe. They also believe this is the view of the great majority of the German people."

Without saying just what control powers they would give up, the Allies promised to broaden the West German government's authority for action independent of Allied vetoes.

Important Stage

"These decisions mark an important stage in the normalization of the relations and should contribute towards the creation of an atmosphere of mutual confidence and understanding," the communique said.

"They represent a major advance toward the progressive return of Germany to partnership in Western Europe and the consolidation of the Western nations in their efforts to establish a firm basis for the future peace of Europe and the world."

The foreign ministers made it plain that by ending the state of war with Germany they do not intend to end the military occupation of the country.

Won't Affect Rights

"This action will not affect the rights and status of the three powers in Germany, which rest upon other bases," the communique said.

"It will, however, create a firmer foundation for the developing structure of peaceful and friendly relationships and will remove disabilities to which German nationals are subject."

"It is hoped that other nations will find it possible to take similar action," the foreign ministers suggested.

Despite Germany's surrender in 1945, the state of war has been maintained ever since, waiting for the signing of a peace treaty.

The foreign ministers indicated they had little hope of any early agreement with Russia on a peace treaty.

Have No Work At Alta Mines

BLAIRMORE, Alta., Sept. 19— (CP)—The mine whistles in the Crow's Nest Pass blew again at 8 p.m. Monday night, as they have daily for more than a week. The blast conveys to some 3,700 coal miners the gloomy news that there is no work for them the following day.

An acute shortage of railway box cars—many have been diverted to haul grain or take up the slack occasioned by the national rail strike—is blamed for the work stoppage.

Most mines in the area worked only one day last week and only two of them operated for two days.

Mine officials said last week's limited production meant a loss of about 75,000 tons of coal. This was a direct loss of $300,000 to the operators, they said.

Business men in the Pass figure the loss in miners' purchasing power at $100,000. "There is that much less money to spend here now," one merchant said.

Slackness at the mines is not uncommon at this time of year but it has not been as bad as this for many years.

Base Metals Lead On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP). — Industrials and base metals led prices steadily lower as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Opening trends pointed upwards, but sudden appearance of selling wiped out the early gains. Volume for the first three hours was 1,054,000 shares.

Industrials climbed strongly yesterday and advanced into new high average price grounds. Papers, leaders in the advance, paced today's declines. Utilities, agricultures, liquors and refining oils were also lower while steels held firm. Most losses were held to small fractions.

Almost all base metal stocks trading dipped into minus ground. Heavy buying last week pulled the list to the highest average price levels in 13 years. Leaders on the upturn like Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, and Hudson Bay were hardest hit by the selling.

Western oils also sagged, but at a slow rate. The low-priced gold stocks that traded heavily yesterday moved sluggishly.

Cressy Cheese Factory Destroyed By Fire

PICTON, Sept. 19.—Fire which started in the refrigeration room at the Cressy cheese factory, 18 miles east of here, near Indian Point, swept through the building Monday morning before district residents could check it.

Edward Vaughan, living nearby, was awakened by his dog barking and called Harold Henderson, a cheese maker. Volunteer firefighters kept flames from spreading to Henderson's house Loss was estimated at $12,000 Defective wiring was believed responsible for the blaze.

Part Of Doctor's Estate Goes To Hospital

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP). — More than $2,000 of the estate of the late Dr. Edgar Totten of Port Hope, will go to the Home for Incurable Children here under a ruling handed down Monday by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Dr. Totten, in a will made in 1918, bequeathed all his $21,000 estate to charities after a life interest to his widow. One bequest was to "the Home for Incurables in Toronto" Mrs. Totten filed an affidavit saying her husband meant the Home for Incurable Children. The home will receive the bequest when Mrs. Totten dies.

Border Defence Plan Suggested

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Close co-operation between U.S. border states and cities with Canadian and Mexican neighbors in case of enemy attack is suggested in the master civil defence plan announced today.

The plan outlines in detail how the United States should prepare for emergencies growing out of enemy attacks on this continent.

It was sent to Congress along with a bill to create a new, separate federal civil defence administration. Mexican and Canadian co-operation was mentioned in the bill.

Under terms of the bill, states will be permitted to negotiate and make agreements for mutual assistance with any neighboring state, province or similar political subdivision of a foreign country. Such agreements must then be approved by the secretary of state and the administrator of the defence program.

National Kids Day Sponsored By Kiwanians

National Kids day will be celebrated in Peterborough and across Canada and United States Saturday.

The Kiwanis-sponsored day is designed to call attention to the needs of children in general and under-privileged children in particular.

Saturday the Kiwanis will seek to build a Silver Mile on both sides of George St. A ribbon will be laid out on the sidewalks from Brock St. south to King St. and back the other side.

All along this ribbon, citizens of the city and district will be asked to place their contributions in silver until it is covered with coins

The money will be used entirely for underprivileged children in Peterborough although the work of the Kiwanis club among children takes in a good deal more than just its help to underprivileged youngsters.

The Kiwanis club has backed such projects as Hamilton Park in the northwest corner of the city near Jackson Park. Recently the club sponsored a bus trip for junior farmers to the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph.

Each year it runs the Kiwanis music festival in which youngsters are encouraged in musical talents and appreciation. It also sponsors two Key clubs in the city's two high schools which encourage citizenship among the boys of the higher grades.

Apart from organized aid such as this, the club is constantly taking on the responsibility of seeing that a child who, because of neglect or impoverished circumstances, is unable to get needed medical care and perhaps surgery, does not go without it.

Designer Dies

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Rosamond Bowditch Loring, 61, noted designer of book papers and author of the subject, died Sunday. Mrs. Loring, wife of the philanthropist and financier Augustus P. Loring, Jr., was the author of "Marble Papers," and "Decorative Book Papers."

Cavan Twp. Church Holds Anniversary Fall Service

CAVAN, Sept. 19 (ENS)—The Ebenezer United Church on the twelfth line of Cavan held its anniversary service Sunday afternoon.

The Church set high on a hill overlooking fertile farm lands and forests is a landmark of pioneer days.

The church, filled to capacity, was decorated with autumn leaves and flowers of many kinds.

Rev. James Hampson had charge of the first part of the service and introduced Rev. M. J. Aiken, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough, who preached the anniversary sermon.

He chose for his text, Genesis 26 and 18—And Isaac digged again the wells of water which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father . . .

Early settlers had faith in God, said Rev. Aiken. They were not concerned wholly with work and making money.

One of the first things they did was to build a place of worship and attend the services regularly. As time went on and people became more prosperous, other interests cropped up and people were diverted from worshipping God.

He called on everyone to open again the wells of Redemption, worship generosity and service and leave a good heritage behind as our forefathers had done.

Norman Lowes played the piano accompaniments for the choir who led in the service of song and for a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Hampson, and two duets by Mr. and Mrs. Rae Stewart."

Ask Prayer For Peace

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—Warren R. Austin has called on all Americans to observe a minute of prayer for world peace this afternoon at 3 p.m. EDT, coincident with the opening of the United Nations General Assembly meeting.

Trinidad Gets No Party Council

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Sept. 19 (CP)—Trinidad got a no-party legislative council Monday night when the results of her general election, quietest in the island's history, were announced.

The Home Rule party of Tubal Uriah (Buzz) Butler, the hymn-singing fanatic who started labor troubles in 1939, got six seats, the largest single group.

The Labor party elected two men including Raymond Quevedo, Calypso-singing "Attila the Hun." The Liberals and Socialists also elected two men apiece and six Indepe ide..ts were successful.

Besides the legislative council, this colony is ruled by an executive body, with Governor Sir Hubert Rance at its head.

Election of Butler, self-styled chief servant of the British citizens' and workers' Home Rule party, poses something of a constitutional problem for political observers. It is assumed he will try to move the colony away from Britain.

Harry Binks Dies Emigrated 50 Yrs. Ago

ROSENEATH, Sept. 19—(ENS)—Harry Binks died at his home near Fenella Monday after a lengthy illness.

Emigrating to Canada over 50 years ago, he has lived in this district ever since.

He is survived by his wife, the former Elma Rogers.

The funeral service will be held on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. at his late residence and will be conducted by Rev. R. C. White.

Burial will be in Bethany (Macklin's) cemetery.

Calculated Risks In Korea

The political and military consequences of the new American offensive in Korea cannot be known yet. These two major drives, from the Inchon-Seoul invasion base and from the old Pusan beachhead, are manoeuvres in the best tactical practice and can bring glowingly successful results. To pocket a considerable part of the North Korean forces, and to cut their supply lines in this pincer move could put North Korea out of the war. It is a heartening show, taken with calculated risks.

* * *

Much of the available United Nations manpower is committed in these new advances, and much of their armament. Should the attack bog down without any major success, the western troops engaged would have difficulty disengaging. Should the Reds, seizing on weakness in other strategic areas, thrust out in another part of Asia (Formosa, for instance), the United States—and U.N.—would have difficulty meeting them, since so much is committed to the present new Korean offensive. These are military risks which have been taken. Should the offensive be overwhelmingly successful, or show signs of being so, there could be grave political consequences. Red China, and the U.S.S.R., either one or both, could decide to intervene to support tottering North Korea. Thus the war would spread. But to achieve great ends, great means and great risks have to be taken.

At The United Church Conference

The general council of the United Church of Canada, still in session in Toronto, discussed several matters of wide interest, two of which have particularly commanded our attention. The first is the appeal of the Rev. Claude de Mestral, of Verdun, Quebec, that a more determined effort be made to familiarize the Canadian people with the French language. In this matter he was supported by the Rev. E. M. Howse, of Toronto, who is reported to have said of Canadians in general: "We are the most illiterate of the educated people. . . . we must do something sensible about this".

We fully agree. But what is to be done? Canadians who have been to High School have had some instruction in French. Yet if, when they leave school, they have no incentive to read the language, they will quickly forget it, and it must be said that the crowded programs of most High Schools make anything like classes in spoken French undreamed-of luxuries. We are in the curious position of being citizens of a bilingual country who are, upon the whole, utterly incapable of expressing ourselves in what is assumed to be our second language.

There are secondary reasons why this should be so. There are Canadians who think that a widespread knowledge of French would leave us exposed to all the anti-British, anti-democratic notions which they imagine are common in Quebec. There are people who think that French literature is immoral. There are people who think that French-speaking Canadians should be compelled to learn English, so that we may know what they are up to. But these silly people are a minority. The real reason why we are so bad at French is, as the Toronto clergyman says, because we are an illiterate people, content to know as little as possible. We enjoy a high standard of living, and we confuse this with good living. We present the world with the curious spectacle of a fortunate people, not naturally stupid, but who embrace stupidity through sheer laziness.

The second matter which interested us in the conference discussions was the necessity for "social honesty". Dr. J. R. Mutchmor is quoted as saying: "We must challenge our own concepts of social honesty and not think it smug or clever to beat the government; it is just as dishonest to steal from Ottawa as to steal from our next door neighbour". This is true; the honesty and decency of a people in matters of taxation, as well as in matters of business honesty, is vital to national good character. We quite agree with Dr. Mutchmor on this subject; the tax-chiseller is a contemptible creature.

We wish, however, that somebody at the conference had wagged a finger at Ottawa, after this rebuke to cheating private citizens. It is a government's duty to be honest, as well, and carelessness with public money is quite as bad as tax-cheating. A high standard of private honesty must go hand-in-hand with a high standard of public honesty, and although we do not believe that anyone at Ottawa steals from the public purse, we believe that many waste from the public purse. The United Church does well to remind the citizen of his duty; the government and its servants might also have been warned.

Lending Millions To Help Nations

Last Friday in Paris the president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development submitted the bank's fifth annual report to the Board of Governors. It was no world-stirring event, but the Bank is nevertheless one of the post-war agencies which, over the years, are re-shaping nations. Between July 1st, 1949 and September 1st, 1950, the Bank made sixteen loans—to Australia, Uruguay, Thailand, Turkey, Ethiopia, Iran and other countries — totalling $315.7 millions. Since it began operations in June, 1946, it has granted loans totalling $965.8 millions.

Financial operations on such a scale, and with the purposes which the International Bank has, must have consequences of great importance. For instance, last August a loan agreement was made between the Bank and the government of the Commonwealth of Australia for $100 million. This will partly finance the Commonwealth's new five-year development program. The money will be used to buy tractors and other agricultural equipment, locomotives, mining machinery and to develop the productive capacity of industrial plants.

The International Bank was established as a result of the Bretton Woods (New Hampshire) conference in 1944, when the chief nations of the world sent their financial experts to discuss post-war monetary and trading designs. The Bank is a joint effort, on a world-wide scale, to guide international investment into economically sound channels. It seeks to ease the flow of capital for purposes of increasing production, both in war-devastated countries and in lesser developed areas of the world. It aims to help its member countries to reach and keep balanced national economies wherein exports of goods and services can eventually pay for an adequate volume of imports, and thus to contribute to a healthy expansion of international trade.

At present 48 countries are members of the International Bank. Russia and most of her satellites are not. (Poland withdrew last March.) Yugoslavia, Guatemala and Iraq are members, as in Canada, which has 3,500 votes, in comparison with the United States' 32,000 and Costa Rica's 270. The Bank's total capital is derived from capital shares subscribed by the member countries. Its authorized capital stock is 100,000 shares with a par value of $100,000 each, purchasable only by member nations.

The Bank does not depend on its capital stock as the major source of its lending funds. It sells its bonds on the open market; for instance, last January it sold a hundred million dollars worth of two per cent. serial bonds (due in 1953-62) to four American syndicates at a premium, and got the use of the money at a cost of 1.93 per cent. a year. This money is then available for lending, after investigation of the projects for which the borrowing country wishes to use it. The big Australian loan carries an interest rate of 3¼ per cent. and a one per cent. commission.

The Bank is primarily a co-operative enterprise rather than a profit-making institution. It expects to secure enough interest and commission to meet the cost of borrowing and the operating expenses. There is, of course, an element of risk. If there were not, the Bank would have no reason for existing, since ordinary commercial institutions would readily make the loans. When a loan of five million dollars is made to Caja de Credito for the production of agricultural machinery, and the loan is guaranteed by the present government of Colombia, there is undoubtedly a risk of loss, but a good chance of assisting the economic development of that South American republic. It is important to remember that the Bank's full name is the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Through such international agencies the world can become a more productive place, and the ways of poor countries made easier, provided, of course, there is enough unanimity in the world to keep it from blowing up.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Westerner complains that every time he drills for water he strikes oil. In that case, he can afford to import his water from the East, where it is annoyingly plentiful.

The Ottawa Citizen suggests that grocers can clean out old stock by marking it "ONE TO A CUSTOMER". A more subtle method is to hide it under the counter, which is where the hoarders always look first.

The Molotov Plan

By A. V. SHERMAN

THE Molotov Plan, the Cominform's answer to the Marshall Plan, has now been in operation for eighteen months. It was supposed to have been directed by the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, the Eastern bloc's counterpart of the Western OEEC (Organization for European Economic Co-operation) and it promised to co-ordinate the trade and economic planning of Eastern Europe, raise the standard of living with the participating countries and give the world a lesson in co-operation between equals.

* * *

THE first eighteen months operation of the Molotov Plan show however that it has failed to achieve its declared objectives. The failure was inevitable since the Plan was, in fact, drawn up by the Soviet Planning Commission, was based entirely on the economic interests of the USSR and ignored the national interests of the satellite countries. The Plan has reflected the main aim of Soviet economic policy which is to find protected markets for Russia's inefficient industries. Russia's quarrel with Tito, the new wave of purges she has inspired in Eastern Europe, and her trade policy in China are all results of her search for cheap raw materials and a safe, non-competitive market.

* * *

THE changing nature of the Soviet economic structure is the key to Russia's East European policy since the war. In the course of their Five-Year-Plans, the Bolsheviks were able to build a powerful heavy industry based on Western models. Their own statistics show that between 1928 and 1940 their output of capital goods increased tenfold, while agricultural production, except for cotton and grain, failed to show any significant increase. Their 60 per cent. increase in grain production, which barely kept pace with their 30 per cent. rise in population and the fall in world grain prices, was achieved largely by ploughing virgin land, which is not unlimited.

* * *

SOVIET butter, meat, and milk production have never recovered their 1928 levels, and collectivization of the farms has failed to raise agricultural productivity to anything near that of the West. During this period Russia's output of textiles, mainly through lack of raw materials, failed to keep pace with her population increase.

* * *

IN Russia armament industries use more of the national resources than in any other country. According to Soviet figures, armaments account for 18 per cent. of the budget and since industry is State-owned, the budget represents the greater part of the national income. Heavy industry, allied to war-production, remains over-developed at the expense of consumers' industries as well as of agriculture.

* * *

ALSO intensifying the disequilibrium in the Soviet economy are numerous, highly-paid, unproductive groups of officials and security forces, the huge size of the armed forces, and a rapidly increasing population the growth of which the Soviet leaders are encouraging by every possible means to provide, in their own words, 'workers for industry and fighters for the Soviet Army'.

* * *

SOVIET import needs rise with the population. Besides much machinery which they are still unable to manufacture, they have to import rubber, wool, tea, coffee, and other foodstuffs and minerals. Their agriculture, however, is unable to supply them with a large exportable surplus to pay for those imports.

* * *

THEREFORE, as the industrial population, which has trebled since 1928, is far more easily regimented than the farmers, and as she is well supplied with iron and coal, Russia is attempting to become a large-scale exporter of heavy industrial products. Signs of this change were evident in the late 'thirties, when the Russians began to sell manufactured goods and cement in exchange for hides, wool, cattle, and fruit in Persia, Mongolia, and other Eastern markets where Western industry did not seriously compete. In these countries, as in the Balkans, agricultural products were cheap, in spite of inefficient production, because of low wages.

* * *

RUSSIA'S long-term interests, and those of the world, would be served by a change in her economic policy. She still needs to modernize her agriculture. This would entail not only investing more in it, but also giving the peasants more time for leisure and working their allotments, and more incentives to increase production, since agricultural work cannot in most cases be controlled on the factory system. Such measures would involve, at present, a reduction in Army and State expenditure.

* * *

STALIN evidently prefers, however, to maintain his present economic structure and to solve his country's economic problems at the expense of the satellite states. The post-war situation has given him an area in which he can dictate commercial policy, and CMEA (Council for Mutual Economic Assistance) is the organ of that dictation. The Soviet Press boasts that Soviet machinery, (invented from the beginning, they claim, by Russians, not by Anglo-Saxons) is being used in all the "People's Democracies" and in Sinkiang. It reads like the British Press of a century ago, in the hey-day of Britain's commercial expansion overseas, but with one important difference: Soviet industrial products cannot compete on their merits, but need protection.

* * *

IN this respect, the post-war decision of the West to cut trade with the satellites played into Russia's hands. Subsequent British trade delegations have attempted to restore large-scale commerce with Eastern Europe, but find that the satellites will offer Britain only what Russia can spare, chiefly timber and grain.

* * *

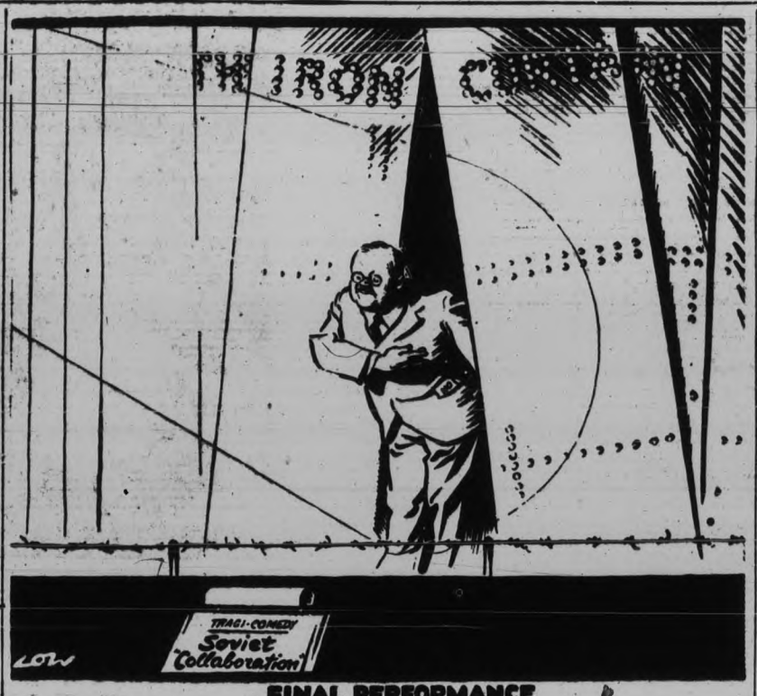
ALMOST the whole output of Bulgarian and Rumanian maize, fruit, dairy products, and oil, for example, are taken by the Russians at prices based on the fantastically over-valued rouble. Nazi Germany's commercial policy in the Balkans, designed by Schact, is being repeated on a larger scale. In return, the victims may receive some highly-priced machinery to help them produce more raw materials, but, as the Soviet press boasts, "unlike the capitalist countries we export machinery, not consumers' goods".

* * *

PARALLEL with CMEA, the Russians have set up "mixed-companies" in the satellite and Soviet-occupied countries, in which the Russians and satellite governments share equally in investment and profits, buying up a portion of the output at cost-price. Since any rise in labour costs in these industries would cut Soviet profits, wages have been deliberately kept down.

* * *

IN the Rumanian oil industry, now the property of a Soviet-Rumanian company, the Soviet share of investment consisted of the already existing plant and equipment, which they had taken over as war booty. The company is exempted from payment of royalties; the oil, formerly a valuable source of income to Rumania and a potential mainstay of her economic development, goes East for nothing, while the Rumanian Government even has to find part of the oil workers' wages.



* * *

YUGOSLAVIA'S resistance to such tactics, much more than any fundamental political disagreement, was the main cause of Tito's break with the Soviet Union. It was natural for such 'Titoite Nationalism' to arise sooner or later in all the satellite States, where Communist leaders are subject to pressure from the Soviet Union and from their own workers at the same time. Many of the most important Communist leaders purged in Eastern Europe, such as Lobl in Czechoslovakia, Rajk in Hungary, and Kostov in Bulgaria, were responsible for their country's foreign economic policy, and resisted the impoverishment of their countries in the interests of Russia.

* * *

WHEN it was first formed the CMEA aroused considerable enthusiasm in Eastern Europe, since it was hoped that it might lead to the long overdue removal of illogical tariff barriers. But the working of CMEA and the Molotov Plan in practice is now leading to growing political and economic resistance. As they see their standard of living being reduced rather than raised, the workers are going slow and the peasants hiding their crops. Recent statements by satellite Communist parties show that they have purged from a tenth to a fifth of their membership, varying according to country. The use by Stalin of Hitler's method of economic negotiation at pistol-point is resulting in a distorted economic development of Eastern Europe and arousing, slowly but surely, the same resistance.

The Dead Man's Chest

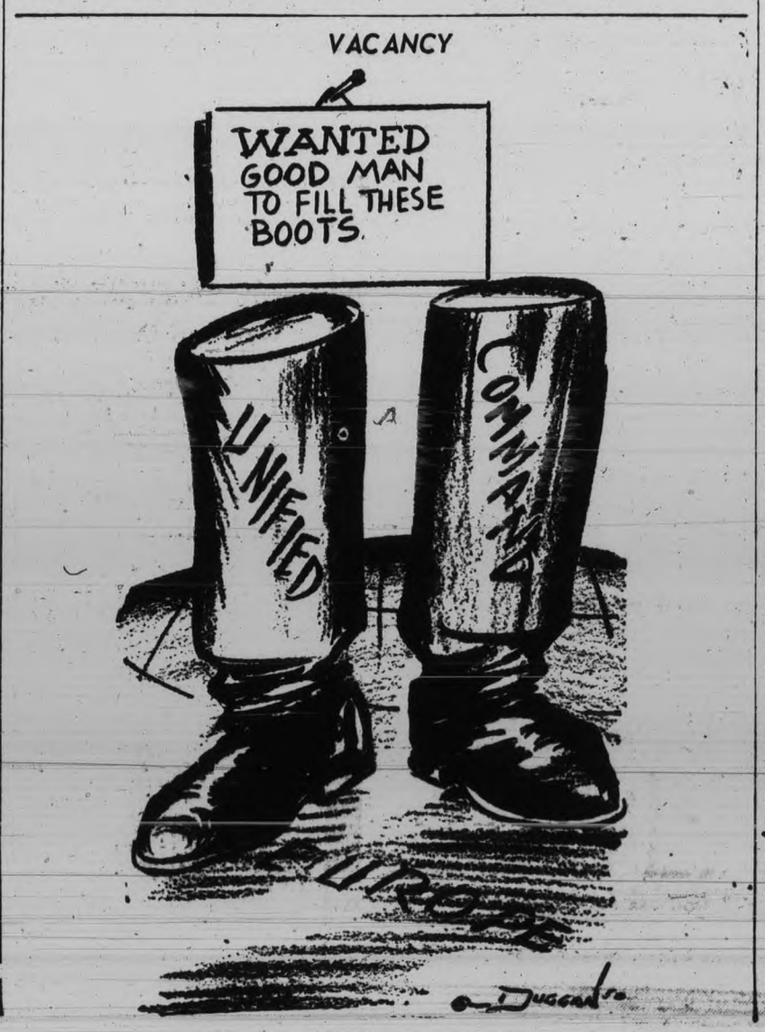
(OWEN SOUND SUN-TIMES)

THE early impressions one gets from reading are often extremely misleading. For instance, the writer of this editorial first read "Treasure Island" as a very small boy—quite a while before starting school, in fact, and was greatly puzzled by the famous song "Fifteen Men on a Dead Man's Chest, Yo, Ho-Ho and a Bottle of Rum!"

The only "chest" the writer knew anything about then was the human thoracic cavity—"chest" in the sense of a box or such container was an unknown quantity. And at home he had never heard the word "rum" mentioned by itself. It was always, of course, "the demon rum."



Questioning had elicited the information that a demon was a sort of a devil, and the devil, of course, was a red and evil man with a spiked tail. The net result of this mixture of conjecture and applied information was that Stevenson's lusty pirate song conjured up a weird childhood vision of fifteen men, all seated on the chest of an extremely large corpse and drinking a boil-down distillation of slain red devils.

Later the picture clarified itself somewhat with the realization that a chest was a wooden box or foot-locker and that rum was a drink made from sugar-cane, quite popular among members of the pirate fraternity and others.

At least it was thought that this clarified the picture, as far as the "chest" part of the chanty was concerned. But now, if a release from the RKO theatrical news service is correct, the "chest" referred to was another kind of chest altogether.

Says the release (which was issued in connection with Walt Disney's new picture "Treasure Island"): "A Dead Man's Chest" referred to a dangerous sunken reef in the Antipodes, not to any sailor's gear — chest, maritime tales reveal. The reef was the graveyard of many a pirate and his quarry, including the "fifteen" whose fate was sung by a surviving bos'n's mate after a fierce fight between two buccaneer factions on the same ship.

"Stevenson found his reference in Charles Kingsley's travel book 'At Last,' published in 1871. Stevenson's 'Treasure Island' was first published in 1883. The extended sea chanty now in print under the title of 'Derelict' was composed by Young Ewing Allison in 1901."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. (Ps. 24: 3, 4.)

* * *

The way of man is forward and strange: but as for the pure, his work is right....He that followeth after righteousness and mercy findeth life, righteousness, and honour.

He that loveth pureness of heart, for the grace of his lips the king shall be his friend. (Prov. 21: 8, 21; 22: 11.)

* * *

For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good work. (Titus 2: 11-14.)

Childhood

(Richard Hughes in The Listener, London)

I suppose that no period in history felt so secure as the English decade when I was a small child. The millenium just round the corner: war between civilized nations unthinkable: how lucky I was to have been born at the dawn of this blessed Twentieth Century! And yet, in spite of this outside security, there was one thing I was afraid of, as a small child, really afraid: more afraid than I have ever been since: suppose I was sucked down the waste-pipe of the bath! Suppose one night my mother carelessly pulled up the plug before I had climbed safely out!

You see, small children have almost no sense of the relative size of things; it never entered my head I was too big to go through that small hole. Sucked into that horrible gurgling whirlpool, choked with warm, soapy water, dragged down struggling into the mysterious darkness of the waste-pipe, which led down, no one knew whither: can you conceive a more horrible end to a young life? I loved lying in a bath to the last moment: but can you wonder I sprang out like a grasshopper the moment my mother reached for the plug?

Do you see now what I mean when I talk about the toughness of children, the frightful things they can stand? Would you ever dare even to get into a bath, much less lie and soak in it to the last moment, if you knew that every time you ran the risk of a horrible death? Nothing you can do will protect your child from fear—worse fear than you yourself could face. He carries the jungle inside him.

Indeed there is very little you can do for him: in the company of young children it is the grown-up who profits, not the child—and how deeply we do become dependent on the company of children. He gets the help he needs from others of his own age, and animals: it is the teen-ager who comes to need the love and sympathy of parents, not the little thing. How can you help him—he who carries the whole jungle inside him and smiles serenely! People have remarked how little afraid, in the war, children seemed to be of bombs. But where is your sense of proportion? Why should a child fear the mere paltry chance of bombs, when he has schooled himself to fall asleep tranquilly every night knowing—knowing—that there is a tiger under the cot?

Red China Asks Alaska For Tools

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Sept. 19—(AP)— Postcards bearing the new stamps of Communist China are being received here with requests for industrial tools to further the war effort in Red China.

Mailed from the Communist stronghold of Tientsin, a major seaport about 200 miles west of the Korean mainland, the cards are addressed to hardware stores and automotive supply firms.

Printed in English, beneath the letterhead of the North China Import Corporation, the message requests reference material. Specifically it seeks catalogs or bulletins on industrial tools and small tools, along with samples and discount charts. In addition the message asks that the corporation be put on the merchant's mailing list.

On the face of the yellow-paper card is a large stamp bearing the portrait of Communist China Leader Mao Tze-tung, surrounded by tanks and airplanes. Waving over Mao is a victorious Red flag with the Golden Star of Red China.

"They must be extremely short of tools," remarked one dealer who received a card.

That the cards are smuggled from Red China to Hong Kong is evidenced by a footnote to the message explaining that replies can be sent in care of the Wu Yang Trading Company at Hong Kong, "when it will reach us by the first available opportunity."

Has 100th Anniversary

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP).—The New York Times began its 100th year of publication Monday. There was no ceremony. The newspaper called attention to its anniversary on the first page of the second section.

London Paper Acclaims Canadian Moves

LONDON, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—The Times today acclaims Canada for her support of the United Nations and the Atlantic Pact by practical measures.

The Times says Canada had shown her people were ready to act with decisiveness of a great power and that the Commonwealth and the rest of the free world could find encouragement in this.

"Her position, as the neighbor of the United States and the sister nation of the United Kingdom gives her a peculiar influence in international affairs," The Times says in an editorial.

"In this field Canada's leaders have in the past had to act with caution.

"French - Canadians, cut off from their European roots, have been traditionally isolationist: even after the start of the Korean war familiar arguments against co-operation with the United Nations were raised in Quebec.

Cautious Steps

"The first steps which the Canadian government took were cautious.

"But when, in the first week of August, Mr. St. Laurent announced that the government had authorized the recruitment of a special force, which would be available for service in Korea or elsewhere, if the United Nations needed it, he knew that public opinion would uphold the decision . . .

"The countries of the old world have seen, in the last 10 years, a dramatic change in the attitude of the North American peoples on questions of foreign policy.

Canada, relatively so small, potentially so great, has shown again that her people are ready to act with the decisiveness of a great power. In this fact the Commonwealth—and indeed the rest of the free world—can find encouragement."

Make-Up Men Need Oscars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9—(AP)—An actor's best friend is his make-up man, says Jeff Corey, who asks for an Oscar to reward the craftsmen of the grease paint.

"Sometimes the make-up man contributes 50 per cent of an actor's performance," says Corey, who is perhaps the busiest character actor in town. "He is just about the only creator in motion pictures who is not given an academy award. I think it's time he received some recognition.

"Make-up men are creators in every sense of the word. Many of them are fine sculptors and painters. They study the script carefully and devise the right make-ups for the historical period and the dramatic effect."

Career Insurance

Make-up men are career insurance for character actors, Corey says. During 1950 alone, he has portrayed a sun-baked Indian, a grizzled frontiersman, a working man, a New York cop, and has just started a role as a bearded Moslem.

"In some roles, I have so much make-up on that you can't recognize my real face," he said. "In that way the public doesn't get too tired of my face and I can play as many roles as I want."

The actor said that movie make-up men have reached the height of a craft that began in the sixth century B.C. In the days of Thespis, presumed originator of drama, Greek actors sought ways to project themselves to the balcony seats.

They wore raised shoes to make themselves taller (as some actors do today). They raised their belt lines to their chests for the same reason. And they wore masks—different colors and expressions to denote different moods.

Slap It On

Movie men have revolutionized make-up in recent years, he added. "When I was first on the stage, it took 20 to 30 minutes to put on simple make-up. Nowadays, it all comes in one tube and you just slap it on.

"The studio men have also made great strides in the use of plastic and rubber products for facial features."

He illustrated with some of the great make-up jobs of past recent Hollywood history: Boris Karloff as Frankenstein; Irene Dunne as Queen Victoria; Jose Ferrer as Cyrano; Lon Chaney as the Wolf Man; Ann Blyth as a mermaid.

"Achievements like these are certainly worthy of academy awards," Corey said.

Asks Shipments Halted

Air Cadet Drive

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP). — Canada's 200 Royal Canadian Air Cadet squadrons Monday launched a special enrolment drive to increase the total number of air cadets from 15,000 to 22,500. Authorization for the increase was announced recently by Defence Minister Claxton. Air cadet training is open to youths between 14 and 18 as of Sept. 1 last.

Canadian Killed

WINCHESTER, England, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—Lieut. W. N. Plews a Canadian serving with the Royal Navy, was one of two men killed when a four-engined Lincoln plane crashed on a training flight near here Monday. The other casualty was an English flight-engineer from the Empire test pilot school.

Fire Squelched In Kitchen Some Damage

OMEMEE, Sept. 19—(ENS)—A fire of undetermined origin did considerable damage to the interior of Dr. Wm. Earle's home Saturday night.

Mrs. Earle was downtown and the doctor at his office when the blae started.

Dr. Earle, returning home first, found the house full of smoke. The smoke was coming from the wall behind the kitchen stove and he tried to extinguish it with water, but only unsuccessfully.

Realizing the fire might be high up in the wall, he put in an alarm.

Brigade Arrives

The Omemee brigade arrived in a few minutes and the flames were put out with chemical extinguishers.

"Ten minutes more," Dr. Earle said, "and it would have been too late." As it was ,a patch of floor covering was burned and a large piece of the wall separating the kitchen and dining room was burned completely through. There was also smoke damage

Starts In Floor

The wall behind the stove had asbestos protection and also a piece of tin. It appeard that the fire had travelled in the floor covering to the wall and worked underneath the wall protection. House and contents were insured.

East City Gets City Crown In Men's Softball League

East City won the Wm. Taylor Trophy and the championship of the City Softball League at the Bowl last night before a few hundred fans. They won the fourth game of the best-of-seven finals by a 5-4 score in 11 innings. This would have tied up the series at two games each, but Manager Johnny Russelle of Mutuals defaulted the remainder of the series.

While it was a stormy game, with arguments right up to the finish and for several minutes afterward, Russelle stated later that he had to default as he hadn't enough players. He used Tony Giardino—who is limping around as he slowly recovers from a fractured ankle—in order to field nine men for the one game played last night. Several of his regulars failed to show up. He also loses Bob Greenlaw within the next few days to the RCAF.

In Hot Water

Umpire Holly Mowry was in hot water most of the game, trouble starting when he ousted Spin Spencer in the first frame when Spencer argued too long over his right to step out of the batter's box. Later, the umpire-in-chief got in wrong with the other team when he started calling pitches "balls" against Bob Greenlaw, claiming he was taking an extra step in his delivery. This resulted in several walks and a threatened protest by Mutuals.

Down 4-0 for half the regulation game, East City kept battling away till they tied it at 4-4 in the eighth, and they won out in the last of the 11th when, with none out, Scriver walked, was sacrificed to second by O'Heron and raced home on a sharp single to left by Jaquith. Mutuals got two runs in the first and a pair in the fifth but seldom threatened the rest of the route. Both sides kicked some in the field for several unearned runs.

Haddy Wins

Haddy Eakins on the victors' mound allowed eight hits, but only two in the last six innings, while fanning seven and issuing seven walks. Bob Greenlaw for the losers also gave up eight hits as he walked six and whiffed five. He had a little better support, with a running catch in short left by Carpenter being one of the best defensive plays in the game.

Skeeter O'Heron and George Sullivan led the hitters with two for four each, the latter also going well in the field. He hit two doubles. Jaquith and Wade each came through with a double and single in five. Nels Foster topped the losers with two in six tries. It was a slow game but interesting all the way and full of arguments from the first inning till after the overtime tilt finished. The losers later went over to the East City bench and congratulated the new champions.

Foresters Win Pair To Oust Post Office

Following up their 8-8 win over Post Office, the Foresters last night defeated the Posties again by a 9-4 score to sweep their Civic Softball League semi-final series two straight. They now go into the loop finals against the winners of Bell Telephone and the Police.

A five-run drive in the second inning last night proved the difference, Foresters going on to score another in the fourth and to clinch matters with three more in the sixth. Post Office tallied two each in the third and fourth as five went down on strikes in the six-inning game, four Foresters fanning. Teams:

Foresters: Parnell, rf; Collins, c, Roberts, 1b; S. Tyndall, ss; Reid, 3b; Hobson, lf; Devar, cf; Miller, p; Walling, 2b.

Post Office: Maher, 1b Loucks, 2b; O'Toole, ss; Hay, lf; Phillips p; Coombs, cf; Bryan, c; Adams, rf; Moore, 3b.

Port Hope Captures Eastern Championship

PORT HOPE, Sept. 19 —Port Hope Ontarios had little trouble winning the Eastern Ontario championship for the OBA Juvenile "C" series as they trounced Stouffville Monday night 16-9. They annexed the title in two straight games.

Stouffville took a short-lived lead in the first frame, scoring four runs off Port Hope's starting pitcher, Mike Harrison. This was overcome as the Stouffville hurler, Ted Boadway, was shelled from the mound in the sixth after he had given up eight hits and 10 runs. George Hill relieved him.

Karl Lenahan, Port Hope, was the standout of the game. He rapped out a triple and three singles in four times at the plate, in addition to striking out 10 and giving up but six hits.

Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles swept over Eric Sturgess of South Africa two years ago to cop the US national amateur tennis championship, 6-2, 6-3, 14-12. The swarthy 20-year-old was the sensation of the tournament after being seeded eighth. He repeated the feat last year and then turned professional.

Three Teams For PCVS In Grid Play

Collegiate students this year will have their hands full. Besides trying to keep up with their fall studies they will have three teams to cheer on to victory in the 1950 grid season.

Coach G. B. (Bev) Goulding announced Monday that a third team, junior "B," has been formed to play in a lakeshore district junior "B" league with St. Peter's High School and Cobourg High. Mr. Goulding explained that each year there is a surplus of material turning out for the junior "A" squad. Each year they have not had the coaching and the necessary equipment to field a third team. This year, with the addition of Allan MacQuarrie to the teaching staff, a third team has been formed. Equipment for the seniors which arrived recently is allowing other used equipment to be passed along the line. With the junior "B" squad formed the younger boys will be picking up experience for future junior "A" material.

Start Oct. 4

This junior "B" group will commence play October 4 with the PCI'ers meeting St. Peter's juniors. The other games by the PCVS team will be played: Oct. 14, Cobourg at PCVS; Oct. 18, St. Peter's at PCVS; Oct. 21, PCVS at Cobourg

Another group in the lakeshore junior football play this year is a "B" grouping composed of Port Hope, Whitby an dBowmanville. This group and the St. Peter's—PCVS—Cobourg group will play off to meet the winner of the junior "A" league for the right to enter the COSSA semi-finals.

Alex Londry's 1949 COSSA champions will be playing this year with Oshawa and Lindsay in the junior "A" grouping. They will begin this week when they meet Fred Allore's SPHS seniors Friday night under the lights at Morrow Park. The PCVS first squad will also be playing exhibition games with the Grove of Lakefield and Toronto collegiate teams.

The junior schedules for the PCVS teams are:

Junior "A":
Sept. 22—SPHS seniors vs. PCVS (night).
Sept. 30—PCVS at Oshawa.
Oct. 6—Lindsay at PCVS (night).
Oct. 13—Toronto or Grove at PCVS (night).
Oct. 21—Oshawa at PCVS.
Oct. 24—PCVS at SPHS (return game).
Oct. 28—PCVS at Grove.
Oct 31—PCVS at Lindsay.
Nov. 4—District final.
Nov. 11—COSSA semi-final.
Nov. 18—COSSA finals.

Junior "B":
Oct. 4—PCVS at St. Peter's.
Oct. 14—Cobourg at PCVS.
Oct. 18—St. Peter's at PCVS.
Oct. 21—PCVS at Cobourg.

Pair Of 7-0 Games In Junior Soccer

The junior public school soccer league started on Monday afternoon when Grove school played May's school eleven at May's school grounds and it resulted in the latter winning 7-0.

Right from the start May's set up a steady pressure against the inexperienced Grove school aggregation to score in quick succession to make it 6-0 at the interval. On resuming, Coach Bernard lectured to his team, which showed much improvement in the second half to hold the winners to an odd goal, making it 7-0.

Grove School—T. Higgins, goal; R. Atkinson and B. Higgins, full backs; G. Barnes, G. Lapointe and A. Doughty, half backs; B. Foster, D. Cummings, F. Simmons and T. Wood, forwards. Subs., R. Godfrey, J. Spinks.

May's—B. Griffin, goal; P. Cinnamon and D. Cinnamon, full backs; D .Hill, D. Randell and J. Hill, half backs; P. Robbins, K. Clark, J. Wells, C. Clark and R. Oliver, forwards. Subs., G. Wilson, G. Millar, E. White, E. Floyd.

Referee, Mr. Paterson, King Edward School.

Prince of Wales Wins

Renewing their usual battle in soccer, Prince of Wales had Queen Mary eleven as their guests for their first league match Monday afternoon when they won 7-0 in their junior tilt with Burns being brilliant on the ball.

In the early stages Queen Mary boys played their positions but fell away badly as time wore on to allow their opponents to score three times in succession through Davies, to be followed two more by Burns, just before the interval. After the usual respite, both teams reverted back to playing their positions but Prince of Wales gained two more—one from a penalty kick and the other on an individual effort by Playford. Macfadden added the seventh.

Queen Mary—R. Beard, goal; Paul Reader and W. Routley, full backs; H. Young, A. Deck and R. Austin, half backs; H. Davies, D. Perriett, P. Cromie, G. Drury and R. Burgess, forwards. Subs., H. Milne, D. Mills, W. Dorrington, J. Jackson, G. Jackson, F. Innes.

Prince of Wales—J. Parker, goal; V. Kent and R. Cannon, full backs; R. Robinson, C. Coones and T. Downer, half backs; R. Sedore, B. Burns, J. MacFadden, T. Davis and D. Ridley, forwards. Subs., G Aikins, I Falkner, P. Johnson.

Referee, Mr. Loveday.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Heavy drills are the order this week for all local grid squads. A double-header of an exhibition nature will be run off Friday night under the Morrow Park arcs. PCVS juniors play St. Peter's seniors, while Runnymede of Toronto tackles the senior PCI-ers. That means Coaches Bev. Goulding, Alex Londry and Fred Allore of the Peterborough teams will be putting their charges through the paces. And Coach Harv Bamforth won't be sparing the Orfuns, either, as they have a tough tilt away this week-end, playing the Galloping Ghosts in Cobourg.

* * * * * *

Oshawa scribe was intrigued with the Orfuns' play here Friday. Says he: "Peterborough employed a system of razzle-dazzle which, if a team is the least bit weak or flustered in their line play, could lead to disaster. The backs are arrayed behind the quarter back of the line of scrimmage. He calls out some signals and everyone moves every which way. Almost as if they didn't know where they were going. They do, however, every man having a definite assignment. When logic does start to appear out of the confusion, play is already so far underway—the ball is snapped sometimes to a running back 15 yards away—nothing much can be done about it. It is smart, fast, wide-open football." And smart coaching, too, chum.

Juggling The Distances

Lou LeBarr advised us yesterday that New Toronto had won a protest over Mutuals in OASA intermediate "A" playdowns, and the game would be replayed here at 8.15 Wednesday night. Mutuals had swept the series in two straight and feel they can do it again. Seems they protested the distance here between the pitching rubber and the plate, finding it some five inches too long. Lou says the Mutuals measured the distance on New Toronto's diamond and found it too short by eight and a half inches. Must be that the New Toronto twirler likes a short throw. We recall when the late Orme Gamsby, intermediate Orono ball skipper, juggled pitching boxes and base lines from game to game to suit his team—and got away with it for quite a spell. He often chuckled about it after.

* * * * * *

East City edged Mutuals 5-4 in 11 innings at the Bowl last night and won the men's city softball crown when Mutuals defaulted the rest of the series. It was tied at two games each, but Johnny Russelle said he wouldn't ask Tony Giardino—who has a fractured ankle and who was used in the field in the game to make the nine men necessary—to go back in another game. Tony is really on the limp yet. Several regulars failed to show up. While we haven't any sympathy for teams which default (be it in OASA or local play) we can't blame the Mutuals too much in this case. You can't go into playoffs with eight men and a crippled-up chap.

* * * * * *

East City Prove Champs

The Ashburnham boys deserve congrats on taking the Taylor Trophy. They're a bunch of battlers and have given Mutuals a hard scrap all through the series. Came from behind last night and won it in the 11th before the slim crowd. Haddy Eakins rates an orchid as a money pitcher when the chips are down. Red Sullivan came through in fine style, to, ere leaving for the pro puck wars. So did the rest of them. Oodles of arguments, with Holly Mowry tossing out Spencer early and then getting in Dutch with the other team by calling "balls" on Bob Greenlaw, saying he took an extra step in delivery. We're not an ump, so will keep out of that—it's pretty much a matter of the umpire's judgement. And thus endeth the 1950 city softball loop season.

* * * * * *

Bantam lacrossers—only Peterborough team still left in OLA playdowns—go to Fort Dalhousie tomorrow, leaving at three bells. Return joust of the goals-to-count series will be at 8.30 p.m. Saturday here. A junior lacrosse school will be held on Sept. 24 in Millen Bowl, running from 10 a.m. till noon and from two p.m. till four. Open to all this year's juniors as well as to over-age juveniles who will be stepping up next season. Several senior coaches on deck to put the boys through their paces, such as passing, checking, shooting and so forth. The gutted-stick sport is nearly over for this year in these parts.

Canadian Football

By DON GRANT

As the summer sports, baseball, lacrosse and softball peter out, fans turn to the sport pages of the newspapers to see what is in store for them on the football front.

The growth of the sport in Canada is increasing rapidly through the network of teams across the Dominion, the colleges and the high schools. The typical growth of the sport can be seen here in Peterborough.

For a number of years the collegiate provided the only grid action in this area. Gradually the other teams were formed as the boys caught the spirit of the game. Now the local fans loyalty is split between five teams.

Football provides as many, and maybe more, thrills and suspense-packed moments than any other sport. Picture plays such as a 50- or 60-yard field run, a forward pass for a touchdown and a flying tackle, bubble one's blood while the line may hold like a brick wall or crumble on an all-important play to build up suspense.

But most fans derive more enjoyment from the game if they can argue about a certain play. But to do this successfully a fan must have a fair knowledge of the game.

Through a series of articles this fall on football the Examiner hopes to build up the knowledge of the football fan so he will know in a reasonable manner just what the teams are doing and why.

Starting with the teams and coaches other articles will deal briefly with the huddle, blocking, tackling, passing, kicking, catching the ball, running with it, the scoring and the duties of the officials. Such well-known plays as the T-formation, the quarterback sneak will be described.

OLYMPIC GAMES

The first modern Olympic Games were held in Athens in 1896.

Curtis Edges Edgar Jones As Top Scorer

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP) — One newcomer to Canadian football has nudged another out of first place in the Big Four Union scoring lists.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show that Ulysses Curtis of Toronto Argonauts has displaced Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones of Hamilton Tiger-Cats as individual leader.

Curtis, negro halfback from Florida A. & M., got two touchdowns Saturday to bring his total to six majors for 30 points, three points more than Jones, formerly with the professional Cleveland Browns.

A Canadian, Bill Larochelle of Ottawa Rough Riders, ranks third. Larochelle, native of Chaham and former Olympic runner, got two touchdowns Saturday to bring his season's figure to five for 25 points.

Top O.R.F.U.

Johnny Chorostecki still tops the Ontario Rugby Football Union although he and his fellow Sarnia Imperials have to share the scoring lists with two Windsor Rockets for the first time. The Rockets got six points against Sarnia Saturday, first ORFU scoring this season by any other team than Imperials.

Chorostecki added five points for a three-game total of 51. Eric McKeever of Sarnia ranks second with 15.

Wings Eliminate Jersey City 4-3; Montreal Wins

By The Associated Press.

For the first time in 11 years Rochester is in the final round of the International League playoffs.

The pennant-winning Red Wings eliminated Jersey City 7-3 Monday night to clinch their best-of-seven semi-final series 4-2.

Montreal Royals, behind Turk Lown's three hit hurling, downed Baltimore 8-1 to take a 3-2 lead in their semi-final set. The teams will clash again tonight in Montreal with Bill Kennedy or Karl Drews scheduled to pitch for Baltimore and Clyde King for the Royals.

Rochester opened fast, scoring four runs in the first inning and routing Jersey City's starting pitcher, Andy Tomasic. Eddie Yuhas was the winner, although he needed help from Bill Reeder in the eighth.

Don Bollweg paced Rochester's nine-hit attack with a three-run homer in the first inning, and a triple.

A six-run splurge in the fifth inning gave Montreal its big edge over Baltimore. Tommy Fine was the loser.

NHL Will Stage Earliest Opening Oct. 11

MONTREAL, Sept. 19—(CP)—The National Hockey League will stage its earliest opening this season when New York Rangers meet Detroit Red Wings in Detroit Oct. 11.

The date is one day earlier than the opening in Detroit a year ago. The same two clubs closed out the 1949-50 campaign last season April 23 when Detroit won the Stanley Cup playoffs from Rangers.

The new NHL schedule will end March 25 and each of the six teams will again play 70 games—35 at home and 35 away—for the second successive season.

Home dates at other cities:

Oct. 12—Chicago Black Hawks at Montreal Canadiens.

Oct. 14—Chicago at Toronto Maple Leafs.

Oct. 15—Canadiens at Boston Bruins; Rangers at Chicago.

Oct. 25—Boston at Rangers.

Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights are the most popular playing dates.

Montreal will have 13 Thursday and 22 Saturday dates for its home games; Toronto 11 Wednesday and 24 Saturday; New York 17 Wednesday and 18 Sunday.

Chicago Black Hawks will have 17 Sunday, 15 Thursday, two Wednesday apd one Monday.

Diversified Schedule

Boston Bruins and Detroit have the most diversified schedule at home. Bruins play two games Monday, nine Wednesday, eight Saturday and 16 Sunday. Detroit Wings, playing every night of the week except Friday, have three on Monday, two Tuesday, two Wednesday, nine Thursday, six Saturday and 13 Sunday.

The weekend and mid-week doubleheaders remain. Toronto has 23 doubleheaders on successive nights, Rangers and Boston 22 each, Canadiens 21, Detroit 19 and Chicago 18.

Three times during the 210-game season Toronto and Detroit play four times in five days Canadiens and Rangers do the same twice, while Boston and Chicago face this situation only once each.

The two Canadian teams will be free on Christmas night, with the four American teams engaged Both Toronto and Montreal play on Saturday, Dec. 23 at home and are then idle until Dec. 27 when Toronto plays at Rangers and Dec. 28 when Montreal plays at Detroit.

The Christmas night parade is Rangers at Detroit and Chicago at Boston.

All teams are engaged either New Year's Eve or New Year's night, both Toronto and Montreal playing away from home.

Rangers In Training

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—New York Rangers begin training today in preparation for their 25th season in the National Hockey League. The squad arrived here Monday. Coach Neil Colville said the Rangers would be joined next week by their St. Paul farm club for three-a-day practice sessions.

Kinder's Relief Pitching Puts Sox In Second Place

By MURRAY ROSE,
Associated Press Sports Writer

The talk was all of Ellis Kinder as the fired-up Boston Red Sox steamed into Cleveland today for a two-game series with the Indians.

After Cleveland comes the vital two-day set with the Yankees in New York Saturday and Sunday. But the hustlers from Boston are not looking that far ahead.

"Win 'em today and worry about tomorrow tomorrow," was the motto of every man from Manager Steve O'Neill down as they looked fondly in the direction of Kinder.

And well they might. For it was Kinder again who saved the "big one" against Detroit in the ninth Monday just as he did the day before. On the strength of those great rescues the Red Sox won them both, 3-2, and now are in second place, a game behind the pace-setting Yanks and a half length in front of Detroit.

It was the fifth time in the last five days that O'Neill waved in the 36-year-old Kinder to "come on in and stop 'em."

Monday's call was a lucky one. Maybe Dame Fortune will go all the way with the Red Sox this time.

Hung Around

"I wanted to give him the day off," said Steve. "I knew he was tired and I told him he could have the day off."

The Kinder of pre-O'Neill days would have scooted off post-haste. But not the current eager beaver.

" 'No,' he says to me, 'you might need me, Steve. I think I can work an inning for you'."

He did—and what an inning!

The Sox had roared from behind a 2-1 count to score twice in the ninth for a 3-2 lead.

Rookie Willard Nixon, who had pitched fine six-hit ball in a duel with Detroit's Hal Newhouser, pitched three straight balls to lead off man Joe Ginsberg. That was all for Nixon.

"Bring in Kinder," called O'Neill.

Kinder pumped in two strikes but finally walked Ginsberg. Pinchhitter Pat Mullin sacrificed but another sub swinger, Charley Keller, popped out and then Gerry Priddy grounded out.

Billy Goodman, Boston's league leading hitter, started off the winning rally in the ninth, with a single. Ted Williams' chopper gave him an infield hit and when Newhouser threw wild past first, Goodman went to third. Obviously disturbed, Newhouser took a full wind-up on Vern Stephens and Williams stole second.

Out came Newhouser and in stepped Hal White. White intentionally passed Stephens to load the bases. Walt Dropo singled to score Goodman with the tying run. Bobby Doerr flied deep to centre to bring home Williams with the winning run.

To Use Stobbs

Today Boston will call on young Chuck Stobbs (11-6) to go against Cleveland's ace, Bob Lemon, 20-11).

Boston-Detroit was the only game in the American League on Monday.

In the National, Chicago beat Brooklyn 9-7 and New York routed St. Louis 13-0.

Ron Northey's pinch-homer with the bases loaded in the seventh ruined Brooklyn and overshadowed a three-homer performance by the Dodgers' Tom Brown.

Larry Jansen's two-hit pitching was backed by a 13-hit New York barrage against St. Louis hurling. It was Jansen's fifth whitewash job and his 17th victory against 12 defeats. The victory moved the fourth place Giants within half a game of third-place Brooklyn.

Personal Contact With Children Essential In Parents' Duties

"The prime objective of all adults today must be the development of Christian youth consciousness," Major Cyril Everitt told Rotarians at their dinner meeting in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel, Monday. The topic of Major Everitt's address was "Balancing Youth in an Unbalanced World."

"Youth has come into its own in recent years," stated the speaker. Through the development of youth movements, youth has been taken care of physically by sports and to a certain extent morally, but these have failed to instil Christian consciousness which is necessary for a good balance of mind or a well integrated personality."

World Out Of Balance

Despite the fact that man has achieved balance in his mechanical creations, the world is out of balance—out of balance economically as shown by the high cost of living and out of balance nationally. "But more important still, families are out of balance," continued Major Everitt. "Problems of youth are never found where balance at home has been given during childhood."

"In the majority of cases, inmates of reformatories and prisons have not had a good home or church life. As individuals, they have as yet to be born."

"A great many children know no religious language. Children think only what they are taught to think and there is no Holy Faith or high sacrifice that they will not respond to. What youth is becoming is the all-important question. The future generation depends on what we are giving them today."

Quoting Christ's words as taken from the New Testament, "Suffer little children to come unto to me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God," Major Everitt explained that Christ emphasized the need for personal contact with children. Parents should know their children; know what types of books and magazines they are reading.

Many broken homes are the result of parental failure to deal properly with the sex subject.

Sunday School Plays Part

In addition to this personalized relationship that should exist between parent and child, the Sunday School plays an important part in moulding balanced minds in youth. "Attendance at Sunday School pays dividends in its beneficial work should never be minimized," warned Major Everitt.

"I am a great believer in summer camps," stated the speaker. "At our music camps we try to instil the idea of Christian principles into the minds of the boys and girls. This is not done by preaching. Rather we strive for a minimum of preaching and a maximum of Christian living as an example of character building."

At the beginning of his address, Major Everitt told the Rotarians that he had become an officer in the Salvation Army, because he had been called. This call did not come as a vision, nor as a voice but rather as a realization of the need for this type of work. And in the same way he wanted to impress his fellow Rotarians with the need for a true understanding of the problems of youth in this community.

Foundation Request

In conclusion the speaker asked the Rotarians to remember that, "great lives are built on great foundations and great communities are built on great foundations. It pays to pay attention to the children."

Major Everitt was thanked for his address by Rotarian Claude Elliot.

In his introduction of the speaker, Rotarian Tom Taylor, gave a summary of Major Everitt's work in the Salvation Army. He also stated that Major Everitt was celebrating his 15th wedding anniversary on Monday which resulted in a round of congratulatory applause.

Rotarian Roy Girven introduced the two visiting Rotarians and two guests—the Rev. H. P. Clarke of Halifax, Nova Scotia; R. M. Parker, Lindsay; the Rev. A. J. Scott, Lindsay and Phil Kerr, Peterborough.

In the absence of President Hugh Waddell who is attending the Inter-city meeting in Oshawa, Rotarian Burritt Smitheram acted as chairman.

NEW COMMISSIONER — Judge Archibald Cochrane, of Brampton, Ont., has been appointed a member of the Windsor police commission to carry out a reorganization of the border city's police force. Two of the three commission members resigned and the city's crown attorney was retired following an investigation of Windsor law enforcement by the Ontario Provincial Police.

REGINA, Sept. 19 (CP). — Premier Douglas returned to his desk Monday following an operation two weeks ago. He was discharged from hospital during the weekend.

War Hits Tourists

EDMONTON, Sept. 19 (CP). — The American tourist trade in Canada would have undoubtedly hit an all-time this year had it not been for the Korean war and an inflationary spiral that struck the United States as a result of war preparations, D. Leo Dolan of Ottawa said in an address Monday.

Fined For Punchboards

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP). — For printing and selling punchboards, Charles Kouri, 58, of suburban New Toronto Monday was fined $1,250 or nine months in jail. Provincial police said they found seven persons employed by Kouri making the punchboards.

Will Stand Trial

OSHAWA, Sept. 19 (CP). — Bruce R. Jemmett of Oshawa was committed for trial Monday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the traffic death of 14-year-old John Hodgson. Acting Chief Constable A. Pearce of East Whitby told the court that Jemmett was the driver of the car which struck the boy and that Jemmett was "so drunk I didn't want to be bothered with him."

Radio Trouble Stalls Mock War

HEIDELBERG, Germany. Sept. 19 — (Reuters). — The American mock war in Germany ran into real trouble Monday when 2 mysterious radio stations jammed communications between headquarters and the frontline.

Leaflets telling troops to end "Exercise Rainbow" on schedule at noon had to be dropped by air when the two transmitters blotted out all radio orders.

It was not known whether the transmissions were deliberate "iron curtain" attempts to jam United States army communications or imply routine operations of commercial stations.

But the communications officer at manoeuvres headquarters said they were definitely not Russian.

Flood Fund

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (CP). — A $1,362 flood-relief fund is being split among some 25 families who were affected by flooding of the Atikokan river early this summer.

Slack Pleads Guilty To Wartime Spying

GREENEVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 19—(AP)—Alfred Dean Slack Monday pleaded guilty in federal court to charges of wartime spying for Russia.

James M. Meek, assistant U.S. Attorney, immediately recommended a 10-year prison sentence for the 44-year-old Syracuse, N.Y., chemist.

Meek said Slack had admitted passing on to Russian agents secrets in the manufacture of RDX, a high explosive.

"In view of the fact Slack resisted in giving information to the Russian agents when he realized it was for Russia, the government is willing to accept the 10-year sentence," Meek told the court.

Prosecuted; Grateful

VICTORIA, B. C. (CP).—Prosecutors don't often get thanks, especially from the wives of the men prosecuted. But one woman was grateful for her husband being called to court and ordered to pay hospital insurance premiums. Her husband now is in hospital and if the action hadn't been taken "'we'd be faced with hospital bills we couldn't afford."

War Veterans Make Up 45% Korean Brigade

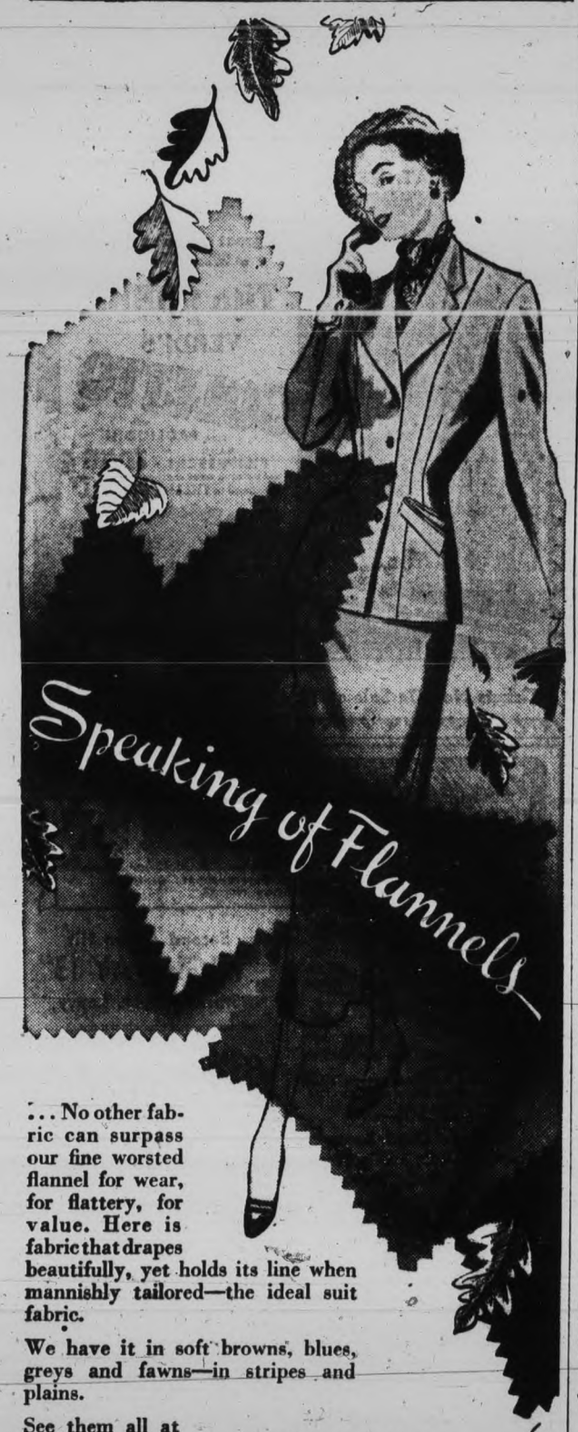
OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Veterans of the second world war make up about 45 per cent of the Canadian Army Special Force, being trained for service in Korea or elsewhere, Defence Minister Claxton said Monday in a statement.

Mr. Claxton said enlistments in the Special Force now have passed the 9,000 mark. The figure does not include the 1,000 active force personnel already assigned or to be assigned to the Special Force.

At the end of August, the force's strength totalled 8,372, including 3,813 veterans of the second world war. These included 768 men who served as non-commissioned officers in the last war.

The force included 2,630 married men, or about 30 per cent of the total strength.

Officer strength now is 235 and more applications are being studied. There still is a requirement for more junior officers, said Mr. Claxton.



The force is expected to leave Canada about mid-November to complete training, possibly on Okinawa Island in the Pacific.

Mr. Claxton also reported a steady increase in the strength of the army's active force with more than 1,800 new enlistments since the recruiting drive was launched July 20

Navy and air force figures tabulated to Sept. 9 showed that since July 20 the navy attested 542 new recruits and the RCAF 698, 327 for air crew and 371 for ground crew.

Keep Aldermen On Committees Labor Advises

Dick Ouimet and his potato chip business have found another supporter in the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL).

At the September meeting Monday night the Labor Council unanimously adopted a resolution that Mr. Ouimet be granted a licence to operate his potato chip truck and that he should not be restricted to any particular street or location.

"We are of the opinion that the approach to this matter by certain aldermen has been motivated by the desire to eliminate competition," stated the resolution which was drawn up by the executive.

When it came up for discussion Lorne Bebee, Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers, was more specific. He named Aldermen E. C. Braund and Hurrell Dodds as the two men who were "death against" Mr. Ouimet's business.

The Labor Council had another bone to pick with the city council and it was incorporated in the resolution. Delegates felt that council's committees should consist of elected members.

Consultative Capacity Only

"Permanent city employees should act in a consultative capacity only" concluded the resolution.

(The special committee whose recommendations on the licensing and location of potato chip wagons touched off the year's biggest controversy consisted of Alderman Hugh Waddell, Mayor Max Swanston, City Clerk E A. Outram and Chief Constable John Thompson).

"The city has a habit of appointing to committees persons who do not have to go to the people for election," explained William Whibbs, Local 524, International Union of Electrical Workers. "These non-elective persons are not acquainted with the day to day problems of the people of Peterborough."

Claim Business Interests

On the first part of the resolution, which he introduced on behalf of the executive, Mr. Whibbs had this comment: "There is a certain group in council that doesn't want Dick Ouimet to have a license because it will come into competition with their businesses."

"I think it's a shame that Ouimet should be cut off in this way," said Charles Liebers, Local 822, Textile Workers' Union of America.

"The warning flag is up," said Gordon James, Local 524, IUE. "Businessmen on the council are trying to stop a working man from making a living."

WANT LABOR CANDIDATE

The Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL) is considering the advisability of backing one or more labor candidates at this years' civic elections. A five-man committee was appointed Monday night to bring in a recommendation pro or con at the October meeting of the Labor Council. On the committee are William Whibbs, Gordon James and Neil McNulty, all of Local 524, IUE; Dave Hatherly, Local 599, IUE (office workers); Alfred Barber, Local 210, UPWA; and Lorne Bebee, Local 293, UPWA.

BEACH STORMING — American Marine landing craft approach the beach near Inchon under cover of a heavy smoke screen. Late reports said the Leathernecks captured vital Kimpo airfield, 10 miles west of Seoul. On the drive for Seoul itself Americans reached the Han River. Red lines 150 miles to the southwest began to crumble south and east of Taegu.

Hips Fractured When Car Hits Stone Pile

MARMORA, Sept. 19—(ENS)—Two youths are in St. Joseph's hospital with fractured hips, the result of an accident early today on Highway 7, four miles west of Marmora.

Injured are Frederick James Einarson, 19, of Bosco, and Herbert Quigley, 19, of Bracebridge.

Besides fractured hips they are both suffering from shock and cuts.

The pair were found lying dazed in their smashed car, which had run into a pile of rocks, by two brothers—Almond and Harry Boyd. About 6 a.m. the Boyds who live on the old Havelock road, south of Highway 7, heard a crash and went to investigate.

Somehow the driver, as yet unidentified, lost control of the westbound car. It continued along on the right shoulder of the road for 200 feet and then it swung across the highway toward the left ditch where it ran into the pile of large rocks.

Damage to the car is extensive.

Dr. H. G. Parkin was summoned by the Boyds; he rendered first aid and then took Einarson and Quigley to hospital.

Provincial Constable T. Lumiss of Madoc investigated.

Army Equipment Put On Display

The public are invited to view army equipment at the Armouries tonight. There will be no special parade. As Peterborough's contribution to Army Week, radar sets, predictors and guns, one with new anti-tank sights, will be on display and military mechanics will demonstrate running truck repairs. In addition to this, officers and men of the 50th HAA Regiment, Prince of Wales Rangers, will operate an information centre where the public may ask questions pertaining to active, special and reserve forces of the Canadian Army.

Story of Man With a Gun In Holdup Probed By Police

Two men reported to city police about midnight Monday that they had been confronted by a small man with a gun in the Brown service station, 412 George St. One of the men, Russell Carr, 381 Queen St., an employee of the service station, said he had taken his friend, A. S. Crocker, 115 Maude St., in to use the washroom as they were driving home.

They told police, as they were walking from the office into the back of the garage, a man with a rain coat over his arm stepped up to them from beside a bench and told them to get back into the office.

They said it looked as if he had a gun. He told them to stay there 10 minutes. After about five minutes, they went out the front door and drove to the police station.

Three constables drove to the garage and there found someone had broken into the garage building by forcing a washroom window on the east side. It was believed nothing had been taken.

The officers were Constable Grant Gillespie, Edward Patterson and Traffic Officer Gordon Trennum.

Sergeant-Detectives John Stevenson and William A. "Bud" Clark and Identification Officer Sergeant William Aggas are investigating.

21 Children Attend City's Nursery School

Peterborough's nursery school, operated by the Recreation Commission, at the Dixon House, opened Monday.

Recreation director, Alex Sinclair, said today that 12 children attended the morning class and nine in the afternoon. The capacity for each class is 20.

Last year the morning class was filled throughout the year and there was always a waiting list. The afternoon class was never quite full.

Miss Janie Lauchlan, a former school teacher in Scotland, has replaced Mrs. Joyce Taylor on the staff. Miss Jeanne Stewart is beginning her second year.

The work of the pre-school children attending includes painting, plasticine work, stringing beads and playing singing games. The instructors hold story-telling periods and teach health habits as part of the pre-kindergarten training.

Telephone Outfit Eliminates Police

Championship honors in the Civic Softball League this year will go either to the Bell Telephone or the Foresters. Monday night the Telephone crew polished off the Policemen in the semi-finals 7-0 while the Foresters clipped the Post Office 9-4 to take the other half of the semi-finals.

The first games of the finals will be held Wednesday and Friday nights at the Armour Field, best of five series. The third and fourth games will be held Thursday, September 28, under the lights. A fifth game will be played at the Bowl under the lights, if necessary, on a date to be announced later.

Austin Gets Award

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—(AP)—Warren R. Austin says "aggression shall end in Korea, and it shall be noted to all the world that the way of the aggressor is hard." The chief United States delegate to the United Nations made the declaration Monday night as he received the outstanding citizen award of 1950 from the Disabled American Veterans of New York at Madison Square Garden.

Begin Action To Expropriate South End Site

City treasurer S. A. Couper has deposited a cheque for $28,600 in the Bank of Commerce on the order of Judge Smoke as a preliminary in the expropriation of the Thomas Hughes property, Monaghan Road south.

Mr. Hughes' claim for the house and 19 acres is $52,000. A letter to the council Monday from W. F. Huycke, City Solicitor, reported that he had applied to Judge Smoke on Sept. 13 for an order to pay money into court pursuant to the Municipal Act "in order that the city could undertake its projects of veterans' housing and a new Collegiate Institute that is proposed by the Board of Education."

An affidavit of Garth Braund, valuator for the city, estimated as a fair price for land and buildings $21,800 of which $16,000 was for the land and $5,800 for the house occupied by Mr. Hughes.

Mr. Huycke informed the council that for the purpose of approach to arbitration Judge Smoke put a value of $1,200 an acre on the land and $5,800 on the house. Mr. Alford MacDougall represented the owner in the proceedings.

Southern Expansion

In its many details of expansion to the south and west, the city bought from George Rutherford the ten acres to the north of the Hughes place for part of the veterans' housing projects which Reynolds Construction Company has completed. Gillespie St., between Monaghan Road and Erskine Ave., was opened, and a long row of houses has been built on its north side. Gillespie St. is south of McKellar St.

City Clerk Outram remarked to the council last night that the payment of the $28,600 into court was not the final price. It was the amount which Judge Smoke considered to be adequate for the purpose or basis of arbitration.

It may be recalled, also, that similar action was taken in obtaining the properties comprising the site of the new City Hall. The city application, granted by His Honor Judge Smoke, permitted entry by the city. Values were agreed by negotiation with most of the owners. There were two exceptions which are still before the court for judicial decision of what the city shall pay in those two instances.

Of the 19 acres owned by Mr. Hughes, Board of Education is proposing purchase of 12 acres for a Collegiate Institute. That project is to be submitted to the ratepayers at the December elections, but it is probable that the Board may buy the land from the city council for a future site, whatever the decision of the property owners may be at the polls.

Russians Move In

HONG KONG, Sept. 19—(AP)—Chinese press reports today said 12 Russian advisers have arrived at Shek-Ki, just across the Kwangtung provincial border from the Portuguese colony of Macao, to direct the building of a new airfield. The report said the Russians arrived Friday with a number of Chinese Communist engineers and heavy equipment.

Southend Plan Storm Drains To Cost $51,514

Cost of storm drains in the area bounded by Lock, King George, Park and McGill Sts., is estimated at $51,514 in report to the council Monday night by City Engineer Chambers.

The part of the cost payable by the city as a whole is $34,633.52 or $2,953.84 a year for 15 years.

The streets on which these sewers are to be laid are:

King George, Wilson, Braidwood and McGill, between Lock and Park Sts.

Payne St. from Wilson to Braidwood.

Young St. from King George to Braidwood.

George St. (first street west of Lock and parallel with it) from Braidwood to McGill.

Jane St. from Wilson to Braidwood.

Hurley St. from Wilson to McGill St.

Herman St. from King George to Braidwood.

This undertaking is a remnant of inherited liability from the city's annexation of that part of North Monaghan. It is a flat area, and in comparatively recent years, prior to the splurge of house building, surface water lay in the fields until it soaked away or moved off into roadside ditches.

Sent to Board of Works

On attaining city status the old ditches were no longer acceptable to the new property owners. The system of storm drains was listed for eventual construction, but was necessarily preceded by the making of new roads and sewers. The Chalmers report was sent on to the board of works.

Part of the report follows: "It would be inequitable to charge the whole of the owner's art of the cost against the land abutting directly on the work as the sewers are designed to drain the streets as well as abutting property.

It is recommended that the corporation proceed under section 12 of the Act and assume 40 p.c. of the owner's part of the cost. The balance should be assessed to the abutting propery."

Cost of sewers is estimated at $36,914; catch basins and connections to storm sewers $14,600; total $51,514.

The estimated cost per foot frontage for the share of abutting property is 98 cents which when paid in 15 annual instalments, with interest at 3¼ p.c. is equal to an annual rate of 8 39/100 cents.

| | |
|---|---|
| Corporation's share of the cost: 40 p.c. of storm sewers | $14,765.60 |
| Catch basins, etc. | 14,600.00 |
| Flankage and intersections | 5,267.00 |
| | $34,633.52 |

The annual payment to be borne by the corporation for 15 years is $2,953.84.

James R. Baskin Dies In Norwood

A prominent resident of Norwood and district lumberman for the past 60 years, James Robert Baskin, died suddenly at his home on Monday in his 75th year. He was born in Hemmingford, Quebec, son of the late William Baskin and Liza Watt.

He leaves his wife, the former Ethel Gill, and two daughters, Mrs. G. M. Matheson (Aileen Maude) of Herford, England and Miss Betty Anne Baskin at home. There are two sons, James Baskin of Renfrew and Edward of Toronto and three sisters, Mrs. William Baskin (Maude) and Mrs. Fred Kemp (Anne), both of Norwood and Mrs. R. Humphries (Kay) of Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Baskin was a member of Christ Church (Anglican) and a veteran of both the Boer War and the First World War and a member of the Norwood Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Funeral will be held from his residence on Peterborough St. on Thursday to Christ Church where service will be held at 2 p.m. The Rev. P. A. Rickard will officiate and burial will be at Norwood cemetery.

OBITUARY

ALEXANDER E. MORRISON

Alexander E. Morrison, 76, of 560 Wolfe St., died in hospital after a lengthy illness. He was born in Ennismore township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morrison, and has been a lifelong resident of this district.

Mr. Morrison was a retired electrician. He was a member of the Pentecostal Assembly, IOOF, No. 111, and LOL, No. 2440.

He leaves his widow, the former Margaret McGregor; two daughters, Mrs. Perry Edwards (Mary) of Los Angeles, California, and Mrs. R. Bates (Beatrice) of Toronto; two sons, William of Toronto, and Jack of Paris, Ontario; two brothers, William of Washington, D.C., and D. E. Morrison of Hamilton, and one sister, Mrs. Crozier, of Belleville.

The funeral will be held at the Nesbitt Funeral Home Thursday at 3.30 p.m. The Rev. F. H. Parlee, of the Pentecostal Assembly, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

VISIT OF GOVERNOR

Hon. R. F. McWilliams, of Winnipeg, Lieut.-Governor of Manitoba, was a visitor Monday in Peterborough, his old home town, of which he was once mayor.

COUNCIL INVITED

City council has accepted the invitation of Kiwanis Club to their youth day luncheon Thursday. "I hope as many as possible wil be there," Mayor Swanston said.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM ROYALTY

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hunter, of Katherine Street, Lakefield, who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, received a cable of congratulations from Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

HUMANE SOCIETY

During the three summer months, 268 cats and 158 dogs were picked up by the Peterborough Humane Society, according to reports given at the society's meeting last week. Eleven cats and 12 dogs were killed on the streets and there were 13 cases of allowing dogs to run at large in court.

TALKS WAGE INCREASE

C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president, will address CGE workers Wednesday noon at the main gate. At an emergency meeting called Sunday all presidents of UE locals agreed to press for immediate wage increases, regardless of contract dates. Mr. Jackson is expected to outline these demands in his address.

ERECTING PARK FENCE

Parks department is erecting on the west of Confederation Square an iron fence which was approved by the council as a means of deterring the public from cutting diagonally across the grass to the cement walk. It is intended to grow a hedge the entire length of the fence as a screen, and as a background of milder appearance than the metal barrier.

Utilities To Erect Own Offices

The business office building of the Utilities Commission is to be erected at the northwest corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie Streets.

This site was agreed upon by the Commissioners at their Monday meeting. It is expected that the work will be completed about the same time as the new city hall, probably earlier.

Plans were studied by the commission. The three members were present, G. S. Matthews, chairman, G. A. Macdonald, Fred Hills. The building will be of one storey. Work will be begun as soon as possible this fall.

The Commission decided earlier not to ask for office accommodation in the city hall. They felt that their own property at Aylmer and Dalhousie Streets was nearer the population centre of the city than the public library block. As they studied the aspect of convenience to the public they decided against moving up George St. Transferred to Dalhousie and Aylmer Streets will be the staff of the Simcoe Streets office. There won't be any hurry in leaving, but it is the intention of the Commission to be ready to move about the time at which the old city hall will be vacated.

The northwest corner lot, at Aylmer, adjoining Utilities property, was bought last year, complete with houses. The house was torn down this year, to level the site.

Midway Employee Dies In Hospital

Raymond Ellis, 27, of Peterborough, an employee of Conklin Brothers' Midway which pulled into Lindsay on Monday for the Exhibition, died shortly after admittance to hospital as the result of an attack of double pneumonia. Mr. Ellis was removed from the fairgrounds to the hospital and died before Dr. Shier could be summoned. Dr. Collison acted as coroner and Dr. Gorman performed the post mortem.

Conklin Brothers made arrangements for the funeral at the Mc Arthur Funeral Home today. Burial will be at Riverside cemetery.

Congratulations Sent Director Of Music

Congratulations of the city council to Fred G. Mann, organist and director of the choir of St. John's Anglican Church, for his composition of the anthem "I Will Give Thanks", which was sung at the Centennial service Sunday night, were expressed in a resolution by Aldermen Dodds and Burrows.

"I think all those who took part should be commended," said Mayor Swanston. "The citizens should feel proud of that kind of progress as indicated by the very large attendance. I think we were all amazed by the number of people who were present. We should include the Ministerial Association in the resolution."

That was agreed and adopted.

Marble Workers' Increase Of Six Cents An Hour Said Highest Rate In City

The 30 production workers at the Ontario Marble Co. plant are due for a six-cents-an-hour wage boost and a bundle of retroactive pay averaging $60 a man. These are the main provisions of a new contract between Local 527, United Electrical Workers, and the company. The agreement will likely be signed Thursday. The work week remains at 44 hours.

"This new labor rate of $1.06 an hour gives the marble-workers the highest labor rate in Peterborough," commented John Rowley, UE representative.

New employees start at $1.01 an hour and advance to $1.06 in 30 days. The six-cent increase will begin with the new contract; four cents of this is retroactive to January 23, anniversary date of the last contract.

A Conciliation Board with Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville affected the settlement. The Board brought the two parties together without making a written report.

Utilities Asks Hydro Why Blackouts

Ross Dobbin trotted out a new word, "outages," in his August report to the Utilities Commission Monday. He was referring to the recent interruptions of the Hydro's flow of electricity. Three in two months, altogether, too many outages.

"There were two outages in the 44,000-volt transmission lines to the city, the first occurring Aug 11 for 11 minutes the second Aug. 27th which lasted 8 minutes. This makes a total of three outages in two months, a previous one having occurred on July 9th for six minutes."

The Commission is asking the Hydro to furnish some information of the cause of these blackouts. Outages and official silence have left the Utilities members and the public completely in the dark.

Attention is being directed by letter to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for an explanation of the interruptions.

Load up 318 H.P.

In the electric department, the August peak load was 25,058 h.p. an increase of 318 h.p. over August last year.

Consumption of kilowatt hours was 8,670,000, an increase of 819,900 kwhrs. over August 1949.

The peak load of the system (power bought from Hydro) increased 1 per cent.; the kilowatt-hour consumption increased 10½ per cent.

The pole line on King St. was rebuilt from Park to Monaghan Road. Forty-two three-wire and four new two-wire services were connected; 31 services were changed from two to three wire; 59 new water heaters were connected.

Waterworks Dept.

Total August pumpage dropped 647,000 gallons, to 160,795,000 gals.

Average daily pumpage was down 21,132 gals. Chlorine used at the pumping station was at the rate of 4.9 lbs. per million gallons; alum used was 75 lbs. per million gals.

Eighty new water services were laid, 137 valves checked, four valves repaired, 14 repacked. A large part of this department's personnel was used in erecting field lighting at Riverside Park.

Gas Department.

Gas department used 40,502 gallons of propane in August; gas production was up 269,000 cu. ft. to 5,631,000 cu. ft.; gas made in August was 5 per cent. greater than in August last year. The stack at the plant was dismantled and found to be in good shape. Three new gas services were laid.

Street Dance Part Of Centennial Year

The weatherman has promised a clear evening today for Peterborough's Centennial Street Dancing which commences at 9 p.m. between King and Charlotte Sts., on Aylmer. There is no admission and committee chairman Bruce Sargent expects a large attendance.

Fifty dollars in prize money will be distributed in four classes of special attractions, namely, step dancing for those under and over 16 years of age and fiddling in the same age groups. The Utilities department are providing flood lights for the occasion and spots for novelty and lucky-couple numbers. Jim Byrnes will provide old-time music and has arranged a large score including "The Devil's Dream," "Tuggerman's Jig," "Mississippi Sawyer" and "George Simmons Breakdown." Bob Kinsman's orchestra will supply modern music. Both orchestras will be stationed on transport trailers and a hardwood platform will provide a firm foundation for step-dancing entrants.

Bethany Parents Look For Son 15

Fifteen-year-old Gordon Wood of Bethany has been missing from his home since Saturday noon and his parents have asked the assistance of the Provincial Police to try to find him.

His mother, Mrs. Rupert Wood, told the Examiner she did not know why the boy ran away. However, it is known that on Saturday afternoon he lost a borrowed shotgun in Gribble's pond and he may have been afraid to face up to the loss.

Neighbors said that they saw him about 8.30 p.m. Saturday trying to hitch-hike west on Highway 7.

Young Wood is five-foot-four, has dark hair, blue eyes, and weighs 108 pounds. When last seen by his mother he was wearing blue overalls, a red plaid shirt, brown reversible parka, and laced rubber boots.

He may be carrying a knapsack.

Mary Richards Wed at Cavan

A pretty autumn wedding took place in the United Church at Cavan Saturday afternoon of Mary Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Richards, and Mr. Robert Conrad Stinson, son of Mrs. Percy Stinson and the late Mr. Stinson, Millbrook. The Rev. T. G. Husser officiated. The church was decorated with tall standards of white gladioli and fern. Miss Velma White played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chantilly lace and faille taffeta made with a fitted bodice and full skirt ending in a short train. Her finger tip veil was of silk illusion, enhanced with a bonnet of tulle edged with lace and seed pearls. She carried a lace muff, trimmed with white Amazon lilies and gardenias. Miss Bernice Richards, Toronto, attended her sister, wearing a gown of bronze nylon net over taffeta with matching braided tiara and mittens. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and white and bronze 'mums. Miss Linda Howson, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a frock of pale green taffeta with matching bonnet and carried a nosegay of Talisman roses and mauve and white 'mums.

Mr. Fraser Carr was the groomsman and ushers were Milburn Richards, brother of the bride, and Donald McKnight. Mr. Edward Hewitt, Galt, sang "O Perfect Love" and "Because" and Miss Velma White played the wedding music.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Her mother wore a dress of aqua crepe with black hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Stinson, who assisted, wore a two piece dress of printed grey crepe with grey accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Friends of the bride who served refreshments were Velma White, June Miller, Betty Adams and Mrs. Alton Madill.

For the wedding trip to Toronto and points north the bride donned a dressmaker suit of Periwinkle blue English gabardine and brown accessories. She carried a coat of beige wool gabardine and wore a corsage of pink roses. On their return they will live in Cobourg.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ottawa, Galt, Toronto, London, Peterborough, Kincardine, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Cold Springs and Baltimore.

Beta Sigma Phi Makes Plans For Fall Projects

Members of Ontario Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. E. McWilliam, 408 Monaghan Road, to discuss plans and work on projects for the bazaar to be held December 16, jointly with XI Iota Chapter.

During the evening Miss Mary Clifford reported on the sale of tickets on the squirrel neckpiece. Members were asked to hand in all ticket returns at the next meeting.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale at an early date, possibly Saturday.

Arrangements for rushing new pledges were discussed and it was decided to hold the rushing party on October 2. Vice-President Mrs. E. McWilliam is to be in charge.

Director Mrs. M. Holt suggested that the installation of officers be held at the next meeting, Sept. 25, at the Y.W.C.A.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. J. Dougherty and Mrs. A. Bianco.

Queen's Gift Thrills Girl In Great Britain

LONDON—(CP)—Presentation to Queen Mary is an enviable honor, but for 11-year-old Sarah Winters it led to something which made the young girl very happy.

Sarah was presented to Queen Mary at a matinee of "The Family Honor," produced by her grandmother, Nancy Price, and starring her mother, Joan Maude. In the course of their conversation, Sarah told the Queen Mother about her collection of Victorian china and glass, on which she lavishes most of her pocket money.

Shorty afterward, the girl was delighted to receive from Queen Mary a gift of two cases of miniatures. They contained a trayful of tiny bottles and decanters, iridescent glass fish. A cloisonne box containing a pendant and a miniature 'cello with a knife and a button-hook inside.

With the gift was a letter addressed to Nancy Price, who was created a Companion of the Order of the British Empire in this year's birthday honor. It said:

"Queen Mary was much impressed by the acting of your charming daughter. She is glad to know that your grand-daughter has started collecting as such an early age and has looked out a few things for her."

Sarah started her collection when she was only six.

A detailed list of the pieces was included, signed by Queen Mary.

Sarah regards it as valuable as the rest of the gift.

34 Girls Enroll In New Class At Civic Hospital

Thirty-four young women on Monday presented themselves at the Civic Hospital School of Nursing and proceeded to make themselves ready for training in the profession of nursing.

As the new nurses' residence is not yet ready for occupancy, they met for a get-acquainted period in the hospital cafeteria at lunch time.

Peterborough girls registered are Misses Katherine Craig, Betty Jaquith, Margaret Lee, Lillian Luther, Eleanor McGee, Shirley Roberts and Wilma Young.

Miss Marion Seymour, BSE of Campbellford has joined the class for her final year's study.

Misses Norma Armitage, Betty Berry, Deseronto; Ann White, Oshawa; Frances Hanna, Toronto; Laurene Beach, Cannington; Jean Bell, Marjory Flavelle, Lindsay; Alva Bullock, Eleanor Deck, Ruth Garbutt, Ruth Graham, Lakefield; Carol Chestnut, Joan Giffen, Barbara Jacks, Margaret MacTaggart, Alice Moncrief, Nesta Williams, Port Hope; Marilyn Haig, Barbara Loucks, Isabel McCulloch, Campbellford; Frances Hogg, Lois Stackhouse, Norwood; Fay Jones, Newtonville; Ruth Poole, Bobcaygeon; Wilma Seymour, Cavan; Elizabeth Taylor, Cobourg.

YWCA Board Meets For Luncheon In New Cafeteria

A luncheon Monday in the new monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y and enabled the members to enjoy the completely re-modelled and re-decorated facilities of the dining-room which is now open to the public.

Reports of the various conveners described the extensive painting of the interior and exterior of the building which has been done, refurnishing of the residence rooms, installing of another fire alarm bell and additional fire extinguishers.

The swimming report showed a total of 1,732 using the pool during June, a considerable increase over last year. Three regular attendants were polio patients who are showing much benefit from the exercise.

More than $100. was sent to the Manitoba Flood Fund as proceeds of a repeat performance of the gym and ballet pageant.

The two-week day camp and junior art class, held during the summer, were enthusiastically attended and the children received instruction in handicrafts, folk dancing, swimming and art.

"Country Fair", to be held Thursday, October 5, commencing at seven thirty o'clock, is an affair in which all Y groups and clubs will contribute to the program. This will include a fashion show, pool show, jitney dance, exhibits and stalls of interest to everyone.

The meeting closed with the Y prayer led by president Mrs. T. J. Carley.

Business Women Have Dinner At Youngs Point

Peterborough Business and Professional Women held their first monthly dinner of the fall season Monday at Lakeview House, Young's Point, with 31 present. Tables were attractive with tall red tapers and fall flowers.

Guest speakers were Mrs. Marjorie Pewtress, regional advisor and past president, and Miss Madeline Rooney, chairman of ways and means and honorary president of the Cobourg Club. They gave a most comprehensive resume of the international federation meeting at Halifax in July Both were introduced by Mrs. Lyda Telford.

During a short business session tickets for the tea being held on October 25 in the YWCA Green Room were distributed by Miss Jane Saunders. The sum of $350 was passed for the new Civic Hospital for a waiting room to be furnished by the club.

The Provincial convention being held in Windsor, October 8 to 10 was discussed and president Mrs. Jean Watson and press and publicity convener Miss Helen Lytle were appointed the official delegates.

Mrs. Mabel Louden moved a vote of thanks to the speakers.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

Regular meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, a party for 28 graduates of last year's class and the presentation of sweaters to the senior sportsmen were combined Monday evening. The meeting room was well filled with members and guests who were welcomed by president Mrs. P. S. Dallin. Mrs. J. R. Healey and Mrs. Art Lewis received at the door.

Mr. K. McKee, assistant principal and sports director, spoke of the amalgamation with Queen Elizabeth School in the sports program. Presentation of twelve sweaters from the Association to the senior boys was made, captain John Morris accepting them on behalf of the team.

Mrs. E. S. Kingdon presented a past president's pin to Mrs. O. J. Hayward and was assisted by Kaaren Gatfield who presented a lovely corsage.

Vice president Mrs. A. Black extended congratulations to the graduate with the highest standing, Carol Laing, and presented the Association's gift to the student in second place, Barbara Craig.

Top boy in the graduating class was Robert McKinney, whose father, Mr. Quirt McKinney, became chairman for the program.

Principal Mr. J. E. R. Munro addressed the gathering, building his talk around the words "character" and "education." He then introduced a new member of the staff, Miss Arnold.

Mr. Charles Allen contributed two piano selections and also accompanied Mrs. Jean McKenzie who sang the "Second Minuet" and "You tell me your dream." He then played for a sing song led by Mr. McKinney.

A film on the Glacier International Park was shown.

"Cinderella's Castle," the work of children in grades one and two under Miss G. Cox, was on display in the corridor.

The ladies were server tea by Mrs. E. Simmons and her committee and the graduates and sportsmen had ice cream and cake.

India expects to import 385 locomotives this year.

MISS GAYLE ELEANOR POLLOCK, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pollock of Trent River, whose engagement to Mr. John Maclean Donald, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Donald of Campbellford, is announced. The wedding will take place October 14 in Trent River United Church.

Food for Thought

By MARY MOORE

What my daughter, Marianne, wants to know is if the corn grows that high how do Oklahomans pick it? I said she would have to go to Iowa to hear really tall tales about the corn—such as standing on a ladder with a butcher knife and chopping the ears off. The Oklahomans are modest in comparison.

Our family holds corn in such a lofty category that regardless of how I fix it they love me for it.

We reached a new high last night when starting our campfire supper we had fried thick slices of beef tenderloin (the price had come down for one day to $1 per pound), and had dipped slices of bread in the pan gravy; this feasty food was followed by corn on the cob boiled in an old trusty camping pot, BUT first wrapped in parchment paper.

Now, people, that sounds simple enough, but the flavor was superb. Another thing — you had that parchment paper to hold your corn in, to catch your dripping butter, and to keep you from becoming any messier than necessary.

You out-of-doors friends, try it We only boiled it 3 minutes in water that did not even cover it

Sister's Corn Chowder

This is another September special of this family's.

Two cups corn cut fresh from the cob, 3 cups cubed raw potatoes, 1/3 cup fat salt pork (or breakfast bacon) cut into ¼-inch cubes, 1 onion sliced very thin, 4 cups whole milk, 8 crackers, 3 tablespoons butter. Try out the fat salt pork in heavy frying pan and add the onion and saute 5 minutes. Add potatoes and 2 cups boiling water and simmer 5 minutes, then add milk, corn and salt and pepper to taste and up to ½ teaspoon curry powder. Simmer over very low heat for about 10 minutes until potatoes are soft. Have ready the soup bowls or tureen in which this is to be served, but putting heavily buttered crackers in them — 2 for each serving. Pour chowder over and serve at once, piping hot. This is a good hot dish to have when the ice box is getting low on food and you have skimpy amounts of cold roast to serve.

Fresh Corn Casserole

Two cups corn cut fresh from cob (or in winter use a can of kernel corn), 1 small green pepper, cut finely, ½ grated onion, 2 tablespoons each butter and flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each cayenne an ddry mustard, 1 cup milk, 1 beaten egg, 1 cup stale bread cut into ½-inch cubes, 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine. Saute the onion and pepper in the 2 tablespoons butter until soft but not brown. Add the flour and all of the seasonings and mix well. Gradually stir in the milk until thick. Add a little of the mixture to the egg stirring, then add his to the sauce, stirring. Add corn. Mix. Pour ino buttered casserole. Mix the bread cubes with the melted butter and sprinkle these over the top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes or until nicely browned.

This dish seems especially appropriate with roast beef. It seems to be a natural with it like Yorkshire pudding. It is also good without the roast beef — we know — we tried it as the featured part of a vegetable plate. Go thou and do likewise and save your meat money for one day.

Seger-Stevenson

HAVELOCK, Sept. 19 — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Woodbridge, Friday, when Delores Verna Stevenson of Havelock, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Stevenson became the bride of Arnold H. Seger of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Seger of Fort Frances. The Rev James Hodgson officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore powder blue silk jersey, with light grey accessories and a grey shortie coat. She was attended by Mrs. William A. Crain of Woodbridge who wore grey with navy accessories. Both wore corsages of American Beauty roses. Mr. Crain was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Silver Grill, Toronto. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to point seast. They will live in Toronto.

Continue Loveless Marriage To Give Children Home

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I married when we were boy and girl. Now twelve years later we find that we have outgrown our youthful passion, that we are completely out of love with each other and that there is little congeniality between us. Neither one of us would now select the other for a mate. If we had only ourselves to consider we would not hesitate to part, but we have two splendid children who are just coming to the age when they most need a home and a mother and a father, and we do not feel that we have a right to take our happiness at their expense. Besides, we both adore our children. Can two people situated as we are make even a near success of marriage?

MABEL.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Undoubtedly you can. Intelligence is just as much a factor in making a successful marriage as love is. Perhaps, indeed, it goes farther in making a happy marriage than love does because the more emotional a man and women are the more prone they are to jealousies and quarrels and unreasons and the various temperamental qualities that are thrilling at moments, but uncomfortable for daily companionship.

Romance Short-Lived

After all, romantic love seldom outlives the honeymoon. Commonplace people in a commonplace world cannot long thrill over each other and palpitate at the sound of each other's footsteps. Most husbands and wives cease to be lovers and settle down into being friends, and that is a very beautiful and comfortable relationship.

That is what you and your husband can make of your marriage if you will. A friendship. A partnership out of which you can both get great happiness if you will make an intelligent effort to do so. Nor is this as difficult as it sounds. You have only to take as much trouble to make yourselves agreeable to each other as you would make to attract any stranger.

To begin with you have a common interest in your children that insensibly draws you together. Your dominant desire is to make them happy and to rear them into being fine men. The man and woman who have bent over a cradle together and watched over a sick baby, and taught a toddler to walk have a tie between them that nothing can ever really break.

As for getting along harmoniously together that is simply a mtter of volition. There is no use in saying that you can't be on your P's and Q's and watch your tongues with the members of your own household. We can do it just as easily with them as we can with strangers and every one of us minds his manners with those he desires to propitiate.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Why are old maids so much more unhappy than old bachelors are? You see lots of jolly old bachelors, but few cheerful old maids. Most men who do not marry look as if they had achieved success in keeping single, but most unmarried women have a disappointed air about them. Why is this?

A GROUP OF GIRLS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think that explanation of the difference between old maid and old bachelor on their outlook on marriage is a hangover from the days when it was considered a reflection, if not an actual disgrace, for a woman not to achieve a husband.

Of course, there is no longer a stigma upon being an old maid. Women marry now or not as they please, just as men do, but it is still true that women are much more anxious to marry than men are and that when they fail to marry they somehow feel that they have missed the greatest thing in life, no matter what other good fortune fate has bestowed upon them.

Perhaps this is because women crave love more than men do, or because they desire children more than men do, or because they are more romantic and credulous. Nobody knows, but it is true that the average old bachelor takes single blessedness much more philosophically than the old maid does.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a well-educated, intelligent man and by profession a writer. During my college days I fell deeply in love with a fine, sweet, ordinary girl with little education. Ever since she has always been perpetually in my mind. Her presence makes anything a success. Her absence makes it a failure. If I marry her will I be content with her. Does education make any difference if a man is deeply in love?

H.K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Nobody knows what sort of a wife a man will be content with. He often doesn't know himself. Evidently this girl has a strong physical attraction for you, but whether it will last when there is no mental congeniality is difficult to say. I should think that a literary man would find an illiterate wife a poor choice as a life companion.

Diplomats' Wives Taking Dancing Lessons

NEW DEHLI — (CP) — Indian dancing, with a wide following abroad, has aroused keen interest among the wives of foreign diplomats in New Dehli. Some of them have been taking private lessons for the past year.

Interest was first aroused when Mrs. Sundri Shridharani, a noted Indian dancer, gave a lecture and demonstrations to the American Women's Club. Some of the members later asked for lessons.

The dances consist of specially-composed prayer and folk dances in the style of world-renowned Uday Shanker. To get the correct atmosphere the pupils wear Indian skirts and cholies (short jackets with short sleeves, fastened tt the back).

"The dancers have a keen sense of rhythm" says Mrs. Shridharani, "and are promising students". Among the students are the wives of the members of the American, British, Canadian and French embassies.

Nursery School For 3-year-olds

AGINCOURT—(CP)—The boys outnumber the girls, three to one, in one co-ed school here, but the lasses don't seem to appreciate the fact.

The school is a nursery group and the boys and girls are 3 and 4 years of age.

The Agincourt Nursery School was opened Sept. 5 and is flourishing, helped by the co-operation of Knox United Church, and guided by a teacher who came out of retirement.

No attempt is made to teach subjects covered in kindergartens where the customary age is 5. The 24 express themselves with crayons and water colors, block and beads, simplified jig-saw puzzles and other constructive accessories.

"Most of all," says Mrs. Mel Winterton, one of the two founders, "we're teaching the children how to get along with others. The progress they made in a week was amazing."

All money received from the school is used to pay the teacher and buy equipment and fresh orange juice for the mid-morning recess. No attempt it made to show a profit. Though held in co-operation with the United Church the school also embraces members of the Anglican and Presbyterian faiths.

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Many Ways to Serve Eggs For Attractive Appetizers

"300 Ways to Serve Eggs," the tenth cookbook in the series of twenty-four Culinary Arts Institute Cookbooks now being made available to readers of The Examiner by the release of one book a week, has just made its appearance, and it is just full of ideas for using eggs—from appetizers to desserts.

Such attractive appetizers can be made with eggs, and since they can be made in advance, they are especially suitable to the cook who is also hostess. For a base prepare Golden Egg Butter and then follow any of the numerous suggestions in the Egg Book for attractive variations.

Golden Egg Butter

4 hard-cooked Egg Yolks
4 tablespoons Cream
½ teaspoon Prepared Mustard
Dash Salt and Pepper

Mash egg yolks; mix with remaining ingredients. Use as a spread or filling for egg whites.

Filled Egg Hors D'oeuvres

Whites of 4 Hard-Cooked Eggs
1 recipe Golden Egg Butter
1 tablespoon Caviar

Peel eggs and cut crosswise into halves. Separate yolks and whites, using yolks in preparing golden egg butter. Fill whites with the egg butter and garnish each half with a bit of caviar in centre.

Fill egg whites with anchovy butter or liver sausage. Garnish with pimiento or pearl onions.

Fill egg whites with anchovy or other fish butter, liver sausage or cream cheese and garnish with pimiento, paprika or pearl onions.

Fill egg whites with a mixture of ½ Golden Egg Butter and ½ pea puree. Add few drops Worcestershire sauce. Garnish with a dash of cayenne.

To get your copy of the Egg Book clip a coupon from page 2 of any issue of this newspaper and present it with 25c at The Examiner Office, or from your Examiner carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets. Or if you wish to obtain your copy by mail send 30c (5c additional for postage and handling) to Cookbook Department, Examiner, Peterborough. You can still catch up on the earlier titles, Snacks, Leftovers, Cakes, Poultry, Pies, Soups, Salads, Meat and Fish, by presenting one coupon for each book and 15c. Since the coupons appear daily in all issues, it is easy to fill whichever titles may be missing. The earlier numbers can also be obtained by mail.

Fall Frolic Rates Top Grade In Entertainment

The Peterborough Golf and Country Club's "fall frolic" at the club house was a glorious occasion to more than 75 couples. Arranged by an all-man committee it provided prizes for attendance and dancing, a banquet bar and refreshments, and orchestra music, all for the low-priced admission ticket.

President Bert Cutmore did the honors in drawing for the ladies' door prize which went to Mrs. Grant Curtain, and past president Hugh Waddell drew Bill Vanstone's number which gave him the other door prize.

Novelty dances were won by Misses Sheila Young, Miss Noreen Nelson, Mrs. E. Henwood, Mrs. B. Bell, Mrs. T. Montgomery, Mrs. J. Dunn and Messrs. Ivison Walker and Maurice Holt.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. Pope, Mr. A. O'Heron and Miss Joan Hickey, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. A. Clapper, Mr. and Mrs. D. ## Edith Glover Becomes Bride Of H. Redden, Warkworth

In St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Warkworth on Saturday the wedding took place of Edith May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarence Glover, and Mr. Harold W. G. Redden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Garnet Redden, all of Warkworth.

Basket of white and yellow gladioli and white dahlias, banked with ferns, were the setting for the ceremony performed by the Rev. J. M. Ritchie. Miss Myrtle Hardy of Morganston played the wedding music and Mrs. J. M. Ritchie sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride's gown was of white French lace, the bodice having a nylon net yoke, and the circular skirt featured a peplum draped softly into a long train. Her fingertip veil was of French illusion net caught to a matching lace cap trimmed with orange blossoms which was her mother's bridal headdress. She carried white gardenias with fleur d'Amour and ivy.

Mr. Glover gave his daughter in marriage and she was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Evelyn Redden as maid of honor, Mrs. Louis King and Mrs. John Stringer, bridesmaids, and her sister Miss Isabel Glover was junior bridesmaid. The attendants all wore frocks of green nylon net over taffeta and picture hats in matching shade. Their cascade bouquets were of rust and yellow 'mums with ivy.

The bride's brother Alex Glover was groomsman and ushers were her brother James Glover, Thomas Wallace and John Stringer.

For the reception at the bride's home her mother chose a dress of French blue crepe and lace and wore a navy hat and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother who assisted her to receive was dressed in grey and wore a navy hat and pink roses.

The couple are taking a wedding trip to Gaspe, Maine and New York city, and when they return will live in Warkworth. When going away the bride was wearing a brown gabardine suit, brown accessories, and a topcoat in cinnamon shade. Her corsage was gardenias.

Guests attending the ceremony were from Jersey City, Midland, Toronto, Brantford, Peterborough, Belleville, Deseronto, Grafton, Brighton, Campbellford, Trenton and Bonarlaw.

What's Right

You move into a new neighborhood and several persons in the block come to call on you.

WRONG: Make no move toward getting better acquainted if you oren't particularly impressed with your callers.

RIGHT: Return the call as a matter of courtesy. If you do not wish to make any further effort toward getting better acquainted, that is quite all right—but the first calls should be returned without fail.

They discovered Aluminum!
AN "INSIDE STORY"
1900—It wasn't only Grandma's cooking that drew the crowds. She had the first aluminum saucepan in town! In many other Canadian homes, too, this was the beginning of a bright, new era of better cooking utensils.
1925—When mother got married, she already knew how to enjoy life with aluminum. She brewed Dad's coffee in an aluminum pot... cooked those big family meals more easily in quick, even-heating aluminum.
1950—Today, daughter's kitchen belongs to the "aluminum age". She enjoys a larger selection of aluminum utensils. This "food-friendly" metal also protects the flavour, quality and purity of the foods she buys.
HINTS TO THE HOUSEWIFE
Whenever you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of cleanliness and purity.
Aluminum utensils clean easily. To remove natural deposit left by foods and water, use a tablespoon of vinegar in boiling water.
ALUMINUM COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.
Aluminum has been friendly to food for 50 years!

You may need 7 specialists to manage your estate!
Few people have any idea of the tremendous amount of work and skill involved in managing an estate.
Specialists are needed to deal with Taxes, Insurance, Investments, Real Estate and Mortgages. Expert Accounting is also necessary to prepare the detailed statements required by the courts.
As Executor, National Trust makes available the services of all the specialists required . . . immediately . . . and at no extra cost. Your estate can thus be managed to the greatest benefit of your family. Often savings can be effected far in excess of fees — and the fees allowable by the court are the same to an individual Executor as to National Trust.
Your inquiries will be welcomed.
Write for This Free Booklet
It explains the duties and requirements of an Executor and how the fees of an Executor are fixed. It gives you interesting and valuable information — whether your estate is small or large.

Cotton Exports Up

KARACHI, Pakistan, Sept. 19 (AP) — Exports of cotton by Pakistan reached a new peak of 1,240,000 bales in the year ending Aug. 31, official figures show. This compares with 790,000 bales exported in the previous 12-month period. Hong Kong was the largest buyer, taking 250,000 bales.

Extend Daylight Time

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP). — City council Monday approved extension of daylight saving to Nov. 26 by a vote of 17-4. The move, previously passed by Board of Control, was intended to help the power situation, concern for which was felt by increased war production, councillors said.

Arrest 266 Reds

PARIS, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—The French Interior Ministry, which arrested 266 foreign Communists Sept. 7 for deportation, announced today that 65 of those arrested had been expelled from Corsica and 86 from Algeria. Those who preferred expulsion to eastern Europe were sent to East Germany, the Ministry said.

Agree On Power

BERLIN, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—East and West Germany have "virtually agreed" on large-scale exchange of electric power, water and gas, a West German spokesman said Monday. The exchange would take place at 12 frontier points and Berlin. Berlin's public utilities were cut off from normal supply sources by the division of the city into occupation sectors.

OBITUARIES

MRS. BRUCE C. CLARK

Mrs. Bruce C. Clark, 54, of House No. 2, Lift Lock died Tuesday at St. Joseph's Hospital following a lengthy illness. She was born in Glasgow, Scotland, the former Helen Taylor Black, daughter of the late Alexander Black and Helen McIlwaith.

Mrs. Clark has resided in Peterborough since she came to Canada from Glasgow in 1912. She was a member of Mark St. United Church and of the Women's Auxiliary.

She leaves her husband, Bruce Christie Clark, four sons, Robert, at home, Wallace of South Porcupine, Alexander and Llewelyn of Peterborough; one daughter, Isabel, at home; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Veitch and Mrs. Janet Thorne of Peterborough, and Mrs. Harry Seymour (Isabella) of Ottawa and two brothers, Alexander of Peterborough and Robert of Albany, New York.

The funeral service will be held from Mrs. Clark's late residence to Mark St. United Church Friday at 3 p.m. It will be conducted by the Rev. B. S. Moorwood, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Rowland. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery. Funeral arrangements by Nesbitt Funeral Home.

MRS. FRANK ELMHIRST

Mrs. Frank Elmhirst, 73, of RR No. 1 Keene, died today in hospital following a short illness. She was born at Villiers, Janet Elizabeth, daughter of the late Peter Gillespie and Jane Scott, and has lived in the Otonabee district a lifetime. A brother, James Gillespie, predeceased her.

Besides her husband she leaves three daughters, Mrs. Percy Wilson (Bertha) of Keene, and Mrs. Charles McIntyre (Jean) and Mrs. Ross McIntyre (Edith), both of Peterborough. There are two sons at home, Harold and Arthur, and a third son James in Keene. Two sisters live in the city, Mrs. Jean McIntyre and Mrs. Hamilton Hutchison, as well as one brother Alex Gillespie. Mrs. Elmhirst was a member of Keene United Church.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

MRS. DONALD FERGUSON

Mrs. Donald Ferguson, 84, of 16 Cricket Place, died Tuesday following a lingering illness. She was born in Fenelon Township, the former Annie Campbell, daughter of the late John and Mary Campbell. Her husband, Donald Ferguson, predeceased her.

Mrs. Ferguson was educated in Fenelon Falls. She has resided in Peterborough for the past 23 years, formerly living in Mariposa and Glenarm, Ontario. She was a member of Mark St. United Church.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. D. H. McKinnon (Ella) of Peterborough, Mrs. William Osborne (Bell) of Toronto and Mrs. R. S. Cameron (May) of Oakwood and five sons, Thomas, Angus, Jack and Ken of Peterborough, and Donald of Hamilton; one sister, Mrs. Mary Nesbitt of Peterborough and four brothers, Don of Peterborough, Angus and Colin of Oakwood and John of Woodville.

The funeral service will be held from Mrs. Ferguson's late residence, 16 Cricket Place, Thursday at 8 p.m. to Glenarm Presbyterian Church where service will be held Friday at 2 p.m The Rev. E. W. Rowland will conduct the service. Burial will be in Glenarm cemetery.

GEORGE HENRY SISSON

George Henry Sisson, 84, of 423 Downie St., died Tuesday in hospital following a lengthy illness. He was born in Bethany, son of the late John Sisson and Eliza Kidd. His wife, the former Lillian Blanche Barnicott predeceased him in 1948.

Mr. Sisson came to Peterborough in 1940, residing before that time in Port Hope.

He leaves two daughters, Iva of Peterborough, and Mrs. P. Gilbert (Beatrice) of Port Hope; five sons, Stanley of Peterborough, Milford of Port Hope, Clifford of Toronto, Lawrence and Frederick; one brother, Hugh of Lindsay and one sister, Mrs. Charles Smith of Bethany.

The funeral will be held at the Nesbitt Funeral Home, Thursday at 2 p.m. The Rev. F. H. Parlee of the Pentecostal Assembly will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Men In Love With The Sea Different Kind Of Species

By JACK SCOTT

POINTE-AU-PERE, Quebec. — We had followed the highway down the south bank of the St. Lawrence as far as St. Anne-de-la-Pocatiere and then it curved inland through farm country with white-sided, red-roofed barns, then back down to the river again, and then at Pointe-au-Pere, a few miles past Rimouski, it happened.

The windows of the car were opened because it was a fine, warm, autumn day. For some strange reason we had all begun sniffing the air like retrievers.

"It couldn't be . . ." I began.

"But it is!" Brown Eyes cried. "Seaweed!"

I pulled in hastily by the side of the road, almost on the lawn of a small cottage facing out to the gulf, and we scrambled like fools from the car, across the road and down across a slope of gravel to the water's edge.

The kelp along the shore was amber and glistening.

Small, bulbous-eyed fish (could they be bullheads?) darted in the quiet pools left by the tide. Tern and seagulls were floating lightly on the dark blue water which stretched away into a light blue haze. From a red and white lighthouse a half mile up the shore came the lonesome clang of an iron bell.

I bent to the water, dipped my hand in it and gave it the tongue test. It was sure enough salty to the taste. I turned and saw that my wife and the kids were crouched, smelling the seaweed. We were all a little foolish with happiness.

After exactly 6,767 miles of travel we'd come once more to the edge of an ocean . . . from the Gulf of Georgia to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Men In Love

Please. Don't tell me I'm sounding like John Cabot just because we made a drive that thousands of tourists make every year. I grant you that it's no exploit. But it is a thrill for a seaside dweller to whiff that wonderful fragrance after nearly four months away from it.

What a wonderful tang it has! If this trip of ours has confirmed any prejudice it has been that devotion for the ocean.

Take your glorious mountains, take your beautiful plains of wheat, your forest, your hill and dale. Give me a small corner where the surf sighs and there's a sharp, clean smell of salt water and I will ask for no more.

When we had fueled up our lungs with that ozone we returned to the trailer to find a place to park for the night. I saw that the porch of the cottage was occupied by a small, elderly gentleman wearing a Basque beret.

He was surveying us with open curiosity and I realized that our performance must have seemed extraordinary, if not downright ludicrous. All that sniffing of the kelp, the finger dipped in the water and, too, we were now all carrying bouquets of seaweed and wearing idiotic smiles. It could have been alarming.

I felt that some explanation was called for, pointed dramatically at our British Columbia license plates, swept my arm out to the gulf and called up to him, "Le mer. Formidable."

At first I wasn't sure he understood. But then a quick and wonderful smile creased the old man's face. He spoke very rapidly in French, none of which I understood, and concluded with a sweeping motion of his arm out to the sea that made mine seem amateur theatrical stuff.

We had at that moment an understanding that transcended any barrier of language or temperament. We both happened to have the same love.

Down River

Our farewell this morning to Quebec City was a reluctant one.

We hauled our caravan through the city at eight o'clock with the early morning sun showering the old stone town with silver. The suburbanites were converging with their bright morning faces on the business district, the children, so neatly and formally dressed, trudged to school and, for the moment, we felt . . . well . . . out of things.

But then we were out in the open country where fall has its first grip with here and there bright new rust through the green. And again the kind of country that keeps the traveller's head on a swivel as we hummed along a fine broad road past the neat farms with barns as bright to the eye as a Georgia O'Keefe painting and the broad St. Lawrence unfurling alongside with the Laurentians rising like dark clouds in the distant mist.

On through the little towns that press in, as if for companionship, upon the road, each dominated by the great high churches and the farms that run in narrow strips down to the river between fences grey with age.

It was a pleasant prelude to that exciting moment when the old familiar tang brought us to a halt.

We have moved no more than a hundred yards from where it hit and here for the night we've set up camp within sight, sound and smell of the sea.

Driver Absolved In Man's Death By Coroner Jury

MARMORA, Sept. 19 (ENS).—The driver of the car which struck and killed Michael Coules, 67, of Cordova, while he was walking across the main street of Marmora after midnight Sept. 9, was absolved from blame by a coroner's jury here Monday.

"The deceased came to his death . . . as a result of being struck by a car driven by Leo Willman (Madoc) and we attach no blame to the driver of the car," the verdict read.

Thomas Revoy said he saw Mr. Coules struck down by the Willman car as it was travelling south. He could give no evidence of the collision between the Willman car and that driven by Gerald Caverly which followed. He only heard the crash.

Driver Willman testified that as he drove down a small knoll, Coules walked into the path of his car although he was only travelling at about 10 miles an hour. He also stated that his car stopped as the other car collided with it after his swerved.

Dr. H. G. Parkin described the injuries which were the cause of death and said that Coules was dead when he arrived.

Gerald Caverly described the collision and corroborated evidence of the position the deceased lay after being struck. He said he did not see any pedestrians on the road near the scene of the fatility. Provincial Constable Hector Gould gave the results of his investigations. Called to the witness stand as the last two witnesses, Mrs. Leo Wellman and Miss Eileen McPherson (injured passenger in the Caverly car) gave corroborative evidence of that already given.

Dr. S. R. Beatty, coroner, conducted the inquiry assisted by acting Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson.

Hastings Winners

HASTINGS, Sept. 19 (ENS).—Hastings juniors riding the crest in their quest of another OASA crown, continued their winning ways here taking Gravenhurst 13-4 in the first of a best-of-three series.

In spite of frigid weather, both teams played fine ball after a shaky start, and the score didn't indicate the game as Gravenhurst threatened repeatedly.

West went all the way for Hastings and pitched fine ball, while given excellent support. Darkoff went the route for Gravenhurst, and deserved better support.

Holmes was the big stick in the local attack, banging out a homer, triple and single in four times up. Lineup:

Gravenhurst—Barnes 2b, Gamain lf, Irwin cf, Walker c, Darkoff p, Barnes rf, Beers ss, Cote 3b.

Hastings—Fife rf, Spencer cf, Oliver c, Holmes 1b, Kelly 3b, West p, Richardson rf, Thomas 2b, Stevenson ss.

| | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gravenhurst | 301 | 000 | 000— 4 6 5 |
| Hastings | 333 | 020 | 02x—13 11 1 |

Umpires: Counsell and Crate.

Return game will be played at Gravenhurst Wednesday under the lights. Date and place of a third game, if necessary, will be decided by the OASA executive.

Admits Dairy Theft

HAMILTON, Sept. 19 (CP). — William D. Northey Monday pleaded guilty to the theft of $2,300 from Silverwood's Dairy Limited last week and was remanded for sentence. Northey, an employee of the dairy, was arrested Friday night. Police said Northey told them he stole the money so he could be able to get married.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The future of rightwinger Bill Ezinicki in the plans of the Toronto Maple Leafs popped out into the open Monday when he failed to show up for the opening of the National Hockey League club's training grind at St. Catharines.

General manager Conn Smythe didn't hide his wrath over the player's absence and said it looks like Ezinicki has bodychecked himself back to the fourth or fifth line." Smythe added he doesn't think the team will miss Ezinicki if he doesn't show up.

Observers at the training camp suggest that it is possible that the rightwinger doesn't want to play hockey this winter or that he would like to get himself traded.

During the summer Ezinicki acted as a golf pro at a club in New York State.

Australian champion Frank Sedgman defeated the veteran American star, Ted Schroeder, in the finals of the 24th annual Pacific southwest tennis tournament at Los Angeles Monday 9-7, 6-3, 6-2.

Cary Middlecoff of Ormond Beach, Fla., won the $15,000 St. Louis open golf championship on Monday in a "sudden death" playoff with Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle, Wash. The victory pays $2,600. Oliver gets $1,900.

Vancouver Canucks are negotiating with Chicago Black Hawks —so far unsuccessfully — for goalie Frankie Brimsek.

This was reported in Vancouver Monday by Coley Hall, owner of the Pacific Coast Hockey League Canucks, who are scheduled to open training sessions on Friday.

Brimsek, who played for several seasons with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, was purchased last year by the Hawks.

"I know Frank wouldn't come for a dollar and a promise," said Hall, "but I am prepared to pay him a salary which shouldn't be hard to take."

Arise, from the Addison Stable of Toronto, pulled away from the pack to win the $25,050 fall highweight handicap Monday by two lengths as Belmont Park opened its fall season before a crowd of 21,409 customers.

A record in daily double payoffs in the five-year history of the Atlantic City race course was established Monday when the "11-10" combination of Hand In Glove and Justalike returned $2,135.60 for $2 tickets.

One $10 and 19 $2 tickets were sold to the lucky ones in the gathering of 8,500. The previous high of $1,379.80 was set Aug. 12, 1948, when Pam Light and Track Talk accounted for the first and second races.

Westclox Victors

Westclox knocked off Mount Pleasant 8-5 last evening, in the second game of their fastball semi-final playoffs, scoring all eight runs in a big sixth stanza. They bunched blows with walks and a bit of loose defensive play in this chukker to clinch it. The Mounts scored two each in the first and sixth stanzas and one in the third. Evans led at bat with three for three. Teams:

Westclox: Watson, 3b; Guerin, 3b; Wyatt, ss; Parsons, rf; Morin, lf; White, cf; Millar, c; Donoghue, 2b; Heffernan, 1b; Evans, p; Weir, lf.

Mt. Pleasant: K. Bryan, 1b; Crawford, 2b; Jamieson, cf; Mitchell, ss; Parker, p; C. Bryan, 3b; McKnight, lf; Fee, rf; R. Bryan, c; Hill, c.

Reinforcements Arrive

SINGAPORE, Sept. 19 (Reuters) —The vanguard of British troop reinforcements that left Britain for Korea by air Saturday have arrived here today in two planes. They will take off Wednesday for Manila and Japan. The air lift will continue for some weeks as "quite a considerable number of troops are involved," an RAF officer said.

Swim Club Starts New Season Bright Prospects

The YMCA Swimming Club which has won recogntion as one of the leading swimming clubs in Ontario through the ability of its swimmers to win Ontario championships began its fall activities Monday night with 19 boys out for the workout.

Coach Gordon Minty, honorary swimming director at the YMCA, reported that Ralph Wood showed the best improvement over the summer months at the 100 yards distance.

Jack Prest and Michael Triggs each reduced their time by five seconds and Scott Pearton, Wilton Tranter, Ray Brooks, Ted Rankin and Bob Malby also showed improvement.

A relay event at the end of the workout was won by John Boorman's team of Jim Heffernan, Terry Northrop, Bob Malby, Wilton Tranter and Ray Brooks.

Good Condition.

"Due partially to the continued swimming of some of the boys at the new Lions pool this summer," said Mr. Minty," the club does not show the usual fall lack of conditioning. It points to a very good year for the club."

A similar program will be held this year by the club as last. The events this year will not be made in advance. Last year the swimmers competed here against Toronto West End YMCA, Broadview YMCA, the Hamilton Aquatic Club and against the best Ontario swimmers in two championship meets. Out-of-town meets were attended in Toronto, Hamilton and London.

Since last fall the club members have won five Ontario and two international championships. Mr. Minty hopes that the swimmers will at least match that record this year and perhaps better it. The chances are good for either.

Plane Crashes In BC

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19 (CP).— A chartered plane crashed Monday as autumn fog clouded the British Columbia coast, killing the pilot and one of three passengers. Killed were A. N. Beach, about 22, of Vancouver, the pilot, and a Mrs. Lebans.

Talks In Paris

BRUSSELS, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—Maurice Brasseur, Belgian minister of the interior, left Brussels today for Paris for security talks with the French government. Well-informed quarters said he wished to discuss the subject "both on the national and international plane."

Socialized Legal Plan To Aid Britain's Poor Man

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Reuters)— The poorest Briton soon will be able to take a case into the most expensive court in the land, and let the government pay all costs.

Under a socialized legal plan, which starts Oct. 2, the state will foot the bill for carrying a civil case to the High Court and the Court of Appeal. But the new law —known as "The Poor Man's Law Charter" — stipulates that in actions for libel, slander, seduction and breach of promise, the citizen is strictly on his own.

The scheme, which marks the latest development of the country's widespread social services, is expected to benefit Britain's poorest 12,000,000 persons—about one-quarter of the country's population.

When the plan is in full operation, the government will be prepared to back both sides financially—plaintiff and defendant—in a genuine civil case. Facilities will be available for a suit to be carried all the way to the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

For the time being, a litigant must continue to pay his own way through the lower and less-costly courts.

Sliding Scale

On an appeal to the higher courts, litigants will be entitled to counsel free or at reduced rates on a sliding scale, depending on the individual's income. Later, when Britain's financial position eases, this will also apply to suits in the lower courts and to criminal cases A system of state-run legal-advice centres will also be established.

The British Law Society, which has been co-operating with the government in drawing up the scheme, believes introduction of the act will mean more business for the legal profession. But they have warned the public that getting legal help will not be as simple as going to a doctor and getting free medicine under the health insurance scheme.

Critics of the scheme believe the new act, when fully applied, will start an avalanche of litigation throughout the country.

Framers of the legislation disagree, saying the system provides for plenty of checks to balance any rush.

Impartial Advice

An increased number of genuine divorce or domestic cases may be ventilated under the full act, it is believed, but impartial advice from state legal advisers may at the same time divert many people from the courts.

In large towns and cities it is planned to have legal-advice bureaux open every day, and in the evenings as well for the convenience of working people. Small towns and villages will have bureaux open on certain days or by appointment. Servicemen overseas will have their own advice bureaux. Bed-ridden citizens can have advice brought to their bedside.

Give Approval For New Mains

Water main extensions in Ashburnham and the southwest corner of the city were authorized by the Utilities Commission Monday.

Approaching the finishing touches of his housing project in the vicinity of Crawford's Grove, Arnold Steele is asking for water connections to fourteen new houses. This calls for an extension on Cameron St., east from Spruce St., and also on Steele St.

Estimated cost of 910 ft. of 6-in. main and connections is $5,000. The revenue from 15 houses at $30 each will be $450. Mr. Steele will have the houses completed by Dec. 1.

Construction of seven houses has begun on Elgin St., a new street projecting from Hazlitt to Dufferin St. in Ashburnham. It is between Rogers and Ross Sts. Cost of main and services as estimated by Ross L. Dobbin is $2,800 and revenue should be $210 a year. The houses will be completed early next year.

Recent extensions completed by the Utilities were:

Orpington Road, from Monaghan Road to Erskine Ave., 1,963 ft. of 6-in. main, and two hydrants were set up.

Cameron St., from Monaghan Road, westerly, 300 ft. of 8-in. main; one hydrant.

Monaghan Road ten-inch main was extended 40 feet to cross under the pavement on Lansdowne St. The extension to Erskine Ave. on Orpington Road carries the water system to the extreme southwest corner of the city.

Other works completed were:

Simmons St., from McFarlane St., south 300 ft. of 6-in. main.

Juliet Road from Swanston to Snelgrove, 675 ft. of 6-in. main; one hydrant.

Burnham's Point: the sewer under the river was connected to the new pump house at the point. finishing the work the Utilities began last year. At Brinton Carpet, piping was done in conjunction with a new fire protection system.

Settle Dispute

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (AP). — The International Harvester Company and the Farm Equipment Workers' Union announced a settlement of their long-standing contract dispute Monday night. An F.E. official said the new pact will give Harvester's workers a "wage package higher than any yet signed in a major industry in the country.

St. Catharines Wins Lacrosse Title Twice

WINNIPEG, Sept. 19 (CP). — St. Catharines Athletics Monday night won the Dominion Junior Lacrosse championship, defeating Winnipeg All-stars 9-7 to win the best-of-three series in two straight games. The Athletics won the first game 21-16 Saturday.

T. J. O'Brien of Winnipeg, president of the Lacrosse Association of Canada, presented the Minto Cup, emblematic of the junior boxla title, to the St. Kitts aggregation.

It was the second time in a week the cup has been handed to the easterners. In Vancouver last week they were given the trophy after beating Vancouver Burrard Juniors in three straight games. However it was ruled only a semi-final.

Doctors Declare It's Salt Not Alcohol Drinkers Want

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 19 (AP)—Take a drink of salt water when you reach the stage of really craving alcohol, say two New York doctors who have made a study of the problem.

Because, it is explained, your body is really craving salt, even though your palate says alcohol. There's nothing imaginary behind this sensation, the study indicates. It's a purely physical reaction which fools your senses.

The study is reported by Doctors W. D. Silkworth and M. Texon of the Knickerbocker Hospital, New York, in the quarterly Journal of Alcohol. They analyzed the blood of persons who had been drinking heavily enough to be sent to hospital. In all cases they found the salt (chloride) reduced.

"The alcoholic," they report, "in the early stages of a drinking bout, drinks as a result of psychological or invironmental factors. At this voluntary stage the blood chlorides are not significantly altered.

Abnormal Response

"When the drinking continues to the point of a lowered blood chloride, the sensation of thirst evokes an abnormal response. Instead of salt and water, the alcoholic continues to take liquor. The stage of uncontrolled drinking has been reached.

"He takes more whisky and water to replace the loss of water and salt. Thus, he does not replace his salt, but perhaps satisfies his pharyngeal thirst sensation. (The pharynx is the part of the throat where the thirst sensation is felt.) This further exaggerates his net salt loss and perpetuates his craving."

The recommended salt drink, says the report, is two grams of salt in 30 cubic centimetres of water, followed by a 200 cubic centimetre of water. Or a small teaspoonful of salt in a little more than an ordinary glass of water.

Humble Ontario Farmer's Wife Has Wounds Similar To Christ's

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—A humble farmer's wife in a small Ontario village for 10 years has borne in comparative secrecy wounds similar to those suffered by Jesus on Calvary.

Mrs. Donald McIsaac, of Uptergrove, 86 miles north of here, has what are known as the stigmata, Maclean's Magazine says in its Sept. 15 issue. Webster's dictionary defines stigmata as "marks resembling the wounds on the crucified body of Christ, believed to have been supernaturally impressed."

The story says that scores of doctors, theologians and laymen who have studied the strange marks on the body of the 48-year-old Roman Catholic woman do not agree that they are of supernatural origin. But all agree that the wounds exist.

Mrs. McIsaac, part - Indian mother of eight children, has wounds in her hands, feet, left side, head, back, and right shoulder. Six days a week the marks are visible but dry, and there is no pain. On Friday, between 6 and 9 p.m., the wounds bleed and she suffers agonies.

Doctors See Wounds

Doctors of many faiths have examined the wounds. One was reported to have refused to eliminate the possibility that they may be self-inflicted. The others are convinced there is no deception but all believe there is a natural explanation.

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Toronto investigated the phenomenon and arranged long examinations of Mrs. Isaac at St. Michael's Hospital here and Bresica Hall, a Roman Catholic women's college affiliated with the University of Western Ontario in London.

Though vitally interested in the case, which has been compared with that of the world-famous Bavarian stigmatist, Therese Neumann, officially the church takes no notice ofthe happenings in the McIsaac home.

Disapprove Visits

This was made known in a satement by James Cardinal McGuigan who said the authority of the diocese "disapproves of the visits of priests and people not connected with the family."

Although the church has shielded Mrs. Isaac from the public limelight, her fame has quietly spread by word of mouth to many corners of the world. She has been visited by several thousand pilgrims, including cardinals, bishops and priests from Canada, the United States, South America and Europe, many of whom have said mass for her in her room.

During one of many tests carried out while Mrs. McIsaac was in hospital here, the time was surreptitiously advanced 4½ hours. Mrs. McIsaac had no clock or watch in her room and her daily schedule and meals were altered to give the impression it was later than it actually was. The agonies still began at 6 p.m. and ended at 9.

HAS HELPFUL HUSBAND

"Not everyone's husband is a chemist, so I pass on what Ed told me when my wash looked dingy and yellow. 'Blue is one of the seven colours that combine to make white,' he said. 'Without blue there is no pure white.' Now I just swish Reckitt's Blue in the final rinse for a wash that's snowy white every time. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash. And with Reckitt's Blue I avoid any danger from chemicals that may damage fabrics."

Internal Challenge To Nehru Lapses

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 19 (AP) —An internal challenge to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's leadership appeared still-born Monday. A two-day secret session of the ruling Congress party's high command fully endorsed his foreign and domestic policies.

The challenge was expected to come from Dr. Puruschottamdas Tandon, party president-elect, who has been critical of Nehru in the past for not taking a more militant stand on India's differences with neighboring Pakistan.

Some observers said Tandon prefers to play a waiting game now, realizing Nehru has a firm grip on party control. They said Tandon has decided it would be unwise to push his criticisms just at the beginning of his presidential term.

Reveal Plots To Abduct Czech Official

PRAGUE, Sept. 19 — (Reuters) — Plots to murder Defence Minister Alexei Cepicka of Czechoslovakia and kidnap Vice-Premier Ludvick Svoboda were mentioned at a mass trial Monday when an alleged spy leader was sentenced to death.

The trial of an estimated 27 persons for espionage and crimes against the State was held at Gottwaldov.

Three of the accused were sentenced to hard labor for life and about 20 others, including six women, to up to 22 years in jail.

Evidence heard during the trial which began last Tuesday, indicatted the spy group was based on the three towns in Central Moravia.

The highlight of the proceedings was the description of midnight lot to kidnap Svoboda, former Minister of National Defence and now a Deputy Premier.

Tapped Lines.

The court was told that in preparation for the kidnapping a 23-year-old woman defendant, Milada Padova (alias "M-7), employed as a telephone switchboard operator, tapped the telephone lines to Security Police Headquarters.

A 31-year-old electro-mechanic threw a switch, lunging the town into darkness. A car was waiting to carry off the General. But the plot failed (for reasons which do not appear to have been in court) and many of the group fled to pre-arranged hideouts.

The death sentence was given to Jaromir Vrba, 30-year-old wartime artisan fighter, convicted of the murder of a security policeman and of being head of the spy group.

Great Newsman Of Former Era Wm. R. Givens Dies In Kingston

KINGSTON, Sept. 19 (CP). — A "fighting newsman" whose editorials and writings enlivened the North American scene a generation ago, William Robert Givens, died in hospital Monday. He was 82.

An individualistic follower of the old-time journeyman newspaper tradition, he worked on various papers in New York State including the New York Times. But though he burst into international prominence on the latter newspaper with a rare interview with financier J. P. Morgan, it was in Kingston that many of his solid accomplishments were achieved.

Here, in his home town, he worked in law and the press, his twin loves, or 20 years he published the Kingston Daily Standard and for five years was president of The Whig-Standard after the two papers combined.

In 1948 he told an interviewer he had retired 20 years before. But, as the Toronto Daily Star said in an editorial at that time:

"A fighting newsman like Billy Givens never retires. In that 20 years his writings in papers all over North America have been frequent and forceful, though perhaps lacking some of the bite and thunder of the page one double-measure editorials with which he belabored opponents in his Kingston Standard 25 years ago.

"He is one of the last of the great exemplars of personal journalism in Canada."

For most of his 82 years Billy Givens fought ill-health. He survived that long battle, along with business and political jousts because of his courage and honesty and perhaps most of all because he possessed the saving grace of being able to laugh at himself.

This faculty was well-demonstrated in the 1948 interview, given a full-page spread in the Whig-Standard.

Of his early education (he entered Queen's University here at 15) he said: "If my relatives expected me to set the world on fire they were woefully disappointed, for I took not even a mediocre stand in my classes."

Go To Top

He also recalled the personal advice of then president of the New York Times, the late Adolph S. Ochs:

"'When you go down the Street, don't bother with the underlings, go right to the fountain heads, J. P. Morgan and the rest.'"

That advice he followed fully a little later. Ill health forced his retirement from The Times, as it was later to force him from the Standard. But as he said in the interview, the Standard became 'powerful, prosperous and widely-quoted, thanks to hard work and loyal and fine staff."

Born in Kingston, he was educated in the Kingston public schools and Kingston Collegiate Institute. He entered Queen's University and received his degree of Bachelor of Arts when 19, being one of the University's youngest graduates.

Surviving are three stepchildren, S. T., and Henry Hill, Kingston, and Mrs. Dorothy Elliott, Windward Island, B.W.I. one niece Mrs. P. C. Makaroff of Saskatoon, and two nephews, Stanley Neilson of Westmount, Que., and Harold Marshall of Moose Jaw, Sask.

Congress Backs Textile Union

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor is supporting its affiliate, the Textile Workers' Union of America, in a campaign to provide Dominion Textile Company workers of Montreal with union representation, free of Communist domination, it was announced Monday.

Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the CCL, said the textile workers, dissatisfied with the Communist leadership of the United Textile Workers (AFL) revolted. The entire executive resigned and introduced a motion for affiliation with the Textile Workers Union (CCL-CIO).

This motion was passed at a membership meeting.

Denies Bill Received For Forest Fire

KIRKLAND LAKE, Sept. 19—(CP).—Reeve Ann Shipley of Teck township Monday denied reports that a bill for $23,000 had been received by the township for fighting a forest fire there last spring.

Both she and township clerk F. W. McBain denied receiving any such bill from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests

F. J. Dawson, chief of the lands department branch here, said he knew nothing of any bill being made out against the township, though he had sent to the department his report of expenses entailed which amounted to about $23,000. Mr. Dawson said the erroneous newspaper reports about the bill apparently arose from this report on expenses.

Reeve Shipley long has fought against the law which makes an organized township financially responsible for battling any forest fires originating in the township area.

In Toronto T. E. Mackey, chief of government forest protection service, also denied that the bill had been sent to Teck township, which includes Kirkland Lake.

WAR IS DUST . . . WAR IS MUD . . . WAR IS H—— When it's dry in South Korea, you choke on the dust. You use all sorts of "field experiments", such as the GI's above have devised, to help you breathe. When it rains, the dust turns to mud. You have to slog through it. The rain is cold, and you huddle under any available cover — like the GI's below—to try to warm your frigid bones. War, these GI's would be quick to tell you, is exactly what Sherman said it is. (Exclusive NEA-Acme Telephotos by Correspondent Stanley Tretick.)

U.N. Adopts Canada's Plan On China

Russia Loses Out In Effort To Seat Red China

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 — (AP)—United Nations delegates buckled down today to the work of organizing their assembly with a fight to seat Communist China only temporarily interrupted.

The Assembly's new president, Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, called the Assembly into session to set up the main committees, elect their officers, and choose seven vice presidents.

Entezam was elected at opening session Tuesday after India and Russia waged an unsuccessful fight to get the Communist Chinese government seated in the U.N. instead of the Chinese Nationalists.

Take Canada's Plan

Instead of accepting the Russian-Indian proposal, the assembly adopted a Canadian resolution to turn the matter over to an assembly committee for further study.

The Canadian proposal, introduced by L. B. Pearson, minister for external affairs, called for establishment of a seven-country committee to study the question of Chinese representation and report back to the assembly with its recommendations.

Pending the report of the committee, Nationalist China would remain seated in the General Assembly.

Canada abstained from voting on the resolution to oust the Nationalists.

Taking over the presidency from Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine foreign minister, Entezam said:

"The United Nations now has to save the world from the catastrophe hanging over it. It is my hope that at the end of the assembly we can announce to the world the good news it is waiting for. In this hope, let us set to work."

The United States won its first diplomatic victory of the new session Tuesday against the unprecedented move by India asking the assembly to seat what India called "new China" in place of the Nationalist Chinese government now based on Formosa.

India's Sir Benegal Rau was first to the rostrum after the minute of silent prayer or meditation that opened the session.

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky was not far behind. He was not satisfied with the Indian demand and proposed two resolutions of his own, one to throw out the Nationalists, the other to bring in the Communists.

Pt. Hope Man Scores

GUELPH, Sept. 20—(CP)—A four-man judging team from the Ontario Agricultural College here ranked third in the International Dairy judging competitions at the Eastern States exhibition in Springfield, Mass., it was disclosed today. The Guelph students stood first in butter, third in ice cream, fourth in cheese and sixth in milk. Bruce Scott of Port Hope was top point scorer for the Ontario team, ranking fifth in individual standing.

Toronto Woman Claims To Know Oakes' Slayer

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP)—A Toronto paper says today a Toronto woman claims to know the identity of Sir Harry Oakes' murder.

The woman, English-born and the widow of a Canadian war veteran, declined to have her name made public the paper says in a newspage story. The newspaper says she was a friend of Betty Renner, 37-year-old Washington woman slain this year in the Bahamas.

Miss Renner has been reported to have known something about the murder of Sir Harry, wealthy Canadian mining magnate who was bludgeoned to death in his bed at Nassau seven years ago.

The Toronto woman described the murderer as the son of a white father and a Negro mother. She learned about him when she went to Nassau for a rest, on doctor's orders.

The paper quotes her as saying: "I had talked over the Oakes murder with Miss Renner. She was interested. She was known to have been making inquiries about the case. I believe she picked up some information that would be very dangerous to the man involved. She was not one to forget such things.

"As I reconstruct it, she probably made the statement that if nobody on the islands would do anything about the murder she certainly would. Well—after that she had to go."

The Toronto woman said the "murderer" is not thought to have actually slain Sir Harry.

"It is quite well known that he hired a man to do it for him . He planned and paid for it and the slayer was merely his tool."

She said "everybody in Nassau knows he did it and that he did it because he thought Lady Oakes would marry him, but he is so powerful that nobody from the governor down dares to touch him."

Marines Pour Across Han River

Hammering At Gates Of Seoul City, Under Heavy Fire

TOKYO, Sept. 21—(Thursday)—(AP) — Thousands of U.S. Marines hurdled the Han river Wednesday under furious enemy fire and today were reported hammering at the gates of Seoul.

Gen. MacArthur's post-midnight communique said two armored columns were converging on Seoul against stiffening resistance. Enemy casualties were reported heavy.

The Marines on their first lunges from the river bank drove ahead four miles, half way to the Korean capital, field dispatches said. The communique did not say how close the Marines are to Seoul now.

Five hours after the first waves hit the far bank, powerful U. S. tanks were ferried across. They churned up sand banks, plowed over rice fields and moved into the van of the march on Seoul.

Another Marine column was massing on the southwest bank of the Han only one mile from Seoul. It was in the cross-river suburbs of Yanghwa and Hongdungpo.

The Leathernecks swarmed across the water barrier eight miles north-west of Seoul in amphibious tractors at dawn after being repulsed once in darkness.

They quickly hacked out a 400-yard-wide beachhead under a hail of Red machine-gun, small-arms fire, and light artillery bursts.

While Marines fanned out into nearby, low-lying hills to knock out Communist strongpoints, assault craft ferried heavy tanks into the bridgehead.

Tanks On Spot

The tanks churned the tidal Han's mud flats and rumbled down roads leading to Seoul.

(The US Army announced in Washington that South Korean Marines had landed at Samchok on Korea's east coast directly opposite Seoul. Samchok is the terminus of a railway that crosses the peninsula to Seoul.

(A spokesman said the landing occurred several days ago. There was no information on the size of the landing force.)

B-29s and fighter planes plastered communication lines within a 150-mile radius of Seoul, seeking to isolate the city.

Dangerous Business

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP)—Cleaning up wreckage left by the modern safecracker is risky even for an expert, Prof. Joslyn Rogers, Ontario medico-legal expert, warned today. He urged business men whose safes and strongboxes are "blown" to leave the wreckage alone because some safecrackers now are using an especially dangerous type of home-made nitroglycerine. "Three men who were called to make repairs have been hurt by traces of explosive left behind after safes were blown," he said. "One man had his arm broken."

Smythe Says Ezinicki Must Be Ill

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20 — (CP).—Conny Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, said today rugged Bill Ezinicki "must be quite ill to be acting the way he is."

Ezinicki failed to report Monday when the Leafs started training here for the National Hockey League campaign. Today he sent a telegram from his Winnipeg home saying: "Not feeling up to standard, want to stay home."

Smythe said that if Ezinicki is ill he would go through the regular medical procedure when he reported. "We have the best medical staff there is. They'll find out what's wrong and will give him the treatment he needs. But if they find nothing the matter he'll get the same treatment as if he worked for any other firm and went out and played golf for a week when he was given a job to do."

Asked about reports that Ezinicki had been offered to another NHL team, Smythe said: "He hasn't been offered to anyone. He hasn't been discussed in a deal or trade of any kind."

Ezinicki told The Canadian Press in Winnipeg yesterday he was "mentally and physically tired" and 15 to 20 pounds underweight.

The telegram was the first word the Leafs' officials have received directly from Ezinicki.

Group Pledge Co-Operation For Freedom

Special Committee Advocates Letting Them Go Free

OTTAWA, Sept. 20—(CP)—Justice Minister Garson today announced that 395 men and women Doukhobors, serving sentences up to three years for parading in the nude, will be released from prison.

The sentences on 278 men and 117 women of the Doukhobors' radical Sons of Freedom sect were imprisoned last spring as a result of law infractions by the nude-parading, torch-bearing group in British Columbia counties of Yale and Kootenay. The accused have served from four to six months of the sentences imposed.

The action to release them, said Mr. Garson in a statement, was taken as the result of the recommendation of a Doukhobor research committee appointed by the British Columbia government and came after the offenders had indicated "a desire to co-operate."

Endorsed by Wismer

The committee's recommendations were endorsed by Attorney General Gordon Wismer of British Columbia. The committee, made up of prominent western educationists and others, pointed out:

1. The exhibitions nudism by the Sons of Freedom group which had taken place in areas remote from public places, had been "impelled by beliefs peculiar to the Doukhobors."

Canadian Trade Now Out Of Red

OTTAWA, Sept. 20 — (CP).—Trade between Canada and the United States moved ahead to new peaks during July, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday in its monthly trade summary.

July trade between the two countries produced a small credit balance of $100,000 for Canada—the first this year—compared with a debit balance of $54,200,000 in July last year.

The adverse balance for the seven months ended July was cut sharply to $87,500,000 from $362,500,000 a year earlier.

Canadian exports to the US in July reached an all-time peak for the month of $168,200,000 as compared with $104,400,000 a year ago, while imports, also at a new top, totalled $170,600,000 against $160,300,000. Foreign exports through Canada which totalled $2,500,000 produced the $100,000 credit.

In the seven-month period, exports to the US came to $1,087,700,000, compared with $806,600,000, while imports totalled $1,175,200,000, compared with $1,169,000,000.

For the world as a whole, the value of Canada's merchandise imports exceeded the value of imports by $2,700,000 in July. This compared with credit balances of $9,300,000 in June and $12,800,000 in July last year.

Have A Busy Day Arresting Policemen

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (AP) — Allied West Berlin and Soviet East Berlin today engaged in a grim game of arresting each other's policemen.

Last night the East Berlin Communists announced they had arrested about 25 West Berlin policemen who live in the Russian sector of the city. In reprisal for the arrest of six Russian-zone people's police who blundered into the American sector of the city Monday.

This morning West Berlin German police announced that, as retaliation for the seizure of their men, they had picked up 46 East Berlin policemen who live in the west sectors or were apprehended in transit.

Labor Government Beats Off Attempt To Force Election

LONDON, Sept. 20—(AP)—The Labor Government took a renewed grip on Britain's political reins today after beating down an almost-successful opposition attempt to force a new election. The vote was too close for comfort, however. The government mustered a margin of only six—306 to 300—in thwarting a Conservative bid to unseat it on the issue of steel nationalization. The crucial ballot was taken in the House of Commons Tuesday night on a motion by Conservative leader Winston Churchill. In effect it asked the Commons to go on record as opposing the government's taking over of Britain's steel industry next Jan. 1.

Parliament passed the nationalization bill last year over bitter Conservative opposition. But in the new parliament elected last February Labor's majority was cut to the bone.

Political observers predict that Prime Minister Attlee's regime will do its best to retain power at least until spring, despite its slim voting margin over the combined Conservative-Liberal opposition.

State Of Emergency Declared In N.Z.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Sept. 20 — (CP).—The New Zealand government, today declared a state of emergency as the result of the refusal by striking longshoremen to return to work. The action was taken under the public safety conservation act.

A minor dispute over payments for special work which started last Friday has spread to all major ports in the country.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland said no special powers would be used immediately by the government, but the declaration that a state of emergency exists means it now has the widest power to act as it feels necessary.

Police Guard Bride-To-Be As Prowler Threatens Life

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20 (AP) —A terror-stricken 18-year-old bride-to-be is under police protection because a skulking night prowler whistling a funeral dirge has threatened her life.

But Jacquelyn Cadow says she will wed, even if she has to have a policeman escort her down the aisle.

Jacquelyn and her mother, Mrs. Clifford Cadow, came here from their Paradis, La., home after many sleepless nights during which the prowler whistled his mournful funeral march beneath the girl's window.

Jacquelyn, engaged to marry State Trooper Herbert Belsom, Oct. 1, told reporters this story:

Last Thursday the mystery man began skulking around her home at night, whistling tunes and wolf calls. Police were called but the whistler always escaped.

When Jacquelyn's engagement was announced Aug. 1 the whistled tunes changed to a funeral march. Then came telephoned threats.

"Your daughter will never marry Herbert," the caller told Mrs. Cadow one night. "I'm going to kill her, and if I don't get her, I'll get your little boy, Mickey."

Mickey is Jacquelyn's five-year-old brother.

"I'm so scared I don't know what to do," Jacquelyn said. "I've lost 18 pounds already because of this thing.

"How can I get ready for my wedding when I'm so scared I can't sleep or eat? I'll have to have a policeman usher me up the aisle."

Jacquelyn said she hopes the whistler won't be at the wedding but she recalled that in one of his threatening phone calls he told her mother:

"Don't forget, I'll be at that wedding."

Doesn't Like Racing Horse Gets Own Way

GODERICH, Sept. 20 (CP). — Annie is a saddle horse. When trainer Babe Arbour hitched her to a sulky Tuesday and tried to make a harness racer of her, she—

Dumped Arbour and galloped into the centre of town;

Lowered her head and charged between a telephone pole and a guy-wire, smashing the sulky to bits;

Pounded and snorted around the town square, scattering pedestrians in all directions;

Raced into a lumber yard, played hide-and-seek with Arbour, finally calmed down and—

Got a solemn promise from him that he'd never, never try again to make a harness horse of Annie.

Must Slow Down

LONDON, Sept. 20 (Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth has been advised by her doctors to cancel some of her engagements this autumn, it was announced today. It was emphasized there was no reason to think the Princess was not in the best of health, but that she had far too many engagements in view of the fact that her daughter Princess Anne would be only two months old in the middle of October.

US Will Set Up New Command

OTTAWA, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Canada has been informed about the United States' intention to set up a new unified command for the dual job of guarding the northeastern approaches and maintaining an important sector of the military air route to Europe.

A Defence Department spokesman today described the move as "routine organization" of the U.S. Command. He said the new command, under Maj.-Gen. Lyman P. Whitten, now commanding general of the Newfoundland Base Command of the Military air Transport Service, will not include any Canadian troops. Neither is any new Canadian territory involved.

The Newfoundland Base Command is being abolished and the new U.S. Command established effective Oct. 1, and Maj.-Gen. Whitten's headquarters will continue to be at Pepprell air force base in Newfoundland.

Port Hope Man Hurt

NEWTONVILLE, Sept. 20. —A panel truck rolled over three time near here Tuesday critically injuring Edgar Phillips, 32, of Port Hope, and scattering peach all over the highway. Provincial police of Bowmanville detachment said Phillips was in serious condition in Port Hope hospital with severe chest injuries.

Battle Of Pumpkins

COE HILL, Sept. 20—(CP)—The battle of the pumpkins will be settled here today. Elmer Sandercock, Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for Hastings West, has challenged Roscoe Robson, member for Hastings East, to grow a better pumpkin. The issue will be decided at the Coe Hill fair.

Announce McAuliffe Will Not Appeal

SIMCOE, Sept. 20 (CP). — Joseph Herbert McAuliffe, sentenced to be hanged Dec. 19 for the machine-gun slaying of two men, will not appeal, W. E. Ross, his counsel, said today.

Mr. Ross said a pauper's appeal is open to the 32-year-old Windsor man but he could "see no possible grounds," since such a matter depended on either misdirection or non-direction of the jury by the trial judge.

McAuliffe, formerly of North Bay, was convicted last week of the murder of Arthur Lierman 31, following the $23,000 holdup of a bank at nearby Langton last June 21. Killed with Lierman was William Goddyn, 24.

Liquor Prices Up 15-35 Cents

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP). — Liquor-price boosts of from 15 to 35 cents a bottle were announced Tuesday night by the Ontario Liquor Control Board.

Canadian rye whiskies now selling at about $4 are boosted 25 cents on a 26-ounce bottle; $3.40 lines are up 35 cents; bottles at $3.20, $2.95 and $2.85 are up 30 cents. Canadian gins generally are increased 25 cents. The new prices go into effect Thursday.

The boosts are the result of price increases by some Canadian distillers and of the recent hike in federal tax on spirits, Brig. J. C. Spragge, liquor board controller, said in a statement.

Canadian Highland whiskies, imported Scotch and Irish whiskies, imported cognac and brandy imported gins and rums and liqueurs will cost 20 cents more. Reasons for these increases are the tax boost and higher import duties, Brig. Spragge said.

In most cases the price of 12-ounce bottles is increased by half of the boost on 26-ounce bottles. In some cases, the smaller bottle has been increased by only 15 cents.

Crack Down On Reds In UK Unions

Labor Minister Planning To Name Communists Causing Trouble

LONDON, Sept. 20 (CP).—A hard-hitting speech by a cabinet minister—naming names and giving dates and places—may mark Britain's next move to combat strike conspiracies in industry.

It is understood that Labor Minister George Isaacs, himself a trade unionist for 40 years, hopes to make a broadcast soon warning workers to be on their guard against men in their own movement.

His address would be a sequel to his statement in the House of Commons last Friday that a kind of Communist caucus is being created with the deliberate aim of stirring up industrial trouble. Isaacs said the organization is being formed largely of men prominent in a series of post-war unofficial strikes.

Law officers of the Crown now are reported studying the script of the proposed broadcast, which would go even further than the statement in the house.

Must Watch Charges

Obviously, if names were mentioned there would have to be some prudence exercised about the charges made.

Isaacs is ideally suited to talk to London workers in their own language. A Cockney of working-class origins, he is a master of the rhyming slang spoken in some east-end districts.

Meanwhile, another warning to workers has come from Arthur Deakin of the Transport and General Workers' Union. Deakin, probably Britain's No. 1 trade unionist, said he could name four men who were prepared to "go to any lengths" in promoting industrial unrest.

He said Communist agitators have set a zero hour—"around mid-October"—for new disturbances at docks in London, Manchester and Liverpool. Pressed for details, he added:

"I cannot give you the low-down. These dates are related to certain movements. You can draw your own conclusions."

Keeping Watch

Earlier, he said the union—one of the world's largest with a membership of more than 1,000,000—is keeping close watch on subversive elements. It has 460 full-time officers, including 20 in London docks, who are a reliable source of information.

"Among dockers there is a growing realization that they are being used as catspaws by these people (unofficial strike leaders)," Deakin said.

US Navy Plane Crashes 26 Are Killed

Aircraft Goes Down After Takeoff, Only 4 Bodies Found

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 20—(AP)—A navy four-engine transport plane plummeted into the sea off Kwajalein and exploded Tuesday killing all 26 navy personnel aboard, the navy here announced.

The plane went down at 7:18 a.m. (1:18 p.m., EDT) immediately after the takeoff.

Reports said an explosion and fire followed after the plane hit the water.

Rescue planes and boats sent out from Kwajalein reported no survivors had been picked up. Four bodies were found in the water.

A patrol bomber and a crash boat reached the scene minutes after the explosion.

"All we found were two empty life rafts and debris drifting nearby," the spokesman said.

Aboard the plane were 19 passengers and seven crew members, all navy personnel.

Witnesses at Kwajalein airport reported nothing unusual in the transport's takeoff.

The tower operator reported no transmission was recorded from the plane after it took off other than a last routing report from the pilot that he was shifting radio frequencies.

2 Sisters Take Final Vows

A simple but impressive ceremony took place in the chapel of the Sisters of the Precious Blood at their monastery, 83 Robinson St., Peterborough, when Sister Mary St. Paul (Mary Teresa Roche) and Sister Mary of Perpetual Help (Mary Elizabeth Farley), both of Peterborough, pronounced, in the presence of His Excellency the Most Rev. G. J. Berry, DD, members of the clergy, their families and friends, their perpetual vows as members of the contemplative Congregation of the Sisters Adorers of the Precious Blood.

In his sermon following the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass of which he was the celebrant, His Excellency spoke in sincere and appreciative terms of the cloistered life of the sisters, of the dedication of their lives to prayer and sacrifice, of the far-reaching extent of their zeal for the salvation of souls and of the efficacy of their prayerful interest in a war-torn and peace craving world. It was the wish of His Excellency that those who have spent these last fifteen years of prayerful devotion in the interests of the diocese of Peterborough may continue to foster that same spirit of prayer in the hearts of those who are to follow in their footsteps.

Assisting the bishop and present in the sanctuary were Rev. J. O'Sullivan and Rev. Leo Leahy, Right Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan of the Immaculate Conception Church and Rev. Father Conlogue of the Redemptorist Fathers.

Landlord Fined On Two Charges

Aaron B. Olmstead, 221 Charlotte Street, was fined a total of $40, and $5 costs, when he pleaded guilty in Police Court today to two charges under the Wartime Leasehold Act.

Olmstead was charged with collecting rent for two apartments at 624 Brown Street, that was higher than was reasonable and just, and failing to make an application to have rents fixed on the two apartments by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The two apartments were rented to Harry Brook and G. R. Downer. For one he collected $35 a month when the rent was eventually fixed at $22, and on the other he collected $10 a week, the rent was fixed at $25 a month.

Cloth Workers Get Cost-Of-Living Raise

Employees of the Campbellford Cloth Co. have received a 3½-cent-an-hour raise, retroactive to September 11. Some 220 of the production workers, members of Local 743, United Textile Workers of America (CIO-CCL) are affected.

The 1950 contract signed between the local and the company called for a cost-of-living bonus of one cent for each jump of two points in the index. The wage opener clause was effective June 30.

When the contract was signed January 7 the cost-of-living index stood at 161.5, and a rise of seven points since then meant 3½ cents in the pockets of the workers.

Lionel Jones, president of Local 743, headed the union's negotiating committee.

485 Cases Put Under Care Children's Aid

The staff of the Childre'ns Aid Society had a total of 485 cases under its supervision during the three summer months, according to the report given by Superintendent, Miss Rachael Young at the board meeting Tuesday afternoon. Of this total, 98 came to the society as new cases.

Two of these cases were investigations for family allowances. four were reports under the Matrimonial Causes Act, 52 were family cases, 24 children were admitted to care and 16 cases were unmarried parents.

"There were a considerable number of separations and desertions among these families, but of at least equal seriousness are the situations where the relationships between parents is so weak that a great deal of insecurity for the children is obvious," stated Miss Young. "The husband who packs up his clothes and threatens to leave or the wife who is absent on her husband's return from work—such things must be very damaging to the children in the home," Miss Young reported.

There were 101 hearings in Family Court and the staff of the Children's Aid Society made a total of 1,349 visits and held 417 interviews.

Through donations from the Kiwanis Club, Agnes Neill and Major Bennett Chapters, IODE, Junior Welfare League, Business and Professional Women's Club, Y's Menettes and five personal donations, 22 children were sent to camp.

Alberta Village Ringed By Fire

NEWBROOK, Alta., Sept. 20 (CP) — A huge muskeg fire ringed this village in Northern Alberta Tuesday night and the 200 residents feared a sudden change of wind direction would drive flames into the community and destroy it.

Firefighters—using four bulldozers, shovels and wet sacks — estimated the blaze covered an area 25 by 35 miles square and had destroyed more than 2,000 acres of farm land since the weekend.

The wall of fire advanced five miles Monday to the limits of the village, 60 miles north of Edmonton. Then the wind changed direction.

Residents said the blaze roared "like a thousand locomotives."

Council Thinks About Civil Defence

"We have been giving some thought to this matter of civil defence," said Mayor Swanston as the council received Monday night a copy of detail plans and suggestions for local organization. It came from the federal government with the concurrence of the provinces at the recent Dominion-provincial meetings in Ottawa.

For setting up a local defence authority, a director should be appointed by the council. With him should be Chief of Police, Chief of the Fire Department, City Engineer, representatives of electric power services, hospitals, medical services, transportation and commercial services, food supply, press and radio. It was referred to the board of works.

Council Approves Salary Increases

Salary increases by the council Monday, on the recommendation of the executive committee, as reported by Ald. H. F. Waddell, were: Armar W. Butcher, park superintendent, $200.

Murray Thomas, appointed temporary assessor for confirmation Jan. 1, 1951, increase of $200 a year dating from July 1, 1950.

W. J. McKibbin, street commissioner, $100 a year.

A. G. Metheral, welfare officer and plumbing inspector, $200.

J. E. Pierce, head of sanitation department, $150.

W. H. Pollard, in charge at sewage disposal plant, $100.

F. R. Pammett, tax office, $150 a year.

Its liberation after nearly three months of Communist occupation appeared at hand, possibly only a matters of hours.

But the Reds apparently were not going to yield the city without a fight.

Speeding truck columns of Red Koreans were pushing north from the old South-east Korea beachhead to join in the defence of Seoul.

The Reds occupied the city of 1,000,000 normal population June 28, three days after they invaded the United Nations-sponsored republic.

The north-bound Reds were cutting through a hail of Allied air bombs and machine-gun fire. Air observers said Communists already were streaming into the city along a side road running south-east of Seoul.

Fleeing North

Other Communist troops were reported fleeing northward from the city, toward the Parallel-38 boundary between Red and Republican Korea.

The Marines crossed the Han in amphibious tractors soon after dawn.

Naval guns of the Allied armada off Inchon, the invasion port 22 miles west of Seoul, poured a thunderous fire at the north-east river bank and aircraft and artillery pounded Red positions.

Call In Navy

The navy guns 20 miles away were called into action after Communist fire had turned back the first river-crossing attempt Tuesday night.

The U.S. battleship Missouri joined the naval bombardment group in the Yellow Sea off Inchon to arch her 16-inch shells into the resisting Reds inland.

The mighty Mo raced around the Korean peninsula from the Sea of Japan coast where she had softened up Pohang for reconquest by the allies. South Korean forces followed up the bombardment on the port city and completed the recanture Wednesday morning with no organized resistance encountered.

A daring 14-man allied scouting party swam to the northeast bank and watched Communists pour heavy machine-gun, rifle and mortar fire into the first Marine amphibious tractors trying to cross in darkness.

The tractors turned back. Then the Reds spotted the patrol and fired on it. The patrol swam back to the southwest bank in a hail of bullets. Two scouts were wounded.

Naval, air attacks pounded the Reds, and the Marines tried again at daybreak.

2. Many of those stripping and later sentenced were not motivated by thoughts of criminal intent, as normally accompanied an infraction of the Criminal Code.

3. A two-day conference of all interested parties had shown that the offenders wanted to co-operate.

The committee, hoping to achieve a solution to the Doukhobor problem, therefore recommended the remission of sentences, subject to probationary conditions which may be imposed by the province and the federal government.

Mr. Garson said his remissions branch had felt the remission of sentences "on this scale" was extremely unusual." Yet it felt it "wise to comply" with the request of the provincial attorney general and of the "strong and representative" committee which had been appointed to analyze the Doukhobor problem.

Quakers To Help

The 23-man committee of scientists, penitentiary experts, educationists and government officials was set up last spring to study means of ridding the country of Doukhobor terrorism in a "just, Christian and orderly" manner.

Quakers who had interceded with the Canadian government 50 years ago to allow the former Russian residents to migrate to Canada volunteered to help bring the violence to an end.

The special committee, was established, it was announced last April, because "an adequate solution of the Doukhobor problem must go deeper than merely the just punishment of these offenders."

Labor Government

Plan New Election

Several informed sources indicated the Labor chieftain is planning a new election early next year, after steel nationalization and Britain's big rearmament program get under way.

Urging his motion, Churchill challenged the government's right on "so slender a margin," to complete its steel program, "knock the other half" of the country about "and ride roughshod over them."

The Conservative leader said Attlee, by his decision to go ahead with the nationalization, "has not only fomented national discord for party purposes but is placing an obstacle in the whole steel organization which may be very serious in the swift re-equipment of our defence services."

Woman Artist Names Slayer Of Harry Oakes

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 20 (AP).—A Nassau detective left by plane Tuesday for Oakland, Calif., armed with the name of a person given him as the murderer of wealthy Sir Harry Oakes seven years ago in his Bahamas mansion.

Name of the alleged slayer of the Canadian millionaire miner was supplied by Mrs. Hildegarde Hamilton, prominent Fort Lauderdale, Fla., portrait artist. Later she told reporters she did not want to become too involved in the investigation "because it may not be safe for me to visit" in Nassau again.

Mrs. Hamilton said she repeated a story told her two years ago by Edward Majava, 31-year-old Oakland mechanic. She told the story Monday night to Asst. Superintendent Augustus Roberts of the Nassau police and Police Chief Roland of Fort Lauderdale.

Majava had told Oakland police on Monday that he knew "the inside story' of the bizarre Oakes murder case and identity of the killer. Oakes, who discovered the rich gold vein at Kirkland Lake, Ont., was bludgeoned to death in 1943.

Changed Charge Case Dismissed

A charge of careless driving against R. E. Brown, 262 McDonnel St., was dismissed in police court Tuesday, when Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., ruled that changing the scene of an alleged offence in a charge could not be allowed.

The charge, said Magistrate Philp, would make it a "distinct and different charge." Under the Highway Traffic Act, a charge may not be laid more than 10 days after an offence is committed.

Since the alleged offence took place August 19 and no effort to amend the charge was made until evidence in the case was heard Sept. 12, the 10-day period had elapsed.

The charge was laid as a result of an accident between two cars on the east bridge in Lakefield. The charge read that the accident had happened in Smith township. The bridge is some little distance from the village boundary.

Andrew Comfort, Hamilton, testified his car had been slightly damaged by another car driving in opposite direction on the bridge. He said the driver of the other car, after hitting his car, and stopping momentarily, then drove on.

His cousin's wife, Mrs. Clifford Heal, Peterborough, a passenger in the back seat, turned around and took down the licence number of the car moving away. The number was traced by police to Brown.

Brown and three friends who had been passengers in his car the night of the alleged accident, said they had been driving in the Lakefield area, but had not been in any accident and had not crossed the bridge going east at the time of the alleged accident.

T. J. Carley, K.C., defended Brown.

Failed To File Return On Income Tax

Ernest Caldwell, Toronto, former Apsley lumberman, was fined $25 and costs in police court Tuesday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to make an income tax return for 1948.

Conducting the prosecution, W. B. Gordon said evidence he submitted to court indicated Caldwell had not filed a return for any of the years from 1948 back to 1942.

Mrs. Ella L. Woodley

The funeral for Mrs. Ella L. Woodley, 71, of 748 George St., who died in hospital Sunday, was held Tuesday at the Comstock Funeral Home. The Rev. W. F. Craik of St. James United Church conducted the funeral service.

Mrs. Woodley leaves two sons, Norman of Tyrone and Wilbert of Langham, Saskatchewan; two daughters, Mrs. David Hicks (Ethel) of Harriston, Ont., and Mrs. R. H. Stephens (Selina) of Gorrie, Ont.; three nieces, Mrs. Ethel Kent, Mrs. Annie Wood and Mrs. W. L. Mason, all of Peterborough, and one sister-in-law, Mrs. H. B. Jackson of Young's Point.

The pallbearers were Walter Yale, Wallace Harvey, William James Lloyd May, Ernest Sollitt and Clarence Woodley. Burial was in St. John's cemetery, Port Hope.

Claims People Are Shirking Slowing Down On Jobs

A call to abandon frantic racing after material successes which produces hypertension in the peoples of the world today and "go back to the simple beginning of things," was made to members of the Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club at its first meeting of the fall season at the Club Aragon Tuesday night by Cameron Ralston.

Mr. Ralson is a faculty member of Washington and Jefferson College and Director of Public Forums of the United States Department of the Interior, Office of Education.

He offered three landmarks which could guide people out of the black future that faces them: the ten commandments, the sermon on the mount and the basic sense of right and wrong within people.

He said people were losing the ability to think for themselves. They were stupifying and poisoning their own minds and the minds of their children with cheap literature and continual "entertainment" instead of feeding their minds with great reading.

"We ourselves are causing the decline in the morality of our youth, "with the stuff we are feeding them—lurid and lousy," he said.

People are losing sight of the benefits of work. They are constantly shirking and slowing do t on the job. "Work is the greatest moral force in the world," Mr. Ralston declared.

If a person's mind is not occupied, it "becomes a sewer."

In cities such as the car manufacturing city of Detroit people are learning to hate the man who is willing to roll up his sleeves and get down to work for his wife and children, the speaker charged. He said he was a great believer in organized labor as long as its purpose was the betterment of the worker and his family and of all mankind. But, he charged, Americn labor leaders such as Lewis, Reuther, Green and Murray are concerned not with the working man, but with a struggle to grasp more and more power.

"One man wants to become the czar of labor on this continent," Mr. Ralston said. In such a position the man would have more power than any president or any administrative leader.

People no longer have respect for constitutional authority, he said. Children no longer recognize the authority of their parents. A killer who ran amok and killed 13 people one afternoon in New York state a little more than a year ago, Mr. Ralston learned from interviewing him, "never respected the authority of his mother and pushed her around like a wet rag."

He called on the members of the club to forget their utilitarian courses, such as letter writing cocrses, and courses in making speeches and return to the learning such as history which gives people a background to their thinking.

Salesmen, he said, should know what they have to sell and whom they are selling to. He said Americans and Canadians were good at selling material things, but they have no idea how to sell the idea of man's brotherhood in the world.

It was announced at the meeting, that a letter writing course would be held for members of the club and their employees at Queen Mary School, October 30 and 31.

The club's new president, Don Loucks, presided over the meeting.

500 Ask Council To Authorize Sunday Sports

COBOURG, Sept. 20 (ENS) — Signed by 500 citizens, a petition was presented to town council asking for passage of a by-law to authorize public sports on Sunday. The petition has been in circulation for about three weeks. Council decided to check the names to make sure they are authentic and will go into the matter two weeks hence.

Increase Pay

Council also dealt with another petition, granting the request of the petition with some alterations. The petition was from employees of the corporation and asked for a ten cent an hour boost in wages or a reduction from 48 hours to a 44 hour work week with the same take-home pay, because of increased cost of living. However council felt that some work was necessary on Saturday morning and they decided on a five cent an hour wage for a 48 hour week.

Friends Honor Campbellford Girl

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 (ENS)—Miss Leone Dockendorf, R.N., was guest of honor at a party this week, when Mrs. E. C. Roberts and Miss Anne O'Leary were hostesses to a large number of friends who were on hand to wish Miss Dockendorf happiness in her marriage to Mr. Allan Carpenter of Keene, Ontario, which takes place today.

Mrs. J. Anderson and Miss Eleanor Sandercock presented the bride-to-be with a lovely square mirror on behalf of the group, and Mrs. C. Newman expressed appreciation for the effort Miss Dockendorf had put forth for the town and surrounding district, during her three years in the local health unit.

Miss Dockendorf expressed her thanks for the honor bestowed upon her, and also for the splendid co-operation she had received in her work during the past three years.

At the close of the evening, Mrs. J. Cowell, accompanied by Miss Irene Stephen sang "Because" and "I'll Walk Beside You."

Dr. Charlotte Horner of Cobourg and Miss Mae Hearty of Port Hope were out of town guests.

New Ladder Passes Main Street Test

COBOURG, Sept. 20 (ENS). — The new aluminum 55-foot extension ladder, recently bought for the fire department, was given a try-out Tuesday evening to determine how effective it was for height.

It was placed against the town hall and reached with ease the first roof level.

Other fire department ladders reach only 50 feet and this will take firemen only to the eaves of buildings on the main street. The new ladder gives firemen five feet extra. Four men can erect or take down the ladder without difficulty.

Jeweller A Whit Riled By Monkey Business

COBOURG, Sept. 20 (ENS) — There is a jeweller in town here who reacts strongly to the word "monkey."

The story is commencing to make the rounds and fellow merchants who like a little kidding now and then have been calling him up and querying him about monkeys. It is a painful subject to the jeweller for the reason that the other day some U.S. tourist with a pet monkey entered his store. The monkey made himself at home and got tangled up in some of the displays. Incidently it was not entirely housebroken and the jeweller, who is noted for his clean store, is a bit annoyed—quite a bit.

Blames Theft On Drink Suspended Sentence

COBOURG, Sept. 20 (ENS). — John Dracup, age 31, who last week pleaded guilty to a breaking and entering charge Tuesday was given suspended sentence for one year and placed on the interdicted list to prevent his buying liquor.

Dracup's employer, Jim Burtt, gave him a very good character reference as did Councillor Jack Erskine.

Dracup broke into Halligan's store Sept. 12 and stole a few packages of cigarettes. He was arrested near the scene by constables H. Seale and H. Pearse while they were on patrol in the cruiser. The accused blamed it on drinking and evidence was given that he had been drinking heavily the night of the affair.

Campbellford Road Be Paved This Fall

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 (ENS)—The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow has announced that a contract will be let within the next two weeks, to pave the 10.6 mile stretch of highway No. 30 connecting Campbellford and Havelock. The job will be done with hot-mix resurfacing, and will include grading similar to the Campbellford-Brighton stretch of the same highway.

It is hoped that the work will be completed this fall, and will greatly improve what has heretofore been a comparatively bad stretch of road.

The highway from Campbellford to Stirling has been greatly improved during the past year, and while it is not yet paved, the road is much wider and smoother. It will likely be paved in due course.

Jewelry In Garbage

HAMILTON, Set. 20 (CP)—A garbage dump Tuesday yielded to police $3,000 worth of watches and rings stolen from a jewelry store here last weekend.

Worker Electrocuted

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP) — John Van Luven, 35, of suburban Willowdale was electrocuted Tuesday when he touched a 4,400-volt high-tension line. An employee of North York Hydro Company, he was working on a secondary line with two other men.

City Employees On Council Committees

At the Monday night meeting of the Peterborough and District Labour Council some criticism was expressed of committees of the City Council which include city employees in their membership. In particular, reference was made to the special committee which has discussed the licensing and position of the potato chip wagon belonging to Mr. Dick Ouimet. That committee is composed of the Mayor, Alderman Waddell, the City Clerk and the Chief of Police. A resolution passed by the Labour Council says that "Permanent city officials should act in a consultative capacity only." One speaker said, "The non-elective persons are not acquainted with the day to day problems of the people of Peterborough."

• • •

This is a very remarkable statement. If the City Clerk, through whose hands virtually all city business passes; does not know what is going on in the city, then who does? If the Chief of Police is not competent to give an opinion on matters relating to traffic and the use of the streets, then who is? It is laughable to imply that these two men live in an ivory tower, remote from knowledge of the city's affairs. As a matter of fact, they probably know more about the day to day workings and needs of the city than any other two men in Peterborough. Nor has the fact that they are not elected any real bearing on the matter. They are members of a committee, and the suggestions that committee makes are later considered by the Council. The Council, with whom final power resides, is all elective. The Council may be relied upon to check any undue assumption of authority by city employees, and in our opinion the Council would be very foolish if it failed to seek the advice of the City Clerk, the Chief of Police, the City Engineer, or any other civic employee whose opinion might be of value on a matter of civic concern. The Labour Council is worrying itself needlessly.

• • •

The Labour Council appears to have worked itself into a state of considerable indignation over Mr. Ouimet's case, and men who are indignant do not always talk wisely. One member is quoted as saying: "The warning flag is up; businessmen on the Council are trying to stop a working man from making a living". Now if we are not mistaken, the chip wagon is a spare-time job with Mr. Ouimet; we are somewhat surprised to find the Labour Council supporting a man who works at two jobs, when one-man-one-job has long been a maxim of organized labour. And just what is meant by "a working man"? Is it suggested that businessmen do not work? And is it suggested that there is some unbridgeable gulf between the business men of this city and the industrial workers? If the Labour Council really thinks that there is only one kind of work, and that the kind which is done by the men and women it represents, it is at odds with a majority of Peterborough people. But we do not think the Labour Council believes any such nonsense. Then why talk as if it did?

• • •

The case of Mr. Ouimet and his chip wagon cannot be settled by abuse of the Council, or by suggesting that there is a wicked plot at the City Hall to wrong an honest and deserving man. Nor is it sensible to suggest that people who spend all their working time dealing with city affairs know nothing about those affairs. If the Council needs reform, the Labour Council can begin the work by bringing forward a couple of good labour candidates for the Council at the approaching civic election.

Illustrated London News 1843: "Blood Money"

In the September 23rd issue of The Illustrated London News, the editor wrote a scathing article about "a growing licentiousness in the conduct of this (police) force which requires the most watchful attention on the part of public journalists". The practice arousing the editorial ire was one "which encourages the wily machinations of hired spies to entrap the unwary into the commission of crime. It is now no uncommon occurrence for the police to assume disguises so ingeniously devised that the most lynx-eyed persons are deceived, and under such circumstances to become parties to a breach of the law, in order that the less guilty may be pounced upon and punished."

The London journal then cited a contemporary's statement that it was "no infrequent proceeding" for police constables to enter public houses dressed in bakers' clothes, well dusted with flour, or clad in a coalheaver's "professional costume and coal-begrimed visage", for the purpose of being able "to give ocular evidence of what was passing within". The truth of this statement, the editorial continued, was proved by a case then before a London court.

One James Weaver, the landlord of The Bricklayers' Arms, had been summoned by the police for keeping his public house open during the hours of divine service. According to the evidence, two men, "with the appearance of countrymen", called at the inn; they said they had walked a long way and required refreshment. The landlord declared he felt bound by "the tenour of his licence" to supply their needs, and served them with gin and water. The "countrymen" then proved to be police officers. The landlord's appearance in court followed, and The Illustrated London News declared that in view of such "unseemly and indecent conduct," it could not "hesitate in thinking that the age of 'blood money' has returned."

This particular police practice has been discussed many times since 1843, and it was often the subject of heated debate in the days of the Ontario Temperance Act. It will undoubtedly be a subject of debate in future, for it is difficult to imagine any other method by which police could obtain evidence in certain cases.

The Death Of W. R. Givens

It is with regret that we record the death of William Robert Givens of Kingston, in his 83rd year. He was an able journalist, particularly gifted in analysis of financial and political matters, and under his editorship the Kingston Standard was one of the liveliest papers in Ontario. He was a Conservative by conviction, but he did not feel himself obliged to approve of all that his party did, and at times he was sharp in his criticism of Conservative leaders. After his retirement from active journalism he wrote occasional articles on political affairs, Canadian and American, which were published in a number of Canadian papers, including this one. He served the craft of journalism well, and it is through the efforts of such men as he that the Canadian press has achieved its present strength and influence.

Western Warmongering

The current issue of the news magazine Time contains an article which discusses, frankly and practically, the advisability of starting a war with Russia in 1953. Last Sunday evening a radio station in Montreal carried a fictitious report of the death of Marshal Stalin, in these words (the italics are our own): "As we start this radio show, news reaches us of a happening that everyone had been hoping for. The dispatch is brief and here is what it says: 'This morning at 4.30 a.m., Marshal Joseph Stalin, dictator of the Soviet Union, died in the Kremlin following a heart attack .....'"

Now let us suppose that the boot were on the other leg. Let us suppose that a Russian publication of equal influence and circulation with Time had published an article discussing the advisability of war against us in 1953. Let us suppose that a Russian broadcast had announced the death of the Pope, or President Truman as "a happening that everyone had been hoping for." What would we call such conduct? We would call it warmongering, of course.

Let us not blind ourselves to the fact that there is plenty of warmongering going on in North America. Much is being done to lash the population into a state where war with Russia seems inevitable, desirable, and right. And if we continue in this course we shall get a war.

But war with Russia is not inevitable, desirable, or necessarily right. Russia is being very aggressive and noisy at present, but we have no evidence at all that Russia wants a large-scale war. Russia wants to grab what she can, and will bluster about it, but that is no sign that Russia wants a world war.

Do we want a world war, from which we can gain nothing, and which will load us down with problems which will last for a century? If we do not want such a war, we must stop our senseless, hysterical war-mongering.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A columnist writes: "Love is only a disease, like whooping-cough or measles." Both of which diseases, take note, may leave you with lifelong disabilities.

A Kingsville farmer has been fined $275 for selling his new potatoes at 10 to 25 cents a bag below the price fixed by the Southwest Ontario New Potato Growers' Marketing Board. That'll teach him to try to bring down the cost of living!

UNCLE SAMSON, by Beverley Nichols (British Book Service).

IT was in 1928 that Beverley Nichols wrote a book about the U.S.A. called "The Star-Spangled Manner". It was a witty, impudent book, which made a great many people laugh and a few people fume. It was the work of a brilliant young man, apparently full of promise, with opinions about everything and a pleasantly fresh outlook. But that was twenty-two years ago. In "Uncle Samson" Mr. Nichols gives us a book which is not nearly so good. He is no longer a promising young man; he is a middle-aged man. His wit is not so crisp as it was, and his impudence has disappeared. And unhappily he does not seem to have much to say.

Of course Mr. Nichols has his opinions. But they are no better and no worse than the opinions of a hundred or more other British travellers in the U.S.A. His indignation about the treatment of Negroes is interesting enough, but we have read much better and clearer discussions of that subject. His discovery that the people of the U.S.A. are very much pre-occupied with their own mental processes, and seem to be in the grip of a national anxiety neurosis is scarcely red-hot news. It is just a warmish half-truth. Mr. Nichols' style is still light, but we are a little depressed to find that, after twenty-two years, his thought is just as light. His years of activity in the Oxford Group have made him less ready to mock mankind than was the case before, but we think we liked him better as a mocker than as a soggy sentimentalist. R.D.

ISLANDS IN THE SUN, by Rosita Forbes (British Book Service).

THIS is the story of the West Indies, a book to acquaint the reader with the true character of these beautiful islands, to show that they are something more than mere playgrounds. Miss Forbes does this by giving the historical background and the development, since discovery, of each island, making clear not only the present economic, racial and political problems of the islands, but the causes of them.

The beauties of the islands are not neglected, however, and the descriptions are excellent, bringing clear, delightful pictures to the mind's eye, rather more complimentary to the scenery than the somewhat lack-lustre photographs used as illustrations in this book. Miss Forbes is kind enough to provide a guide to the most interesting shops, hotels, and bars, so that any reader who is lucky enough to visit this richly endowed part of the world will not feel a complete stranger. And certainly the people of the West Indies, with their mixtures of races, who are sympathetically and occasionally amusingly portrayed, form a most interesting part of the islands.

In discussing the possible future of the West Indies, Miss Forbes says at one point "... if the West Indies had to choose another partnership, it might well be Canadian." Obviously the West Indians must know much more about Canada than Canadians do about the West Indies. If we are not to be guilty of that sin of ignorance with which we charge our neighbours to the south from time to time, we should acquaint ourselves with the West Indies and their peoples. To be able to do this by reading a pleasant, well-written book is an agreeable form of study.

This reviewer recommends, however, that Islands in the Sun should not be read continuously until finished, (island after island becomes rather tedious) but rather one or two islands at a time. This book in your library would be a constant source of information and pleasure. V.J.

THE SINGER AND THE MAKER, by Penelope Bowers (Published by Heinemann).

THIS second novel by Penelope Bowers, published in England earlier this year, is the unusual story of a situation created by an aversion. Anna Merriman, at the age of 17 and in love for the first time, is the heroine of the book and it is the efforts of her family and friends to aid her romance when all the time she herself is trying to escape from it because she cannot overcome her fear and horror of the physical intimacy of marriage, that makes the bedrock of the story. Apparently this fear is rooted in her peculiar childhood and firmly imbedded when she discovers that the man she is in love with was her stepmother's lover and is supposed to have been responsible for her suicide. At the commencement of the story Anna and brother Alexander have just returned to England for the first time in ten years to be reunited with their parents who will be on leave from India. Here the book flashes back to explain that Anna's mother died when she was very small and David, her father, remarried a young widow with a small daughter of her own. This marriage lasted a matter of months and was followed by a divorce. Subsequently there was another marriage which ended three years later with the wife's confinement in a lunatic asylum. By the time she was six years old Anna had had three mothers and was left with none. Deciding that her future would be in better hands elsewhere her father sends her to his brother, a minister in the missionary service in Canada. During her sojourn with her uncle her father, (released again by the death of his mad wife) marries for the fourth time and Jocelyn the new wife not only manages to live with him happily but also presents him with a son Alexander, who goes to live with Anna in Canada because the climate in India where their father is working is not considered suitable for him.

The reunion is not only of the Merriman family but also includes Rose, the daughter of the second Mrs. Merriman and it takes place at the old Welsh country house owned by the aunt who has brought her up since her mother killed herself after a quarrel with her lover, Robert Gorman. It is this lover with whom the unworldly young Anna falls so despairingly in love. At this crucial moment, before she has had time to acclimatize herself to this long forgotten homeland or the household of strangers among whom she lives, she is forced to contend with the story of Diana's death and Robert's connection with it and is then confronted with the spectacle of his lovemaking with her hostess, a situation into which he has been drawn most reluctantly. All these factors bring about in her a revulsion from sex that is so violent she is forced to the conclusion that she is abnormal and has no right to marry at all and should therefore retire to a convent. Her family are not so easily persuaded of her vocation and try to solve her difficulties, as they see them, and the chaos and cruelty that arise from their efforts are believable and terrible. It is only through the wonderful understanding of Jocelyn, the fourth wife, and Robert Gorman himself that anything of Anna is salvaged.

In the first few pages of this book the reader is suddenly catapulted into the midst of the numerous characters all of whom seem to be vaguely related to each other, which is slightly bewildering but is a difficulty which soon irons itself out. It is a very interesting book, I think; one of the most sensitive studies of a young girl to come this way since the German book "Madchen in Uniform". The author has drawn her characters with remarkable clarity and has managed to convey the evil of the narrow-minded and prejudiced and the helplessness of the ignorant, and while quite frank and outspoken about the cause and effect of Anna's feeling of sexual aversion Miss Bowers has shown a wonderful delicacy of treatment and a great deal of understanding. ## Moose Music and Diesels

(THE WINDSOR STAR)

IT is high time someone came to the defence of Canada's moose. Some male members of the species have been accused of not knowing the difference between the whistle of a Diesel locomotive and the love-call of lady members of their tribe.

The crying shame of it is that they are Ontario moose which have been accused. The sly and unwarranted implication here is that Ontario moose are an inferior breed, bereft of that fine perception and manly sense of romantic conquest which, as every Ontarioan knows—whether he has even seen a moose or not—lies deep within the rugged, ungainly frame of every moose reared in this richly blessed province.

Wild game enthusiasts explain it this way. The bull moose are fooled by the wail of the Diesel locomotive whistles and are thus attracted to the railway tracks where they are killed by passing trains. As many as eleven moose thus have met an inglorious end within the period of one week.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE game experts offer no solution, but it is obvious something will have to be done, either with the cow moose's call or the locomotive's whistle. One or the other will have to be changed if conditions are as the game experts allege. On the other hand, we can be thankful that wiser heads in the Ontario lands department proclaim the charge to be nothing short of libel against the moose. Romance, they snort, has nothing to do with it. The mating season for moose lasts for three weeks during September and moose are accidentally killed at all times of the year by inadvertently crossing the tracks in front of an approaching train.

Not the least intriguing feature of the story is the alleged similarity in tone between the modern Diesel whistle and the cow-moose call. One writer has set it down as: "Wu, wu." This is indeed a poor effort, but perhaps as close as one may venture in type.

A more reasonable explanation of man's inability to distinguish clearly the two sounds would be to blame it on the old standby—human fallibility. In this jittery age, what with a Korean war, a rail strike and the high cost of living, mere humans are soft touches for such wild impulses as believing the moose are fooled.

What sounds like: "Wu, wu," to human ears, quite likely, doesn't sound that way at all to Don Juan Moose. More likely he construes it: "Hyah, Big Boy, whyn't you come up and see me sometime? Haven't seen you around since last forest-fire time."

✧ ✧ ✧

IF any, even the remotest, basis exists for believing the canard that a string of box cars, pulled by a collection of oil-burning engines, in the least degree resembles a cow moose, it would surely be dissipated by the scent of an oil-burner downwind. Even with the hay-fever season upon us, a bull moose certainly would know he was on the wrong scent.

Most people, therefore, will be inclined to go along with the desk men at the department of lands and forests, at the same time not overlooking the undoubted reality of Diesels having brought a new era upon us all.

If the hunters and game experts, on the other hand, have uncovered a true natural phenomenon, insofar as the moose are concerned, it should be no grave undertaking to have the Diesel whistle tone raised or lowered a note or two—better make it a full octave—thus avoiding any posibility of mistaken identity.

In the meantime, we are on the side of the moose and we say, with all due respect to the woodsmen: "Wu, wu," to you.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and dust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness! (Matt. 6: 19-23.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away: but the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you. (I Pet. 1: 24, 25.)

Letter To The Editor

IS COUNCIL OF GOOD CALIBRE?

Sir: In a Letter to the Editor, A. N. Other says "If we are to criticize the Council's business too much, it may become difficult to get men of good calibre to serve on the Council". Presumably the writer considers the present Council is composed of men of good calibre. Well, every person is entitled to his own opinion.

But if the Council refuses to allow a person to sell popcorn, tells another he must cease vending his wares, is it not feasible that these same "men of good calibre" will soon refuse dairies from selling milk along our streets, and the bakeries from selling bread, cookies, cakes, etc.?

A bit far-fetched you say? A. N. Other claims the issue is simply to license (or not) one or a limited number of lunch wagons on the city streets. How quickly we do forget. The man with the umbrella flies across the Channel to meet a dictator, puts his trust in him, and comes home positive in his own mind that Hitler is a peace loving man, and desires no more territory, or power....or potato chips.

Since most people are in favour of a lunch wagon on our streets, and since the main argument of those who oppose it is the unfair competition of a tax free business, I suggest that the Council should allow the permit, levying a tax, or fee at the time the permit is issued to correspond to taxes paid by other businesses.

BLAKE E. WALKER.

"Same problem as Mafeking, Willy—can't make up me mind whether to join the Army or be a farmer's boy."

COUNCIL PORTRAIT—In full assembly, members of the North Atlantic Council and their deputies meet in New York for the fifth session. A. Charlton and Frances Morrissey, secretaries for the North Atlantic Council.

Easter Lily Blooms In Millbrook Garden

MILBROOK, Sept. 20—(ENS)—Although summer was cold and wet, Miss Crystal Stewart is convinced it was wonderful weather for growing flowers.

Last spring after it had finished blooming in the house, she took an Easter lily that had been given to her mother and planted it in the garden.

About a week ago when she had almost forgotten it, she found it thriving in the garden bearing three large blooms.

Shannon Retires, Son Successor

MARMORA, Sept. 20 (ENS)—J. Alphonse Shannon who has been overseer with the Department of Game and Fisheries for 13 years and conservation officer with the Department of Lands and Forests for the past three years has resigned.

He reached retiring age a year ago, but carried on until the first of September this year.

His son, John A. Shannon, has been appointed conservation officer with the Department of Lands and Forests and succeeds his father in this district.

MORNING COUGHS and Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? Do you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The cause of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Asthma or Bronchitis. In such cases, the very first dose of MENDACO usually starts right now, working through the blood and thus reaching lungs and bronchial tubes, to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the chest, then helps Nature loosen and clean out thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Ask your druggist for MENDACO. Satisfaction or money back.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

A Colorado Springs correspondent wants to know if a good bridge player will also be a good Canasta player.

The answer to her question is a cinch. It is: Maybe yes! Maybe no!

Larceny Lou and Generous George are just as successful at Canasta as at Bridge. Hard Luck Joe has just as bad luck at one game as at the other. On the other hand, Pessimistic Pete, who has been one of the best bridge players in the country for years, is a losing Canasta player.

The reason lies in Pete's temperament. At bridge Pete is always preparing for the worst. He plays his cards in such a manner as to protect himself against bad breaks and as a result he loses less due to bad breaks than any other expert.

Of course he wins less when things go well, but on the whole, he does very well at bridge.

At Canasta, on the other hand, his pessimism results in his selling out his good hands for peanuts.

For instance, here is one of his typical plays. Both sides need 120 and Pete's partner melds two jokers and two kings on the second round.

If Pete has one king in his hand, he adds that king to the meld automatically. If he has two kings he adds them, and probably a couple of wild cards if he holds them so as to make a canasta right away.

If he doesn't have any king in his hand, he is likely to put some three-card meld of his own right down on the table.

By stripping his hand in this fashion, he makes it easy for his opponents to freeze the discard pile in reasonable safety. Then, since both he and hi partner have stripped their hands, it is a cinch that neither will ever get the discard pile and they are forced to play for a quick out.

Of course, they usually do get out quickly and are likely to score from six to eight hundred points sometimes before the opponents are able to melt at all.

However, they never get one of those big hands in which they score several thousand, because Pete is too pessimistic.

THE NEW DRYFOLD DIAPER COVER

An amazing new diaper cover, DRYFOLD, puts an end to unsanitary, irritating rubber pants which often cause babies to cry. DRYFOLD pins right on with diapers. BLACK CATS

Teen-agers are disturbed this week according to the letters we have received. Here are the questions and our best advice in the answers:

FIRST DANCE: "I'm fifteen and taking a girl to a dance for the first time. How much money will I require to do the thing properly?"

It depends on the girl, the dance and the state of your finances. Girls definitely do not require a taxi cab and a corsage for week-end dances. However you do need the tickets, street car fare, a dollar for a coke and a sandwich. That's about all. Don't start spoiling the girls. All it gets you is a headache.

NON-SHAVER: "I'm a boy who has yet to shave for the first time. Is it necessary for me to use after shave lotion? Will it stimulate the growth of a beard? I want to start using a razor."

After-shave lotion certainly makes your face feel better whether you shave or not. But even the best lotion (even Tamblyn's) won't make that beard come along faster. Just relax and let nature take its course.

BABY SITTING: "I want to add to my income this year by baby sitting. Some folks tell me young parents would rather have a boy. Others tell me that mothers prefer a girl. I do need the money, what should I charge?"

You're right. Plenty of parents feel safer with a boy in the house when they step out for the night. If you made it known throughout your neighborhood that you were available for baby-sitting, I'm sure you would have no difficulty getting clients. The charge? It varies from 35c an hour to 50c an hour for expert service (expert service means being able to change the baby and give him a bottle). Good luck!

Mutuals Launch A Protest Over East City Game

Business manager Lou Lebarr of Mutuals—with the consent of the club sponsor, Jack Legris—yesterday wrote President Pat Calladine of the City Softball League an official protest on the East City-Mutuals game played Monday night. He also informed the league president that the club had defaulted the second game scheduled for Monday night but was not defaulting the remainder of the final playoffs.

When East City won 5-4 in 11 innings Monday evening, it tied up the best of seven finals for the city title and the Wm. Taylor Trophy at two games each. However, Manager Johnny Russelle of Mutuals, having but eight able-bodied players (he used Tony Giardino in this tilt, though Tony is slowly recovering from a broken ankle) defaulted the second game scheduled for the night. Playing manager Russelle also announced that he would default the rest of the series to East City, and this statement was repeated to the crowd over the P.A. system by Pat Calladine.

Writes President

Lou Lebarr advised The Examiner yesterday that he had written the league president. He protested the game on the grounds that Umpire Holly Mowry was wrongfully calling "balls" on pitches by Bob Greenlaw, the umpire stating they were illegal pitches. Mr. Lebarr admitted that the second game of the night had been defaulted but he said Johnny Russelle had been too hasty—and had not consulted officials and players on the Mutuals club—in saying the rest of the series would be defaulted.

"None of us want the series to end that way," the club's business manager said in an interview: "Johnny Russelle had cooled off today and agreed that he had been too hasty and had not checked with the rest of us on the club. He had to default the one game but not the rest of the series. Whether we win the protest or not, or whether we win the series of not, we don't care so much—but we want to either win it or lose it on the field." He felt it was up to the executive to rule on the protest and also to order resumption of the series. Jack Legris, who had put up the money for the club agreed with this, saying it was only fair to the fans to have the series settled properly.

Was Burned Up

Johnny Russelle admitted he had been hasty, but claimed he was burned up at the umpire's calls on Greenlaw's pitches—and also the fact that some of his players hadn't shown up for the game, leaving the team short-handed. He said Greenlaw had been using the same pitching delivery all year and it had never before been declared illegal, and he said the other game umpires could find nothing wrong with this delivery. Johnny hoped the series could be finished up properly with another game or two.

Manager Ken Guilfoyle of East City could not be reached for his opinion last night, but Coach Ossie Anderson said his team would abide by the decision of the league executive. He and George Sullivan (who had organized the club) agreed that it was an unsatisfactory ending to the softball season and that it should have been settled by actual play. Sullivan added that he could not make any decision as he was not managing the club and also he would be leaving later this week for pro hockey.

It is expected that the league executive will have an early emergency meeting to deal with the protest and to decide on further action, if any, by the teams concerned at this time. East City at the moment are considered the league champions, but if the series is resumed they will be finalists leading the series three games to two.

Additional Sports On Pages 7, 8.

WELCOME ADDITIONS to the McGill camp are George Valois, RIGHT, and 'Baldy' Tomlinson. Late in reporting, they have been big guns in Coach Vic Obeck's camp. George is the 200-pound star backfielder of last year's club, while Tomlinson is remembered as standout guard with the Grey Cup champion Stampeders of 1948.

Schedules Out For Grid In High School

Two different football leagues will offer local fans two different grades of collegiate football this fall on local gridirons.

St. Peter's High School has entered for the first time a senior squad on the local football front. This team will be playing the senior "B" portion in the newly-formed Ontario Catholic Athletic Conference under Fred Allore, with St. Michael's and De La Salle Oaklands of Toronto.

As the conference is just in its first year only two leagues will be operating this year, the senior "B" loop and a senior "A" league featuring St. Jerome's College in Kitchener, De La Salle Oaklands and St. Michael's of Toronto (the latter two are separate teams from the senior "B" setup).

Play Junior PCVS

Home-and-home games have been arranged with the two Toronto teams, and exhibition games with Alex Londry's 1949 COSSA champions will be played. The Toronto games will be played at Oakwood stadium, one of the three a Sunday afternoon game. SPHS opens this Friday night at Morrow Park with the PCVS junior "A" team.

Coach G. B. (Bev) Goulding's seniors at PCVS face the same football program as last year. In lakeshore play this year they have only Oshawa Collegiate to face. This will be a best in three series, the winner entering the COSSA semi-finals on November 11. The final game for the championship will be played a week later.

Fill-in dates have been arranged by Mr. Goulding for his senior "A" entry. They will play exhibition games this Friday night under the lights at Morrow Park as part of the double-header. A week Friday they will travel to Toronto where they will again try to drop the East York Goliaths who whipped them last year. Other exhibitions will be made with Weston, Jarvis and Riverdale Collegiates of Toronto.

The schedules for the senior games this year are:

PCVS

Sept. 22 — Runneymede at PCVS
Sept. 29 — PCVS at East York
Oct. 6 — exhibition with Toronto collegiate
Oct. 13 — exhibition with Toronto collegiate
Oct. 21 — Oshawa at PCVS
Oct. 28 — PCVS at Oshawa
Nov. 4 — third game if necessary
Nov. 11 — COSSA semi-final
Nov. 18 — COSSA final

SPHS

Sept. 22 — SPHS at PCVS juniors
Sept. 29 — SPHS at St. Michaels
Oct. 9 — De La Salle at SPHS
Oct. 15 — SPHS at De La Salle
Oct. 24 — PCVS juniors at SPHS
Oct. 28 — St. Michael's at SPHS

Newsom Gets Release

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20 (AP).—Bobo Newsom has pitched his last game of Chattanooga in the Class-AA Southern Association. The former major-leaguer asked for his unconditional release from the club, and president Joe Engel granted his request.

Engel said Newsom telephoned from St. Louis Tuesday and said he planned to go into the movies, broadcast big league baseball, or pitch for a major league club.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Coach Bev Goulding of the senior PCVS grid pack isn't given to undue optimism when it comes to football. Few ceaches are. Yet he does think that his 1950 edition is about the biggest and fastest he has had since coming to Peterborough. A lot of weight in the line and backfield, yet speedy, too. An ideal combination in this game. Fans will get a chance to see for themselves Friday night under the arcs at Morrow Park. Senior PCI-ers will play Runnymede Collegiate of Toronto in an exhibition as the nightcap of a twin bill, Alex Londry's PCVS juniors going first against Fred Allore's St. Peter's seniors. Plenty of wide-open grid action assured in both frays.

Bob Abbott of the Ontario Golf Association executive advises that the fall tournament staged by the OGA will be held this Saturday at the Peterborough Golf Club. As Bob has been sick lately, Stan Payne will look after the details for him. This tourney is open to members of any authorized club in the province and usually draws quite a few outside entries from as far away as Barrie and Hamilton. As well as the cream of the local crop. It's being held a bit later than usual but they don't figure to be teeing off in a snow-bank this odd autumn.

Playoff At The Bowl

Weather permitting, there's an OASA intermediate "A" playoff tonight at 8.15 in the Bowl, New Toronto vs. Mutuals. The latter won that series in two straight—both keen games—but New Toronto won a protest on the first one because the local pitching mound was five inches too far from the plate. So, this is a replay. A win for Mutuals wraps up this quarter-final provincial playdown series, but a loss would force another tilt on neutral grounds. Needless to say, neither team likes each other—both frays being full of arguments It'll be a hot session, and should draw a large crowd. Softball is nearly finished for this year.

* * * * * *

The Petes' decision not to drop back for the OBA senior "B" playdowns was a wise one, we feel. Not too much credit if they won out, but plenty of expense involved in long trips in cold weather. And probably slim home crowds. The men o' Murphy did real well this summer, only losing out in loop finals to an import-packed Oshawa team which also won the Canadian Congress tourney over London Majors. Had they lights all season, they would have played to much bigger crowds, as was shown at the tail-end of the season. Vern Dawson, George Clarke, Ed Murphy, Lloyd Grose and the other officials, and all the fine fellows who played this season, deserve credit on the season's showing.

* * * * * *

More On The Rhubarb

Elsewhere is a story we have on the rhubarb in the men's softball finals. East City were declared winners on default but officials of Mutuals don't want it that way. They want to win or lose on the field. They've protested the East City win Monday eve and they agree the second tilt scheduled that night was defaulted. But they insist the rest of the series wasn't defaulted. Johnny Russelle admits he was too hasty in saying so and that he hadn't consulted other club officials or players. East City officials say they'll abide by the ruling of the league executive. So, it's strictly up to the executive now. For the fans' sake, we think the series should be settled on the field.

A soccer item. The UEW team resumes its Eastern Ontario schedule with a game Saturday in Kingston. Two close contests in the intermediate section of the School Soccer League yester aft. King Edward and Central battled it out to a scoreless draw, while King George edged the combined Queen Alex-Queen Elizabeth team by a 1-0 count. Three senior games go this afternoon, while these intermediate jousts are billed for tomorrow: Prince of Wales at King George, and Central vs. QA-QE on the northend pitch. No junior fixtures listed again until Monday after school.

McLaughlin Sells Stables To Industrialist

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP)—The famed Parkwood Stables of Col. R. S. McLaughlin have been sold to E. P. Taylor, millionaire Toronto industrialist.

Taylor, owner of one of the finest racing stables in Canada, said today the farm will be operated as a "national stud" to improve Canadian horses.

"We feel that we have been breeding increasingly-better stock in Canada in recent years and we hope to make Parkwood such an institution that the best American racing stables will send their mares to our stallions," he said. "We trust that the day will come when Canadian-bred horses will be the equal of any thoroughbreds in the world."

Purchase price of the 470-acre estate near Oshawa was not disclosed. Taylor said it will be operated by a syndicate which will buy high-grade stallions and make them available for breeding to horsemen with suitable mares.

Col. McLaughlin, a leading Canadian horseman for 20 years, announced nearly a year ago that he as giving up racing. Since then he has been racing on a reduced scale. Now his entire stock will be sold in a month. In the meantime, the stable will be raced by Taylor.

Parkwood includes a half mile training track and accommodation for 64 horses.

Joe Louis chased Bob Pastor around the ring for 10 rounds in Chicago 11 years ago tonight and finally caught up with him long enough for a knock-out in the 11th. It was the eighth title defence for Louis, who makes a come-back Sept. 27, meeting Ezzard Charles in a title bout.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

There is a four way tie in Group No. 2, of our men's schedule and that means a play-off to determine the winner. The committee has arranged for Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock. B. Jeffries vs. H. Clegg, A. Aitkenhead, vs. J. Hill, 10 ends; winners to play final game of 10 ends, at 8:30 o'clock.

On Friday night, weather permitting, we intend holding another one of those popular men's doubles. Choose your own partner. 7:15 o'clock sharp. $1.00 a pair.

This being the half-holiday, we have bowlers playing in Lindsay, Oshawa and Port Hope. We may have some reports for tomorrow's column.

Tigers Belt A's; Yanks Lose 4-3

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The American League had a brand-new race going today. New York, Boston and Detroit are only half a game apart with only 12 days to go in the tense battle for World Series loot.

The pace setting Yanks fell within a whisper of the runners-up Tuesday night by losing to Chicago 4-3. Detroit belted out Philadelphia 12-4 in a day game and Boston was rained out in Cleveland to set up the tie for second place.

So here's the way the three teams stood going into Wednesday's three-pronged action:

| | W | L | GB | TP |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 90 | 53 | — | 11 |
| Boston | 89 | 53 | ½ | 12 |
| Detroit | 89 | 53 | ½ | 12 |

Today it was New York at Chicago, Philadelphia at Detroit and Boston at Cleveland, the last a doubleheader. Players can be counted on to give the scoreboard as much attention as they do the opposing pitchers.

Pin Hopes On Ford

New York pinned its hopes on lefty Ed Ford (7-0) the magnificent 21-year-old rookie who will be opposed by Ray Scarborough (13-16), the one-time Washington ace.

In Detroit it was Dizzy Trout (13-5) for the revamped Tigers against Philadelphia's Alex Kellner.

The surging Red Sox went with two well-rested hurlers in Chuck Stobbs (11-6) and Joe Dobson (15-8) against the cream of the Cleveland staff, Bob Lemon (20-11) and Early Wynn (16-8).

Tuesday's firing brought near disaster to New York, new hope for Detroit and rest for Boston's rubber-armed relief ace, Ellis Kinder.

Besides losing a game they almost had won, the Yanks temporarily lost the services of Vic Raschi, their 20-game ace. The crack righthander, who pitched an inning of relief last Sunday to save a game against the Browns, was riding a 3-2 lead for 6⅓ innings when he complained his arm "didn't feel right."

Ferrick Flunks

Tom Ferrick, a demon rescue worker until recently, failed in the clutch again. Chico Carrasquel nicked him for a single and Gus Niarhos, the former Yank, doubled him to third. With two out Nelson Fox blasted a triple to centre to drive in the tying and winning runs.

The Yanks had gone ahead 3-2 on Joe DiMaggio's 31st homer and Yogi Berra's 24th four-bagger, the latter's a two-run blow.

In Detroit where Red Rolfe reshuffled his line up, the Tigers' spirits soared. Hoping to get more attack in his line-up, Rolfe sent in Charlie Keller, Pat Mullin and Dick Kryhoski to replace Vic Wertz, Hoot Evers and Don Kolloway. The change worked.

Keller, the ex-Yankee, was making his first start in the line-up after invaluable pinch-hitting duties. He answered the bell like an old firehorse, powering two homers, two singles and driving in five runs. Mullin blasted out a homer an a double. Kryhoski whacked out two singles.

The Tigers' 19-hit bombardment against the A's was their second biggest of the year. Behind that clouting, young Art Houtteman breezed to his 19th win of the year.

Washington nipped St. Louis 5 3 in the other American League contest.

In the National League race, Boston moved a full game up on Philadelphia by nipping St. Louis 7-6 while the Phils were clipped 1-0 by Chicago. Brooklyn Dodgers also moved up by whipping Pittsburgh twice, 14-3 and 3-2. The Cincinnati-New York game was rained out.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Whipper Willy Watson is too valuable a hunk of property to get tangled up with a bunch of bruising football players. For that reason he won't play in any Edmonton Eskimos home games this season.

The Whipper, pride and joy of Toronto wrestling fans, signed a contract with the Eskimos last June and planned to take his place on the line when the Western Canada Interprovincial Football Union club played at Edmonton. But the idea was nixed by Toronto promoter Frank Tunney.

"Ten guys jumping on you with cleats can do a lot of harm," Tunney explained when he announced the Whipper would confine his mayhem to the wrestling ring. Tunney has a five-year contract with Watson, and it has two more years to go.

Does that mean football is tougher than wrestling, Tunney was asked.

"Well, I don't say 10 guys with cleats on are going to climb over Whipper, but there are a lot of big fellows out there and they can do a lot of harm. Watson is too valuable a piece of property to let loose on a football field."

St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League have purchased three players from New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

The players, who will join the Flyers at their training camp in North Bay this week, are centreman Sherman White, 28, defenceman Jean-Paul Lamirande, 27, and Steve Hrymnak, 25.

Bob Heck, star American outside of the Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four, flies to Chicago today for an appointment with his draft board. He'll be back by Saturday for the Argos football game in Toronto with Ottawa Rough Riders.

President Bob Moran of Argos said he'll try to get Heck deferred until the end of the season.

Dick (Kid) Howard, showing improvement after a United States tour, took a unanimous 10-round decision from Jean Richard of Montreal in the feature event of a boxing card at Halifax Tuesday night.

Richard went into the ring at 136½, a 6½ pound advantage over the Maritime lightweight champion.

Joe Louis said Tuesday he doesn't expect his heavyweight championship fight with Ezzard Charles a week from tonight to end in a decision.

"It'll be a knockout one way or the other," he said firmly. "Charles, he stands and fights. He doesn't run away like Joe Walcott did."

Bill Tobin, president of Chicago Black Hawks of the National League, said Tuesday he believes goalie Frank Brimsek intends to retire from hockey.

He was commenting on a report that Coley Hall, owner of the Pacific Coast League Vancouver Canucks, wants to hire Brimsek "at a salary which shouldn't be hard to take."

"I gave Hall permission to negotiate with Brimsek," said Tobin at the Hawks' training camp in North Bay. "But I still think Frankie will retire. However, if he decides to play for Vancouver, I will be willing to negotiate with them for his contract."

Brimsek, formerly of Boston Bruins, was bought by Chicago last year. He was offered a Hawk contract recently and a chance to play in the Chicago farm system but told Tobin he thought he'd quit hockey.

Orioles Square Series With Win

By The Associated Press.

Baltimore Orioles and Montreal Royals battle at Montreal tonight to see which team meets Rochester Red Wings in the finals of the International League playoffs.

The Orioles, faced with elimination Tuesday night, squared their series with Montreal at three games apiece by whipping the Royals 6-3 before 7,934 fans.

So it'll be either Jim Hughes or Joe Landrum for Montreal against Karl Drews for the visiting Orioles.

Rochester gained the final round Monday night by defeating Jersey City 7-3 to clinch their series 4-2.

A home run by Anse Moore with two mates on capped a four-run, sixth-inning spree which gave Bill Kennedy the nod over three Montreal hurlers. Kennedy, in winning his second game of the series, struck out five, walked three and scattered ten hits. Starter Clyde King was the loser.

Batting—Charlie Keller, Tigers: making his first start in the regular line-up, he batted in five runs with two homers and two singles to lead Detroit to 12-4 victory over Philadelphia.

Pitching—Frank Hiller, Cubs: blanked the league-leading Phils on two hits for 1-0 victory.

Hastings Beaten

HASTINGS, Sept. 20—(ENS)—Hastings Legion find themselves just a game away from elimination in the T.V.L. playdowns, after losing the second straight to Trenton Merchants last night 9-4 at Hastings.

Crowley, on the Legion mound, fired the third strike past 12 of the Merchants, but his occasional wildness, and four bobbles behind him, kept him in constant hot water.

Curtis went the route for Trenton, and his control gave the Legion boys no time to dig in.

Mackness, with a long triple, and Scott, with a two-run homer to right field were the heavy hitters for the Legion.

Flynn, with three for four, and Mills and Jeffrey with two each, were best for the Merchants.

Line-ups:

Trenton—R. Mills, lf Flynn, 2b; Curtis, p; Scott, 3b; Carswell, c; Jeffrey, 1b; Meron, ss; Jordon, cf; W. Mills, rf.

Legion—Fife, rf; Spencer, cf; Crowley, p; Mackness, 1b; Scott, c; Scriver, 2b; Beavis, ss; Phillips, lf; Merron, 3b.

First Tabloid Sports Meet At Queen Alexandra School

Ten teams, comprising 185 boys and girls, competed yesterday in the Queen Alexandra tabloid sports meet on the school grounds. [illegible] held by the northend public school and proved highly successful. The school was divided into four basic groups: Junior girls of grades four and five, two teams; junior boys, four and five grades, two teams; senior girls grades six, seven and eight, three teams; and senior boys, grades six, seven and eight, three teams.

The 1950 sports day champions declared were: Senior girls, grade eight; senior boys, grade six; junior girls, grade five; junior boys, grade four. Second prize ribbons went to: Senior girls, grade seven; senior boys, grade seven; junior girls, grade four; junior boys, grade five. Team competed against team, rather than individuals in competition, with team co-operation and competition the keynote of the meet. Teams rotated from event to event on five field stations, going simultaneously.

The Officials

The following officials were in charge: Station 1, underhand softball pitching for accuracy, Miss J. M. Arnold; station 2, volleyball serve, Miss B. Hart; station 3, soccer kick for accuracy, Mr. H. Wilson; station 4, standing broad jump, Mr. N. J. Gainer; station 5, shot put, Mr. R. K. McKee. The timer was Mr. J. E. R. Munro.

The meet was climaxed by a shuttle relay race and an over and under relay race with 10 runners picked by team captains. Chief scorer R. K. McKee was in charge. The double standard method of scoring points was used with "A" and "B" standards. A competitor was the "A" standard got three points for his team and "B" meant two points. All who tried and failed got one point. Following are the teams:

Rays Take First

Raybestos opened the Industrial Fastball League final series last night at Quaker Park with a 9-5 victory over Westclox. After scoring single runs in the first two frames, they broke loose for five markers in the third, and added a pair in the sixth. The Clockers counted one each in the third and sixth, and three in the seventh of a keen contest. Murphy went the route on Rays' mound, while the losers used two twirlers. Teams:

Westclox: O'Donoghue, 3b; Wyatt, ss; Parsons, 1b, rf; Morin, lf; White, cf; Miller, c; Guerin, 2b; Weir, rf; Evans, p; Heffernan, p, 1b.

Tragic Segregation Found Among School Children

By JACK SCOTT

CAMPBELLTON, N.B.— Stand on any one of the playgrounds of the three public schools of Campbellton this crisp autumn morning. Look out to the Restigouche River, which separates New Brunswick and Quebec and, beyond, the blue and sparkling Baie des Chaleurs.

Your gaze encompasses the scene of the last bloody naval battle between French and English. Out there on the broad, quiet river in the spring of 1760 a British fleet under Commodore John Byron, known as "Foul-weather Jack," met and destroyed the frigate Le Marchant and five merchant ships under the command of Captain La Giraudais sent from France for the relief of Quebec.

They say that when the tide is low the bleached skeleton of Le Marchant is still visible through the clear water of the Restigouche.

But there's a much more tangible relic of that ancient war right here on any of the school grounds of Campbellton. For here the war is still going on between the French and the English and some 200 years after the last cannon fired you may see Canadian boys and girls separated by race and religion.

In Campbellton there is a tragic segregation of the children. In each of the eight grades in these public schools there are three distinct classes. There is a class for boys and girls who are French Catholics. There is a class for those who are Irish Catholics. There is a class for the English-speaking non-Catholics.

In this northeast corner of New Brunswick Canadian children are being taught not to live together as Canadians, but apart as different breeds of Canadians.

Silent Critics

Campbellton's strange school system of religious barriers in existence for more than four years and said to be the only one of its kind in Canada, is a very touchy subject in this pleasant town of half-French, half-English, an unhappy manifestation of New Brunswick's race problem.

I spent all of yesterday fruitlessly trying to find a Campbelltonian who would consent to be quoted on the subject. In the capital at Fredericton, I'm told, there is the same conspiracy of silence. No one dares speak his mind against the growing power of the French.

Yet, curiously, many French see the danger. One Acadian businessman told me, "It's an unhappy compromise that can only bring harm. We are dividing children under the same roof, making them conscious of their differences."

A Protestant real estate man, with two children at school, said, "In my day we all went to school together. It brought us closer. Which is what we want and need. But now, with this new system, I find my kids lined up against the Catholics. It makes for the same kind of distrust and suspicion you get from any kind of segregation.

An Irish Catholic railroad worker said, "We're squeezed in the middle and we don't like it. But what can we do? The church fought a long time for the right to have Catholics taught by Catholic teachers—'God and language at our schools'—and it isn't likely to retreat from that position. Can't have our kids in the French classes because they're taught in French. Can't have them in the Protestant classes because that would mean a break with our church. So each grade has three classes."

The editor of one of Campbellton's two weekly papers said, "The system is cumbersome and expensive. More than that, it's dangerous as hell. We don't know what its long-term effect is going to be, but it can't help but bring intolerance."

Neither paper has editorialized on the subject. "Frankly," one editor told me, "We'd run the risk of folding up if we took a stand. We just have to take it and try to like it."

'Our Rights'

Essentially all three classes are taught the same curriculum as defined in Fredericton, but the Catholic groups appear at 8:30 in the morning, a half hour before the non-Catholics, for catechism instruction.

It means a lop-sided arrangement with over-crowding in one room, a half-empty class in another. One class, I was told has 16 non-Catholic students while in the adjoining room are crowded 48 French Catholic students.

A teacher (who all but made me swear an oath that I would not use his name) said that there is very little mingling of students of varying religion. "We don't discourage fraternizing," he said, "but the youngsters have begun to feel an antagonism toward each other. The only way this could possibly work would be to have different schools although, God knows, even that would be folly."

The French-Canadians who feel that this is a minor victory are still far from satisfied. They wish the curriculum changed, as one I talked to put it, "to maintain our own traditions and not to indoctrinate our children in your British traditions."

To the suggestion that some way should be worked out for intermingling, this fourth generation Canadian responded, "We have our rights and if they're taken from us this country is no better than Russia. The only way in which you can deny us that right is by a holy war."

United Church Condemns Materialism In Canada

TORONTO, Sept. 20—(CP)—A special committee of the United Church of Canada has condemns what it calls the materialism and irresponsibility of modern society.

In a 100-page report prepared for study by church groups and clergymen, the committee says that modern man is lonely in the midst of crowds; has overthrown old standards and now has nothing to use as a guide, and has amassed scientific knowledge at the expense of a sense of morality.

The report was prepared by a special committee on culture, set up four years ago to study the relationship between Christianity and modern culture. The committee comprised prominent clergymen and laymen.

The report claimed that "American paganism is having a baneful influence on Canadian culture. The evil impact of a glamorized American way of life which we are too prone to imitate, bodes ill for our moral and social well-being."

Need Steadfast Belief

Only through a steadfast belief in God could man's "fear, anxieties and worries be eradicated."

Because press and radio have become "powerful agents in the shaping of our destiny" professional ideals and attitudes are needed by journalists.

"The kind of training a journalist needs most today is not training in the tricks and machinery of the trade—if he is to be a competent judge of public affairs, he needs the broadest and most liberal education."

Motion pictures, especially those from Hollywood, tend to become a form of "paganism which places the value of money above the value of human personality and irresponsible profits above public well-being."

Too Commercial

Commercial sponsorship of radio programs and the system of best-sellers in literature are "fatal to independent and original creative effort," but there was an attempt being made by some writers to break through the "strangling grip of commerce."

Drama in Canada was healthy and virile, but music now was "commercialized . . . it is a luxury for those who can afford it."

The report said those tendencies are symptoms of man's rootlessness. The growth of science and the complexity of modern life had persuaded him to ignore the traditional religious and social moral standards. There was a general spirit of irresponsibility and "ethical anarchy" and the things that counted in life "are thing that money can buy."

"Modern man is trying to escape from himself. He has revolted against Divine authority, leaving him only the authority of his own ego. . . . This escapism shows that man suffers from a moral inferiority complex, a perverted idea of his place in the scheme of things."

$585,000 Asked In Bylaw For Collegiate

The City Council will be asked to put the sum of $585,000 in the money bylaw to be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal election for a new collegiate on Monaghan Road south of McKellar St. This was the decision reached by the accommodation committee of the Board of Education on Tuesday at which meeting all members of the board were asked to attend.

The committee met with the architect J. B. Parkin, Toronto, and after discussing and reviewing certain plans and sketches decided to have more complete drawings before the final design would be settled on.

Increases in the cost of building materials during the past three months were said to be largely responsible for the heavier demand on the ratepayers. It was explained that the Department of Education had approved of a building occupying 50,000 square feet at an estimated cost of $650,000, but that the committee after studying various plans and schemes had reduced the size to 46,000 square feet. At first it was thought that this could be built for $10 a square foot but with increased cost of building material the committee was advised to estimate at $11.50. This increased the cost of building from $450,000 to $529,000. The remainder of the amount asked from the ratepayers will be for architect's fees and for furnishing the school.

Province Pays 25 Per Cent

To carry this sum as a debenture it is estimated it would cost about $38,000 a year of which the provincial government would pay 25 per cent. It was also said that the outside pupils would contribute another 25 per cent, but that these payments are not to be made directly to the capital account but are used annually to reduce the demand made on the city for current expenditures. Under new legislation the outside pupils pay 100 per cent on all capital expenditures.

The new school is proposed by the Board as the PCVS is so badly crowded that more than 300 pupils must at all times study in the auditorium with its poor lighting facilities. In the vocational department classes are operated from eight in the morning until four in the afternoon.

If the bylaw passes it is hoped to have the new school ready for September 1952. The Board has hopes to be able to operate at the PCVS for another year without a staggered system. The latter means half the pupils attending classes from 8.00 a.m. to 1.00 and the rest from 1.00 p.m. to 6.00 p.m. Oshawa where a second collegiate has been completed was forced to operate in this way for three years It has also been suggested that it might be necessary to eliminate the auditorium and turn it into classrooms.

SQUEAKING FIDDLES AND TAPPING FEET filled the cool night air on Peterborough's Centennial Street Dancing night, Tuesday, on Aylmer, between King and Charlotte Sts. More than 3,000 citizens attended. Old-time fiddling, always an ace attraction was topped by Delores McCauley of Peterborough and Tommy Sullivan of Lakefield, Right photo; their playing was judged a draw. In the Left photo, Muriel Hillis of Omemee gives out with "Dusty Miller Reel" and came third.

Children's Aid Awarded Class A Rating

The Children's Aid Society of Peterborough is now one of the three societies in Ontario to be given "A" category standing by the Department of Public Welfare, Toronto. This information was released at the directors' meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The top standing was given following a grading analysis conducted during the year. A field supervisor from the Department visited this city and investigated the work being done. At the end of the year, after the supervisor's reports had been tabulated, the Department decided that the Board, Superintendent and staff had sufficiently raised the service of the local society to place it in "A" category.

Of the 53 societies in the province, York County and Ottawa are the only other two to be in "A" class.

T. T. Rodger, president of the Children's Aid Society paid tribute to Superintendent Miss Rachael Young and her staff for their competence and hard work that had resulted in this honor.

General McNaughton Will Speak In City

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the international joint commission of the United Nations, will be in the city October 26, A. E. Borland, chairman of the adult education committee, told the Recreation Commission Tuesday night.

Gen. McNaughton will speak at the Queen Mary School auditorium under the auspices of the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association in Canada.

Although admission is free, the seating capacity of the auditorium has forced the local branch to have admission by invitation only. Mr. Borland explained that persons wishing an admission invitation card will be able to obtain it in advance at the Public Library. Schools and other groups will be given blocs of admission cards.

National Security Rests On World Food Problem

Productive land is the only enduring basis for national security. That was the keynote of an address Tuesday night by E. B. Jollife, opposition leader in the Ontario legislature, who was addressing the Zone Four members of the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association.

The annual meeting and supper was held in the St. Lawrence hotel, Port Hope.

Mr. Jollife was one of the select committee of MPPs who made an intensive survey and then reported to Queen's Park on conservation in Ontario.

He praised the work already done on the Ganaraska forest—planted to prevent erosion and floods—in the area drained by the Ganaraska river.

"You have done something very positive and constructive," he said. "Leaving these counties better places than when we came into them is something for any citizen to be proud of."

Included in Mr. Jollife's audience were association members and interested listeners from the counties of Hastings, Peterborough, Durham, Victoria, Northumberland, Ontario, and Prince Edward.

He said the select committee had found there was 63,050 square miles of Ontario requiring reforestation, without delay. These lands might deteriorate still further if no reforestation is attempted, he warned.

The need for sound conservation measures is apparent the world over, not just in Ontario, he said. "Today most of the productive lands of the world are under cultivation and world's population is increasing rapidly."

Not Enough Food

At present there are more than 2,000,000,000 people in the world with a productive acreage estimated at 2,600,000,000 to 4,000,000,000. In short this means that a large per centage of the population never gets three square meals a day.

Nor is this due just to an inefficient means of distribution and the critical world situation. "Regardless of the world's peacefulness or the method of distribution we will never be able to assure all the peoples of the world adequate food unless our farming is efficient and the land is used to the best advantage."

The world's population tends to outstrip the existing food supply, said Mr. Jollife, and this cannot be changed by political solutions or even world government. In the final analysis the food problem must be solved by the intelligence and integrity of those who look after such natural resources as productive land, water courses, rivers, and even the sea.

Foresters, fishermen and land holders everywhere are the key men.

This involves individual initiative and public-spirited effort, he said. "We must rely not only on far-sighted leadership in Ottawa and Toronto, but also on the public-spirited citizens of the community."

"Co-operation on all levels of government is needed," said the CCF leader. "We realize this in wartime, but it is not so apparent in peacetime." There has been an almost constant state of international crisis during the last 15 years and conservation problems have sometimes been overlooked.

As an example of dominion-provincial co-operation, Mr. Jollife pointed to the joint project of reforesting 3,600 square miles of the precambrian shield during the next 25 years. It would be a costly project, but well worth the money and effort.

As Essential As Bread

"The day is coming when we will realize that wood is as essential as bread for man. We are heading for a wood shortage. Probably there is no better investment today than investing in wood."

There is nothing new in the federal government coming to the assistance of both provincial and municipal governments when projects are too big or costly for them to undertake alone. There was such co-operation under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act when burnt-out prairie land was reclaimed.

Another object of federal help is in the building of large dams. There is a lack of an overall policy despite some recent concessions from Ottawa.

Again Mr. Jollife warned that the international situation was no excuse for inaction. Despite its war economy the Soviet Union is building forest shelter belts through its thousands of miles of wheat-lands.

Why?

"Because the primitive farm implements of the Russian peasants have been replaced by power machinery, and the fertile lands are being blown away."

Returning to local conservation problems, the speaker said that there must be more efficiency shown in the planting of young trees. At present too many of them die.

Concluding his address, Mr. Jollife said an excellent example of good and bad conservation was to be seen in the Chengtu plain of Szechwan province, southwest China. For 1,500 years the peasants have been reaping three crops a year off the fertile land and it is more productive today than ever.

Yet in the nearby hills other peasants are working feeble land and much of it has become useless through erosion. The fertile soil is maintained because the area has not only good rainfall and irrigation, but the farmers save their "night soil" and return it to the ground. Nothing is wasted.

Melville Johnston, reeve of North Monaghan and past president of zone four, OCRA, thanked the speaker.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

DIRECTOR TO ATTEND

Permission was given to Alex Sinclair, recreation director, Tuesday night to attend the annual conference and training school for recreation directors to be held at Queen's University November 3-10. The school is being held under the direction of the Recreation Directors' Federation of Ontario.

CITY'S SHARE $1,232.07

The Recreation Commission's share from the 10 baseball games under the floodlights amounted to $1,232.07, C. G. Collins reported to the commission Tuesday night. No bills have yet been received from the Utilities for the cost of power used. The commission members were satisfied with this amount.

Fire Escape Stairs For Dixon House

Four fire safety improvements to the Dixon house were recommended by letter from Fire Chief George Smith to the Recreation Commission Tuesday night. These recommendations followed an inspection of the premises by Ald. Hurrell Dodds, Alex Sinclair, O. Wilson, fire inspector, and Chief Smith.

Chief Smith wrote the commission that a fire escape should be installed from the third floor, connecting to the second floor and to the ground, as a secondary means of escape. He also recommended that a soda-acid extinguisher be installed on the third floor in plain view, that the hot and cold air registers be cleaned out and a piece of screening placed under each, eliminating cigare[illegible]s and matches being thrown in and that the stove pipes in the kitchen be at least nine inches from all woodwork or protected by asbestos.

Dangerous Condition.

"At the present time lives could be lost on the third floor from smoke, heat or gas, there being only one set of stairs to use. There is only one small window over these stairs, which is next to impossible for women or children to escape from," wrote Fire Chief Smith.

Ald. Dodds, also a member of the commission, stressed the danger: "Why I doubt whether an athlete could get out the window to say nothing of the women and children."

He said that the cost of a steel stairway escape, estimated at about $700, would be nothing if a life could be saved.

William Bennett moved that the outside escape of stairs be put up as soon as possible and that the property committee of the commission be authorized to accept the most satisfactory bid for the job.

Colonel R. J. Bolton, chairman of the Recreation Commission, presided at this regular monthly meeting.

Relief Schedules In Peterborough On New Increase

In its welfare provision for unemployable persons, Peterborough has finally switched from the Campbell to the McHenry report. It is the only city in the province still carrying on relief work on the old schedule. Other municipalities have been switching to the McHenry basis of welfare. On October 1 Peterborough goes along with them.

That was the substance of the adoption by the council Monday of a new scale of welfare payments which becomes effective at the first of next month. The old Campbell schedule was an improvement in relief allowances back in the distressful days of the depression, and has been in use since then.

The new relief measure affords an increase, monthly, of $2.90 for one person, up from $13 to $15.90. Two persons: $5.14 increase, from $31.20 to $26.34. Family of three persons, $7.61 increase; from $29 to $36.61. Family of four persons, $15.02 increase, from $36.40 to $51.42. Five persons, $19.92 increase, from $43.30 to $63.22. Six persons, $23.33 increase, from $49.80 to $73.13. Seven persons, $31.38 increase, from $55.90 to $87.28.

And, if there were a family of eight persons, the increase to them would be $36.81 a month, from $61.58 to $98.31.

Few Larger Families

Welfare department has few large families to take under its wing. If the head of a family becomes unemployable, it is usual that help would come in the form of mother's allowance.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Public Welfare, has announced new relief regulations, for incapacitated persons, which include increases in allowances that will cost the province $400,000 a year.

There is a 10 per cent increase in food schedules for all age groups, plus a 25 per cent basic increase for single persons and adult members of families of two; also 20 per cent increase in shelter allowance for single persons and relative increase for families who require additional shelter payments.

The whole schedule has been reported. Maximum allowances to which the province will contribute set at 50 per cent of $175 for families of seven or more; and $135 for families of six or less.

And incidentally, the old Campbell schedule of nearly 20 years ago is departing.

The report of the welfare committee was presented to the council Monday by Ald. A. B. Burrows, chairman.

Extra Staff

"That the recommendation of the executive committee on providing a staff for operation of accounting and addressograph machines be adopted," was one of the clauses in the report of the finance committee of the council Monday.

Reference to the operation of machines purchased for facility in the clerical branch, elicited a comment that it was understood when they were purchased that if there were any staff effect it was expected to be a decrease, that less manual help would be required.

Fiddlers and Step Dancers Entertain 3,000 At City's Centennial Dance

More than 3,000 citizens filled the block on Aylmer St. between King and Charlotte on Tuesday evening to watch and participate in Peterborough's Centennial street dance. It was the second affair of its kind sponsored by the city since Old Home Week in 1929 and was more largely attended. Though the weather was cool and the crowd held back from round and square dancing until after feature contests, it warmed up and continued at a gay pace until 1 a.m.

Among the special events, step dancing drew the largest entry and most enthusiasm from the large crowd. Young ladies from four years of age to middle-aged men tapped out their intricate routines on a wooden platform where all could see. The Sullivan brothers, of Lakefield, Thomas, Jr., 7, and Dennis, Jr., 6, took first and third places, respectively, in the under 16-year group, while Wayne Crowley, of 289½ George St., aged 4, came second. Mickey McManus, also of Lakefield, was rated first in the adult section, Leo Morrissey second, George Downer third and Walter Orde fourth.

Old-time fiddling had only one contestant in the junior class, Carl Sargent, of Ida; he was commended on his ability by judge Christophere Gledhill. Carl's brother, Jack, accompanied him on the piano. The adult section was a bit of a stickler for the judges who finally conceded top place to Delores McCauley, of 478 Rubidge St., and Terry Sullivan, of Lakefield. Third spot was won by Muriel Hillis, of Omemee, playing "Dusty Miller Reel."

Square Dancing

The best set of square dancers were made up of people from Smith township and visitors from the United States. The couples were: Ronald Gilbert and Elva Morgan, Damon Mahew and Edna Bonnam, William Barbary and Peggy Mackey, and Bill Wilson and Phylis McIlmoyle.

Couples who won spotlight numbers in modern dancing were Muriel Mooney and Elmer Harten, Jean McCauley and H. Abrahams.

Chairman of the committee, Bruce Sargent, gives credit to master of ceremonies Jim Byrnes and orchestra leader Bob Kinsman for the smoothness with which the whole affair was conducted. He said that he also wished to thank Manson Cathcart for supplying the tractor trailer orchestra stand, the City Parks Committee for supplying necessary properties, the Utilities Commission for extra lighting installations, and the City Police.

Christophere Gledhill and Robertson Davies judged the fiddling contest and Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Stanley Northrop the step dancing.

HORTICULTURISTS

C. A. Cruickshank, Toronto, will be the speaker at the first meeting of the Horticultural Society for the fall term, Mon., Sept. 25, at the YWCA, at 8 p.m. He will discuss "Spring Flowering Bulbs." In an illustrated talk on the seasonal planting and care of tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, and other bulbs flowering next year. This is his first visit to the local society. Three door prizes of bulbs will be given. Admission is free, and a general invitation is extended to the public.

Two Boys Fight Over Girl Friend

Two youths pleaded guilty in police court Tuesday to charges of disturbing the peace by fighting over a girl in a local dance hall. They were each fined $15 and costs.

Michael E. Condon, Rogers St. and H. Wilson, Bethune St., were arrested after fighting in the dance hall Friday night and were kept locked up by provincial police until the morning.

Corporal Lloyd McClure of the provincial police said he had been warned trouble was brewing at the dance hall. He investigated it and found Condon and Wilson taking part in one square of a square dance, "looking daggers at each other."

The corporal left after a time, but he no sooner got into his cruiser when he received a message that a fight had started inside. He went back and broke up the fight.

He said Condon had been the agitator during the affair, but both had chips on their shoulders.

"The public goes to these places and they don't want their activities interrupted by fighting," Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, said. "If either of you appear here again on the same sort of charge, you will be given a heavier fine or a prison term."

New President, Vice For Junior Chamber

Two Junior Chamber of Commerce officers are moving out of the city forcing an election for president and vice-president.

The new president, elected at the September meeting of the Jaycees, is Gerald Brady. He succeeds Bill Edworthy who is moving to a farm near Norwood. Mr. Edworthy took office in June with the 1950 executive.

His vice-president, Don Clark, is moving to Toronto and Mr. Clark's successor is Grenville Lathangue.

Following is a revamped slate of officers: Gerald Grady, president; Grenville Lathangue, vice president; Leonard B. Martin, executive sec'y; Gordon Patterson, treasurer; and six directors—Ken Billings, Norm Chate, Keith Mitchell, Joe Merino, Jack Thompson and Charles Boulter.

Magistrate Acquits Prospector Of Charge Of Public Mischief

"This all makes delightful listening and delightful reading . . . but there is not enough evidence to say George ("Bud") Collins' story could not be true," said Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissing a charge of public mischief against Collins.

Collins, a young local prospector who lives on north Water St., was charged with making false statements to police to the effect that he had been shot at 25 or 30 times June 15 in Methuen township and wounded in the left arm blow the elbow.

Dr. Joseph Howes, who examined Collins in Civic Hospital here after the accused had been brought here from Apsley Red Cross Hospital, said the bullet had gone completely through the arm.

No Powder Burns

There were no powder burns on the arm and the doctor said he believed powder burns would not have been erased by treatment in the Apsley hospital. Powder burns could be evident, he said, from a shot fired at a distance of from up to eight or ten feet.

Corporal Lloyd McClure said he talked to Collins after he had been brought to Peterborough. He said Collins told him he had been prospecting near the shore of Clear Lake in Methuen township. The morning of June 15, he left his camp site to get water and returned to find someone had set fire to his haversack. Shortly after that someone began firing at him and he had crawled to a large rock for protection.

He produced a plaid shirt and T-shirt owned by Collins. The plaid shirt had some slight signs of dried blood and there was a blood stain about four inches across on the chest of the T-shirt.

"Are you suggesting this was all part of a setup to cause a sensation?" W. J. Arthur Fair, KC, defending Collins, asked Corporal McClure.

"Could be," the officer said.

Constable Bert Howden of the Apsley detachment said he investigated the alleged scene of the shooting three days later with Conservation Officer Robert Trotter of the Department of Lands and Forests.

12 Cartridge Shells

He said behind the rock about seven feet long and four feet high which Collins had related he used as protection, they found 12 spent cartridge shells grouped together within eight square inches.

They examined Collins' camp site about an eighth of a mile away, but could find no evidence of the haversack which Collins said had been burned. They looked for spent shells over the whole area including the approaches of the large rock, but could find none.

A rock ledge which was the only point from which Collins could have been shot at to be hit he pointed out, showed no signs of anyone having been there.

While they were investigating the shooting scene, Collins arrived by airplane piloted by Harry Oakland.

Collins pointed out two bullet marks low down on the rock, which the officers had been unable to find. Collins told them he thought the person shooting at him had been using a .32 calibre rifle. Officer Trotter shot at the rock with his 30.30 rifle and the hole made by the bullet was much bigger than those already in the rock.

Planted Two Shells

The officers planted two of the spent cartridge shells found behind the rock side by side about 40 feet from the rock. Then they had Oakwood "find" them.

Collins took them in his hand and said they were shells he had fired in the air as he was running to the rock.

Collins told the officers he had stayed behind the rock from about nine a.m. to about five p.m. He finally made a break from behind the rock and was wounded as he ran away.

Constable Howden said Collins would be running in the open at that spot. He could have had much greater cover by backing to the water's edge and going along it in either direction to escape his assailant.

Officer Trotter said there was a quantity of food, including canned goods, as well as tobacco, three shirts, a pair of trousers, and matches which Collins said he had carried to the rock as he was retreating from his attacker.

"If I were being chased by a man with a gun, I wouldn't be carrying all that stuff," the officer said. He said as far as he knew Collins was the only person in that area in about three weeks.

"There was a lot of imagination used in this, and I'm not referring to the officers," Magistrate Philp commented.

London Decides To Buy Transit System

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP) —London ratepayers elected Tuesday to purchase their present transit system for $1,000,000.

Voting was on two by-law ballots: the first to authorize the $1,000,000 purchase of the London Street Railway Company; the second to authorize the expenditure of $1,895,000 for the establishment of a new civic system.

With reports in from all 212 sub divisions, returns were: on the purchase of the present system for $1,000,000—yes, 6,132; no, 2,538; on the purchase of a new system for $1,895,000—yes, 2,381: No, 5,307.

Approximately one-third of the 25,000 eligible voters went to the polls.

The city will take over stockhold ownership of the following and other assets:

1. Eighty-two buses with a seating capacity of 2,878, and 12 auxiliary vehicles.
2. Lands and building.
3. Mechanical equipment and machine tools.
4. Office equipment, machines and supplies.

Although details have not been decided, city council has discussed modeling the administration of the company on the Toronto Transportation Commission.

Union Meeting Ends In Uproar

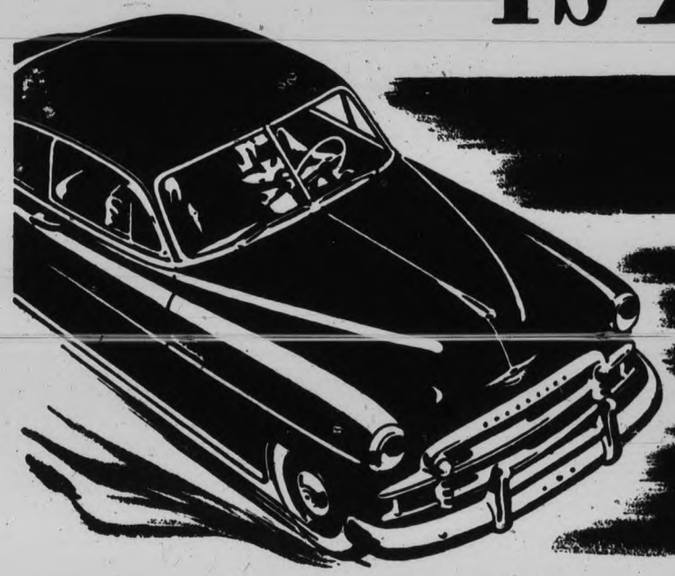
Toronto, Sept. 20—(CP)—A union meeting to hear charges of Communist membership against Reg Wright, president of the Consumers' Gas Local of the International Chemical Workers' Union (AFL-TLC) was adjourned in an uproar Tuesday night with no decision reached.

The Trades and Labor Congress convention in Montreal last week refused to seat Mr. Wright, a union officer for 1 years and president for six, as a delegate. The credentials committee accused him of Communist leanings.



The charges against him were brought by Joseph Barry, international representative of the union.

Mr. Wright told the meeting he resigned from the Labor-Progressive party last March.

The constitution of the union bars Communists from membership.

A Big, impressive, powerful car — with generous room for six . . . Canadian engineered for Canadian conditions and for economical operation — all this at a price that's far, far lower than the cost of any comparable car!

With value like Chevrolet's it's no wonder that in a recent impartial survey among thousands of motorists from coast to coast, Chevrolet proved to be in greater popular demand than any other car.

More Chevrolets are sold in Canada than any other make! In the past five years, Canadians have bought over 50,000 more Chevrolets than any other make — and the lead is growing every day, in all parts of the country!

LOW FIRST COST · REPUTATION · ECONOMY

LOW FIRST COST

Compare price tags first! Then examine the car — inside, outside, under the hood. Chevrolet is priced among the lowest of all — far below any comparable car! And it's a full-sized six-passenger car — safe, impressive.

REPUTATION

Thousands of motorists recently named Reputation as the leading reason for voting Chevrolet their favorite motor car, in a survey conducted from coast to coast, among owners of all makes.

ECONOMY

Chevrolet's highly-improved more powerful engine features a new carburetor that not only steps-up performance but means even greater economy of operation. And owners agree that Chevrolet costs less for maintenance service than other cars.

STYLING · PERFORMANCE · DEPENDABILITY

STYLING

Inside and out, Chevrolet's a style star! Above all, the new Chevrolet's lines have a quality look — the look of a big, impressive motor car . . . and that's just what this Chevrolet is!

PERFORMANCE

This year, as every year, Chevrolet clearly out-performs its rivals . . . on super-highways, on back concessions, in stop-start traffic. And Chevrolet's performance stays brilliant!

DEPENDABILITY

Complete dependability — that's the Chevrolet by-word! Superb engineering for Canadian conditions, plus skilled service at modest cost by authorized dealers everywhere keep maintenance costs down, dependability up!

SAFETY · ROOMINESS · TRADE-IN VALUE

SAFETY

Chevrolet gives you greater safety! Powerful, heavy steel box-girder frame . . . new more rigid Bodies by Fisher . . . big wraparound bumpers . . . exclusive Certi-Safe Hydraulic Brakes . . . and ample power to pull you out of danger in a tight spot!

ROOMINESS

Chevrolet's a six passenger car, for sure! There's no more squeezing in, but room aplenty for six grownups to ride in comfort on extended trips. And Chevrolet's convenient trunk has amazing capacity—it's bigger than ever before.

TRADE-IN VALUE

Because Chevrolet is first in the low-price field with all the qualities that Canadians want most . . . because it's renowned for long life, Chevrolet is the favorite among used-car buyers as well as new. That means a higher trade-in value for you!

Special Purpose Menus

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: At the request of some readers I am giving you what I call Special-Purpose Menus which include a low-calorie dinner each week, and which I supply to some other Canadian Newspapers.

Low-Calorie Dinner

Unsweetened fruit juice (6-oz. glass 65 cal.)
Lean thick Loin or Shoulder Lamb Chop (4 oz. 250 cal.)
Mint Sauce (10 cal.)
Steamed cauliflower with sprinkling of skim milk cheese (4 oz. 50 cal.)
Diced carrots with limas (4 oz. 1 teaspoon butter 90 cal.)
Cantaloupe halves filled with sliced peaches or blueberries (unsweetened 70 cal.)
Clear coffee (0 cal.)

Wednesday High-Calorie Dinner

Cream of corn soup
Wiener, tomato and cucumber casserole (see notes)
Buttered noodles with poppy seeds
Raw celery and carrot curls
Red plum pudding with cream (Rotgrod Med Flode—Danish) (See recipe)
White or angle food cake Coffee

One-Burner Dinner

Chicken a la King on patties or toast
Tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese and celery on lettuce
Sliced peaches on ice cream
Cocoa (see notes)

Directions

TOMATO AND WIENER CASSEROLE: This is a bit different for it calls for cucumbers. I tried it with some doubts, but they were all dispelled when I tasted it. It is good.

From 1-3 to 2-3 cup raw rice (this amount depends on whether you use this dish without another carbohydrate dish), 1½ cups sliced onions, 3 tablespoons fat, 3 cups tomatoes, 1 teaspoons salt, 1 sliced green pepper, 1 bay leaf, 1 sliced cucumber (skin on), 8 or 12 wieners.

Boil or steam rice until tender. Cook sliced onions and peppers in the fat until tender. Place the bay leaf in the bottom of a casserole, then put all of the ingredients in layers in the casserole, finish with a layer of wieners. Bake covered at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Uncover during last 10 minutes. This is a delicious and inexpensive September supper dish. Serve with Noodles with Poppy seeds made by boiling packaged noodles in plenty of salted water until tender. Add as much as 5 tablespoons butter if you can spare it and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons poppy seeds. This is sensational.

◇ ◇ ◇

DANISH HOTGROD MED FLODE was introduced to me by the former director of Chatelaine. She served it to us with those angelfood Snowballs—you know, dipped in icing then cocoanut. Simmer 2½ cups stoned red plums until very soft. Strain. Add 1 cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, stick of cinnamon, 1 cup water and simmer 5 minutes. Stir 3 tablespoons arrowroot flour or cornstarch into 1-3 cup cold water and stir this into the fruit mixture until thick. Cook over double boiler 15 minutes, stirring often. Take out cinnamon and pour into stemmed glasses or mould in ring mould. Serve with unsweetened whipped cream or pouring cream.

◇ ◇ ◇

COCOA (for the benefit of our children).

My rule for cocoa is equal amounts sugar and good quality cocoa, so I use 1 1-2 teaspoon each to each cup of whole milk. Your children may want it sweeter and stronger. Mix 1 1-2 to 2 tablespoons each cocoa and sugar, an stir to a paste with 1-2 cup milk. Heat in top of double boiler 2 1-2 cups milk. When milk is hot stir cocoa paste into it, cover and let heat through. Beat with rotary beater before serving.

Notes: Water may be used for the paste and amount of milk reduced. You may want to add a sprinkling of salt.

UNSINKABLE

The water in Great Salt Lake is so dense it is impossible for a person to sink.

Farewell to Apsley Student

APSLEY, Sept. 20 —(ENS)— Thanksgiving service was held in St. George's Anglican Church on Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, potted plants, fruits, vegetables, grain, loaves of bread and colored leaves. Harvest prayers and the lesson was read by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence. Harvest hymns were sung by a full choir.

It was the farewell service for Gordon Hendra who has been in charge of the parish during the summer months. He thanked the congregation for the co-operation extended him. The peoples' warden the Rector's warden and the members of the guild in particular.

At the close of the service all present went to the Parish Hall for a farewell social hour with Mr. Hendra, who is leaving the community to resume studies in college in Toronto.

On behalf of th congregation the Rector's warden Charles Alphy presented a purse of money.

During his stay here Mr. Hendra endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact. Upon request Rev. C. A. G. Spence spoke a word of appreciation and farewell, speaking very highly of Mr. Hendra's work here. Mr. Hendra thanked his parishoners for their kindness and hospitality to him while here as well as for the gift.

Lunch was served by members of the guild.

Harvest Festival was celebrated at St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, also on Sunday. The church was decorated with flowers from Mrs. Charles Tanner's garden.

Decoration Day was observed at St. Paul's and United Church Cemeteries, Lasswade, on Sunday.

Hooper-Graham Wedding

The Westwood Presbyterian Church, decorated with gladioli and ferns, was setting Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Margaret Doreen Graham to Mr. James Gordon Hooper. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Graham, Westwood, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hooper, Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite of Peterborough, assisted by Mr. Jonathan Greene, of Keene. Mrs. Hugh Redmond played the wedding music and Mrs. Reginald Chandler sang "O Perfect Love" before the cermony and "Nuptial Benediction" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly-type lace over white taffeta. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Her finger tip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a halo of orange blossoms.

Matron of honor was her cousin, Mrs. Percy Adamson. She wore a gown of old rose tissue faille, and carried a cascade of pink carnations.

Jane Mortlock, niece of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in mauve tissue faille and carrying a basket of autumn flowers.

The groom was attended by Mr. George Green. Ushers were Bruce and Jack Graham, brothers of the bride.

The reception was at the bride's home where Mrs. Graham received in a dress of blue silk crepe, with black accessories, wearing a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by Mrs. Hooper, who was dressed in navy crepe with navy accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling, the bride wore a wine gabardine suit with black accessories. The couple will live in Peterborough.

organdy over pink taffeta and a pink sash, gloves and bonnet.

She carried a bouquet of yellow and white gladioli.

Mr. William Johnson was his brother's groomsman and ushers were Terrance Johnson, also a brother, and Paul Rogers and Murray Maguire.

After a reception at Grandview Lodge, attended by 45 guests, the couple left on a trip to Quebec and northern Ontario. The bride was wearing a suit of copper satin with brown velvet hat, bag, gloves and shoes.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will live in Sudbury.

Barbecue Lunch Follows Meeting Civic Alumnae

Peterborough Civic Hospital Alumnae members resumed their fall and winter schedule of meetings Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. W. Thornton, Armour Rd.

President Mrs. Roy Taylor presided for business which preceded a most enjoyable gathering around the Thornton's attractive outdoor barbecue where the alumnists enjoyed cooking and eating hotdogs with coffee and cake following.

New members from the 1950 graduating class were welcomed by Mrs. Taylor and she asked for the cooperation of all members during the coming months to aid her in filling her new executive post.

Due to a vacancy Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon was elected second vice president.

Plans for the Purple and Gold tea and bazaar being held November 4 were discussed. Miss Grace Calvert and Miss Mae Renwick reported on progress of the draw for a doll's bed and wardrobe, to be concluded at the tea, and draw tickets were distributed.

An invitation from Miss A. L. Thomson to hold October meeting in the new nurses' residence was accepted.

Miss Renwick expressed the thanks and appreciation of the members to Mrs. Thornton at the conclusion of the evening.

"High Cost of Essentials Causing Economic Crisis"

TORONTO, Sept. 20—(CP)—Mrs. F. E. Wright, president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, said today that "an economic crisis is facing our families."

In her report to the annual meeting of the C.A.C., Mrs. Wright said Canadian consumers face "very real difficulties and hardships" in maintaining their standard of living. Root cause was the high cost of essentials.

In a review of the activities of the 13,000-member women's organization during the last year, Mrs. Wright termed the Association "a two-way channel between consumers and government, trade and industry."

She reported that during 1950—the association's third year — 15 national women's organizations participated, branches were set up in every province but Newfoundland, and the association membership was increased by almost 50 per cent.

Mrs. W. S. Winters of Toronto, CAC corresponding secretary, reported that the association had twice written to the federal agriculture department protesting meat prices.

"Nevertheless, the hurdles of high-priced meat; the compulsion of the Canadian consumer for the most part to buy poorer grades of meat selling at as high or higher than U.S. prices, the continued policies of wrapping bacon in deceptive, red-striped cellophane; and lack of compulsory meat gradings, still stand."

SPEAKING OF FOOD —

Now that Labour Day is past and the children are back studying A.B.C.'s and history, necessities for school lunches become an important part of food shopping. One item that puts a sparkle in the eyes of every student is Peanut Butter, rich in energy and an excellent source of Vitamin B.1. Peanut Butter has held a favourite position in succeeding generations. This week your Dominion Store is featuring Dominion Brand Peanut Butter, a smooth, tasty spread for sandwiches and after-school snacks.

It's a far cry indeed from the days of the general store with its cracker barrel and smoky oil lamps to a modern Master Market as your nearby Dominion Store is known. With its wide aisles flanked by clean, tidy displays of food, the bright, glare-free fluorescent lighting, your Dominion Store presents a food shoppers' "dream" in reality. If you haven't yet shopped in this complete food centre, why not visit your Dominion Store the very next time you have food shopping to do. We're sure you'll like the quality, the variety and the every day low prices.

With meat prices as they are, housewives are often plagued with the necessity of having to supply economical nourishing mid-day meals when the family is home from work and school. An easy-to-prepare dish, and one the family will appreciate, can be quickly made with a tin or two of baked beans and some strips of bacon. Simply heat beans, spread them over buttered toast and lay strips of grilled bacon on top. It's a nourishing and tasty dish. Your meat salesman at Dominion will co-operate in supplying the bacon and there's a wide variety of sizes and brands of baked beans always, at your Dominion Store.

The other day a shopper was overheard to remark on the wonderful variety of fresh fruits and vegetables on display at Dominion. Naturally we were pleased, but after all it's part of our business to bring you the pick of the season's finest fruits and vegetables. We like to think too that by properly displaying them, your task of providing interesting variety for your family is made easier. Stop in today and see Dominion's outstanding varieties.

P.S. In case you are in doubt your Dominion Master Market is located at George and Sherbrooke Streets in Peterborough.

Visiting with Mr. Garbutt Mann and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mann of Bridgenorth are Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Mann of Medora, Man., and Mr. Harry Mann of Ottawa. For the first time in 30 years Mr. Isaac Mann has come east and met with his two remaining brothers (eight other members of the family are deceased). His wife, formerly Alberta Blewett of Chemong Rd. will visit her three sisters, Mrs. Ned Sanderson (Lilly) of Lakefield, Miss Josephine Blewett of Toronto, and Mrs. E. W. Kelly (Edith) of Peterborough. (Two other sisters and one brother, Mrs. Will Grant (Emma) and Mrs. E. Sanderson (Adeline) and Mr. Sid Blewett all of Chemong Rd. are deceased. A family reunion is being planned for the near future.

40 At WA, Set Up Schedule

A supper meeting Tuesday evening, attended by more than 40 members of Grace United Church WA, opened the new season for this active group. A sing song followed and then president Mrs. M. Close called a business session in which she succeeded in setting up the full fall program. A rummage sale will be held in the Orange Hall this Friday, September 22; a play will be performed in October; lectures and slides on flowers and nursery shrubs will be sponsored on October 17; to be followed by a social period; the anniversary tea and sale will be held November 22 at the church. Entertainment with piano selections was provided by Miss L. Corner and the meeting closed with a hymn and devotions led by the Rev. E. W. Rowland.

✧ ✧ ✧

Japan Topic At Trinity WMS

A Japanese atmosphere prevailed as the Trinity WMS meeting got under way Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors. A Japanese theme hymn was taught the members by Mrs. D. B. Gordon prior to the opening. Her group then introduced the study of Japan, scheduled for this year, in a unique way, first with a playlet "Understanding Japan" in which Mrs. W. Donaldson, Mrs. C Spearin and Mrs. A. B. Cunningham took part, then with a quiz, "What do we know about Japan." Asissted by Mrs. A. B. Gates, Mrs Gordon gave excerpts from the study books titled "The United Church Enters Japan" and "Japan Begins Again." The closing worship was taken by Mrs. H. T. Crosbie, Mrs. M. Andrews and Mrs. A. Stanley on the theme "Spirit of the Cross." President Mrs. A. Legon announced the sectional rally at Mark St. Church on October 5 when Miss Annie Bishop of the Supply department of the Dominion Board will be the speaker. Tea was served by the group in charge.

June Snowell Wed

HASTINGS, Sept. 20 (ENS) — In the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Hastings, on Saturday, June Rose, youngest daughter of Mr. John Snowell, became the bride of Robert William Clarence Johnson, son of Mrs. Rita Johnson and the late Mr. Johnson. The Rev. J. M. Ritchie officiated.

The church was decorated by the Young People's Society with asters, gladioli and ferns. Mrs. Stanley Fife played the wedding music and Mrs. J. M. Ritchie sang. Before the bride entered she rendered "Because" and during signing of the register, "I'll walk with you."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in an ivory satin gown with low neckline embroidered with seed pearls and finished with a bustle back and long train. Her train-length veil of embroidered naylon net was caught to a cornet of seed pearls and her bouquet was of sweetheart roses. Matron of honor was her sister Mrs. Osborne of Bailieboro wearing an ankle length dress of white

Railway Man, Wife Honored With Presentations

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 20 (ENS) —Mr. and Mrs. E J. Walker of Havelock were honored at a luncheon party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. H. Morrison, Trent River, Monday, on the occasion of Mr. Walker's retirement from the Canadian Pacific Railway after serving 50 years.

About 20 CPR pensioners and employees and their wives were present. During the evening Mr. Morrison presented Mr. Walker with a gladstone bag and Mrs. Walker with a corsage of roses and a large box of candy.

Best wishes were extended the couple for continued long years of good health and happiness. Mrs. Walker, gowned in navy sheer, poured tea. The table was covered with a hand made Irish linen cutwork cloth, centred with a crystal bowl of baby 'mums and crystal candelabra. Mrs. Morrison assisted, wearing navy coin dot silk Jersey. Both wore corsages of lily of the valley.

Those guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and son of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Voyer, Peterborough, Mrs. Frank Voyer, Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hutchison, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hitchins, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, Mr. E. W. Seeney, Mr. William Hamilton of Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Dart, Trent River.

Loebach-Guiry

DOWNEYVILLE — (ENS) The wedding was solemnized in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Toronto, Saturday morning, of Therese Guiry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guiry, formerly of Downeyville, and Mr. Lawrence Joseph Loebach, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Loebach, Essex.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in fluorescent satin and Chantilly lace, her finger-tip veil held with a heart-shaped lace headdress, and she carried a cascade of pink roses and bouvardia. Miss Margaret Guiry, maid of honor; Miss Louise Guiry, bridesmaid, and Miss Alice Guiry, junior bridesmaid, all sisters of the bride, were gowned alike in emerald green taffeta with lace headdress in matching shade, and each carried polar ice gladioli. Flower girl Joan Stiers, niece of the groom, was also in emerald green and carrying white gladioli.

Mr. William Loebach was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Norman Kelly and Arthur Kusnick, all of Toronto.

The Rev. A. F. Loebach, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. Rt. Rev. Monsignor Callahan and the Rev. S. A. Perdue were in the sanctuary.

After the ceremony a reception was held at "The Towers," with the bride's mother receiving in a blue lace gown with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's mother also received in a gown of grey lace with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

After a motor trip the couple will live in Toronto.

The bride is a former resident of Downeyville where she lived until four years ago when she moved with her parents to Toronto.

Those from Downeyville at the wedding were Mrs. W. C. Herlihey and Miss Delphina Piggott, Misses Ada Guiry, Rose Marie Guiry and Nora Guiry of Lindsay.

Home and School Association News

RIFLE RANGE SCHOOL.

The Home and School Association of Rifle Range School met on Monday with a fair attendance.

In the absence of Mrs. J. Stuart, recording secretary, minutes were read by Mrs. W. A. Amos, corresponding secretary.

President Mrs. E. Davies, announced the showing of "movies" in the school on Friday, Sept. 29 and urged everyone to be present. She also announced, with some regret, the resignation of the capable secretary, Mrs. Stuart and called for nominations to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Muir was nominated, and accepted the postion and Mrs. Neely was appointed program convener.

Three school pupils, Annabel McConkey, Shirley Flint and Doreen Little gave a humorous musical number, "Ain't She Sweet?", which delighted. A sing-song followed with Mrs. Stanley Wood at the piano, and Mrs. Norman Andrew leading. Many old favorite tunes were enjoyed.

A social half-hour followed under the direction of Mrs. D. Flint, hospitality convener and her assistants.

DOROTHY DIX

People Seeking Freedom Wind Up With Loneliness

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother and I have had an argument about happiness and we wish you to settle it. I think that happiness consists in personal freedom, in being able to come and go as you please. In doing as you like without having to consult the wishes of any one else. In keeping yourself as free of all ties as possible. Believing this, I never intend to marry or burden myself with a family. There will be no wife keeping tab on my movements. No children on whom I would have to spend my money. My mother says that happiness is only to be found in having some one dependent on us, in our feeling ourselves necessary to some one else's happiness and well being, and in our doing some congenial, constructive work. Which of us is right? ARTHUR

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think that your mother is right. Personal liberty is, of course, a highly desirable blessing, but too much of it can become a curse. The most miserable people in the world are those who are absolutely free because the only reason that they are free to come and go and do as they please is because no one cares where they go or what they do or if they ever return or not.

Freedom is Lonely

If you would be free you must walk alone, and that is a dreary thing to do. We must have companionship to put meaning and pleasure into everything we do. The most exquisitely cooked meal lacks flavor, the most delightful journey turns into a bore, if we have no congenial companion to share it with. To get pleasure out of a book or play we must have someone to discuss it with, and so no lonely life can be a happy life, and if you find the freedom you seek you will find it dead-sea fruit in your hands.

No man lives unto himself alone. We must have others to share our joys and our sorrows. Empty are our triumphs and our successes if there is no one to rejoice with us and be proud of us and give us the dear, intimate flattery of being proud of us that it sweeter to us than all the plaudits of the multitude. And only those plumb the deepest depths of sorrow who grieve alone, who, in their dark hour, have no breasts to weep upon, no one whose heart breaks with theirs in sympathy.

The happy people are those like your mother who have found the contentment we all crave in service to others.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: It is true that no man loves a fat girl and that a girl has to have a string-bean figure in order to have dates? I am a little overweight. Must I go on a diet in order to be popular with the boys?- JANE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I am afraid that I can not give an authoritative answer to this question, Jane. What a man seems to admire in a rack of bones I'm sure I don't know, but there is no arguing about taste, so there you are, and observation shows that the young women who look like incipient cases of tuberculosis do seem to have the edge over the plump maidens. However, there are exceptions to this rule and occasionally you will run across a man of sense who is looking for a wife who shows that she is hale and healthy and will take an interest in cooking, to one who it takes no prophet to fortell will be nothing but a doctor's bill to her husband.

Furthermore, there is this to say: if plumpness is a drawback before marriage it is an asset after marriage for it indicates not only that a woman is a good cook and a good housekeeper and one who takes a proper interest in food, but that she is goodnatured and easy going, all of which are virtues which endear her to her husband.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A young married man and I have been desperately in love with each other for several years. We are both honest and honorable, and we have fought this love until we are both mental and physical wrecks. He wants to go and tell his wife all about it and ask her to set him free. What do you say? D. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think that is the right thing to do, and if the wife is a wise woman and a good sport she will not try to hold the body of a man whose heart and soul belong to another.

Scots Women Prefer to Have Babies at Home

WINNIPEG —(CP)— In Scotland a great many women still prefer to have their babies at home, says Dr. Charlotte Douglas of Edinburgh.

Dr. Douglas, visiting Winnipeg, is medical officer for maternal and child welfare in the Scottish Department of Health.

She said that under the Scottish health set-up, women are given the choice of going into a hospital or of staying at home.

"Unless there is a good medical reason why they should go into a hospital, they may remain in their own home," Dr. Douglas said. And a great many do.

Women "Pilots" Help Strangers

LONDON —(CP)— During the last few months, women drivers in neat khaki uniforms have been "piloting" cars throught and around London. They are members of the pilot service of Britain's Automobile Association.

Their principal job is to escort members of the Association who are strangers to London. Overseas drivers find them particularly useful.

The women, like their male counterparts, meet a car on request and do not leave the car until the driver is all clear for his destination.

Sometimes they will be called upon to accompany an owner to take delivery of a new car, explain the controls if necessary, and drive it to a garage.

The pilots can be hired by the hour or by the day and make a small charge for their services. They are in great demand by strangers to town who want advice about shopping in the metropolis.

Martin-Cavanagh

At the Sacred Heart Church last Wednesday, Monica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cavanagh, Indian River, was married to Preston Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, Monaghan Rd., Peterborough. The cermony was performed by the Rev. G. Sullican who said the nuptial mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a grey taffeta suit with grey accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was attended by her sister Mrs. Alvin Bell attired in a navy taffeta suit and navy accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Alvin Bell was groomsman and Vincent Torpey, nephew of the bride ushered.

A breakfast was served the bridal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cavanagh, Queen St., and a reception held later at the bride's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin will live on King George St.

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Eggs and Vegetables Make Well Balanced Luncheon

A SPINACH RING or nests of buttered spinach make a nourishing and colorful contrast for hard cooked eggs.

"300 Ways to Serve Eggs," the tenth cookbook in the Examiner's series of twenty-four cookbooks, being made available to Examiner readers, has just been released. Like the earlier cookbooks in the series, Snacks, Leftovers, Cakes, Poultry, Pies, Soups, Salads, Meat, and Fish, the Egg Book covers one single subject of cooking and covers it in such a way that the beginning cook is given specific instructions and the experienced homemaker will find hosts of ideas and improved methods to round out her cooking procedure. Luscious photographs of temptingly arranged food are used provocatively, making it almost imperative to try new recipes and attractive ways of serving food.

Eggs can be commonplace food, but here is one of the many ideas for varying this nourishing fare:

Eggs And Spinach

2 quarts spinach, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 hard-cooked eggs, 1 cup tomato sauce.

Wash spinach, cook, drain and add butter and seasoning. Arrange 2 nests of spinach on a small platter and place 3 eggs in each nest. Serve with tomato sauce. Serves six.

Use other cooked greens instead of spinach, if desired.

And here is still another of the many ideas in the Egg Book:

Boiled Eggs With Dumplings And Vegetables

6 soft or medium-cooked eggs, 1 head cauliflower, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, beaten; ¾ cup milk (about), stock or water, melted butter.

Remove shells from soft-or-medium-cooked eggs. Break cauliflower into flowerets and cook in boiling salted water until tender. To prepare dumplings sift flour, baking powder and salt into mixng bowl. Add egg and enough milk to make a rather stiff batter. Mix thoroughly. Drop into boiling salted water or stock and cook closely covered for 12 to 15 minutes. Arrange dumplings in centre of large platter, reheat eggs in stock, alternate vegetables and egg as a border around dumplings. Serve with melted butter, hot tomato sauce or some of the stock. Sprinkle with minced parsley, or garnish with parsley or cress. Serves six.

Onions, asparagus, peas, broccoli or carrots may be used instead of cauliflower.

To obtain your copy of the Egg Book or the earlier books of the series, clip one coupon for each book from page 2 of any issue of the Examiner and present the coupons with 25c for each book to the Examiner Office, or from your Examiner carrier; at Braund's Food Markets. Or you may obtain your copies by mail by sending the coupons with 30 (5 cents additional for postage and handling) for each book to Cookbook Department, Examiner, Peterborough.

6—In Memoriams

DAVIDSON—In loving memory of a dear husband and Dad, John Davidson, who was killed two years ago today, also our dear son and brother, Stanley, who was killed seven years ago.
Asleep in God's beautiful garden,
Sheltered from sorrow and pain,
Safe in God's wonderful keeping,
Until we shall meet them again.
—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

JONES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. David Jones, who passed away one year ago today.
Deep in the heart is a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by her son Wilbert and Lou and family.

JONES—In loving memory of Mrs. David Jones, who passed away one year ago today.
We have only your memory dear mother,
To remember our whole life through,
Years that may come cannot sever,
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Sadly missed by son and daughter-in-law, Edward, Iva and family.

JONES—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mary Jones, who passed away one year ago today, September 20, 1949.
Oh happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by her husband, David.

JONES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. David Jones, who passed away Sept. 20, 1949, one year ago today.
You can only have one mother,
Patient, kind and true,
No other friend in all the world
Will be as true to you.
For all her loving kindness
She asked nothing in return,
If all the world deserts you
To your mother you can turn.
So all we can do dear mother,
Is to go and tend your grave,
And leave behind a token of love,
To the best mother God ever gave.
—Lovingly remembered by her two daughter, Marian and Ada, husbands and grandchildren.
